FAMILY WIPED OUT BY FIRE AT THREE RIVERS

Parents, Babe Trapped By Fire In Upstairs Burned at Three Rivers

Jarvis Thompson Dies In Effort to Save Wife And Child

FAMILY ON VISIT

Father of Mrs. Thompson Badly Burned in Attempt at Rescue

Three Rivers, Que., Feb. 1 (CP)—Three persons were burned to death here today when fire destroyed the home of D. H. Baxter, who suffered serious injuries in attempting to rescue his daughter, son-in-law and their three-year-old child.

The dead: Jarvis Thompson; Mrs. Jarvis Thompson, Melinda Thompson, aged three years.

The three were trapped in the upper floor of the father-in-law's home and were dead when firemen finally made their way through the smoke to the back part of the flat where Thompson apparently had perished in an effort to take his wife and child to safety.

Giving Last Alarm

Thompson discovered the fire which spread from the living room fire place and turned to use the telephone the fire department. The notes of Mrs. Baxter and the two attempted to make their way through the flames, rapidly spreading the stairs and nothing but the only avenue to safety.

Baxter lost sight of his son-in-law and tried to make his way up the flaming staircase but the steps were crumbling and he was forced to flee, seriously burned. Hospital authorities said his condition was serious but not critical.

Reeves Falls Fatal

Bodies of Thompson and his child were found together as if the father had been trying to shield his child on the stairs. Body of Mrs. Thompson, the former Muriel Baxter was found near foot of the bed as if she had been attempting to follow her husband. He was president of the Trades and Labor Council of Three Rivers and well known in curling circles.

An inquest will be held at a date to be decided later.

MRS. HUEY LONG FOR U.S. SENATE

Baton Rouge La., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Mrs. Rose McConnell Long, widow of the late senator, tonight was appointed to succeed her husband in the senate term by Governor James Noe.

The appointment resulted from the death this week of Governor O. K. Allen, an associate of the late senator, who had been nominated for the unexpired term.

Mrs. Long had shown little interest in politics during the long and tumultuous career of her late husband.

Two women will sit in the United States Senate for the first time in history, when Mrs. Long takes her seat there. Hattie Caraway, who also succeeded her husband, is the lone woman member at present.

SUBMIT PICTURES OF MUTILATED ITALIAN SOLDIERS

Italy Files Photographs at Geneva to Prove Charge of Atrocities

OCCURRED DEC. 27

Geneva, Feb. 1 (CP)—A group of photographs of white and native soldiers, who, the Italians assert, were shockingly dismembered and otherwise mutilated or wounded by dumdum bullets, was on file today with the League of Nations Secretariat.

The photographs were sent to Joseph Avenol, Secretary-General of the League, by Pulvio Suvich, Italian Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, to support Italy's protest that it is within the international covenant charged the Ethiopians were guilty of committing such atrocities in abusing the Red Cross emblem.

The photographs included a group showing Corporal Giovanni Screbe and Privates Antonio Amato, Pietro Drungano, and Gildo Manzini, mutilated and emasculated during an encounter with Ethiopians at Tanzoca Dec. 27.

LOEB SLAYING IS CALLED PLOT

States Attorney Charges Leopold And Others Wanted Loeb Killed

Joliet, Ill., Feb. 1.—(AP)—State's Attorney William R. McCabe and State Director of Public Welfare A. L. Bowman tonight made startling disclosures into the fatal stabbing Tuesday of Richard Loeb in Stateville Penitentiary, agreed today Loeb was the victim of "a deliberate murder plot."

McCabe held a theory "Nathan Leopold may have put James Day up to" the slaying of Loeb. The State's Attorney charged Leopold killed because of jealousy over his alleged privileges in prison.

Bowen, however, said he did not believe Leopold had any connection with the alleged prison plot to kill Loeb.

CEREAL PRODUCTS

The gross value of the production of prepared breakfast foods and other cereal products in 1934 was $8,792,000 compared with $7,282,000 in 1933 and $96,908,000 in 1932.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Yarmouth, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP)—Voting in Beech Yarmouth were considerably under today after George H. Crowell had been acclaimed mayor by acclamation. Only 200 votes were cast in the municipal vote, with 1,000 eligible. The mild was feeding the pig when shot. It had a wing spread of seven feet, three inches.

Ont., Feb. 1 (CP)—Cold weather and deep snow was reported today to have depleted the pheasant population in the London district. Unable to get their usual dietary weeds, the birds fly about small areas and then drop to the ground and starve.

Perry, N.Y., Feb. 1 (CP)—They're making butter in electric churning machines now.

In the Oatka sector near here where the roads are paved but the farms are a mile or more away, dairy farmers who canned get their raw milk to their new stations. The family washer in churn is into better, the farmers have a huge time unless they could immediately utilize their surplus milk.

Salem, W. Va., Feb. 1 (CP)—Three state airports will be built under "the play must go on" bet—because they have to.

Just at the climax of their play the fire alarm sounded. The actors, in costume, grabbed their roles and grabbed fire equipment. The audience was entertained. They received cheques good for a repeated performance.

Clarksburg, W. Va., Feb. 1 (CP)—Safely delivered Giovanni Screbe and Privates Antonio Amato, Pietro Drungano, and Gildo Manzini, mutilated and emasculated during an encounter with Ethiopians at Tanzoca Dec. 27.

Washington, Feb. 1 (CP)—Representative Creal (D-Ky) Rhea (D-Tenn) said:

There was an argument as to whether $4,880,000 should be voted for the Indian service, Finally the argument took the form of a controversy between Creal and those voting for it.

"There aren't Indians in my district," he said. "But Pocahontas' descendants live in Health and I do have a lot of Smiths."

Watertown, Wis., Feb. 1 (AP)—Tomorrow is the day when the annual hog roasts out to be had for his shadow but to Arthur E. Olds, pillow burrower, it's just another day at the office. Olds of Marmota Monax will have to see more than a shadow at the Watertown's hibernating tavern-keeper from his covern where he has spent the last 23 winters. Hickory, better known here as "Turkey" started from the hibernation the quilts today, saw the frosted windows and decided he'd be awake by six or seven weeks before he'd be expected to be up and about.

Nebraska City, Neb., Feb. 1 (CP)—Louise Wolfe's legs were frozen because she didn't wish to take her stockings off for scientific record. She walked a mile and a half to school in 20 degrees below classes in sub zero temperatures. Physicians said today her condition was improving.

Charlottetown, Feb. 1 (CP)—Declaring authorities at Prince Edward Island Hospital for mental diseases attributed a rapid increase in male patients to excessive use of alcohol, Dr. A. E. Gordon of Charlottetown citizens yesterday urged the provincial Government for rigid enforcement of prohibition laws.

Cause of Collision To be Investigated

Cincinnati, Feb. 1 (AP)—A two-fold investigation appeared likely today into the fiery, fatal end-on collision between the Louisville and Nashville line's "Southland" and Chesapeake and Ohio's "Sportsman" last night, in which 30 or more persons lost their lives and a part of one train plunged 60 feet from a trestle into the street.

Several of the victims were believed seriously hurt. Scores more escaped injury.

A score of those hurt were treated in hospitals.

Railroad officials were silent as to the probable cause of the worst first of a serious nature here in several years.

They asserted, however, all trucks in the yards, as elsewhere, were controlled by block signals, and indicated Interstate Commerce Commission inspectors would investigate.

Yeats, Nobel Poet Is Out of Danger

Palma Mallorca, Feb. 1.—(CP-Havas)—William Butler Yeats, Ireland's world-famous poet and playwright, was reported out of danger today, following reports two days ago that he was causing grave concern.

DELBERT LAMB EQUALS RECORD IN SKATING RACE

Milwaukee Boy is Followed by Norwegian Eagnestangen

EROG IS THIRD

Davos, Switzerland, Feb. 1 (AP)—Delbert Lamb of Milwaukee scored a sensational victory in the 500 metres race, first event of the world speed skating champions today.

Lamb equalled the listed world's record of 43.4 seconds set by Clas Thunberg of Finland in 1931 as he flashed home winner over a track international field.

Second place went to Hans Engnestangen of Norway in 43.9 seconds while another Norwegian, Ivar Ballangrud, took the 43.1 seconds.

All told, the championship drew 41 competitors from 12 nations, ice and weather conditions were favorable but only a small crowd turned out for the opening day's competition.

Although Lamb's time equalled the listed world's record, it was two-tenths of a second slower than the 43.4 second performance Potts turned in during a recent international meet at Oslo.

CANADIAN NURSE FREED OF CHARGES

Jury Castigates Police And Newspapers For Branding Girl a Murderess

Woonsocket, R.I., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Marie Sevigny, darkeyed nurse involved in the mysterious death of a grand jury, which alleged police "framed" the case, and today she'd go back to her Manchester, N.H., home shortly and begin life anew.

Dr. Arthur J. Belisle, who, Police Inspector Leo Vanasse once announced, confessed in the girl's patient to end her suffering, said she took poison prescribed by himself.

She was accused of administering poison to Mrs. Eva L. Valmont of Normandin, 47, wife of an auditor for the State Alcoholic Beverages Commission.

Mrs. Normandin, the Grand Jury found, died "from the effect of poison she administered herself."

Of police, the Grand Jurors said little.

Apparently proceeding on a premise John there was no question about Miss Sevigny's guilt, they did not inquire as to whether or not there was any testimony other than that used to build up their own case.

"We deplore the fact that the record discloses when we all believed to be innocent of any criminal intent has been made the victim of action-seeking newspapers and a careless police department as a murderess. . . .

FEWER ASKING FOR SHELTER

January Transient Total Drops Some what

A steady decrease in the number of transients accommodated at the Belleville relief station slightly in queue of warm sleeping quarters has been noted throughout the past few days. During the late autumn and early winter months of 1935 the nightly average ran between ten and eleven transients but of the cell block of during January 1936 a marked decrease has been shown, police records today indicate. For the first month of December exactly 207 transients were afforded warm sleeping facilities at the police station while during the month of January only 167 were accorded the night at the night sergeants' desk. Last night eight slumbered peacefully without incident in the cell block. Activities in and around local police circles have been exceptionally quiet during the past few days, not a single arrest being necessary. Local and adjacent highways have been free from major motor accidents, Highway Traffic Patrol reported today.

Gambling Damage Case Thrown Out by Judge

London, Feb. 1 (CP)—London's gambling damage case ended abruptly yesterday when Mr. Justice William Finlay threw out of court the $50,000 action of Keith Hugh Williams.

Williams sought that sum from Lieut.-Col. Tassier, whom he had swindled out of about $60,000 in a card game at Sunderland House on December, 1934. Part of proceeds of the game were to go to charity.

The plaintiff's contention was several dishonest "professional" croupiers, had obtained admittance and took part in the game.

Tassier, however, said: "I will continue my work for charity. In 27 years I have collected millions of pounds for hospitals but I will not associate myself with any other gambling parties for charity."

JUDGE CHARGES JURY AT LONDON IN KIDNAP CASE

Russell Knowles Charged on Four Counts in Labatt Snatch

DUTIES OF JURY

Evidence of McCardell, Nicholson and McCaughey is Noted

London, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP)—The case against Russell Knowles of Detroit, charged on four counts growing out of the abduction of John S. Labatt, in August, 1934, was given to the jury at 12:40 p.m. today.

Pounding on defence evidence that Labatt was set up at a two-way defence to the kidnap charge: "Did this not a form of so-called kidnapping" to get $25,000 from company's funds for rum-runner; and last secondly, it would be of immense penalty upon the jury if they wilfully misled the jury."

"That's a sinister suggestion" His Lordship declared. "The defence plea John Labatt had deliberately identified Dan McGrail and other kidnappers in keeping his part of an arrangement to refrain from identifying the men who actually took part in the attack.

London, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP)—Mr. Justice Charles McRuer started his charge to the jury when the court opened today in the trial of Russell Knowles, of Detroit, charged on four counts in connection with the kidnaping for ransom of John S. Labatt.

The youngest Judge in the trial docket of the Ontario Supreme Court, Mr Justice McTague remarked that he would be "no sell and truly try," was no mere form.

Putting particular stress on the charge of theft, "according to the law of the land," Lordship said:

"This particular trial is a peculiar one. Nothing has ever been dealt with judicially in our courts. It has received a great deal of publicity in the public press. Please remember that your opinion must be based on the evidence, according to the evidence heard in this court—not on something you may have heard outside or something you may have read."

Might Have Called Bannon

In fairness to the defence, the Judge commented the Crown, as well as the defence, might have called Bannon as a witness if it so desired. Bannon is serving a sentence in the penitentiary.

Knowles, though a resident of Detroit, has been arrested on the same fair trial he would get if he were a resident of Canada. This was a principle that was carried out in practice in British justice, the Judge said.

"It was for the jury to say whether the accused had been clothed in lawful authority to do what he did in taking Labatt. His intentions should also be determined.

Accomplices Evidence

"In this connection," said His Lordship referring to the evidence of accomplices, "you must consider the evidence of McCardell, Nicholson and McCaughey. You have to be convinced of the two former and as to McCaughey you should consider the evidence of Knowles.

"My opinion is that the accused himself has amply corroborated the damaging evidence of McCardell and Nicholson, but that is for you to say", Justice McTague charged the jury.

CAR LOADINGS DECREASE

RAIL UNIFICATION WILL BE FORCED

50 Million Dollar Waste Yearly Charged by U.S. Coordinator

Washington, Feb. 1 (AP)—Manifesting impatience because the railroads had not taken his broad hints, co-ordinator Joseph B. Eastman prepared today to use a big stick to force United States railroad unification projects.

The transportation chief declared he soon would compel the unification of terminal facilities in cities as one factor in a drive to save the described as a $50,000,000 annual waste in terminal operations.

He said he was prepared for "other steps of increasing magnitude."

Eastman declared he had tried "persuasion and advice" but had found voluntarily and found "many were unwilling to act.

Believe Man Was Struck By Train Picking Coal

Ottawa, Feb. 1.—(CP)— Frozen body of a man was found today beside the cross-town Canadian National railway tracks. Police said the man apparently was killed when picked Great War veteran, and that he had been struck by a train as he sought to gather scraps of coals to heat his crude shack about a mile away.

United Miners Back Roosevelt Re-election

Washington, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The United Mine Workers formally endorsed President Roosevelt today for re-election and instructed the institute to the Democratic Campaign Fund.

John L. Lewis, the Miners' President said "If the A.F. of L. would follow suit, as it would there be all practical purposes, the result of the election no longer would be in doubt".

250,000 Trained Men In Demilitarized Area Belgian Expert Charges

Lieut. Col. Tasnier's Words of German Forces Stir Belgium

TYPES OF GUARDS

(Copyright, 1936 by the Havas News Agency)

Brussels, Feb. 1 (C.P.—Havas) — Charges by a Belgian military expert that Germany has stationed 250,000 trained soldiers in the demilitarized area west of the Rhine caused a sensation in government and army circles here today.

The charges were made by Lieut.-Col. Tasnier in an article published in the newspaper Le Soir.

"I can declare without exaggeration", Col. Tasnier said in his article, "that according to information from the best sources there exist in the Rhine more than 250,000 men fully prepared to fight."

Germany's defense formations of the "Landespolizei," organized similarly to a regular army, as a large brigade, preparing for army service, which has built camps and is now stocking them, Col. Tasnier said in his article.

He said these formations include two groups of storm troops of the Fifth and Sixth Regiments, each of a force of 150,000 men; the 7th Group of Blackshirt Guards of the Regiment of Blackshirt Guards of about 200,000 men; a motor corps of six regiments, numbering 40,000 men, and a service of supply and construction corps of 30,000 men.

There also is a large aviation force, he said.

"By simple calculation," he concluded, "these troops massed at night near the Belgian border could be in Belgium the next morning at Namur by noon and at Brussels and Antwerp by 2 o'clock in the afternoon.

THINK KONDYLIS WAS POISONED

Tense Capital Awaits Outcome of The Autopsy

Athens, Feb. 1.— (CP)— Conferences among officers to determine the future organization of the army continued today while a tense capital awaited the outcome of an autopsy to learn whether the late Gen. George Kondylis had been the victim of a political murder.

High army leaders are said to be considering a plan for readmission into the army of officers expelled for revolutionary activities in the past March.

The autopsy was ordered last night after reports spread through the city the sudden death of the former premier, whose body yesterday had been caused by poison.

Gen. Kondylis collapsed and died while in conversation with Deputy Merkouris. Apoplexy was given as the cause of death.

Investigate Source Gangster Machine Guns

Washington, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Investigation of the source of gangster machine guns was decided upon today by the Senate Munitions Committee.

The committee subpoenaed men whom Stephen Raushenbush, committee chief investigator, said had "a lot of second hand dealers and such" from New York. They will be questioned by committee beginning Feb. 17.

Raushenbush said the study would be taken up from two angles: How the gangsters got guns and how such weapons get into the hands of South American Revolutionists.

The committee will re-open the grave war inquiry Tuesday by questioning F. P. Morgan and his partners again.

Desaye, Ethiopia, Feb. 1.—(CP-Reuters) — The Ethiopian general headquarters claimed today that the Italian Army of General Emilio Diamanti, including the famous Fascist "Black of October" division, was "annihilated" in what was described as the greatest battle of the war on the northern front.

Ethiopian authorities said the battle ended yesterday, and hundreds of prisoners, masses of guns, machine guns, rifles and mules laden with ammunition were captured.

At the same time, Ras Desta Demtu, son-in-law of Emperor Selassie, was reported unofficially to have been deposed as Ethiopian commander on the southern front.

JOINTS WARNED COUNSEL CHARGES

Newton Says He Knows Informers And They Will Be Jailed

Toronto, Feb. 1—(CP)—Gamblers were warned by some person in Toronto police headquarters that they would be "closed up" yesterday.

Norman F. Newton, special counsel to the royal commission investigating the Toronto Police Department, charged early today.

"I know the names and they will go to jail for this," Mr. Newton said.

Preparations for the special raids were made by Mr. Newton's office on Tuesday night and only two high ranking officers of the department were familiar with the details.

Eleven stores and clubs were raided early last night but police reported no arrests were made.

Mr. Newton said yesterday afternoon he received a telephone call from a Toronto barrister, who said he had been told that the raids would be enough for him to be informed of them. Mr. Newton expressed amusement at the report and photographers and reporters at places police intended to raid.

"I am not in any way interested in suppressing gambling joints or prosecuting them in the ally of Mr. Newton said today. "My job is to find out if there is any dirty.

"I am vitally interested in knowing the notorious joints that have been operating without interference from police officers in this city.

"The job of Toronto is heavy combed with vice joints. Some one has to clear them up."

BRANTFORD RESIDENT DIES

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 1 (CP)— Grace M. Petrie, widow of Andrew Petrie, died at her home here last night. Petrie at present residing in Los Angeles, and Robert Petrie, Detroit, survive.

Spanish King, Wife Likely to Re-Unite

(Copyright 1936, by the Havas News Agency)

Paris, Feb. 1.—(CP-Havas) — Former King Alfonso XIII of Spain and his estranged wife, former Queen Victoria, are declared to be reuniting over the Pacific coast of Franchiliti in Rome, Spanish Royalist circles said here today.

Former Queen Victoria has consented to talk with Alfonso, when she goes to Rome to be with their daughter, the Infanta Beatrice, Princess Torionia, expecting a child shortly.

City Council Recommends Removal of Grade Crossing on No. 2 Highway, Scene of Fatal Accident Last Week

PROPERTY STATEMENT

Tax Collector to Furnish Statement of All Properties in Possession of City

Belleville city council, recognizing the possibility of further accidents at that locality and considering the number of fatalities that have already occurred there, at an adjourned council meeting held last evening were unanimous in the passing of a recommendation that the Dominion Railway Board be requested to give serious consideration to the construction of a grade separation at the Canadian Pacific Railway crossing on No. 2 Provincial Highway, just west of this city. City Clerk Wilfred E. Holmes was authorized to communicate with the Board informing it of the council's recommendation.

In order to deal further with the relief question in the city, council passed a motion recommending that the Welfare Department be asked to furnish a statement of all property owners receiving assistance from the organization, with names, street addresses, lot numbers and number of dwellings listed.

It was recommended that the city tax collector furnish council with a statement of all properties in possession of the city (other than the regular corporation property) showing lot number, street, if any buildings, or if vacant lot, and outstanding taxes due the city at December 31, 1935. This is to include all property in the city's possession up to December 31, 1935.

Esquire Cost of Audit

Esquire Cost of Audit

Further council learned that: That the city clerk be instructed to ascertain from auditors and the city of approximately the same size as Belleville, the system of auditing adopted by the city and the cost thereof, and also the remuneration paid the solicitors.

That all outstanding waterworks accounts be checked over by the waterworks manager and the chairman, and have the parties billed for outstanding amounts, and that they be notified that if not paid by a certain period, they will be placed in the hands of the proper authorities.

ICE ON NORTHERN LAKES NOT HEAVY

"It may appear strange to you residents of the southern townships, but we haven't had very much winter weather so far this winter than you have had down here," declared Steve J. L. Chrisoher, Dunsannon Township, today. "Some of the lakes back in the north haven't been frozen over hard enough to make driving or walking over them safe," added the Reeve. "Some of the lumber companies, hoping to get rid of the lakes for short cuts from the woods have had to refrain. The ice will not bear, and anything."

One reason advanced by the Reeve for the absence of thick ice is that snow arrived before the actual freezing weather, resulting in little frost in the ground and thinner ice.

GENERAL APPROVAL OF SNOW REMOVAL

Merchants and motorists have benefitted following the removal of the heavy piles of ice and snow from the curbs through the down-town business section. The ice is being chipped from the gutters by department workers, leaving the sand and smooth road. The efficient men were employed on the work of creating more parking space today.

WEATHER MODERATES

For the first time in sixteen days, residents of the city and district enjoyed a thawing spell on day in the siege of sub zero weather which has been continuous for over two weeks. Since Sunday evening thermometers commenced a slow ascent, rising until this morning when they reached more life-like levels. The result will be brief, however, according to official weather forecasts which indicate lower temperatures and snow flurries over the week end.

2 Intoxicated Men Convicted in January

Something of a precedent was established in police court during the month of January, 1936, Chief Kidd of the local police department disclosed today when he stated that convictions for intoxication in this city during January totalled two. Chief Kidd after reviewing the police records for the past month today announced that the two convictions for intoxication, one paid his fine while the other elected to serve the ten days' additional ten days in the common jail. "As a matter of fact there has been a decided decrease in crime and the violation of city by-laws in general lately," declared Chief Kidd as he scanned the police records. He could give no reason for the diminished atmosphere in law-breaking, however.

WILLIAM J. RITZ

William James Ritz, late of 44 Casberine Street, died at the Belleville General Hospital on Friday, January 31st, 1936, after a short ailment in the hospital for about 10 days.

The late Mr. Ritz, who was in his 75th year, was born near Owen Sound. For the past fifteen years he had been a resident of Belleville, prior to which he had made his home near Corbyville. In religious belief he was a member of the Victoria Avenue Baptist Church and was caretaker of the church property. By all who knew him he was highly esteemed.

Surviving him are one daughter, Mrs. J. D. Cooke, Toronto; one son, Arthur W. Ritz, Corbyville; one brother, August Ritz, Dundalk, Ont.

The body of the late Mr. Ritz is resting at Martin Funeral Home, 210 Church Street. Funeral announcements appear elsewhere in this paper.

Lale Mrs. Sylvia G. Calnan

Friday afternoon the funeral of Mrs. Sylvia Gertrude Calnan, who was passed away at Rochester, N. Y., on Tuesday, Jan. 28th, took place from the residence of Mrs. E. W. Calnan, 21 1-2 Isabel Street. Friends gathered in the home at 2.30 o'clock for the service which was conducted by the Rev. L. B. Taylor, pastor of the Tabernacle United Church.

Interment was made in Belleville cemetery, the same minister conducted the service at the graveside.

The bearers were Messrs. Gorman Reed, James Bunnett, Harry Pine, Vernon Drummond, Arthur Calnan and Allan Calnan.

DAVID LOUCKS (Manitoba)

David Loucks, a son of the late Adam Henry Loucks, formerly of Marmora, died recently. According to the Marmora Herald David Loucks left Deloro for Michigan where he resided a number of years. In 1926 he went to Wabowden where he had since resided. Some weeks ago he left his shack and walked about half a mile to a small island in Rowland Lake. His body was found four days later by neighbors. Dr. Bruce Gray in the absence of Wabowden by order of the Mounted Police as no trace could be found of his wife and family.

Crow Banding To Aid Destruction

Saskatoon, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Prizes for killing specially banded crows to encourage slaughter of the destructive birds have been proposed to the Saskatchewan government by the Fish and Game League.

The plan would place a bounty of from $25 to $50 on banded birds. A number of crows would be captured, banded, and released in various parts of the province. Each band would be numbered; lucky hunters retaining the bands until July 15 when there would be a draw to determine the amount to go to each.

It is believed thousands of unbanded crows would be killed in the effort to get those with the bands.

CHRIST CHURCH VESTRY REPORTS SHOW PROGRESS

Harold Bateman Rector's Warden, D. Cleland, People's Warden

The annual Vestry Meeting of Christ Church was held on Friday evening in the Parish Hall. The meeting was preceded by a banquet which was largely attended by the congregation. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock with the Rector, Rev. G. O. Wright, in the chair. In his address the Rector he expressed his appreciation for the co-operation of the officers and members in connection with the work of the parish. He commented at most favorably on the work of the choir under the direction of Mr. Percy H. Mayfoe. It has grown from a membership of 42 to 60. During the year the Church has come affiliated with the School of English Church Music which centers with the Westminster Abbey choir. Mr. Mayfoe's music is most conducive to the spirit of worship. The rector reported 220 public services, baptisms 27 children and 2 adults, marriages 20, burials 18; pastoral calls 972; meetings attended 154; the church was 7 times opened. His financial statement showed that the church contributed its position throughout the past year; 29 new envelope subscribers being added. Every envelope has a large share in the success of our financial efforts. Four duplicate receipts were sent out by the Women's Auditorium as well as all financial donations met. The two Sunday schools reported successful operation.

Harold Bateman was re-appointed Rector's Warden and Mr. D. Cleland people's warden. Mr. George Stokes elected lay delegate to Synod for three years to follow those elected to the council of the Parish: R. A. Backus, B. Theobald, S. Smith, J. Wilson, A. Capt. Knudsen, R. Ragsdale, S. T. Leggot, A. M. Fraser, J. Varley and J. Bone. Votes of thanks were passed by the vestry to the rector for his untiring efforts; to the choirmaster and choir; to the Parish Guilds and to the auditors and to clens, and to the various other organizations.

The vestry approached the coming year with a spirit of optimism. The meeting was closed with prayer by the rector.

APPLES PLENTIFUL ON SAT. MARKET

Fair Offering of Poultry On Inside Market

Local residents were given their choice of scattered offerings of vegetables, apples and odd quarters of meat at below average outside market this Saturday morning, although in the inside market a fairly plentiful supply of fowl and dairy products were in evidence. Deep snow still on the roads in the rural sections reduced the number of vendors, as compared to a year ago. Prices showed little change over those asked for the past few weeks. Apples were plentiful at prices ranging from 28 to 30 cents for "extras" and from 24 to 25 for pullets' Butter remained stationary at 30 cents the pound, with a few offering the two-pound rolls at 56 cents. Chickens were fairly cheap and plentiful. For the smaller fowl prices of from 20 to 25 cents were being obtained for the single bird, while heavier ones ranged from $1.00 to $1.25. Ducks sold from $1.00 to $1.50.

Apples, offered in large quantities, were among the chief purchases on the outside market, selling at an average price of 30 cents the peck for Delicious; 50 cents for Macintosh; 40 cents for Snows and 35 for sweet cooking apples.

A firm market with a fractional rise in prices of livestock has been noted during the past week, according to dealers. No change was listed in the local grain markets.

BEARS WASTE FISH DURING SPAWNING

Will Scoop Up Salmon From Shallows and Allow the Food to Rot

Black bears may have their good points but a Dominion Fisheries Inspector was skeptical when he found 30 salmon tossed up on the bank of a stream within a few yards of one another in the Queen Charlotte Islands by an angring Grizzly. He disclosed in a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Fisheries.

While the department makes every effort to keep fishery production of salmon adequate, it is essential for successful maintenance of Canada's Pacific Coast fishery industry, it is believed black bears take a heavy toll of spawning salmon in the Queen Charlottes and other parts of British Columbia.

The narrow and shallow streams bears find it easy to scoop up fish with their powerful paws and fling them to shore, some to be devoured at leisure and others ignored.

DISCUSSION ON MOVE TO ADJOURN

Business of Session Will be Concluded on Saturday

Rules of procedure were fought out in the County Council, when the body assembled for the afternoon session on Friday night in what was wind up the business and close members from the northern townships to catch a train for Saturday morning for their homes. After considerable discussion a motion by Reeve D. A. Clarke of Hungerford, finally was passed and the council will proceed to finish their business on Saturday morning.

When the council adjourned on Friday afternoon, it was with the understanding that all the business would be finished at the evening session. The move to have a night session was carried on a vote was taken. At 8.30 p.m. on Friday night, the hour the session was called for, there were only 21 members present of 31 in their respective chairs, a scant the meeting opened. D. A. Clarke, Reeve of Hungerford, moved for adjournment and at first Warden William G. West did not wish to accept the motion as he was of the opinion, that since the session was voted, the council should go on with the work.

Seeking the advice of three ex-Wardens, B. J. Hall, George Jordan and James Sronson, who are now members of the County Council, as to procedure these members gave as their opinion, that a motion to adjourn was in order and that a vote would have to be taken. The vote was taken, which was a tie, and Warden West stated that he by voting to carry on the business. The County Clerk then came into the chamber and the council moved into the committee of Ways and Means, with W. H. Sayers, Reeve of Tweed in the chair. Immediately a motion was put "that the committee rise and report progress and beg leave to sit again", and this was granted. The by-laws to be read carry on the business.

The only business left on the agenda is the passing of the special grants, which is likely to cause considerable discussion, and the passing of the customary by-laws.

KINSMEN WILL PUT THE LAUGH INTO NEW YEAR

"Oddities of 1936" Has Everything a Peppy Streamline Revue Should

Color, beauty, rhythm and music, that will be the Kinsmen Oddities of 1936, to be presented on the evening of Wednesday, February 5th and Thursday, February 6th in the Collegiate Auditorium.

Director George Zarfas of the Canadian Production Company who has been rehearsing the cast of 60 reports that it has been a long time since he has had such outstanding talent to work with, and he has been in the business of producing shows for fifteen years. His theatrical company has a long record of successes and he personally conducted the last Kinsmen show in Belleville. Several weeks of presentation of this dazzling and brilliant musical revue is expected to be the sensation of Belleville show season.

Daily Rehearsals

Some 40 girls have been training every afternoon and evening to learn the intricate and effective dance routines. This is one time where a few fancy and lavish phrases need be well placed in order to describe the beauty these choruses are doing. The least that can be said is that the girls have early date they are trained almost to perfection. Their pretty, new costumes, fresh out of the celophane, and their smiles the night of the show will be brought into the iron girders in the auditorium.

As members of the Kinsmen Club have been given the privilege, some the profits of this show will be devoted to the Kinsmen eye clinic. If there is a more entertaining and satisfactory way of helping to fight blindness, we confess to ourselves than by purchasing a ticket to this show, it has not yet been discovered. Everyone who has watched rehearsals has felt that they would be well bought full value will be received.

First Form 'Lit' Of Collegiate Gives Program

In the Collegiate Auditorium on Friday afternoon the first form "Lit" was given before a large audience of students. A variety of sketches, pantomimes and humorous musical numbers made up a very interesting program. Miss Ethel Hall, president of the Literary Society, acted as master of ceremonies.

The very effective costumes under the supervision of Miss Macdonald were added to the interest of the afternoon's entertainment. A vote was taken by the students as to which performance was the best, the audience were the selections by Miss Hall's division "Conversation", starring Don Grass, Other members of the quartet were Jack Brooks, Tom Wilkinson, and Walter Taylor. A piano solo was given by Gordon Hall and a vocal by Jack Hubbs.

COUNTY COUNCIL NAMES DELEGATES PASSES GRANTS

W. H. Sayers of Tweed is Chairman in Ways And Means

ACCOUNTS PAID

Frankford Reeve Placed on C. A. S. Executive Board

Hastings County Council with the exception of a few minutes on Friday afternoon, carried on their session in the committee of ways and means. W. H. Sayers, reeve of Tweed and chairman of the finance committee, was in the chair. Shortly before six o'clock a motion to adjourn until Saturday was made but an amendment carried, that adjournment be made until 4.30 in the evening. The by-laws before the council were passed at the evening session and the business of the session closed.

D. H. Robinson of Frankford was appointed to the C.A.S. board in place of the warden, William C. West. The liability insurance was given to the same company that held it last year, namely Lloyds of London, at a price of $6,043.13. Respecting the insurance for the employees of the county, it was decided to leave the matter with the finance committee and the road superintendent with power to act. It is more than likely that the county will take the Compensation Board instead of an insurance company for this liability.

Accounts Paid

An account of $1,863.35 for the C.A.S., one for $4,065.00 for the Mothers' Allowance and $2,065.64 for the Old Age Pension were ordered paid. Books for the registry office at $7.60 and one for white other accounts for transportation of prisoners amounting to $238.80, Alexandria School $30.50 and Sheriff's office $50.40 were also ordered paid. The superintendent and matron for the Hastings County Home were authorized to attend a convention in June in London with expenses paid, while the whole committee of the roads and bridges with the road superintendent will be a delegation to the Good Roads Association convention in Toronto. While there the roads commissioner will interview the Department of Highways with a view of having some of the County Road System taken over by the Provincial Highway System.

The treasurer, James W. Haggerty will attend the Rural Municipal Association meeting in Toronto while James A. Sprackett, chairman of the Agricultural Committee will attend the Ontario Agricultural Council as a delegate from Hastings County. In these three instances were ordered paid. A grant of $100 was given the National Institute for the Blind and $40 to the Quinte Seed Fair. The purchase of a portrait of the present King Edward VIII was left to the finance committee with power to act.

SPRINGBROOK

Springbrook—Mr. and Mrs. Percy Gibson and children of Stirling, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Heath on Sunday.

Mrs. Reg. Morgan and Shirley spent last week at her home at Fairview.

Mrs. Emma Bateman visited her sister Mrs. Carrie Joyce, last week.

Mrs. Edward Owens returned home on Wednesday after spending the past month with her daughter, Mrs. Donald Rush of Bayside.

The many friends, neighbors and relatives of Mrs. F. B. Linn are very sorry to learn of her illness. All join in wishing her a very speedy recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Morton and children on Pin Concession were Sunday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reid's.

SNOW-REMOVAL

A request by Harry McCreary to submit a tender should the County Council decide on snow removal from the north township roads was brought forth a little discussion at the Friday morning session of the council and then was shelved to the Ways and Means Committee. James A. Moore started the discussion, when he intimated, that a bill had been received from a patrol for $70.00 this being the amount it cost to remove the snow by hand labor from a piece of road between Stirlingbridge and Eldorado. "This could have been done for half the amount", said Mr. Moore, Warden Arhart in his remarks: "I think we should stick to the hand work. It gives the men to be locally a little job and the money is circulated in the county and municipality."

Reeve Wallbridge: "You would want to penalize the whole county for the sake of a few."

Reeve Davis: "The men should be given the work but I think there are other jobs they could be placed at. There should be some county equipment to remove this snow at a cheaper price than it is now being done. Some men could be gainfully employed in brushing out a road and burning the brush."

Reeve Birbarti: The grader went through the particular piece of road but still the men had to do some shovelling to make it passable."

Deputy Reeve Jordan: "There is a piece of road in Hungerford near Marlbank, that was blocked for two days and I doubt if a road grader could have got through. There was only one way to open that road and that was by hand shovelling."

Reeve Larkin: "I will not say it is good business but I think the men need the money."

Reeve Hubbell: "I would say, that hand shovelling is the most antiquated system and I think a power grader could be used to better advantage." At this point the correspondence was sent on to the committee.

Concessions Routed

Reeve Campbell Wallbridge of Madoc moved two motions, which were passed and if action is taken by the government, there will be plenty of work in the county during the coming year. He moved, that the road between Foxboro and Madoc be taken over by the Highway Department as a Provincial highway and that the road between Madoc and Bancroft be completed as soon as possible. Both motions received the unanimous consent of the council and will be sent to the proper authorities at Toronto. A letter touching on the same question was received from the Chamber of Commerce and the suggestions contained were endorsed.

Clem H. Erickson, Deputy Reeve of Sidney Township with the Reeve of Thurlow, was present moved, "that due to the 15 accidents at Gilleon's and Cemetery railway crossing resulting in a large toll of life and property damage, this council go on record in requesting the Railway and Municipal Board investigate the condition and if possible remove the hazardous conditions existing by abolishing the level crossings." This motion was not discussed but carried unanimously.

James H. Anderson, Reeve of Huntingdon and Hereford asked the council to endorse and send a resolution to the Welfare Department at Toronto requesting, that earnest consideration be given into the matter of a grant to assist the township in the management of the affairs. This request was granted but not before the Reeves had spoken to it and Deputy Reeve Jordan intimated that their townships be included in the resolution. Reeve Anderson in speaking to his motion that Montague was seventh in population in the county and that with respects to ability to pay. He quoted figures to show that only $114.90 had been received by the township for relief from May 1st, 1932 to the end of May last year.

Reeve Kitchenson of Frankford did not think it was fair to take in other municipalities believing it would be better to see what Reeve Anderson could do alone. The motion was passed in its original form.

Reeve Lowering Speaks

George W. Bush, Reeve of Sidney Township with Reeve Larkin of Tyendinaga had a motion introduced passed without discussion. The motion embodied the fact, that the cost of social service has increased and that this council was against the lowering of age of recipients of pensions. This resolution will be sent to Federal and Provincial members of Parliament. The age limit is now 70 and it has been stated, that limit might be put at 65.

The council will consider in Ways and Means, a motion to purchase an up-to-date picture of King Edward VIII and have same placed in the Shire Hall. This being all the business adjournment was called. The council has not been in Ways and Means as yet and there is a large amount of data to be considered under this head and possibly some of the statements of Mr. Holtby might be applied as a reason."

Mr. Webster advanced the cause of the herd sire as a means toward improving the strain of the dairy herds. Feeding was also directly responsible for sale or failure among breeders. "No matter how pure bred an animal may be, if it is starved, then it's a cull, no matter how you look at it."

A strong recommendation that the association take greater interest in the various calf clubs throughout the section was made by the speaker. "If we can get the younger people interested in actual improvement of their own animals, then we will have done much to gain that needed improvement."

Against Postponing Sale.

A. H. Martin, agricultural representative, Brighton, referred to the fact that would be felt if no sales sale was to be held by the association this year. "Since 1911, the first year of the sale, this has been a yearly event and has done much to advertise the breeders and the Holstein. Also. Cattle are scarce this year, and is has been no difficult matter, to sell them, but for the sake of keeping up the record, I believe that the breeders should make an effort to hold this sale."

Mr. Martin referred to the changes that had been made in the County of Northumberland during the past year, notably that of the restricted area canvass that had been made among the farmers, with the result that eighty-five per cent of the cattlemen had voted in favor of having the county made a restricted area. Northumberland is now included in the restricted area, he pointed out.

Interest in the Holstein Club in the county is decidedly on the increase, he added.

C. W. Buchanan, agricultural representative for Lennox-Addington in a brief address congratulated the association upon having such an "outspoken" man as Mr. Holtby, "one who knows the business and is not afraid to hand out the advice," he added.

Keep Standard Up.

"Keep your standard of stock up," urged the representative, "The market in the States just now might be keeping the prices up, but the breeders themselves must not neglect to keep up the high quality for which the Holstein is known in this section. Good testing is becoming more important all the time. We should clean up our herds and keep them clean. Then higher prices will naturally follow. It's a case of having valuable cattle and then neglecting them."

Mr. Buchanan urged also a stronger membership and to that end suggested that present members do their own solicitating for new ones in order to make the organization one of the strongest.

J. C. Caskey, Madoc, introduced by President Hobbs as the oldest and one of the most prominent Holstein breeders in the district declared that Mr. Holtby had told the truth. "We are not offering the class of cattle demanded by the general market," the speaker. "If we had the cattle tested, then we'd have better herds and better markets. Although I suppose I'm as guilty as any of you on this matter, it took me a long time to find it out, though."

Again the question of the annual sale was advanced by Gray Gray. "It would be too bad to let it lapse now, especially after the success of last year," declared Mr. Bonter. "If you are willing to have only the best animals offered then it is right to put in three females and a bull. Until we do something like this sale, then we won't be able to get very far or have any luck in this section."

Betterment of Holstein Herds Lies With Breeders, Says Field Man of Association

R. M. Holtby Speaks Plainly at Annual Meeting

MAY POSTPONE SALE

If One Held, Better Class of Pure Breds Will be Offered

At the annual meeting of the Holstein Breeders' Association of the Belleville district, comprising the counties of Hastings, Lennox-Addington, Prince Edward and Northumberland, held in the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday afternoon, Mr. Fred Hubbs, Bloomfield, was unanimously chosen as President for 1936.

He will be assisted by the following executive body: 1st Vice President, Earl Burnside, Madoc; Secretary-Treasurer, P. B. Nelson, Cherrford, (re-elected); Board managers Dunham Foster, Bloomfield; Andrew Rockwell Parks, Napanee; and O. Butler, Brighton.

Whether an annual sale of the Association will be held in Belleville this year is still open to question, and will decide upon, the efforts of individual members and agricultural committees of the four counties comprising the area, who have been asked to assist in locating a sufficient number of animals to make up a saleable total. In the event of a sale, and through a resolution passed, all cattle entered must be "negative". This resolution was moved by Mr. Dunham and seconded by Mr. Stroot. Census of farmers covered, that few animals were available at the present time.

In an effort to further strengthen membership in the local organization it was unanimously decided at the meeting to reduce the membership fee from one dollar to a present fee of fifty cents per member.

Testing Herds Discussed

The question of testing herds injected into the meeting, formed the chief topic of discussion during the greater part of the afternoon. As chief speaker, R. M. Holtby, Field Perry, Holstein Field Man of the General Association, particularly stressed the value of testing.

In his opening remarks Mr. Holtby pointed to the lack of uniformity in cattle at the present time to guarantee a sale this coming spring. "The reason more have not sent in consignments comes back to the individuals who own them. Perhaps you can also you haven't been getting better prices for your cattle than in the past. You need to be able to get $1400 and $1500 for a fairly good animal. You need get those prices for any more because you haven't kept your herds up. If they were tested animals you would get more money for them. But the breeders through some reason of their own have consistently refused to take this advice. Yet there's not a reason in the world why the cattle shouldn't be "T.B." tested, when you consider the advantages and the direct profit that will result."

"Why breeders raise purebred cattle, and then wonder why they don't pay, I don't know. Who is the fellow today, who will pay $500 for two or three hundred dollars? Not the man, who hasn't tested. It's a buyer can't be bothered with the other kind of animals."

Many Neglecting Needs

"If isn't my business to come down to this meeting and tell you all what a good bunch of fellows you are, but I'm interested in you not. Many of you here are neglecting this vital need. How did Dogg Hart pay for his thousand dollar mortgage on his farm, when the rest of the farmers were going around crying about hard times? Then some say, that cattle don't declared Mr. Holtby.

A question was asked at this time by Graham Ferguson, Consecon: "Why does the government need this five dollars for testing?"

Mr. Holtby answered, charged twenty-five dollars, then you'd want the cattle tested yearly and that's why the government does it for nothing, or for a sum, which doesn't pay the cost. "We don't want to make any money out of it," countered Mr. Holtby.

Ever since the entry of the Holstein into this country the Jersey has held all high cards, pointed out Mr. Holtby. She came into Canada in 1852 and has maintained high scores of other breeds that had already been well established when she arrived in this country. Yet, through her sheer merit she had risen until in 1932 at the end of May last year, she has proved her worth time and again. "People at first laughed at her, yet during the year 1935 she led the whole country in her numbers. There is no argument about the breed. Yet you fellows are and have been letting her down. You've not kept her up at all. Not advertising her by improving the quality, all of which can be done by regular testing."

Provincial Supported.

F. J. Webster, agricultural representative of Prince Edward County, also supported Mr. Holtby's remarks for an apparent decline in quality of the breed lately. "Many of the breeders have given excuse after excuse as to why they would not have the work done, yet there is a great difference between an excuse and a reason. If you have wondered why your organization has not grown and prospered as it should, there is a possibility, that the council will not finish their deliberations until Saturday.

QUEEN MOTHER'S MESSAGE

The Queen Mother's words of gratitude to the people of the United Kingdom and Dominions of the Empire form one of the most touching of documents. "I must send to you, the people of this nation and the Empire, a message of my deepest gratitude for all the sympathy with which at this time of sorrow you have surrounded me. It is indeed a gratitude so deep that I cannot find words to express it. But the simplest words are the best. I can only say with all my heart, that I thank you."

Simplicity of utterance is always the sign of a deep and sincere nature and the Queen Mother's words belong to that class of message which comes from a heart full of sorrow but also a heart with a depth of gratitude which only such natures know. There is deep appreciation of the sense of loyalty and the sense of sorrow which the Empire feels. There is mention of 'my dear husband,' 'my dear son' and 'my dear people.'

"In my great sorrow I have been held up not only by the strength of your sympathy but also by the knowledge that you shared my grief, for I have been deeply moved by signs so full and touching that the passing of your dear husband brought a real sense of personal sorrow to all his subjects.

"In the midst of my grief, I rejoice to think that after his reign of twenty-five years, he lived to know he received the reward in overflowing measure of the loyalty and love of his people.

"Although he will no longer be at my side—and no words can tell how I shall miss him—I trust that with God's help, I may still be able to continue some part at least of the service which for forty-five years of married life we tried to give to this great land and Empire.

"During the coming years, with all the changes which they must bring you will, I know, let me have a place in your thoughts and prayers.

"I commend to you my dear son as he enters upon his new task, confident hope that you will give to him the same devotion and loyalty which you gave so abundantly to his father.

"God bless my dear people, for all the wonderful love and sympathy with which you have sustained me."

A precious document of the human heart! It is no wonder that the British world had taken the late King and his consort to their hearts. They will not forget the prayer of the Queen Mother that she have a place in their thoughts and that her son King Edward VIII have their loyalty and prayers.

WARDEN FOR 1936

Hastings County's new warden, W. C. West, is one of the outstanding men of the county council as business man, and in length of service. His choice for the high office during the present year has met with universal chorus of gratitude, not only from the council but throughout the county. That he will realize the high hopes which his friends hold for him in this year in the chief magistracy is everywhere believed.

For the new warden is a man of fine qualifications. He has made a distinct impression in and in the life of the communities in which he has lived. He has given faithful service to the municipality of Stirling as a member of the council and to Hastings in the county council. He is devoted to his duties, is kindly, unselfish and considerate, keen in public affairs—much qualifies uniting to make of him an outstanding public man.

In his own municipality he is interested in public welfare and has demonstrated his interest in the boy scouts and other movements.

It is just twenty-six years since Stirling had its previous warden, the late William H. Mather, one of the finest representatives who ever sat in the chair. Thomas Montgomery, an ex-Warden, also has been reeve of Stirling.

Stirling had in Mr. Mather a worthy representative and now again in the new warden, Mr. West, has one of whom the village may justly be proud.

LT.-COL. BISHOP, V.C., HONORED

Lt.-Col. W. A. Bishop, V.C., Canadian flying ace during the World War has been honored by appointment as honorary Air Vice Marshal. The new official will have no duty, the post being purely honorary as Canada desires to pay tribute to the airman who is called the greatest of all airmen who fought in the fighting of 1914-1918. He shot down 72 German planes and possibly others which fell behind the foe lines. Bishop is only 45 years of age.

His great deed was in crossing the foe lines and attacking an aerodrome twelve miles behind the lines. He shot down one after another of three planes which rose to meet him. He was personally decorated by His Majesty King George V at Buckingham Palace, not only with the V.C. but with the Military Cross and the D.S.O. as well. He also was given French honors.

SNOW AT TWILIGHT

The winter world is wrapped in white
As softly falls the snow,
And dimly through the dusky light
Trees take on shadows show.
And here and there a leafless tree
In softest ermine drest,
Stands 'mid the silence of the snow
As if content to rest.

A restful spirit fills the air
On this calm winter eve;
Thrilled with the soothing sense of rest
A web of dreams we weave
O, Master of the twilight hour
Inspire our hearts anew,
And grant us daily strength and power
To make our dreams come true!

RUDYARD KIPLING, POET OF EMPIRE, is now a memory, a memory which will not soon fade from the minds of men and women who have read Kipling's prose and poems and can appreciate the master mind and knowledge of Empire which was Kipling. In the death and funeral of King George the obsequies of Rudyard Kipling were somewhat overshadowed and overlooked. The body was cremated and his ashes, deposited in an urn, placed between the graves of two other immortals of literature, Charles Dickens and Thomas Hardy, in the Poets' Corner of Westminister Abbey. The burial ceremony, quiet and unostentatious, but solemn and stately, was enriched when the great organ rang out triumphantly with Kipling's "Recessional." Kipling sleeps, lays down for an eon or two—rests with Dickens and Hardy. How their spirits will commune in joyful retrospection, and perhaps a wistful waiting for another, to make a fourth at celestial bridge, or whatever it is that makes Heaven impervious to annui. Perhaps they are already practising "Monopoly," the game that is played with money, stage money.

JUDGE ROY BEAN WAS THE LAW WEST OF THE PECOS, as all redblooded dime novel reading hombres know. Roy Bean kept the "Jersey Lily" Saloon and was a very real person. As a Judge Roy Bean was a delight to the eye and a very present help in time of trouble, for he dealt out justice always from a new deck and there were no marked cards to temper justice with chicanry. Judge Bean's justice was plain and forceful and fine points of the law were never considered in his court—the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, so help you, was all that was required, and habeas corpus and other thingamabobs to slow up simple justice never reached the Pecos much less came west of it. "The Jersey Lily," Roy Bean, Proprietor, was the biggest and most important building in the little ranching town of Langtry, named in honor of the famous and beautiful "Jersey Lily" of the stage, and it was also the only court house for miles around and its adobe and board walls echoed many famous decisions on the law as she was known "West of the Pecos," which was and is Texas. Now our Dallas correspondent sends the news that Judge Bean and "The Jersey Lily" are to be immortalized by being included in a new state highway park—so when we are motoring through Texas next summer, and rambling along State Highway No. 3, which was Highway 90, we will come to "The Jersey Lily" saloon and constructed by order of the court which we will traverse for one hundred yards, approximately, and we will stampede with a whoop into the identical old "Jersey Lily" saloon of Judge Roy Bean's and with our foot on the brass rail ruminate on the days when King Colt ruled "West of the Pecos".

LOOKING BACKWARD

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS

20 YEARS AGO

FEB. 1ST. 1916.

Owing to the mild weather yesterday the ice in the river presented a scene to the vicinity of the C.N.R. and C.P.R. bridges. The result was that with a blockade of ice at the piers of the bridges the water was backed up to an unusual height. In several yards on the south side of Front Street this morning water had flooded several yards and stables, causing considerable inconvenience. A number of cellars of business places on the west side of Front Street contained water to a depth of from 12 inches to 6 inches. Fortunately no damage was done as goods had been removed to a place of safety.

An able-bodied young man sought shelter at the police station last night. This morning he sought employment in the city and obtained temporary work.

Mrs. T. Blackburn, 51 Commercial Street, showed the Intelligencer today a spray of pansies which she had picked the same day in her garden. There were three or four fully developed heads and some buds. The flowers were fragrant and as brilliant in color as if they had been picked in the month of June.

The annual meeting of the Belleville Hardware Company was held yesterday and the financial report for the year 1905 was read. The result of the year's business justifying the directors in declaring a dividend of 6 per cent. The following directors were elected: Hon. Sir. Mackenzie Bowell, Allan McPee, R. J. Graham, W. C. Springer, A. Andrews, E. O. Sills, Walter Alford, W. J. Gilson, M. D. and D. M. Waters. At the close of the shareholders' meeting the directors met and elected Hon. Sir. Mackenzie Bowell as their President, and Mr. Allan McPee, Vice President.

A lacrosse game, the frame building on the south west corner of Pinnacle and Campbell Streets, which is being torn down as a result of the erection of an up-to-date residence, is one of the landmarks of the city. The building was erected over half a century ago and at one time was the Rectory of St. Thomas' Church, when the Rev. Mr. Campbell was rector. Campbell Street, it is understood, was named after him.

The members of the Quinte Musical Club were recently entertained at an oyster supper at Wallace's Restaurant by the president of the organization, Mr. Harry W. Ackerman and the affair was most enjoyable. The president occupied the chair and Major Charles N. Sulman occupied the vice chair. After supper an hour was spent in listening to brief speeches and songs which were given by Chief John Newton and Messrs. E. Lennox and Mr. J. H. Harte.

HALO IN HIS LIFE

Mr. W. H. Mabee, 18 Frank St., will on Sunday, February 2nd, Candlemas Day, celebrate his 75th birthday.

"My first recollections centre around a small remembrance". We, kids on the lawn in early morning covered with blankets while we watched the flames leaping up from the roof of our big stone house and shortly after all our barn buildings were ablaze. This event took place when I was five years old. This is the one thing I have never forgotten," he told the newspaperman.

"Life has seemed to have its halo for me for I have always been blessed with many kind friends and life has always been blessed with happy memories.

"There have been periods in my life which stand out so plainly in me. The first was the day my school days and schoolmates. I dearly loved my schoolmates, in fact I used to be sorry when Friday night came for there would not be any school until Monday. In regard to my schoolmates (and we had a large school), nearly all went to their long last home.

The other was my work, for some years as leader of our young people's organization in our old home church. They were the best years of work and preparation. At the end of this period I moved to Belleville."

Mr. Mabee has been for over fifty years subscription agent for Canadian and other newspapers. He has travelled for many years throughout the Midland counties and made many friends which his accounts for the many pleasant memories he has of those years, and for many happy moments in his home.

Many years ago he took for his motto, "He who would have friends must prove himself friendly."

"I have tried to live out this motto and the adage has proven to be true," he said.

Windsor Police Sever All Their Connections

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 1.—(CP)—The affiliation between the Windsor Police Association and the Essex County Trades and Labor Council question over which eight constables were dismissed Monday, was non-existent today.

The members of the force, meeting yesterday voted to sever connection with the council after the Police Commission called attention to a clause in the department regulations forbidding affiliation of the police outside organizations.

All members of the force had been called before the Commission Monday and questioned in the matter. They also were asked if they favored the salary schedule drawn up for 1936 by the commission. The night when replies did not satisfy the commissioners were dismissed.

The police association it was decided today, will continue as a department unit.

NEW TIRE IS DESIGNED TO COPE WITH MUD AND SNOW

A new tire, known as the "Ground Grip," with traction qualities heretofore unknown, has been placed on the market and recommended for those who have to travel on unimproved roads.

The tread is radically different from anything in the past and its deep-cut bars of toughest rubber dig in and grip in mud, snow and ice or loose gravel. Another feature of the tread is that it is self-cleaning. After every bite the dirt is forced out and thrown to the side. Chains are unnecessary. As a result of these features, this new tire will take a vehicle through places where ordinary tires, even with chains, would get mired.

As a demonstration of this, local Firestone Dealers, described how a well-known make of car with standard type tires became mired in a mud-hole. Another car of the same make, equipped with the new Ground Grip Tire, was sent in after it. Not only did it go through, but it pushed car No. 1 out as well!

The new tire is made exclusively by the Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. and is available in sizes to fit passenger cars and trucks—also farm tractors, and will be a great boon to farmers, dairymen, lumbermen and other operators of passenger cars and trucks who have to travel on unimproved roads.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

Bishop Marshall and R. E. Synod Successfully Defend Action Brought By Shaw Street Church Trustees

Hon. Mr. Justice Kelly Delivers Judgment at Osgoode Hall, Toronto, Concerning Use of Christ Church, Shaw Street, (Reformed Episcopal Church), in Toronto.

BISHOP DECLARED RECTOR PRO TEM

Judgment and Reasons for Judgment are Given in Interesting Case Tried in Supreme Court Without a Jury in September and November of Last Year.

Following is the judgment of Mr. Justice Kelly in the case of Christ Church, Shaw Street, Toronto, between the members of the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto, together with the reasons for judgment in the case. This case is of particular interest in Belleville as Bishop George Marshall of all of Emmanuel Reformed Church, Belleville, and the Fire Bishop of the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church were the defendants.

The plaintiffs, who were the trustees of the church, brought their claims, which were accordingly dismissed with costs to the defendants. Also under the judgment the plaintiffs were restrained from using or allowing to be used the church or the public worship or otherwise not in accord with the rights and constitution of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada or the Reformed Episcopal Church.

The plaintiffs in the action were Thomas G. Allen, Christ Church; David Wright, Samuel Wright, Wm. Atkinson, Joseph Taylor, John McGregor Eagle, Thomas Morrow, Gordon Lyon, Roland Price, John Stanley, H. W. Fox, Robert Wright, Robert Kay Cameron, James Gillespie, and John Dawson, trustees of the Reformed Episcopal Church on Shaw Street, Toronto, and the Synod of the Fire Church of England and Canada, Georgo Marshall, a Bishop of the Free Church of England, Belleville, Ontario, and the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

The action was tried without a jury on the 9th, 10th and 12th days of September, 1935, and the 4th, 5th and 6th days of November, 1935.

The court judgment in part reads: "This court doth order and adjudge that the claims of the plaintiffs in this action be, and the same are hereby dismissed with costs to be paid by the plaintiffs in their individual capacities to the defendants forthwith after taxation thereof.

"And this court doth further order and adjudge that the plaintiffs, their servants and agents be, and they hereby are, restrained from using or allowing Christ Church, Shaw Street, Toronto, to be used for public worship or otherwise not in accordance with the rights and ceremonies of the First Synod in the Dominion of the Reformed Episcopal Church or otherwise not in accordance with the trust of the said two indentures and the constitution and canons of the said First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church and from selling, mortgaging or handing over or attempting to transfer the said lands or any part thereof or rents, or real or personal property or appurtenances to the said Christ Church and rectory, Toronto, or any part thereof, to any person or persons whomsoever, contrary to the trusts of the said indentures and the constitution and canons of the said First Synod in Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, or the doctrine, worship and discipline of the said Church, and restraining the said plaintiffs from using the name 'Reformed Episcopal Church' in connection with the wrongful use of the said Christ Church property.

"And this court doth declare that under the trusts in the deeds of the said Christ Church property, or lands and premises thereby assured and the church and buildings erected thereon, and the said rectory and lands and premises appurtenant, thereto ought to be used for the exclusive benefit of persons being members of the Toronto parish of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church, which has been lately known as the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Church of England, otherwise called the Reformed Episcopal Church, or to be used for the worship of God and otherwise in accordance with the trusts of the said deeds and the constitutions and canons of the said First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church and for no other purposes.

"And this court doth declare that the plaintiffs, other than the grantees in the deeds of grant of the said church property hereinbefore referred to are legal trustees of the Christ Church on Shaw Street, Toronto.

"And this court doth declare that the defendant, Bishop George Marshall, by virtue of his office as bishop is the rector of the said Christ Church until a successor is duly instituted.

"And this court doth further order and declare and adjudge that it be referred to the Master of this Honourable Court to take an account of all receipts and moneys and property (real and personal) of the said Christ Church since the purported election of the said plaintiffs as trustees, including an accounting of all salaries paid and other disbursements as aforesaid, and rentals from the said rectory, and that the plaintiffs do pay to the defendants the amount which shall be so found due to them forthwith after the confirmation of the said Master's report.

"And this court doth further order and adjudge that the claim of the defendants as set forth in section (a) of the paragraph overleaf of the statement of defence and counterclaim be and the same is hereby dismissed with costs.

"And this court doth further order and adjudge that the plaintiffs in their individual capacities do pay to the defendants forthwith after taxation thereof the costs of the said counterclaim, subject as aforesaid in paragraph 3 hereof forthwith after taxation thereof."

Reasons for Judgment

Reasons for judgment were given as follows:

"The plaintiffs, (sixteen in number), are trustees of the Reformed Episcopal Church on Shaw St., Toronto, claiming (1) a declaration that the Free Church of England in purporting to exercise authority over the Free Church of the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church and with which the Toronto parish of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church, situated on Shaw Street, Toronto, its affairs and property, officials and officers, has no power or status to exercise such authority and (2) that the Bishop of said Free Church of England has no authority to ordain, consecrate or appoint bishops and affairs and persons of the Toronto parish of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church, situated on Shaw Street, Toronto, and (3) an injunction to restrain the exercise of such authority and (3) a declaration that the said Free Church of England has no power or status to appoint a Bishop to act as Bishop in the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church.

"The issue is lengthy, particularly the voluminous books documents and correspondence filed as exhibits, and so in a general way as to the issue as it appears from the statement of claim an Act was passed in the Province of Ontario in the Victoria (chapter 110) incorporating the Synod of the Diocese of Toronto in Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church; and also the General Council of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church was unanimously adopted a resolution at a meeting held in the Synod Hall of the First Synod of the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church, otherwise called the Reformed Episcopal Church of England, otherwise called the Reformed Episcopal Church, whereby permission from the General Council of the First Synod of the Reformed Episcopal Church of England and the First Synod of Canada being received application for admission as a Synod of their Convocation, and upon the request being granted and the First Synod of Canada being received as a Synod of the Free Church of England, the canonical relationship of the First Synod of the Dominion of Canada with the General Council of the Reformed Episcopal Church in the United States shall cease. Plaintiffs also allege (para 4) signing of the Statement of Faith that the foregoing resolutions were subsequently found satisfactory by the corporation of the Free Church of England, otherwise called the Reformed Episcopal Church which accordingly purported to admit the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church as an integral branch of the Free Church of England, and purported to exercise the authority of the Free Church of England over the First Synod in the Dominion, and by virtue of the formal Episcopal Church; and by other paragraphs of the statement of claim it is alleged that resolutions and by-laws of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church (as above) are wholly ultra vires of the powers of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada, chapter 110, and that defendant Bishop Marshall acts for a bishop of the Free Church of England, has no authority or jurisdiction over the affairs and persons of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church and persons of the Toronto parish of the First Synod, and further that the Free Church of England has no authority to sue Mr. Way, who united to know what the Free Church of England is, and that persons present, said to be trustees, refused to hand over beyond the vestry and threatened to have him arrested. He, therefore, wisely retired, but considered that might have resulted in still greater unpleasantness and that he had made matters worse. To better understand what underlay this incident reference must be had to happenings in October 1934, and prior thereto. In the opinion of the writer it should be kept in mind that the present action was commenced on December 6th, 1934, the 1st December, 1933, a conveyance of certain real property on the south side of Shaw Street in Toronto (there is more particularly described) was conveyed by Richard Thos. Blachford to sixteen (named) persons "The Christ Church (Christ Church formed Episcopal) in the city of Toronto" as grantees to hold only and to the use of the said grantees, their successors and assigns forever, in trust, however, nevertheless for the sole use and benefit of a parish or congregation of the Reformed Episcopal Church known as 'Christ Church,' and the disciples of the said church, subject, however, to the provisions of the Reform Episcopal Church Act."

The minute book (exhibit 13) records that the sixtieth annual meeting of the open vestry held on the 29th, 1934, the election of officers for the ensuing—year took place. The minutes (page 1) of the eight vestrymen were elected for the year 1934 and the names of the five mentioned these officers signed their declaration of office dated 29th, 1934. It is to be noted that the minutes that no vestry men were elected in 1933 (this is of some importance in the present controversy as this was after the commencement of this action). I have been unable to find from the minutes when the vestrymen above were elected subsequent to the election held on 29th, 1934, the beginning on page 196 of Exhibit 13 and continuing and ending on page 197 it is recorded that there was in order with reference to the dates of other meetings, the annual meeting of the congregation of Christ Church, Shaw Street, Toronto was held on October 2nd, 1934 "for the purpose of electing a board of trustees for Christ Church (Reformed Episcopal, 460 Shaw Street, in accordance with the Reformed Episcopal Act." It is also therein recorded that the following names should appear in the minutes were elected "21 trustees of Christ Church Reformed Episcopal Church, Shaw Street the Blachford deed." It might be noted parenthetically that the above named persons were duly and legally elected (which I do not entirely think is material simply and solely as trustees of the property as defined in the Reformed Episcopal Act, the vestrymen or wardens or in any way connected with the affairs of the arts and duties were only such as were conferred by and as incident to the local members of the church. As such trustees they did not and do not possess the right to sue in bringing this action, they assumed to do so, and this is made manifest by reference to section 3 of Canon IV. of the Constitution and Canons of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church which reads as follows: section 3 of Canon IV of the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Free Church of England, otherwise called the Reformed Episcopal Church and be responsible that all legal claims and demands against it are duly met, and that the buildings are kept in proper repair, and generally to regulate all temporal concerns of the parish, provide for the maintenance of the same, and for the assistance as may be necessary for the pastor's maintenance, in the manner of the congregation, and subject to the approval of the Bishop and Standing Committee, to elect and call a rector."

It is manifest therefore that whether the plaintiffs assumed to act as representing the First Synod in the Dominion of Canada of the Reformed Episcopal Church, or the Free Church of England, otherwise called the Reformed Episcopal Church for the First Synod thereof in the Dominion of Canada appointed solely as trustees in respect to the Blachford deed property, and not as vestrymen or wardens have in my opinion no right to sue in bringing this action in its present form; and the question of whether apart from any other or others, they are not entitled to succeed and I dismiss their action.

Though not necessary in arriving at my decision, this circumstance has arisen which should not escape notice. The minute book (exhibit 2) the page immediately preceding the page (197) in the minutes recording the meeting of the meeting of October 2nd, 1934, there has been attached what purports to be a resolution (which for convenience I shall refer to as a document) cancelling, deleting and withdrawing the resolution of 6th May, 1930, by which the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, and to affiliate with the Reformed Episcopal Church in England. The minutes on pages 196 and 197 are in writing and at the end thereof bear the signatures of F. P. Hewlett as secretary. The 'document' attached to the 'Minute' (partly typewritten and partly pen written) is not authenticated, or identified by the secretary or by any officer or by any other person. No witness was called on the plaintiffs' behalf to explain or account for the existence of this document. The only explanation by plaintiffs' Leslie failed to definitely account for it, though he admitted having been at the meeting of October 2nd, 1934. Asked if he ever had a record of the motion (document I have referred to) his answer was that he would not say that he did not but he did not say he had heard it read at any time.—he could not say if it was moved by the congregation and he would not say that it was moved and seconded the resolution, and would not say whether he did so. His office a fails to establish that such a resolution was passed on ever before or was otherwise dealt with at the meeting. On the other hand there is the evidence of the witness called for the defence who were present at the meeting and who deny that any resolution was brought before the meeting. In the circumstances the preponderance the so-called resolution attached to page 196 has all the appearances of a clumsy fabrication, an attempt by someone or more to make it appear that it was passed or was brought before the meeting, and in this connection it should not be overlooked that the minute book in which it now appears came from the custody of the plaintiffs or someone representing them. I find that the said resolution was not duly or legally passed or adopted by the congregation or by any meeting or congregation thereof having authority in that behalf; and that it was not reported to or was without effect and inoperative for the purposes intended thereby. There being no evidence of any other action with the same intent and purpose as that of the records referred to of 6th, May, 1930, stand unchanged and unbroken. Further I have not been able to satisfy myself that those who are said to have been elected trustees at the meeting of October 2nd, 1934, were duly and legally elected. The minutes of the record of the meeting having been properly kept, and the record of the said election, in respect of which the evidence of the plaintiff Leslie throws no light.

Not only throughout the trial, but in the pleadings and evidence has the cone involved in the consideration of any questions arising in this action. As the evidence proceeded, it became manifest that no such consideration was entertained by any one of the plaintiffs appeared as a witness. Indeed the plaintiff Leslie was examined for discovery prior to the trial, by a person of very long standing of this Shaw Street Church and has taken an active interest in its affairs in the administration and workings. In examination in chief as to whether he knew of any differences in doctrine of the Free Church of England and the Reformed Episcopal Church and the Reformed Episcopal Church in Canada, he had no difference in the doctrine and that he had no difference in that respect or of any kind. This he emphasized in these questions and answers:

"No. 360—Q. Aside from the matter of the name, is there any difference between the church, the Reformed Episcopal Church and the Free Church of England, to your knowledge? A. Well, you asked me that question before and I answered it, I said there was no difference."

"399—Q. Have you any interference with your property? A. Oh, no, there was no interference. Did you hear me? I was having preached in the church? A. I don't suppose there was. Not that I can see."

"396—Q. You cannot point to any instance of interference from the Bishop? A. No, I cannot point to any instance of interference from the Bishop of England or from the Reformed Episcopal Church of England and Ireland in regard to the administration of the Christ Church property or the doctrine that has been preached in the church? A. Nothing about the property or doctrine."

It became evident during the trial that the real cause of dissatisfaction and troubles in the congregation of Christ Church, Shaw Street is largely due to the conduct of Deacon Way, complained of by the plaintiffs as personal. Feeling that a judgment in the action, no matter in whose favor, would most probably accentuate the situation, I endeavored to impress upon counsel and solicitors for the parties, not only during the trial but at the close of the evidence, the advisability of endeavoring to arrive at such an amicable settlement or arrangement as to avoid the danger of complete disorganizing the congregation and causing damage, if not ruin, to the property which it has represented. Counsel and the solicitors wholly failed to appreciate the force of my argument, withheld judgment (re serving) and left the parties and solicitors have advised me that settlement is impossible and that it will be dismissed with costs.

Failing in the evidence for the defence, plaintiffs' counsel applied to have the pleadings plaintiffs. Allen and Leslie to sue on behalf of themselves and of the others who are named as plaintiffs. In the very peculiar circumstances of the case, the amendment should not, and was not allowed, especially at the stage at which the application was made.

The defendants have made several claims in paragraph 17 (seventeen) of the statement of defence and counterclaim, on pages 8 and 9 of the Record. Claims numbered (a), (b), (c), (d), (e) and (g) should be allowed with costs to the defendants. Claim numbered (f) is dismissed without costs.

There will be a reference to the Master to take the account referred to in Section (e) of Paragraph 17 of the counterclaim.

AIRPORT ATHLETE GOES TO OTTAWA

Douglas Powers Played Lacrosse and Hockey for Belleville

Mr. Douglas Powers, who came to the Trenton Air Station, R.C.A.F., four years ago as clerk, leaves this Friday night for Ottawa where he has been transferred. Doug. has been away from his home city, Galt, for about nine years now and he admits that the transfer back to Galt has been hoping for for some time.

Doug Powers has been invaluable in athletic circles in this district since the first day he came here. He played O.H.A. intermediate hockey with Trenton and Belleville teams and for a couple of years for Belleville in the Intermediate Aaimaas. Up to this week he has been manager of the R.C.A.F. hockey team in the Trenton and District League and the fact that his team heads its group is due to a great extent on his fine playing.

The many friends of this fine athlete, while sorry to see him debart from the district, will wish him the best of luck in the days to come.

Powers played hockey and lacrosse for Belleville on numerous occasions always having the highest respect of his team mates and opponents. Doug Powers was always a gentleman both in and out of the game and leaves a host of friends in Belleville.

Trenton, Feb. 1 (Special)—The lamp shade case which was remanded at last Monday's court appeared before the Magistrate Thursday and the accused had to make restitution and also received a suspended sentence of six months.

In the second case a local nineteen-year-old boy pleaded guilty of assaulting a sixteen-year-old lad. He was fined $12.85 and in default of payment would be sentenced to one month in Belleville gaol.

The accused in the second case had a charge of assault on a local gentleman who took the complainant's part in the second case. After several witnesses testified, the Magistrate said "that both had miscounducted themselves and that each be bound for $200.00 and bound to keep the peace for one year.

Mock Trial at Grace Church Men's Club

A mock trial was the feature of the evening at the first regular meeting of the year of the Grace Church's Men's Club. The ladies were the guests of the club. Mid-president, V. P. Caswell, presided. In the mock trial four of the stalwarts of the church were charged with delinquency in their respective duties Irregular attendance at church and sleeping in church, when present. The defendants were Ed. Hicks, Ed. Anderson, Wilfrid Mr. W. Hyde and Mr. E. Allison. Judge Ponton, K.C., presided, assisted, Mr. Slick (E. Sager) prosecuted and Mr. Tutt (V. P. Caswell) was defendant's counsel for the evening. Newton was the clerk of the court and Mrs. Bowen was foreman of the jury. The many objections to members of the jury called to serve was evidence that most of the church members have reputations, so much so, that it was difficult to get a complete jury. Of course, the prisoners were found guilty and received severe sentences for their various crimes.

The men served lunch in cafeteria style to end a very pleasant evening.

Trenton, Feb. 1 (Special)—At the second oratorical doctrinal contest held in the high school auditorium under contestants speaking on Canadian history topics competed for the cup awarded by Dr. J. A. Faulkner, M.P.P. Junior contestants with British History topics competed for the cup awarded by Mayor Mr. W. George Spencer, B.A., principal of the school, spoke briefly, explaining that those taking part were given their topics an hour before the contest and thus had very little time for preparation. The judges were Rev. Canon Smith, Rev. D. D. Cameron and Rev. W. T. Wesley. The senior contestants were Alex Reddick, Leonard Sweet, Flavia Weaver, Jean McKibbon, Veronica Long and Duncan Campbell. Junior contestants were Barbara Bettis, Audrey Mantle and Shirley Bonter. The judges' decision awarded Duncan Campbell as winner in the senior group and Audrey Mantle as the best junior speaker.

Duncan Campbell's address on Sir Adam Beck gave interesting insight on the life of this great Canadian, the founder of our present Hydro-Electric system. "Bonnie Prince Charlie" as presented by Audrey Mantle, was a brief amusing outline of the life of the ill-fated prince.

Dr. Faulkner's trophy was presented by Dr. John Farley of Trenton. Miss Mary Smithrim, vice-president of the Students' Council presented the junior cup.

Throughout the evening various musical numbers were given by the students. Miss Anna Langdon sang a delightful solo; Walter J. Wright man played a violin solo; Robert Smithrim and Claude Mantle, a piano duet; Miss Irene Vanfleet a vocal solo.

"Her Master's Voice" — "Frisco Waterfront"

(By Edward Everett Horton)

(Edward Everett Horton is starred in Paramount's 'Her Master's Voice' sparkling comedy which opens Monday at the Capitol Theatre).

At last the truth is out. When I heard that the gossip sleuths were starting to take up keyhole-snooping as a second branch of their profession, I knew that my secret was no longer safe, and now, it's public knowledge! I might as well confess—I am a bathroom baritone!

I realize what a heinous crime that is, but I feel that if I throw myself on the mercy of the court I may be let off with just a mild sentence of twenty years at hard labor, or life imprisonment in solitary confinement, or something nice easy like that.

It happened thus, and not otherwise: When I was a boy my old gray-haired grandmother took me over her knee and said, "Eddie," and a tear rolled down her eye, "you're getting old enough to be told things that may help you to keep a secret until we felt you'd be able to 'understand them.' There's a curse on the men of our family, Eddie dear, (My name is really Ed, but Grandmother always called me Eddie for short.)

Say, that sounded swell! I had just finished reading "The Fall of the House of Usher" and I knew all about family curses; until that point, I had always felt that my family was very commonplace, but if we really had a curse on us—gee, oh! boy!—life was something altogether different!

Grandmother continued: "I am ashamed to admit, my boy, that both your grandfather and your father fought how they could sing! That was their secret vice; they used to sneak off behind the barn and torture 'Sweet Adeline,' 'Auld Lang Syne' and 'Annie Laurie' That's what I've always prayed you'd avoid, Eddie, this terrible curse of trying to sing with the hereditary Horton fog-horn voice. Promise me, my boy, that you'll stay away from it. You must, for your own good; if it once gets a hold on you, you'll never be able to break loose!"

For years I respected Grandmother's wishes; I crushed down every spark of song that came bubbling to my lips under the shower; while the razor was gliding across my chin I refused to think of the beautiful lyric "I've Been Working on the Railroad"; I would harmonize with the stroke of the blade, until—came the day—as they used to say in the old days of silent films—the day I was when my friend Bing Crosby came in to tell me that he had given up singing as an exclusive career, to become an actor as well. That started me thinking.

Here was Bing, a singer. He wasn't ashamed of singing—on the contrary, he was perfectly willing to admit it, if you pinned him right down. All right, then. Here we have a singer becoming an actor. Everybody thinks that's all right. Well, then, why isn't it all right for me, an actor to become a singer?

I jumped to my feet, and galloped over to the Paramount studio. "Mr. Paramount," I growled, "I understand that in your new picture, 'Her Master's Voice,' you've a part which calls for the actor to sing some old-fashioned ballads. Is that right?" Mr. Paramount nodded. "Yes, that's right. We were thinking of Bing Crosby for the part, but he's busy working on 'Anything Goes.' Do you know anyone for the part?"

I laughed bellowingly. When I laugh hollowly I think I may say, without undue conceit, that it will by long odds the hollowest laugh in the world, outside of a coyote's moan.

"Don't go any further, Mr. Paramount," I said. "I'm your man. Listen!" And with that I broke into the first bars of 'Down by the Old Mill Stream.' When the wails had stopped trembling, and Mr. Paramount had come out from underneath his desk, he thought for a few seconds. Then he turned matter to himself, 'It might work at that.' The part calls for a man who sings badly anyway,' and he gave me the part.

But I don't believe he really meant that crack. I think it was the shock of my magnificently rounded tones, my arpeggio and my staccato that put me through. Not to mention my pizzicato. At last I've got my big chance to show that fellow Crosby just how a song really should be warbled. He'll see what it means when a Horton starts singing; in a few months he'll be hearing nothing but, "Well, Bing you're not bad, but for real, honest-to-goodness songbird stuff, why don't you go over to take some lessons from Eddie Horton?"

Marmora and District

Late Rev. Chas. Goodrich

The death occurred on Thursday of Rev. Charles Goodrich, superannuated Free Methodist minister at the home of his son, George Ezra Goodrich in Marmora Township. The deceased who was past eighty-two years of age had been in poor health for over a year. He was greatly respected in the community in which he lived and his genial, kindly manner endeared him to all who knew him some years ago. He is survived by three sons, George and John of Marmora township and Nelson of Toronto. The funeral will take place on Saturday from the residence of his son, George Ezra to Roseneath Creek Free Methodist Church at 2.30 p.m. Interment will take place in Beaver Creek Cemetery.

Madoc High School hockey team defeated the Marmora secretaries by a score of 6-1 on Marmora rink Thursday night. The game was played on splendid ice before a large crowd of spectators and students. The secretaries played very poor hockey, although each team scored in the first period. Reynolds slipping it behind Martin for Marmora's lone goal. Scoring in the second period was by Cousins, Nayler (2), Reynolds (2) with Dickenson and N.O'Neill for Marmora.

Following the game with Marmora's game, during which they added another goal to their score N. O'Neill put on the first exhibition of Shannon, Shannon put in the second goal, N. O'Neill scoring the second, and the third was scored again by N. O'Neill with Shannon getting the final score 6-1. Referees, Cousins and Taylor.

Marmora, goal, Gray; defence, N. O'Neill and C. O'Neill; centre, Burridge; wings, Dickenson, Shannon, Alternates, Leonard, Loveless and Reynolds.

A euchre party and dance were held in the Separate School on Thursday evening. Seventeen tables of euchre were played and the prize winners were as follows:—

The dancing was furnished by Miss Ray Doyle, Mr. Harold Auger and Mr. Doug. Jones.

Marmora Lodge No. 194 Five Tournament sponsored by the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Anglican Church was held in the White Hall on Wednesday evening. Twelve tables played. The prize winners being Mrs. R. Brady and Mr. J. E. Graham. Refreshments were served following the game.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bathbone attended the funeral of the former's father the late Oliver Baker at Havelock on Wednesday.

Mrs. M. Wannamaker is a patient in Hugh Maloney's store at Centerbrough.

Mr. D. D. Malkey of Toronto spent Thursday in Marmora.

Mr. Hugh Maloney spent a few days in Kingston this week.

Mr. C. T. McGuire of Colborne visited in Marmora on Thursday.

Mr. Patrick Sullivan is a patient in St. Joseph's hospital, Peterborough.

FOURTH THURLOW

4th Line Thurlow—Those who attended Church service on Sunday morning heard some words in praise of the reign of our late King and his personal qualities as a man and his domestic virtues in his home life. The pastor, Rev. Merrick occupied the pulpit. Appropriate hymns were sung in this service.

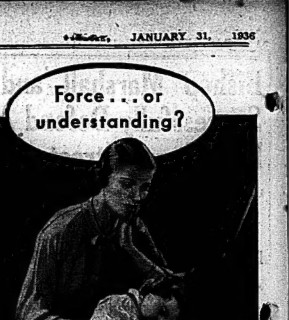
Young People's meeting was held on Tuesday evening at the church with a good attendance. The hymns sung were those in keeping with the funeral of His Majesty, King George V. Prayer took place earlier in the day. Mr. Jack Smith, had then prepared the program for the evening.

Friends on this the extend heartfelt sympathy to Mrs. West and to Mrs. Clarence Embury in the recent loss of their son and brother the late Mr. Luther West of Madoc, whose death occurred on Tuesday of last week as the result of an accident in the woods.

Schools were closed on Friday in loyal respect for our late Sovereign, King George the Fifth.

The heavy fall of snow which came last week made it necessary to plough out the road. Several teams and men were engaged for this purpose. The faithful mail-carrier, Mr. Hanna was unable to make his full trip.

Mr. Everett Beer and Herschell of Shannonville spent Tuesday with Mr. and Mrs. George Beer.



Master Lyle Walker is at present confined to the house with the measles.

A Liberal meeting was held on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Thompson for the purpose of appointing a chairman for Centryville Poll. Mr. Clare Bills was re-elected as chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller visited over the week end with relatives in Toronto.

TORONTO, STRATFORD STUDENTS ARE EVEN

STRATFORD, Ont., Feb. 1.—(CP)

Which is best for your child?

YES . . . you can make your child have a nasty-tasting laxative or sheer physical force. But is it wise? Is it good for him? Doctors say forcing a child after the age of two is bad-tasting laxative can upset his entire nervous system.

Castoria is made especially for babies and little children. There isn't a harsh or harmful thing in it. No drastic, purging drugs. No narcotics —nothing that can ever be detrimental to a child. Castoria is safe—and gentle, too. It's one and only purpose is to thoroughly clear the wastes from your baby's system—to bring his functioning normally and naturally again.

Use only Castoria. For your baby—for your other children . . . all the way up to 11 years of age. Get the Family-Size bottle. It lasts longer . . . and you get more for your money. Your drug store sells it. Get a bottle today.

— Honours were about even today in a series of contests staged—here between studentsof Toronto and Stratford Normal Schools. Toronto won both boys' and girls' public speaking contests but the debate was won by the Stratford students, holding the affirmative side of the topic, "resolved that Social Credit will further the best interests of Alberta".

Athletic contests are being staged today.

CROWN LIFE HAD EXCELLENT YEAR

Sir Robert Borden Reviews Business Outlook in Canada in Presidential Address

Toronto, Feb. 1—"The New Year has begun with many signs of hope," said Rt. Hon. Sir Robert Borden, president of The Crown Life Insurance Company, in his address at the Annual Meeting here. "We may expect a temporary recession from time to time, but there is reasonable ground for sober optimism and for belief that our country is advancing gradually but steadily along the path to more normal conditions. The revived confidence has been awakened and this in itself is no inconsiderable asset.

"The revival of active business can best be secured by establishing such confidence in future development as will encourage the expenditure of business operations," said Sir Robert. "Fear of oppressive and abnormal taxation has undoubtedly tended to retard revival of business activity. Over the past few years, business operations must chiefly depend upon the faith of foreign investors in the stability of our country's affairs and upon the certainty that government expenditures will be kept within reasonable bounds.

"The directors' report presented by H. R. Stephenson, general manager, showed new policies issued of $18,590,000 and insurance in force increased in 1934; total insurance of $156,989,000 at the end of the year, a year ago, an increase of 8 per cent. Cash premiums were $5,342,-000 in 1934, as against $5,124,000 in 1934; investment income $1,315,-000 in 1934, as against $1,183,000 in 1934. Total cash income was $6,601,-180.01 as against $5,943,075.67 in 1934, an increase of 11 per cent. Death and disability payments were $2,058,796.26, a substantial decrease being very favorable. Payments on matured and surrendered policies were $1,235,867.77. Dividends to policyholders $247,178.24; payments to annuitants and others $115,121.83, making total payments to policyholders and beneficiaries $2,364,-491.37.

Assets total $23,660,127.94 as against $21,295,604.24 a year ago, an increase of 11 per cent. largest investments are bonds of government bonds. Loans on policies remained almost stationary, representing about 6 per cent. of total assets. Average rate of interest realized on total ledger assets was 5.54 per cent. Mortgage loans (37 per cent of the assets) total $8,757,-000 in 1934, a net decrease for the amount of interest overdue on mortgages, which now being now only $3,364.04, less than one twenty-fifth of one per cent. of mortgage loans. Principal payments have been well maintained. Government and municipal bonds comprise 11 per cent of the assets; public utility and industrial bonds 12 per cent; and preferred and common stocks 2 per cent. Aggregate market value has more than held its own. Reserve for policy liabilities total $16,665,361.20 as against $15,735,011.77, the increase an additional $248,498.45 being held for death claims unreported and in process of payment. Gross surplus was $2,823,311.87 which $231,972.53 was applied to further writing down assets and strengthening reserves, $247,178.24 toward dividends paid and accrued to policyholders; and shareholders; and the balance $124,000.00 to free surplus, which now stands at $1,994,332.75.

Toronto, Feb. 1.—(CP)—Chief of Police D. C. Draper was ordered by Mayor Sam McBride today to get "to the bottom" of the charge some one in the Police Department tipped off Toronto gamblers as to a series of "secret" raids carried out late yesterday.

Fernie Gold Mines

This stock has shown consistent strength of late and at its current price it is selling at more than twice the issue price of 79 cents a share. It has been reported that the public was invited to subscribe to an issue of stock at the above-mentioned price.

To those who have made a study of the mining possibilities this stock still appears undervalued at current price. With ore reserves estimated as well over 200,000 tons of $14.00 ore, a doubling of the initial mill capacity of 125-150 tons per day appears almost certain in late Spring or early Summer. Gen. Manager white says, J. P. Norrie, General Manager, stated that "ore dig developments indicate that it will be necessary to double the capacity when the first unit is successfully tested. Crushing equipment for the increased capacity is embodied in the initial unit."

Although rated at 125 tons a day, the mill will be capable of treating 150 tons a day. Assuming a daily tonnage of 250 tons, next summer's production would show an annual rate of over 25 cents per share on the authorized issue of 2,000,000 shares. The market for the stock does not appear to have yet fully discounted the above ore reserves or near term earnings possibilities.

A total ore length of over 2100 feet has been proven on the first level and over 1,000 feet of ore to date on the 235-foot level.

Malrobic Te Resumes

Officials of Malrobic Mines Limited, with a property in Malrobic township, are understood to be negotiating with Toronto interests for financing in order to resume active development.

While details of the projected deal are not presently available, The Globe understands definitely that the arrangement will call for a reorganization of the present company.

The property was inactive last year, but in 1934 a program of diamond drilling was carried out which revealed about 1,000 feet of ore in the area. Although values on the whole were not high, the impressive width encountered intriguing possibilities. If finances can be secured it is expected that Quebec Malrobic will undertake to investigate these via lateral work from the present shaft.

Cash buying of all classes of securities is continuing at record proportions. Brokerage houses are shipping thousands of pieces of registered mail to all parts of the country and steady daily outflow of certificates in their owners' names. Stockbrokers' lists are lengthening as the buying supply of stocks decreases. The securities and mailing clerks are working overtime in many houses and transfer offices of banks and trust companies are busier than they have been in years.

The construction stocks, particularly those dealing in residential building, boast a bright future for the current year, officials of the Bank of Nova Scotia point out that it is in residential building that the greatest field for expansion in the building industry in 1936 appears to lie. The report that building costs are still at low levels and consumers' incomes in the aggregate at a substantially higher level than at the low point of depression. Wage and material costs in residential building remained fairly stable during 1935 and the rate on first mortgages declined.

Law of Supply and Demand Governs Produce Prices

The careful investor—as well as the competent speculator—is offered by the present stock prices with a certain degree of uneasiness. Stock markets during the previous years' results are not productive of much confidence based on experience in the past. The peaks of current quotations, says Jones Heward and Co. in their Mid-Week Review,

During the past months we have been discussing the various groups of securities which have appeared to be in a favorable position, pointing that the business revival is to become a broader and a more rounded process.

However, as last year's earning figures do not afford the principle of assuring basis for the purchase of common stocks, and as this year's earnings are based on a nebulous state, it is necessary to seek elsewhere for some reasonable basis for the present position of the markets.

Hesitatingly we mention that security prices are determined by demand and supply. So threadbare is this statement that it will be overlooked by investors. For a moment, however, let us glance at these factors.

There has been little increase in the supply of securities available. New issues have been few and far between and there is no indication that they will be substantial increase. To all intents and purposes the supply of securities is about constant for some time to come. But the demand continues to increase. The demand for securities bears a direct relation to the amount of money in the hands of investors. The supply of "money" and security prices will tend to coincide either over or under a period of time. This is constantly. This is what has been happening during recent months, and from a broad point of view, there is nothing yet to suggest a contradiction in our money supply.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 1.—Fresh eggs arriving in the city were generally steady to firmer under moderate receipts. Receipts were not burdensome but demand was poor. Small lots to the retail trade held unchanged for the balance of the week. The butter market had a steady tone. Small ten-pound sacks were added to the potato offerings but prices on these were unchanged. Traders generally were awaiting announcement of Montreal stocks of dressed fowl and eggs, which will be made today by the Board of Trade as at the close of the first day of the month. Receipts for the day were posted at 1,000 pounds of fowl and 1,000 cases of eggs. 577 boxes of butter and no cheese.

The butter market was generally quoted 23½ cts 24c per pound for fresh creamery in solid lots. The Canadian Commodity Exchange had sales of butter at 23½c and Quebec grass butter.

On the egg market graded abp-ments were steady or incl. lots were 27-28c for A-large, 25-26c for A-medium, and 23-24c for A-pullets.

Says Carol's Masseur Tangled With Admirals in Portege

London, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The Continental newspaper Daily Worker said today King Carol's masseur became entangled in the funeral procession when King George V marched through the streets, wearing working clothes, a white sweater and a cloth cap.

The newspaper said the masseur, described as an Austrian named Stoeka, arrived with the King of Roumania, became bewildered when he was surrounded by Admirals and Generals and found himself marching in their ranks.

The Communist newspapers published photographs in which the unconventional mourner was identified as "Rumanian officer" and a "representative of Transylvania."

Blond Locks Yield to Darker Ideal Hollywood Beauty Taller

Hollywood, Calif., Feb. 1 (AP)—"Dark Year's" blond beauty in Hollywood is two inches taller, several inches thicker and her traditional blond locks have changed to "mid-night blue."

"There have been ,too many blondes for too long."

So said Leroy Prinz as he explained why he picked Miss Ann Merril as the "ideal type" out of 300 dancers. Miss Merril is five feet five, weighs 115 pounds, has a waist measurement of 26 inches, a eight-inch ankle—and "mid-night blue" hair.

Prinz, a director, said the American movie public decided on the changed style in beauty and helped him select Miss Merril.

RED INDIANS OF KINGSTON CINCH JUNIOR TITLE

Defeat Local Squad 13 - 8 And Look Best in So Doing

McCREARY STARS

With Johnston, Storms And Tompkins Form Bulwark of Attack

Showing too much class the Kingston Juniors rubbed out the Belleville Junior "Redmen" by the score of 13 to 8 last night in the last Junior O.H.A. game that will be seen in Belleville this year. Icing a fast skating, smooth passing squad, the Limestone City team won the local group honours in a decisive victory in a game that was replete of action and prolific scoring. Belleville was always trailing but the speedy, but put up a stellar fight in defeat as they threw caution to the winds and unleashed a fast pced offensive of five men that finally resulted in their defeat, as the short-footed Kingston squad took full advantage of the breaks and raced in for the unprotected Bellevlle 'goal to score eight goals in the final counter, as Belleville took a hour in that frame.

The local defeat meant the elimination of the Belleville juniors, but they went down fighting as the Thousands tried in vain to get inside the play into the waiting hands of the visitors, but with little success. Showing the advantage of a full season of connection the Kingston squad showed a polished game and deserved their honors, for at last they got the range in the second third stanza, Belleville was repeatedly left in the wake, as the visitors continually drove over to mount the score. Parts, Kingston's centre man on their second line, turned six of his team's dozen counters and starred along with Catlen, the regular centre man, and Bill Johnston, who bagged four goals and gave three assists. Murrell and Johnston with two and McCreary's sweet looking tally accounted for the Belleville scoring.

McCreary Stars For Locals.

McCreary stood out as the individual star for, Belleville as he played a stellar game going both ways and always proved a threat. Howie, Storms, Tompkins and Pepper formed the defence for Belleville as Burley skated afar to give a good account of his endeavors. Ashton and White worked laboriously but the locals were just outclassed and bowed to a better team. Parts starred as the best player tossed over the local net, a shifty lad and a prolific goal-getter. Catlen followed in line as Goldup played a stellar game for the visitors. Ferguson, in the Kingston nets, continually thwarted the locals with some success and supernatural saves and was given splendid support by Carey and Hagen.

The first two periods saw some excellent hockey played on the part of both teams, but during the third period a system of disorganized shooting developed, as the players were continually bunching. Belleville threw caution to the winds and tried to overcome Kingston's early lead, but with results that proved disastrous, as Kingston was handicapped, however, and to a considerable degree when they were forced to discard their red uniforms. Kingston wearing the same colored sweaters, and forcing the locals to don nondescript outfits. The absence of their regular uniform materially mitigated the efforts of the local squad, while the Kingstonians were right at home with their own outfits.

The line-ups:

Belleville—Goal, Munroe; defence, White and McCreary; centre, Howie; wings, Tompkins and Johnston; subs, Storms, Burley, Pepper and St. Denis.

Kingston—Goal, Bridgen; defence, Carey and Hagen; centre, Catlen; wings, Carr-Harris and Belwa; subs, Parts, Goldup, Dixon and Mosley.

PRESENTING GEORGE SHAW — Husky George Shaw, right back of the West Bromich Albion team, knows the game from A to Z and is a hard man for ambitious forwards to run up against. Shaw will be remembered by Canadian fans as a member of the English touring team of a few years ago. Shaw played in 39 games for the "Throstles" last season and capped it all by playing a stellar game in the cup final against Sheffield Wednesday at Wembley Stadium.

GRABOWSKI JOINS PROS

ST. LOUIS, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Signing of Joe Grabowski, former Oshawa, Ont., amateur lacrosse star, was announced yesterday by the St. Louis Flyers of the American Hockey Association. He is expected to arrive here from Brockville, Ont., in time for Sunday night's game with Oklahoma City.

PETES HAVE TO WIN ON MONDAY

Game With Locals Promises to be 'Best of The Season

When the Peterborough intermediates tasted a 4 to 3 defeat on their home ice last night at the hands of the Oshawa "Cherlies" the defeat made Monday night's Peterborough at Belleville game all the more important. The Peterborough and Oshawa squads are playing a double schedule between themselves and a defeat for the Limlock city's aggregation in Belleville on Monday night means actual elimination for the blue and white Petes.

Feelings have been running skyhigh between the Petes and the local "Redmen" all season and last week's doorsbrook at Peterborough in no way assisted in well amicable feelings, as the Petes applied personal pressure and considerable checking and felings were in evidence. When the Petes appear in Belleville on Monday night they will be keyed up everything to the Wright-led aggregation, as a defeat at the hands of the local intermediate "Redmen" means absolute elimination for the Lifluck City over the further O.H.A. competition in 1936.

Both squads will be at full strength for Monday night's important tilt when the question of superiority between the Peterborough and Belleville teams will be settled once and for all this season. The demand for seats for this tilt has over-shadowed all previous requests for accommodation in the Belleville arena, leading the sponsors to believe that the largest crowd in years will witness Monday's Peterborough at Belleville game.

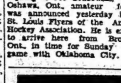
The line-ups:

Peterboro—Goal, Foley; defence, Weir and Sophia; centre, Ellis; wings, Geddes and Covert; subs, Callan, Wiseman, Church and Gerrard.

Belleville—Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram and McDonald; centre, Barrager; wings, Gerrard and Pete Morgan; subs, H. Morgan, St. Louis, McGuire and McBrath.

BROTHERS READY FOR ANOTHER TRY

Bourcier Pair Instrumental in Pittsburg's Win Over Olympics



By The Canadian Press

Ernie Savard who plucked the Bourcier brothers—Jean and Conny—from Montreal Maroons system to join his Canadiens, was satisfied today he had made a good move although the youngsters were not with the Flying Frenchmen. They were with bright lights in last night's 3-2 victory of the lowly Pittsburg Shamrocks over the Detroit Olympics in an International Hockey League game.

Split down the Montreal league for seasoning, the Bourciers proved themselves capable of just about ripe for another try under the big grid as they accounted for the bright lights of Detroit's Hudson, fast-skating former Calgary Stampeder, who travelled with the other Shamrocks' squad.

At the same time, another lowly outfit, the Rochester Cardinals proved that although they were Orphans of the circuit, they still could win games. Playing more aggressive hockey than their Buffalo rivals, the Cards took a fast game at Windsor 2-0. It was only the sixth win of the season for Canon Dineen's homeless squad but they were impressive and looked worthy of a push to call their own. Ralph Rennie and Nobby Smith scored their goals.

Detroit skating in turmoil over their lead in the western section, fought a great uphill battle in the last period at Pittsburgh but lost couldn't make the grade. Williams and Gallagher both beat Joe Scott in the Shamrocks' net in the big drive.

HUGGINS WINS TRICK FROM PITCHING ROOKIE

Miller Huggins was a smart coach. One day while serving as coach of the Cardinals, before he became manager of the Yankees, Hug was in a tough spot. That is the team was in a tough spot. The Cards were up against a tough pitcher, a youngster who was a terror; then past all the Cards' batsmen.

In the seventh inning, the Cards managed to get a runner on third. There were two out. A weak hitter was up, and Hug feared that his man wouldn't come through.

Huggins thought fast along that third-base coaching line. As the kid pitcher started to wind up, Hug yelled from the coaching box: "Hey you, let me see that ball!"

Without thinking, the kid turned and tossed the ball over to Hug, who stepped aside and let it roll to the bench.

The runner on third base scored, standing up, and you just know the ball game was won.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Our local junior O.H.A. squad passed out of the picture last night when the Kingston kids warped it to them to the tune of 13 to 8. Here and now we'd like to make mention of the fact that the score does not in any way indicate the play, as the locals carried the play at each end and perhaps a little more than the scoreboard, but when the junior "Redmen" were forced to move all to the offensive in the final period, it proved a boomerang as the fleet-footed Kingston team repeatedly broke away to score a majority of soft goals. The visitors loed a couple of real smart pucksters in Parts and Catlen, both being smart open players, but pucksters of the first school and a credit to any amateur hockey team. As a matter of fact Catlen is one of the best hockey players we've seen in some time, while Parts, despite his slight stature, is a shifty player, fast on protection around the local net accounted for the mounting score but the better team won; so what? The locals tried hard enough and were not disgraced in defeat. The fact they were forced to diirobe from their customary "red unies" handicapped them considerably and materially assisted in their elimination.

Just what actually happened in Toronto on Saturday night we only know from the reports handed out by the "Redmen". The Peterborough boys however in reference to our reports and like the complaint, never forgets. So any Monday night's game 'twixt the Petes and the "Redmen" here will be a hectic affair, and suggest a brawl might result if the game is handled by Referee Meagher or Colling. In defence of the last we happening to be that identical pair of officials on both occasions and hereby state that the day arrives that we cannot umpire better than the Limlock City scribe can comment on sport, well, we'll continue in discline future baseball appointe, but doubtless the Peterborough scribe will have to forgit his biased reports before we hang up the old indicator for the mask, forever. As for the other two local arbiters, we don't know their line, as we expect be Messrs. Woodley and Meagher, but for the information of the Peterboro' scribe we might warn him that both of these officials are big enough men, rather hot under the collar and would like him up a back lane to argue in an appearance at the arena on Monday night.

All joking aside, however, and getting down to serious business, we are going to quote the Peterboro' sporting editorials on the Monday's game in Peterboro'. He receives his opinions of statements as to any serious misstatements. Here's Wright, Morgan and other "Redmen" for the benefit of Canon Dineen's report and we ask our readers to read well between the lines and then judge for themselves as to just what did happen in Peterboro. Quote, he says:

"That battle royal in the Murray sort of climaxed the evening for the fans. For a time after Mahaffie and Pete Morgan were fed — with half a dozen more bits breaking out between team mates—it looked like a large night in Dublin with everyone invited. Pats were climbing over the fence to see it better and maybe get in a few pokes, too. A stop was calling his darndest to break it up and some of the cooler heads around gave him a hand. The rink manager pulled a nifty when, in the middle of it all, he put on the record: "God Save The King!" Naturally, they had to stop while it was on. A bit of fast thinking."

With the Senior Interscholastic schedule exactly one-half over the race is tightening down considerably. Just two points difference as shown between the group leading B.C.I. squad and the third place St. Michael's. The standing today, with a double-header scheduled for next Wednesday, reads:

B.C.I.V.S.	W.	L.	T.	P.
Albert College	1	0	3	4
St. Michael's	1	0	2	4
O.S.D.	0	1	3	0

The Quinte Skating Club, with its ice surface and club rooms in the old Tiger Tire building at the upper end of West Moira street, today boasts of nearly sixty active members, President Stan Wilbur informs us. The club has a fine skating surface and the rink is well patronized every night in the week with fancy and figure skating being practised with the most satisfactory results. Some of the more proficient members have branched out and are showing some real difficult solo numbers while the graceful waltz is featured in doubles and quartettes, as well as the two and ten step. The Belleville Skating Club has appeared to have smaller accommodities adjacent to Belleville including Colbourg, where they were always assured a large attraction at carnivals and ice performances. The club has been a valued assist in the Policemen's-Kiwanis charity hockey game for the Y.M.C.A. and will give a 30 minute program of fancy and figure skating prior to the big match.

Following the challenge hurled by Chief Kidd on behalf of his policemen's hockey team an avalanche of challenges from all over the chief's range was received, including the Kilmanny Club, a team from the Wharf Street Debating Club, which incidentally is composed of veterans, no less than the team under the years of age or thereabouts. After much deliberation the stage is set for the big match. Chief Kidd accepted the challenge of the Kiwanis Club of the Y.M.C.A. and staged about the middle of the month. If Kiwanians such as Frank Dowsnie, George Lee and Cliff Cossar can be prevailed upon to play as they are at staging carnivals, well the law enforcement gang had better start practising, all signs promise. At any rate the cause, the Y.O.N., is an excellent one and before the actual game other features are to be presented in order to make up one big night of fun and frivolity for all at the arena.

The Kingston B.C.I. Interscholastic hoopsters fared quite well over in Picton during a Bay of Quinte group O.S.S.S.A. triple-header last evening. The Junior boys won from the Picton C.I. lineup 32 to 14. Miss Allison's senior girls romped home to a 33 to 22 win, but her junior girls bowed to a 17 to 12 defeat after a keenly contested, while Coach Geo. Hall's senior boys seem to be proud of his first year junior squad. To quote him: "My juniors did themselves credit, but they still need a few around like veterans and although they are all first year kids, they played a fine game and deserved their win."

ST. MIKES WIN OVER PICTON

Outplaying their rivals in all departments the St. Michael's Academy intermediate basketball team opened the Bay of Quinte C. I. S. S. A. group with a win over the Picton Collegiate sextette by the score of 28 to 18 on the home floor last night. The local "Irish" were always on top of the score and well deserved their victory, despite the fact the Picton squad staged a last minute rally to mount their score.

Another strong team from Picton, the Schrieder-coached St." Mike's squad is also a local "Irish" team, they continually outshot their Prince Edward County collegiate rivals in the pinches, and this was marked with close checking, however, as both squads set up a stellar defence. The win elevates the St. Mike's sextette into first place in the senior division of the Bay of Quinte group in the O.S.S.S.A.

Led by Lang Langton who bagged 15 points for the "Irish", the locals played a stellar game with Schrieder, Doyle and Hall matching everything into the contest. Welsh, Lockyer and Mallett were the best for the Picton school.

The box score:

St. Michael's—	G.	F.	P.

VILLANS TAKE HAMILTON 5-2

Toronto Dukes Gain in League Without Playing

(By the Canadian Press)

The Greenshirts of Kitchener-Waterloo and the Dukes of Toronto held the whip hand in the Ontario Hockey Association's two senior groups today, although the whip hand at this stage of the proceedings didn't mean very much. Group leaders have no better chance in the playoffs than runners-up.

By simply remaining idle, the Dukes strengthened their hold on first place in the Eastern Section last night as Hamilton Tigers bowed to reply to Leafs 5-2. The second-place Tigers were outplayed thoroughly by the Peggey Villans.

The Allan Brothers, Pearcy and Sarsi; Sonny Townsley and Bert Peer, ace forwards of the Leafs team, found the way with Hamilton defence to score four goals in the first period and make victory certain. Pearcy Allan scored three goals and added a fourth.

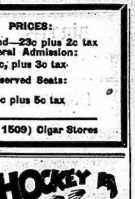
Port Colborne sailors kept pace with the Villans by drubbing Uniroyal Tigers 6-3. This was a field day for the sailor marksmen. Ken Mervilion scored three goals and had one assist. Vince Upper banged in two and Bobby Sell four others. Doug Runions had three goals and one assist.

Kitchener's Greenshirts were forced into overtime to defeat Hamilton Pats 8-6 at Kitchener, but the victory clinched top place in the Western group. The game was one of the season's most open games.

Niagara Falls shoved Brantford into the cellar by scoring an 8-3 win. Hunter led this onslaught with three goals while Allen got two.

K-I-Y SCHEDULE FOR COMING WEEK

President Bill Cook today released the schedule of games to be played in the Ki-Y League for the week of Feb. 3 to 8. The time and place of all games was clearly defined by Secretary J. E. Shortt. The schedule:



Juvenile games at Arena:
Tuesday, Feb. 4, 4:15 p.m., Black Hawks vs. O.S.D.; 7:15 p.m., Albert College vs. Stars.

Wednesday, Feb. 5, 6:15 p.m., Red Wings vs. St. Michael's.

UMPIRE A HOLDOUT—Albert D. "Dolly" Stark, recently voted the most popular major league baseball umpire, announces he will retire from the staff of National League arbiters unless his salary is increased. "I am a holdout because I think the job is worth more money," Stark is quoted. He thus becomes the first umpire to become a baseball holdout.

HARVEY JACKSON HAS CHANCE TO PROVE PRICE TAG

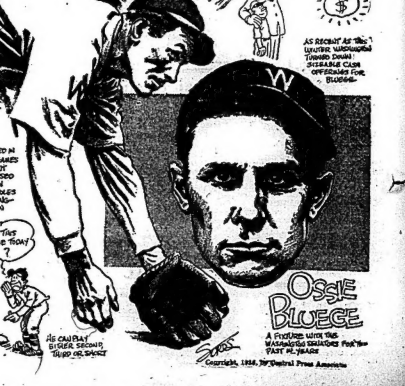
Smythe Refuses $35,000 For Contract of Left Winger

(By the Canadian Press)

Harvey Jackson, victim or one of the worst slumps a first rank hockey player ever suffered, has a chance tonight to prove himself worth more than $35,000 Conny Smythe refused for his contract. Most Toronto fans would be satisfied with half the value of half the high figure,the Toronto Maple Leaf manager turned down.

For weeks he has been anything but outstanding. Smythe, however, still has faith in will play back to his top form. Leafs never needed the scoring punch Jackson used to carry in his stock more than they do this week-end.

Tonight they meet Chicago Black Hawks, leaders in the National Hockey League's American division as Toronto and the same teams play again tomorrow night in Chicago.



Leafs are three points down to Montreal Maroons, Canadian section top dogs, and it may be more after Stanley Cup champions play New York Rangers in Madison Square Gardens tomorrow night.

Refused $35,000

Smythe refused the $35,000 offer from Lester Patrick of Rangers yesterday. Last season he set a price of $100,000 on the left winger and recently he said he would not part with him unless given a new high for hockeyists, which would be more than the $50,000 he paid Ottawa in cash and players for King Clancy.

Jackson, after piling up eight goals and seven assists in early season games, hasn't scored for weeks. He has collected 32 points and 22 assists last year.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

CHAPTER 12.
THE VISITOR

Steve Kemp got out of the car and came forward with an air of great sure of his welcome.

"Just driving by, and I thought I'd come an' see how you were," he explained easily. "Brought you a few oranges from my ranch."

Dale guiltily thrust down the feeling of irritation which had risen at the sight of the man. He meant to be kind, she told herself. He was too boldly admiring glances meant nothing offensive.....

Because she could not rid herself of the instinctive dislike, Dale tried to combat it by inspiring extra warmth into her thanks and the man's smile became boyish. "Now she made no move to go inside. Half apologetically she motioned for Kemp to place the box of oranges on the step. "It's stuffy inside, I—I like to be in the air."

"Much better! He—he's gone to Colt City for supplies," the girl invented quickly. Somehow Dale knew that Brant's absence was no news to this man. That it accounted for the presence of his sight.

"I get most of my stuff from the Wattles store down the road," she made the man answered. "But, of course, there's more choice in the town."

As Kemp spoke his eyes were busy with Dale's delicate profile, cameo clear in the twilight. Busy with the gentle line of her throat and breast. Like corn silk was her hair. Set it would feel like silk against a man's face, too.....

Here was Dale's chance to get to the train. Here was the heaven sent opportunity to leave the desert shack and the surly man she had married. But, unaccountably, the girl heard herself refusing. "Some other time," she evaded. "I am tired tonight—"

"I'll bet you are," agreed Steve Kemp too quickly. "Guess this sort of life comes pretty hard to you. Not that running isn't sort if it's all come right. Now, I got a house, good as a city house, it is. Electric lights, shower baths, nice living room—that's the sort of place a pretty little girl like you ought to have."

Though the still profile beside him did not change, for some reason the man chuckled. "I guess that seems pretty slow to you. How'd you like to be in a nice, sort lighted cafe now, dancin'—"

"I shouldn't like it at all," Dale told him coldly. "You can see that if I had, Mr. Kemp, I would have stayed in the city." The brown eyes had come around to rest on him a trifle offended.

"You girls are smart, all right," he said cogmatically. "Brant's folks sure ought to appreciate it—that you're doin'. His lone was dry.

Dale's eyes went wide with sudden comprehension. A great light had broken on her mind. Those words Brant had used yesterday. "You think you have me pretty well sewed up—well, you're wasting your time—my family wouldn't give you a thin dime for me....." So that was what he thought! He thought that she was trying to wedge herself into his wealthy family by the means of his illness!

Dale flushed with hurt pride. Well, she'd show Brant Kemp that a woman! her! she thought hotly. All thought of leaving now left her mind. She was going to stick! She was going to make Brant get well in spite of himself—if he must! Dale recollected with a little shock, she recollected with a little sinking at her heart. He'd find out all girls weren't Mildred! She would shame him with her generosity—with her kindness and gentleness. When, at the end, he would try contritely to thank her, she would put from her own bitter words and turning on her heel she would walk proudly out of his life....

This Dale, dreaming the hot, proud dreams of youth; hating the childish satisfaction of imagining Brant's abashed gratitude and remorse, never looked back to the girl with a jerk to find that Steve Kemp had risen to leave. She was stricken with remorse because she had forgotten him, and, as she noted always in the days to follow, sought to cover any deficiency in her attention by putting cordial warmth in her goodbye.

Kemp's eyes plunged deep into her brown eyes. "Oh, sure—I'll be droppin' by right along," he said. To add enigmatically as he stepped into the car: "I guess we understand each other pretty well, you an' me."

Dale might have saved her self reproaches. Steve Kemp was no appreciative of his own florid good looks to feel her neglect. Comfortably off, a good-looking bachelor, he knew that he was considered "a catch" around Colt City. Who was this cheap little actorine to snub him—even if she was married to that stuck up Brant Kendall!

When Kemp had left, Dale went into the house. Every nerve was strained to catch the slightest sound out there in the night. All of life had suddenly narrowed to the tenses waiting in the dark. She had ceased to wonder why she was waiting Brant Kendall to come back so fervently. She simply wanted him, that was all.

The girl must have slept, for she found herself suddenly lying rigid in her cot, staring with wide eyes at the window. The sky behind it was gray with dawn. Out there—a noise which had awakened her.....the sound of a machine rattling up to the shed and stopping.

Slipping from bed, Dale peered cautiously out of the window. Brant was slowly getting out of the car. He walked slowly, painfully like a very old man, his head bent. Through the flimsy door which separated their rooms, Dale heard him enter the house and fling himself heavily on the bed. She heard him draw a long sigh, a sigh almost like a sob. Then, silence.

The girl's heart was almost smothering her with its frantic beating. She was here! She was home back—come back by himself.....Then the reaction came and quick temper flamed up. He'd come back because he had no place else to go! Very well, she'd be her back he would stay on her terms now!

Out in the kitchen she picked up the carving knife and cautiously let herself out of the back door. The cold breath of dawn blew about her thinly clad figure. Then she was running through the grey light, the blue robe fluttering behind her, running toward the shed where the still steaming automobile stood.

CHAPTER 13.
DALE BURNS HER BRIDGES

Like a little fury Dale racked away with the carving knife, and when she had finished the front tires of the automobile were literally cut to ribbons.

Panting, the girl finally stood up. She spoke out loud, her tone grimly triumphant.

"There, Mr. Brant Kendall, I think that solves the problem of keeping you away from town!"

She was flushed with victory as she walked across the hard baked earth the first red rays of the rising sun. The glow lasted while she dressed; while she ate her solitary breakfast. Not until she entered the yard to the chicken pen and her eyes fell on the slashed and punctured tires did her triumph waver and a little sick doubt begin to creep in. After all, whispered a timid voice inside of her, was that such a clever stunt to have done—disabled the car? It would take money to replace those tires—more money than they could spare from their rapidly diminishing supply.

But she didn't want to replace them! Dale answered the small voice defiantly. By destroying the tires ahead which Dale could see in the world, she had succeeded in keeping Brant Kendall out here with the doctor ordered. But a chill had closed down on her heart. Yes, she had succeeded in keeping Brant here on the ranch. But she had imprisoned herself as well!

Before she had time to follow, As Dale's eyes fell on the bin where the chicken grain was kept, a little gasp came from her. The grain she had ordered in Colt City had been forgotten in the stores delivered to the ranch here was barely a day's supply left in the bin.

The girl stood petrified while the hungry fowl crowded about her feet. Why hadn't she thought of that? Now what was she to do? Why she hadn't been so hot headed! She couldn't tell Brant....she must get the grain from somewhere. But where? It was too far to walk to Colt City.....

For a moment Dale had the mad impulse to drive the car on the rims. But that was nonsense. The rickety old machine would shake to pieces before she'd gone two miles. Ten miles.....a distance to Steve Kemp's ranch.

Before she could turn and ran into the house. Quietly, that she might not wake the man sleeping in the next room, she crept up a wide brimmed hat and ran to the road, silently thanking her heels.

She had started at a brisk walk driven on by her sense of guilt. before long, however, she slowed her pace. The sun seemed to get hotter with every passing speed. The heat was becoming unbearable. Dale found herself wishing she'd brought something to cover her bare arms. She tried to fold them to bring them in the slight shade of her own body, but it was too tiring to hold them in that position long.

The road was rough and broken. When she looked around the little shack was already lost in the heat haze of the horizon.

As she topped a barren slope of hills a new country spread below her. A wide shallow river, gleaming down there in a fringe of willows. That dark green patch must be Steve Kemp's orange grove. The heat was becoming unbearable. Dale found herself wishing she'd brought something to cover her bare arms. She tried to fold them to bring them in the slight shade of her own body, but it was too tiring to hold them in that position long.

Her Last Dance

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Marion Woods heard the news the week after her misunderstanding with Rolfe Burton. Sadie Smith brought the word, as she always did of every event in the town.

"My dear!" said Sadie Smith, "I just came in to talk it over with you—of course you would know all about it."

"I know what you were talking about—" began Marion when Sadie broke in with an amazed expression at her crabby tone.

"Why—it's about Rolfe—they say he is going to sell out his practice—the last of the week—Why, Marion, how pale you are!"

"That need not stop your flow of news, Sadie," smiled Marion. "To reassure you, really, I did not know that Rolfe expected to go to South America."

Sadie's large bright eye had flashed to the third finger of Marion's left hand. It was quite bare! Always she had seen Rolfe's engagement ring on that slender finger. That was gone!

"I thought you were engaged to Rolfe," she said suddenly.

"Did you?" asked Marion sweetly.

"They say that Mrs. Burton will give a party for Rolfe before he sails," went on Sadie. "I suppose you will be there, Marion?"

"I have not been invited," said Marion.

"None of us have, silly. I suppose Mrs. Burton will write notes to us at telephone call, I guess, in our way—so busy this morning—" And she was away, Marion knew, primed with the additional information that as she was no longer wearing the engagement ring, the engagement must be broken.

Among those who heard that phase of the affair was Mrs. Carlisle who was studying law in Judge Carter's office, and he closed his books, attended to one or two important matters and went home early. That evening he called upon Marion Woods.

"It isn't a matter of the law," he said with a grimace on his handsome face.

"I came up for air," remarked Vera. "And speaking of frivolity, did you receive an invitation to Mrs. Burton's dance?"

"Yes—this morning."

"I am hoping that you will let me be your escort."

"Not you, but father will drive me there. I am very glad that you will be there, though."

"How many dances may I have?"

"Ask me afterwards, Tom. I am usually arranged for the first dance—I think the others are open."

Tom swallowed hard. "Why is she saving that last dance for?" he asked himself angrily and suddenly before his jealous eyes was a vision of gay Rolfe Burton. Still, Marion was not engaged and suddenly from this evening and Tom took hope.

On Thursday evening Mr. Woods drove his daughter to the Burton home and, as Marion ran up the front steps, she felt the old thrill that used to come when she went to her first dances—the quiver of uncertainty that Rolfe was no longer protected her.

When she came down stairs and was greeted by a rather cool Mrs. Burton, Marion was charming in a pale green evening dress of velvet. There was a little rush of young men toward her, but Rolfe quietly reached her first.

Marion danced every dance, and at three she quite forgot Rolfe, who danced a lot with a pretty, dark-haired girl. Then, suddenly, Once his eyes intercepted Marion's heavy gaze as he bowed to her partner, in response to her gay nod of greeting. Deep in her heart was a little sore spot. Would Rolfe ask her to dance? Would he ask her to dance the last dance for old time's sake?

She was sure he would not, but he did come and ask her to dance toward the end of the evening.

As they moved off she could feel the savage pressure of his arm.

"I could run away with you!" he said savagely.

"But you won't," she suddenly laughed at him. "You know that you are angry because I will not marry you in a mad rush to South America with you—I couldn't do that, Rolfe. I think a man must have been the real test of my love. Let you—your vanity is wounded and—"

"May I have the last dance?" he said roughly.

"I am sorry—" she was beginning when his fine friend arrived. Marion looked around the room, seeing the whole scene with a sudden clearness. There was a sense of freedom that she had not known since her engagement to Rolfe Burton. She had not realized how he had dominated her, and how his proud, overbearing disposition had at last worn her love to breaking point. Now it had matured and she was free.

When Tom Lincoln came and asked for the last dance, she said did gayly, and under Tom's guidance she found that dancing was a new pleasure. When he put her in her father's car, Tom whispered: "Is this just a dream—or might it happen again?"

And she murmured: "I hope very often!"

MEASLES AT O.A.C.

Guelph, Ont., Feb. 1.—(CP)—All social functions, meetings and class gatherings have been cancelled at the Ontario Agricultural College as a preventive measure following discovery of six cases of measles among students. Dr. G. I. Christie, attendant, declared the situation was by no means serious and said the cases were taken only to guard against further spread.

FAR-FLUNG EMPIRE OWES ALLEGIANCE TO BRITISH MONARCH—Approximately one-fourth of the habitable world, embracing 13 million square miles and 440 million subjects, to-day owes allegiance to the new British King, Edward VIII. The above map shows the far-flung British empire (in black).

Reached a Final Decision

By DUFORD JENNE

"So that is the final word, is it, Avery?" he asked, looking off into the fragrant southern night with a sense of desolation.

"Please don't make it hard for me. I do like you, I—might like you with you, but, Rand, I'm not just ready—my music, you know, is had my attention, she said gently.

"I wonder—I wonder if you will do just one thing more for me. I hate to ask you—but it lies pretty close to the happiness of one love," he queried, hesitatingly.

He felt her warm, slender fingers seek his.

"I can't give you myself"—she warned him quietly, "but anything else—ask and see."

He pondered his request—should he make it or should he not?

"It's just this, Avery Father, as you know, is alone. Mother's been dead for twenty years. Father, as we know, has only a few months more to live, and he knows it. I took you to the old home, he saw you, and came to love you in those brief hours we were there. He's reached the point where memories are pretty dear to him, and he likes to talk of the old home even more as he knew it—with a lovely girl in it with me, when he had gone. Somehow, I felt sure enough of you to let him believe we were close to engagement. I did not think the situation is thus.

He raised her hand to his lips. "But the trouble is I cannot seem to get courage to tell father. And what I—I—" he stammered—

"Go on, Rand."

"—am wondering is, will you go again with me, and except for the intimate things, act as if we were engaged. It is only a matter of a few months, and next week you go North. I know it would bring comfort to him in those last, hopeless hours. I know it is an unusual request, Avery, and don't hesitate to say 'No'."

She drew his arm under hers and slipped closer to him.

"It's a noble kind of deception, and I will be pleased to it, my dear. You make the arrangements, and I will go," she said with finality

Rand brought the car to (or her hote) the next morning, and soon the powerful motor was whispering its message of swift miles passing.

He looked down at the dark head at his shoulder, smiled a bit at the chic hat, and wished he could kiss the smooth satin of her cheek he could see under the hat's brim.

"Don't let me make this a sad journey, Avery, Father is a pitiful sight to me, but he has his old courage still. This is the last trip he will ever take, until we go North, you know, so I want you to enjoy it," he suggested.

"Oh, I shall," she said, smiling up into his eyes with her dark, winsome smile.

"Then why so still?"

"I was thinking—and I never learned to think out loud," she retorted.

He chuckled at her reply and told her a story of an old darky on his father's place whose habit it was thinking out loud constantly got him into trouble. Then he changed the mood of the trip, and he drew her thoughts off the coming departure from him as he spun tales of the country he knew so well.

After gorgeous miles through the beautiful Carolina country they drew up a drive over which ancient trees hanged, and stopped before a broad portico.

"Welcome home, my lady," he said as he helped her to alight.

Her face changed, but she answered gayly, "Thank you, kind sir, prince."

The old darky who came hastily if somewhat rheumatically out to greet them led them inyard, and "Youngsters, I am so glad to see you!" he said gruffly but exactly. "I have been counting the hours since I got your word of it, Avery —I may call you Avery?" he said to Rand.

She leaned from the chair which the darky had placed for her and took his hand. "I know a better word," she suggested.

He smiled. "Avery, my dear, to think you will bring back the loveliness the old house has missed since my wife grew cold and murder. "I wish I could be here to see you in it for a little while."

She hesitated just a moment, then said gently: "I should love to be, and can be if Rand is willing to marry me right off!" —Avery.

The terrible pain in his eyes made her go to him; as she kneed him, she whispered in his ear: "I mean it dear, beyond all doubt. I decided—on the way! She turned to the bel where the sick man lay, his thin face aglow with happiness. "It's settled—all but the day—and we want you to chose that!" she added, a little tearfully as she felt Rand's arms tremble with the happiness he knew awaited him.

One of the many incidental tasks that his position forced upon the Prince of Wales, was setting the pace for the world's best-dressed men.

Thousands of pictures have been taken of Edward as Prince, probably no man who ever lived has been photographed so often.

(The End)

MME. STAVISKY IN NEW ROLE—Mme. Arletta Stavisky will soon be an attraction at the French casino, a popular night spot in New York. She was pictured here in a dressing room of the casino, making up and generally familiarizing herself with her new surroundings, only a few hours after she had landed. Mme. Stavisky is the widow of Alexander Stavisky, the French pawnbroker, whose alleged swindles led him to take his own life, and almost brought France to revolution. Only a few days ago she was acquitted in a Paris court of complicity in her late husband's speculations, and following her acquittal she received hundreds of offers for the stage, screen and radio, and numerous offers of marriage. She is the mother of two children, Olaval, 9, and Micheline, 8, and she declares that she is taking the night club job to earn money to support them in comfort. She declares that she will never marry again.

When speaking, Britain's new King frequently flashes an engaging smile as he enunciates with clarity in a rather high-pitched voice.

A perfect gentleman, courtesy comes to him naturally, but there is a rugged side to his nature that discloses itself when he is ruffled.

He is happiest when riding to the hounds or playing polo. The score of falls he has taken has not curbed his fondness for horses.

O'DONNELL TRIAL IN RAVINE SLAYING OPENS

LABOR MINISTER CONSIDERS STEPS TO CLOSE CAMPS

Has Before Him Recommendation of Investigating Committee

WORK, WAGE POLICY

Large Camps Frowned on By The Committee

Ottawa, Feb. 3 (CP)—With a comprehensive interim report covering the relief camp situation before him, Hon. Norman McL. Rogers, Minister of Labor today was considering definite recommendations that these camps should be closed as soon as possible.

A committee which the Minister said had been selected because its members possessed a thorough knowledge of the relief camp problem, recommended the camps continue. Coupled with this, however, was the finding camps must be conducted on the same lines as those established under the present conditions now from those in the beginning of the camp number.

The report of the committee, headed by B. A. Rigg, Director of the Labor Department's Employment Service Branch, and including Humphrey Mitchell, former labor member for Hamilton East, and A. Bradwin, of Toronto, President of Frontier College, was given out by the Minister on Saturday. It was compiled following an inspection trip through approximately 20 camps located from Valcartier, Que., west to the Pacific Coast. The committee also paid a visit to Washington and consulted with authorities there on methods followed in operating United States camps.

Have Considerable Influence

One of the arresting findings of the committee dealt with Communistic and Communistic influences in Canadian camps, particularly the larger camps. It was proceeded then with eggs ranging from 15 to 18 years, who had never had other than occasional or casual employment became "an easy prey to the subversive influences of Communistic or Anarchistic philosophy seductively propagated by experienced agitators."

If these young men had grown up in normal environment, and been given useful work they would probably have given a good account of themselves. "Under the influence which they have lived during the past few years, however, they constitute a far menace to the maintenance of our existing institutions than the reverse."

Adoption of a "work and wages policy, instead of giving men in relief camps only their keep, clothing and 30 cents a day, was recommended by the committee. While making no specific recommendation as to the amount to be paid in Canadian camps, the committee mentioned in transient camps across the line, unskilled labor got $15 a month, semi-skilled $20 and skilled $30 together with board and clothing. The committee recommended Canadian camps should be permitted to buy their own clothing.

Recommend Smaller Camps

The large camps was frowned on by the committee, which suggested they should be limited to accommodate not more than 200 men. Were possibility of trouble existed, when camps were permitted to grow so large it was difficult to enforce necessary discipline.

The committee commended food served at the camps, and generally speaking expressed satisfaction with the organization set up by the Department of National Defence as fit to the men and efficient in management.

When the present government came into office the camps were transferred from the Defence to the Labor Department. The investigation was completed with alacrity after. The recommendations of the report on his wishes be considered by the Minister and by cabinet.

Frost on his windshield and steam from the locomotive are believed to have obscured the train from the driver's view.

7 Boys Buried in Sand Hill Cave-In Dig Way Out, One Dies of Injuries

Seal Beach, Calif., Feb. 3 (AP)— Jackie Ward's dying playmates told today how the eight-year-old boy was buried alive, forgotten and crushed to death while they frantically burrowed in the sand to save a companion.

They thought he had gone home.

Seven boys, the oldest, 14, dug a landfill cave near Anaheim Landing. Record rains weakened the earth and yesterday the walls collapsed, burying them.

Two dug through the entrance, quickly freed themselves.

"Boys, we've got to get Bill out," said Stewart Lawhead.

He and four playmates dug, digging with their hands, slowly burrowing their way to Billy Taylor, 10.

They tore the earth from his blanched face and pulled him free so he could breathe. He was dead.

"It's a good thing Jackie went home," someone said. Then they got his breath.

Jackie's face, the boys dug in again, but Jackie was dead when they reached him.

SOVIET ACCUSES JAPANESE ARMY OF ENTERING RUSSIA

Skirmish on Border Line Results in Death of Three Soldiers

EXPLANATION ASKED

Boundary Line Will be Guarded Until Trouble Over

BY JOHN LLOYD

(Copyright, 1936, By The Associated Press)

Moscow, Feb. 3.—The High Command of the Soviet Far-Eastern Army announced today that a Japanese-Manchukuan troops, in a commingled force of 1,000 men, had crossed during the Soviet border and sending Scouts into Soviet territory.

The Soviet troops rushed to reinforce back to the Japanese-sponsored State of Manchukuo under the direction of Soviet frontier guards, leaving one of their number dead, the communique said.

The announcement hurried "any hostile intentions" in connection with the incidents which have been occurring on the order between the Soviet Far Eastern Territory and Manchukuo, promising the full cooperation of the Communist military organization.

Issuance of such a communique by the Red High Command is a very unusual procedure. In this case the explanation appears to be that Khabarovsk, capital city of the far eastern territory on the new Amur River, was made public today in Moscow.

Three Soldiers Killed

It disclosed three Soviet soldiers were killed and seven wounded in a clash with Japanese-Manchukuan troops took up a position on the border.

Both incidents occurred in the Orodokovo region near Svidnaya, said, a company of Manchukuan soldiers surrendered to the Soviets and was interned Jan. 29 after rebelling and slaying four Japanese officers.

The communique said: "The campaign of lies and provocations by the Japanese Army has been going on since 1931."

The Japanese Army Staff in Manchoukuo was reported to have issued a communique previous to the Soviet communique, charging the rebellion of Manchoukuoans was inspired by Soviets and algo by a so-called raid against the Soviets January 30 was really a battle fought on Manchoukuan territory against the rebels.

Plan Distribution $2,300,000 to Employees

New York, Feb. 3 (AP)—A distribution of $2,300,000 to 60,000 employees by Sears and United States is planned by Chrysler, Corp. It was announced today by Walter P. Chrysler, chairman, and K. T. Keller, president.

The fund has been appropriated out of the corporation's earnings and will be distributed to 47,000 employees who were on the payrolls during any part of the first quarter of 1935.

The minimum payment to each employee will be $50. Special payments will also be made to employees in London and Antwerp.

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—Announcement of a bonus by the Chrysler Corporation today will affect approximately 3,000 employees in this Windsor plant of the automobile company and will mean a distribution here of more than $100,000, it was estimated.

LARGE SAFE ROBBED OF $1,000

SOS Mystery Call is Heard, May be Plane or Submarine

Ottawa, Ont., Feb. 3 (AP) — The Canada Guard reported today the United States Naval Radio Station at Coco Solo, Canal Zone, had intercepted an SOS signal stating "S-51" is was not known what nature of vessel flashed the distress signal but Coast Guard officers here believed the designation might be of either aircraft or submarine rather than surface ship.

All receivers along the southern Atlantic seaboard were tuned to the wave length on which the SOS was intercepted but no further word had been heard.

The general "listen in" order was transmitted by the United Statesboard at 7:18 a.m. E.S.T.

The call was heard on 49 metres, short wave band assigned to commercial telephone ground stations.

Reports of unidentified submarines operating in the Southeastern Pacific have been heard in South American several times in recent months.

A fleet of these unidentified ships was reported off the Galapagos Islands, 600 miles west of Ecuador, last October 31. At that time, the submarines were said to be Japanese.

Today's SOS was reported to be signed "S-51". United States submarines bear the "S" designation but the Navy Department declared it was no "S-56", Japanese submarine also designated by the letters "I" and "RO".

LONDON FACES BUTCHERS' STRIKE

10,000 Men Halt Work in World's Largest Meat Market

London, Feb. 3 (AP)—A sudden strike at the Smithfield Meat Market halted the work of 10,000 men today and forced the world's largest meat market to close its doors against a 2,000,000 persons, to an absolute standstill.

London and the greater part of southern England faced a possibility of meatless meals unless the butchers expressed fear the dispute would spread to all cook and kitchens, were handling consignments for the Smithfield market.

The strike started at midnight. 4,000 workers first refusing to handle the meat, and picketing all entrances to the market. The dispute grew from workers' dissatisfaction over the new wage agreement signed Friday by a conciliation board dealing with the trade, which called for higher wages. The workers ask a minimum weekly wage of four pounds (about $20), a week's holiday with pay and a five-day week.

Last-minute attempts at conciliation ended this morning with an announcement the parties were "hopelessly divided."

Fleets of trucks, laden with meat, were immediately discharged to their loads.

Strong reinforcements of police patrolled the neighborhood.

The Ministry of Labor assigned a conciliation officer to attempt to work out a settlement of the strike, still deadlocked at mid-day.

'FLU' EPIDEMIC WORST SINCE '18

Coupled With Malady is Epidemic of Whooping Cough

Chicago, N.S., Feb. 3 (CP) — Outbreak of an influenza epidemic, coupled with the worst epidemic of whooping cough in the province, has swept the province since the beginning of 1918, has brought a toll of five deaths in Chetcamp and 40 cases of influenza, and has inevitably among medical men in northern Inverness.

Dr. W. G. J. Poirier, surgeon in charge of Grenfell Cancer Hospital here, fears he will have to summon aid from outside if the number of cases continues to increase.

Handicapped by snow-blocked highways, the doctor is working day and night to make his round of visits, but the strenuous task is of impairing his own health and twice while rushing to urgent calls he has narrowly escaped collision at the wheel of his car.

Several local schools are filled to capacity. The epidemic is reported to have spread to the neighboring district of Pleasant Bay, St. Joseph du Moine and Margaree.

Coupled with the influenza epidemic of whooping cough which has appeared in epidemic form in several schools in the district of Chetcamp.

There were more than 500 cases of whooping cough among children in Chetcamp and Margaree last week.

USED KEROSENE TO START FIRE FIVE TRAPPED

Father And Four Children Are Victims of Blaze

ONE CHILD ESCAPES

Frost Bitten as She Runs Half Mile in Night Attire to Give Alarm

Lemberg, Feb. 3 (CP) — John Jost, district farmer, and six of his children, perished in death when fire razed their farm home, two miles north of here early today.

A little child managed to escape from a window. Steadily clothed she ran half a mile through bitter cold weather to the home of a farm neighbor to give him an alarm. Her legs were severely frost-bitten.

By the time neighbors arrived on the scene the flames had gained such headway as to render rescue impossible. Volunteers hastily carried pails of water and threw the contents on the fire but the blaze raged unchecked.

Grief details were available. It is believed fire started in the living room when one of the girls used kerosene in an effort to burn rubbish in the stove. The blaze spread rapidly, trapping the remainder of the household in the upper floor.

Mrs. Jost was on her way home when word of the tragedy reached her. She spend Sunday night at Lemberg, visiting with friends. Surviving besides Mrs. Jost are two sons.

Provincial Police are investigating the origin of the blaze.

55 Below Zero Near North Bay

North Bay, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)— A cold wave sweeping into Hornepayne division of the Canadian National Railways from early today sent the temperature to the low-est point in Northern Ontario this winter. Thermometers at eight o'clock registered 35 below in the eastern portion of the division around Armstrong.

FLYING HOURS OF CLUBS INCREASE

Advancement 31 Per Cent Delegates to Convention

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—The Flying Clubs of Canada Association opened its convention here today with delegates present from many airclubs scattered throughout the Dominion. R. J. R. Nelson, Halifax, president, was in the chair and 31 delegates were welcomed to the city by Mayor Morrison, K.C.

The report of the secretary, Geo. M. Ross, revealed during the past year flying hours for the clubs increased by more than 31 per cent., with a total of 13,807 hours compared to 10,541 in 1934. Toronto was the leader with 1,753 hours, Winnipeg next with 1,284, London with 1,118, Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston, Cape Breton, Brant-Norfolk, Saskatoon and Regina Aero following in that order.

The secretary stressed the need for careful training to eliminate the danger of crashes.

"As time goes on it is becoming more and more evident the part the training plays in the safety of reasonable value," Mr. Ross stated. A marked upward trend was now apparent and he asserted that if the club system of training was vindicating itself.

Reports Say Governor Ready to Identify Man

Trenton, N.J., Feb. 3 (AP)—Gov. Harold G. Hoffman was reported ready today to identify the mysterious man with the handkerchief" in the Lindbergh kidnapping, and possibly to order his arrest.

Sources close to the governor indicated he would call another police conference and the man or to clear him of any suspicion in the crime.

Hoffman's decision was taken by Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, outside the Lindbergh nursery in the Bronx, the night Dr. John F. "Jafsie" Condon paid the futile $50,000 ransom for the return of Lindbergh's infant son.

MACDONALD WINS IN BY-ELECTION

Will Represent Scottish Universities Seat in Parliament

London, Feb. 3 (CP Cable)—Ramsay MacDonald, Lord President of the Council and Premier Prime Minister, today declared elected to the House of Commons for the Scottish Universities seat.

The elder MacDonald, defeated in his Seaham, Durham constituency during the general elections last autumn, secured 1,984 votes, 1,000 more than Prof. Denar Olibb who ran against him. Prof. Olibb polled 984 votes.

The third candidate, Cleghorn Thomson, a Labor, polled 3,267 votes.

The younger MacDonald, Malcolm Robert, is a doctor for the Rosyth and Cromarty division in Scotland and formerly held the cabinet post of Secretary for the Dominions from 1931 to 1935 when he was defeated in the last general election.

The government sought to find a seat for the former Labor members so as to retain the "National" majority in the present administration.

In Ross and Cromarty Malcolm found a stiff fight. The Conservatives rejected him although he had recommended him as Minister of Baldwin. Instead, they chose young Randolph Churchill, son of Winston Churchill, former Chancellor of the Exchequer and Conservative leader.

The other candidates will enter the Ross and Cromarty will be Liberal, Labor, Liberal, and Herbert McNeil, Labor.

Six Pullets Lay 161 Eggs in Jan'y

Napanee, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)— Napanee poultry packer has reported an exceptionally high egg yield from his pullets during January. During the 31 days in January they laid 161 eggs for an average of 27 eggs each bird, a slightly better than five eggs a day. Identity of the constable will not be disclosed, nor the nature of the charge, until the case is dealt with by the board, the magistrate said.

"I'm quite prepared to have a special meeting of the board to take up these cases when they arise," the mayor said, in calling the police trial. Commissioners this afternoon.

"There'll be rumors and statements to upset this case until it is cleared up."

Crown Outlines Evidence Which It Will Submit In Support of Charge

Woman Who is Said to Have Heard 'Oh' From Ravine to Testify

ACCUSED UNSMILING

Trial of Service Station Attendant May Last Two or Three Weeks

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP) — Harry O'Donnell, pale and unsmiling, was placed on trial today for the ravine slaying of Gerrard Street Bank Teller, 20 year old stenographer.

O'Donnell pleaded not guilty in a low, firm voice. He seemed anxious to get the case before the jury and uttered the words before the clerk finished speaking. The plea was repeated.

The four-odd filling station attendant was dressed neatly in a brown suit with a matching necktie. Nearby sat his father contented in the proceedings.

O'Donnell's wife, in a maternity hospital when the ravished body of Albert Pegram, 20, was found in the ravine off Gerrard Street East, was not in court.

Both Frank Regan, K.C. defence counsel, and Prosecutor J. C. Mc-Redmond, K.C. made caustic challenges of jurors before the twelve were selected.

It was expected the trial will last two or three weeks with a large number to be called, some of them repeating evidence given at the preliminary hearing.

Movements Traced.

Outlining the case to the jury, Mr. McRedmond told of Miss Taylor's movements from the time she left the Gerrard bank that night was last seen alive near midnight as she left a street car at a transfer point.

The girl's slip, said Crown Counsel, was wrapped about her throat. Evidence would be given, he said, to show the girl was criminally assaulted before death. It would also be shown she was bruised and suffered the fear fatalities she had been "rather severely beaten". The fatal wounds were caused by "blunt instrument or very severe blows" about the brow. Burns found on the body, the jury would learn, Suddenly some of the pupils to the floor.

Crown Counsel also stressed the presence of gas and opened windows and doors, dragging the body from a fresh air. Some were found to be unconscious.

Dr. Gordon Bell, Dr. Hirabar who collapsed, were rushed to hospital.

Woman Heard Shout.

There would also be evidence of a woman, said Crown Counsel, who heard the girl scream, "not once but a number of times" and nodding drowsily. Suddenly some of the pupils to the floor.

Crown Counsel also stressed the presence of gas and opened windows and doors, dragging the body from a fresh air. Some were found to be unconscious.

Dr. Gordon Bell, Dr. Hirabar who collapsed, were rushed to hospital.

Labatt Weary of Kidnap Trials

London, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP)— John Labatt is getting weary of kidnapping trials. In the last year he has taken the witness stand seven times to tell the story of his kidnapping.

"My, I'll be glad when this is all over, sighed Mr. Labatt while the jury was deciding the fate of Russell Knowles Saturday.

They had played where Albert Pegram is," some one else remarked. Albert Pegram is the last victim in the round-up of the Labatt kidnappers.

"Sure I do. It's as definite as that," replied the man, who was kidnapped.

However, he expressed the hope if police did not solve the Pegram case it would plead guilty and it would not be necessary for him (Mr. Labatt) to appear on the witness stand again.

FARM LOFTS ARE CRAMMED TO LIMIT

Throughout the rural sections today farmers are engaged in mental arithmetic, following exploratory trips to the barns and hay lofts on their farms. Even though the Candlemas Day, long known as "Groundhog Day" has passed, farmers are wondering the half way period between winter and warmer weather. It is at this time when owners are accustomed to judge the amount of hay and feed left on hand. If more than half the hay has been consumed, the farmer breathes a sigh—that some of the stock must be sold in order to take the remaining animals over the winter. This year, however, with lofts crammed to the limit, the plenty of feed is on hand and little worry exists.

$41,337.45 ALREADY PAID ON TAXES

The prepayment scrip issued by city treasurer R. B. Hock for the month of January is a record breaker, the total reaching the healthy total of $41,337.45 according to figures released by the city today. Increased prosperity or "this method of paying taxes is indicated by the increased payments made. During the month of January, 1935, the total payments reached only half this year's total, or a mere $20,000.

13 BELOW EARLY SUNDAY MORNING

Although bright sunshine flooded the district during the greater part of the day yesterday the temperature again reached one of the lowest levels of the season, a total of 13 below officially registrations at the city pump house, a mark of below was reached early Sunday morning.

ALL COUNTY ROADS OPEN FOR TRAFFIC

"All county roads are open, stated county road superintendent Simeon Fox this morning commenting upon traffic conditions throughout Hastings County. Heavy drifts that blocked some of the northern roads during the past week have now been removed and cellular travel is back to the normcrowed of points is being carried on with little difficulty according to reports. Here the snow-plows made but small instances are reported cleared.

MANY ENJOY SKIING AMONG OAK HILLS

Scores of young citizens of Belleville and district again invaded the Oak Hills over the week end with skis and toboggans, creating a colorful playground on the snowy hills. Many of the young people with their equipment at dawn. No accidents were reported locally although there were a few reported to be "too fast" for any but the more experienced skiers. Oak Hills is fast coming in the fun were a number of younger rural dwellers who used their cars on one of the more costly and conventional skis.

AFRAID OF BEAR AND CHILDREN STAY INSIDE

Mrs. Wm. Christopher, Sidney Township, kept her cow one day last winter the children were petrified. They were safe at home.

Both young children keep close track of Candadenas Day. "The day the bear comes out of his den to look for food", and for the past several years Mrs. Christopher has been terrified to the ramblings of the bear they keep close indoors, peering out the window.

CHEESEMEN DECIDE ON BELLEVILLE FOR MEET

Belleville will be the location of the ninth annual convention of the Ontario Dairy Cheesemakers' Association, it was unanimously decided at a meeting of the directors of the Association in the local office of Mr. J. L. Ferrier, Belleville, on Saturday afternoon last. The date of the convention has been set for the two days of February 20 and 21. Arrangements are also being completed to have, what is expected to be the largest cheese exhibit ever held in Belleville in connection with the annual convention. The exhibit will be open for the entire fall of cheese makers and cheese factory owners throughout Eastern Ontario. It is hoped by the Association to have both the provincial and the Dairy Commissioner assist in the holding of the exhibit through substantial grants which will be offered for the best and special commodities named.

The meeting was also hoped by Mr. W. H. Dillenbeck, president of the Central Association.

FEAST OBSERVED AT ST. MICHAEL'S

The ceremony of the blessing of the candles took place before the High Mass at St. Michael's R.C. Cathedral the Archangel yesterday, the feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary. The ceremony was conducted by Rt. Rev. J. F. Hand, D.D., and the usual procession around the church took place.

Today the feast of St. Blaise, the ceremony of the blessing of throats will be held at 7 p.m. in the church, the school children. At 7.30 Benediction of the Most Blessed Sacrament will be followed by the ceremony for the adults of the parish.

JOHN ST. CHURCH MARKS PROGRESS IN ALL DEPT.'S

Particular Growth Seen in S. S. And Young People's Work

TREASURER RETIRES

The annual congregational meeting of John St. United Church was held Wednesday evening in the Lodge hall.

Following an ample Ne'er Supper supplied by the members of the Mrs. Clab of the church, the business of the congregation was transacted.

Reports from the many organizations within the congregation showed a splendid survey of the work of each society as well as a panorama of the church life as a whole, particularly fine progress was revealed in the annual statements of the Sunday School and the Young People's organizations.

The minister, Rev. Robert Hall, acted as chairman and J. C. Thomas, recording steward, was appointed secretary of the meeting.

In the minister's survey, Mr. Hall revieved the outstanding activities of 1935. He expressed appreciation to his co-workers and commended all for their consecrated contribution to the work of the Kingdom. In paying tribute to the musical portion of the service of worship he emphasized the pastor's dependence upon the faithfulness of the choir for a most acceptable complement to the spoken word.

Mr. Hall read the names of those who had passed to their reward during the year. The congregation stood in a moment of silent tribute while the pastor conducted a brief service of remembrance.

466 Resident Members

Mr. J. B. Findlay, clerk of session, reported that decided increments by death and certificate the roll had increased to a net resident membership of 466. The session reported that the services of public worship had been well maintained throughout the year and expressed satisfaction in reviewing the general spiritual tone of the church as a whole.

A report attributed the notable expansion in the activities of the Young People's Soc. to the efficiency of the superintendent, Mr. A. D. Archibald, who had withdrawn a few years created an enviable record in the building of this section of the church work.

The session recorded their deep appreciation of the high standard of the church music provided by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. Miss Leona Rikes and by Mr. Alec Gordon, organist.

The Official Board report showed that a sum of over $11,000 was raised for all purposes of which $2,000 was contributed for missionary and benevolent purposes.

Work of W. A.

Due recognition was made of the magnificent work of the Women's Association which raised almost $1,000 during the year and of the Christian Citizenship Institute initiated by the Young Women's Guild in promoting the Reading of Leisure which is making such a vital contribution to community needs.

The year 1935 was acclaimed the most successful in the history of the men's Missionary Society and the Mission Band which they sponsored.

With the presentation of the Mission Band Maintenance report by Port Rev. Robt. Hall and Mr. R. B. Hock, which paid tribute to the devotion of the retiring treasurer, Mr. Robt. Templeton, in succession to Mr. M. and M. Fund, and spoke of his great interest in the larger work of the church. Mr. Wm. Ross added a personal tribute from service of Mr. Templeton.

The following were elected to the Board of Stewards: J. B. Boyce, H. Legate, H. A. Ross, G. Wishart, D. Dickson, J. Bell, Mackenzie Robertson, T. Donnan, R. J. E. Graham and N. Thompson.

POLICE COURT

"That was a brief sitting. Your Worship," commented B. O. Donnan, B.C., Local Crown Attorney, at the conclusion of today's local police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C. Only four cases were heard and lasted some time less than a dozen minutes. A heavy inebriate fattened the city's coffers slightly as he paid the minimum fine of ten dollars and costs after pleading guilty to drunkenness. Two charges, laid under the Highway Traffic Act, were enlarged at the request of the defendants, while Ross Garrett, alias Chambers, who gave Hamilton as his address, found his case further enlarged. He is being held on a nominal charge of vagrancy following investigations that resulted in stolen jewellery being found in Garrett's locker at police today revealed. "We are still conducting the investigation," stated Chief Kidd as he successfully entered a request for the enlargement.

PRESENT CHAIR TO MR. ANDREWS
Associates Pay Honor to Original Letter Carrier After 23 Years

Twenty-three years of service as letter carrier for Robert C. Andrews, has been brought to a close by his retirement from the office which he has filled since the establishment of rural delivery in Belleville in the year 1913.

On Saturday evening, at the home of Wilson Elliott, 181 Herchers Avenue, the members of the post office staff assembled to tender the associate widows retirement took place on that day, February 1st. Mr. J. J. Farrell acted as chairman and after a luncheon a toast to His Majesty the King had been toured. The health of Postmaster J. V. C. Truaisch and Mrs. of Assistant Postmaster Bruce A. Leake were pledged, replies being made by brother Truaisch and Mrs. Leake. Mr. W. R. Hinchey then read an address and Messrs. Jack Boyd and Harry Baker made the presentation of a handsome chair. Mr. Andrews responded acknowledged the expression of goodwill and his appreciation of the gifts. Everyone in the party took part in the program and Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Boyd, who came in, played for the company. A vote of thanks was made to Mr. and Mrs. Bird for their hospitality.

The address which was read by Mr. Hinchey to Mr. Andrews was as follows:

"We have assembled here tonight to say goodbye to our friend and fellow-worker, Mr. Andrews. As we look back on having rendered long and faithful service as a letter carrier for twenty-three years, has decided that the time has come when he should seek rest in retirement.

"It has fallen upon me to express the regret we all feel at losing him. We regret, it tempered by the fact that, although officially he will not be with us, there need be no break in the old friendship we all value so highly.

"His work was always satisfactory, and his energy, ability and good judgment since the office will long be remembered. He has been an outstanding example of goodfellowship and as he leaves us we ask him to accept this token as a friendly gift from his fellow workers, and with it our warmest wishes for a long life and happiness."

QUITE CONTENT WITH CLIMATE

Peterboro, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP) — Three ducks, either too hardy or too lazy to attempt the trip to the sunny southland, are wintering near here in the Otonabee River. They are swimming in a little open brisk on the cold days but they seem quite content with the climate.

Obituary

MRS. MARY BROWN

After an illness of about three weeks' duration, Mrs. Mary Brown, widow of George Brown, a brother of the late W. J. Brown, former chief of the Belleville Fire Department, passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Wm. Whalen, 181 Church Street, on Sunday, February 2nd.

The late Mrs. Brown, who was in her 82nd year, was born in Belleville, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy. All her life was spent in Belleville and she had seen many changes take place in the city of her birth. In religion she was a member of John Street United church. She was formerly also was an honor member of Lydia Lodge, Loyal Orange Benevolent Association. By all who knew her the late Mrs. Brown was most highly esteemed.

Surviving to mourn her death are two daughters, Mrs. Wm. Whalen, Belleville; Mrs. Lloyd Chambers, Detroit, Mich.; one son, Mr. George Brown, formerly of Toronto; one sister, Mrs. J. R. Dafoe, Napanee.

The funeral arrangements is made elsewhere in this paper.

WILLIAM H. BOYLE
(Napanee)

Napanee, Feb. 3.—Continuously in business in Napanee for nearly fifty-five years, the well known grocery Sunday morning of William Henry Boyle, in his eightieth year. He was a native of Bath, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Boyle and came to Napanee with his parents, when about seven years of age. His father started business in Napanee about 1860, and a few years later a partnership was formed with the late R. G. Wright, which continued for some years and about the year 1881 the firm became known as Boyle and Son, which has continued to this day. Many years ago Mr. Boyle was elected to the Town Council for two years, and was an Old Country Society. He was a member of the Masonic Order for 50-year and 50-year jewels. He was also a member of St. Mary Magdalene Church. His wife passed away about two years ago. He leaves an only son, Harry E. Boyle and a sister, Mrs. Cornell.

JOHN J. MURPHY

Announcement of the sudden death of John James Murphy, former man in the Belleville Sargent Company's store, which occurred at Peterboro on Saturday, came as a great shock to his many friends in this city and district. Mr. Murphy was great at his passing were expressed by all who knew him. Mr. Murphy spent many years here and was a resident of his son, Mr. Jack Murphy, Bridge Street, up to within a few days of his death. Mr. Murphy was apparently in his usual state of health, about his home on Saturday morning, however, he was taken with a heart seizure and passed away.

The late Mr. Murphy was born in Peterboro and was a son of the late parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Murphy. For many years he resided in Chicago and came to Belleville twenty-seven years ago. He was employed with the Belleville Sargent Company and by his genial personality was held in high regard. In religion he was a devout member of St. Michael's Church and Belleville Council No. 1 of the Knights of Columbus and the I.O.F., Moira Lodge.

Surviving to mourn his loss are his widow, whose maiden name was Miss Bertha Bellamy; four sons, Lawrence Murphy, Detroit, Mich.; Jack Murphy, Belleville; Nelson and Clifford at home; one sister, Mrs. Nelson Graham, Detroit, Mich.; one brother, Truisch Murphy, Peterboro, Ont.

COUNCIL PASSES SPECIAL GRANTS TOTALLING $7,600

County Rate Will Likely be Raised to Take Care of Approval

BY-LAWS PASSED

Lengthy Session is Adjourned Until June 16th

Special grants totalling $7,600 were passed by the County Council at their abbreviated session on Saturday morning after a lengthy discussion. By-laws were also passed and the council then adjourned until June 16th when the table will be struck and the equalization of assessment will be considered. The Saturday session was made possible by the length of the agenda and the fact that the council did not open on Tuesday as usual owing to the funeral of the late King George V.

The grants totalled $7,600 and were passed by a vote of 24 to 20, while libraries at Marmora, Madoc, Tweed, Bancroft, Frankford, Stirling, and Deseronto were each given $50.00, the motion for $75.00 being defeated. The poor schools of the north were given the usual grant of $225.00, while the poor schools of Grimsthorpe and Point were given $80.00 each. The grants to be divided by the Inspector of the Public Schools. Deputy-Reeve of Thurlow was appointed a delegate to the National Convention and his membership fee of $6.00 was ordered paid.

Enumeration of Grants

Before the grants were ordered, they were summarized in the council and included $300 to each of the six northern municipalities, $600 each to nine front townships, $300 each to the nine villages in the county and $500 extra to Thurlow for relief purposes. The passing of these grants left the 1936 county rate to some extent but this will be discussed by the Finance Committee. Reeve Wesley Gray of Thurlow opened the discussion by declaring that he thought the grants were unwisely divided and that they should be reduced, unless they were reduced, he would have to vote against the measure.

W. H. Sayers: "Some townships are in bad shape still they have no county roads and still have to pay county road rates and I think they should be assisted so they can start."

J. Bronson: "The Reeves of the north are always placed in a ready position. Every time they want anything they have to vote for anything they have to vote for it, while if any Reeves in the south want assistance or something needs done, the road superintendent for the county roads must be looked up."

D. A. Clarke: "How many miles of Township roads has Sidney?"

J. Bronson: "About 60 miles and there are three townships that never had a trustee in them."

Simeon Fox: "The Highway Act provides townships can be given consideration where there are no county roads."

W. H. Sayers—"If all these grants go through, the mill rate will have to be raised."

D. A. Hubbell—"The roads are in a terrible condition and there are no privileges in the south that are not obtainable in the north."

Henry Larkin—"We are willing to meet the north half way."

I. Davis—"It is not fair to ask these poor townships to maintain themselves."

J. L. Churcher—"The county road runs between Faraday and Dungannon but the road from Deloro to Fort Stewart that carries the heavy traffic is kept up by the township. The north has sent thousands of dollars to the south and if the roads are not kept in good condition that revenue will be lost."

J. Bronson—"I understand that Hungerford had $10,000 spent on the county roads last season."

Hungerford's Position

G. Jordan—"There is no township warse off than Hungerford. We are in debt $41,000 and after borrowing $30,000 it was sent down to the treasurer to pay off the county rate."

R. Robson—"I would recommend that a committee of five from this council look into the assessments, because I don't think all are treated the same. If these grants go through Thurlow will pay $1,500 of the total."

R. Woods—"I sympathize with the north but we cannot get gravel out in the summer time and we are carrying our own relief and I am asking for only $150 to fix a road that is badly in need of repair."

C. S. Airhart—"If these grants to the north are given the township can obtain nearly $800.00 from the government."

R. Robson—"I will agree to the grants if the money is not used to pay off the county taxes."

By-laws Passed

Under by-laws a number were approved but they were of a routine nature. Charles Marvin was appointed corn borer inspector at a salary of $6.00 per day, the inspector to provide his own transportation. The Agricultural Committee and auditors to the audit of administration of justice were named and the High School trustees in the county, they being the same as last year. A by-law to expend $45,000 on roads with $29,000 for construction and $16,000 for maintenance was passed. The county will borrow $228,700 for current expenditures and a publicity committee with J. M. Anderson as chairman was formed. A plea at road near Marmora will be taken into the county system if the Department of Highways approve.

ROSLIN

ROSLIN—A memorial service for our late Monarch, King George V was conducted by Rev. C. Beasley in the Anglican church on Sunday evening. The Hymns sung during the service were "How Bright These Glorious Spirits Shine"; "Rock Of All the Saints Who From their Labours Rest"; "Abide With Me"; "O God Our Help in Ages Past" and the National Anthem.

The annual congregational meeting of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held in the church on Tuesday evening. After the meeting the members enjoyed an oyster supper.

Members and friends of the Women's Institute gathered at the home of Mrs. Glen Ish on Wednesday afternoon and quilted a quilt for a needy family.

8 MEN GUILTY IN MAIL FRAUD

Long Prison Terms Face Men in Huge Fraud Through Mails

Chicago, Feb. 1 (AP)—Eight men whom Federal Judge Philip L. Sullivan announced each of eight defendants charged with mail fraud in the Sir Francis Drake estate case today faced prison sentences up to a maximum of more than 80 years.

A jury last night reported the conviction of seven defendants on all 18 counts of two indictments and the eighth on 17 counts.

Government testimony was aimed to show Oscar Hartzell, former Tulsa lawyer serving a term in Leavenworth Penitentiary in connection with the case, organized a promotion through which $1,350,000 was collected from 70,000 persons on the strength of a claim he had found a previously unknown heir of Sir Francis Drake's mythical multi-billion dollar estate.

Convicted on all counts, including 17 of mail fraud and one of conspiracy, were Hartzell and his brother, Canfield, both of New York; Joseph H. Hauber, Lester S. Thomas, Delmer D. Short and Ben Yant, all of Chicago.

A. R. Gregory of Wenatchee, Wash., was convicted of all but one mail fraud count.

RARE OWL WINS FIGHT TO LIVE

Beautiful Arctic Visitor Wounded by Farmer, May go to Zoo

MILLET, Alta., Feb. 1.—(CP) — Far from its native icy tundra, a magnificent white owl, first seen here in many years, was shot and wounded by a hunter and put up a successful fight for life. Attempts was made to end its suffering by bombardment.

Herman Kohn, farmer, stalking a mountain eagle, shot and crushed forward to pick up his quarry. Passing under a tree Kohn felt something on his shoulder and glanced up. The Monarch of the northland, its great white plumage already stained red, was swaying and watching him closely. It had mistaken the head of the shot intended for the eagle.

The farmer thought the badly wounded bird to his home, where wounds and ripping of feathers supplemented by three fat mice, aided in its revival.

Despairing of saving its life, Kohn placed the owl in a warm box and took it to Edmonton until instructions to have it chloroformed and stuffed, as in the case of the finest specimens of birdlife he had ever seen.

The bird's instinct of self-preservation was strong. With beak and talon it resisted every effort of the druggist, appointed executioner, to put it to sleep—and won. The would-be executioner turned healer, and the bird is rapidly recovering.

From wing tip to wing tip its measures five ft clothed from head to tail in beautiful snow-white velvety plumage. Its saucer-like eyes and feathered feet give it an owlish appearance. It weighs five pounds.

Benefit Fund For Crutchfield Swelled to $7,000

Montreal, Feb. 1 (CP)—Stars of today and yesterday returned to their regular tasks today after doing their bit to swell the benefit fund for Nelson Crutchfield, Montreal Canadiens' centre who suffered a fractured skull in an automobile accident, to $7,000.

The highlight for the crowd of 11,000 at the Forum was the old timers' seven-man hockey exhibition with greats of the past coming out of retirement to show the youngsters how to handle a puck.

The old timers started off in serious style but before the end more than 30 players swarmed over the ice and the score was Canadiens 97, Maroons 31. Art Ross, president of the Canadian-American League, and former Wanderers' star; Jack McDonald and Mickey Ion of Quebec, Stanley Cup winners; Jimmy Gardiner of the Montreal A.A.A. famous "Little Men of Iron"; Odie Cleghorn, George Malone, Hughie Duignanik, George Munnings, Russell Reade, Dave Campbell, Mike Grant, Billy Boucher, Newsy Lalonde, Ernie Savard and Charlie Lyon were among the veterans.

The amateur all-stars and the professionals which included King Clancy, Red Horner and Busher Jackson of Toronto; Babe Siebert of Montreal; the Canadien-Maroon pro clash of seven man hockey ended in a 4-4 tie. Aurel Joliat, Cecile of Maroons, won the speed races. While Bill Brydges won a girls' race against Will Cude of Canadiens and also won the penalty shot contest.

Edinburgh, Feb. 1 (CP Cable)—Fifty thousand spectators at Murrayfield saw Wales triumph 13-3 over Scotland today in an international Rugby match played in dismal, foggy weather.

Six weeks more of winter! That's the official pronouncement of Hastings County groundhogs who put their burrows for a midwinter look around yesterday as has been their proverbial custom.

"If Candlemas Day be fair and clear"
"There'll be two winters in the year."

Sunday, February 2nd, was Candlemas Day and sunshine and rising temperatures, dispelling all hope for an early spring, according to the old proverb.

Candlemas Day which was observed on Sunday was also the Feast of the Purification of the Virgin Mary, observed by Roman Catholics throughout the world. Special services were held in the Catholic Church in this city. The Festival is also observed by the Church of England and by the Armenian Church. In Scotland, Candlemas Day is the first of the quarterly terms, when interest, taxes, rent, etc., must be paid.

LOCAL NEWS

The monthly meeting of the Belleville Scoutmasters Association was held at the home of Sam Graham on Wednesday evening January 22nd, with the following present,— Scoutmasters Graham, Brown, Anderson, Mitchell, Pitkat and District Commissioner Sisler. Regret was expressed at the absence of Scoutmaster Jim Varley who is in the hospital in Kingston. We hope for his speedy recovery.

Various matters were taken up in connection with the visit and conference of Scouting in Belleville and encouraging reports were received. It was decided to hold a joint Scout and Father Banquet in February, Sam Graham is in charge of details. It is expected that a representative from Provincial Scout Headquarters will be with us on that occasion.

Lunch was served by Sam Graham, and can he make good egg sandwiches!

Mr. S. G. Elder, Manager of the Dominion Bank, has been appointed Acting District Commissioner. He takes over his duties as head of the Scout movement in this district at once, and he will endeavour to build up the organization with the object in view of forming a Local Association, which is an association composed of all citizens interested in the training of boys. The co-operation of all citizens is solicited.

The voting done by mailed ballots, is over in prohvem. It will not be completed until Monday but is expected the President of the Council enjoys a lead over his two opponents in each of the four universities—St. Andrews, Edinburgh, Aberdeen and Glasgow.

GETS QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

Awful headaches and constipation left after just one package of Fruit-a-tives.

Miss J. Duplaste, Cornwall, says, "I felt very miserable from constipation which brought on bad headaches. I started Fruit-a-tives and felt better at once. After only one box the awful headaches and constipation left me." Miss Duplaste's feeling fine today—it's not just a temporary correction. A natural remedy of extracts of APPLES, ORANGES, FIGS, PRUNES and HERBS. Fruit-a-tives tend to strengthen all eliminative organs. Their tonic effects have helped thousands to new health and energy.

McLAUGHLIN-BUICK

THE McLAUGHLIN-BUICK name is old. But the McLAUGHLIN-BUICK car of 1936 is the newest of the year! For we threw away all the old dimensions when we designed this latest, greatest McLAUGHLIN-BUICK. We built it with new Turret Top Bodies by Fisher—more powerful Valve-in-Head Straight Eight engines—new Tip-toe Hydraulic Brakes—improved Knee-Action riding ease. Yet one thing is not new! And that is the sound foundation of McLAUGHLIN-BUICK quality that has kept this car "on top" in point of friends and buyers for twenty-eight years.

She is survived by one son, Thomas Wilson, Belleville, and one daughter, Mrs. Frank Hall, Belleville. Funeral service will be held from the late residence on Monday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Ferguson officiating. Interment will be in Belleville cemetery.

BONDHOLDERS TO HOLD MEETING

Repudiation of Power Contracts Will be Discussed

Montreal, Feb. 3.—(CP)— Because of the "recent Grand Act of the Ontario Legislature" in cutting off power supplied by the Beauharnois Power Corporation, directors have decided to call meeting of shareholders of the Corporation and the Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power Company to appoint protective committees. Annual meeting of shareholders will be Feb. 17.

Announcement was made by President J. S. Norris yesterday in the annual report of the Corporation and its subsidiaries. He said contracts with the Ontario Hydro Electric Commission were "arbitrarily cancelled on the ground of alleged illegality" while the same act of the Ontario Legislature "contrary to the ordinary canons of British justice an attempt is made to deny the companies the right of recourse to the courts".

The company would be dependent for revenue on its principal purchases upon its contract with the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated, Mr. Norris stated. The net revenue from the Montreal Power Company would be insufficient to meet the full interest charges on the outstanding first mortgages of Beauharnois Light, Heat and Power, regardless of depreciation and amortization, he added.

The report said the directors had looked upon the Power cancellation as "nothing short of confiscation and propose to petition the Federal Government for the disallowance of the Act". Petition to this effect was filed with the Department of Justice last week.

RUSSELL KNOWLES FOUND GUILTY

Sentenced For Part in Kidnapping in Two Weeks

LONDON, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP)— Mr. Justice Charles McRuer will pass sentence at the close of the Criminal Assizes on Russell Knowles dapper Detroit salesman convicted Saturday by an Ontario Supreme Court jury of participation in the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, Brewery President, in August 1934.

The jury deliberated two hours before reaching a verdict of guilty on charges of armed robbery, kidnapping and two counts of extortion.

Knowles will hear sentence in about two weeks. David Meisner, Cincinnati bookmaker, and Jack Basham, former Windsor, Ont., hotelkeeper, are serving 15 years each in Kingston Penitentiary after conviction in connection with the same crime. Michael McCardell pleaded guilty and received a fifteen months' sentence at Knowles' trial. McCardell is serving 12 years.

Gerald Nicholson was given suspended sentence for driving the car which brought Labatt to Toronto for release after he was held three days in Meisner's Lorne cottage. Kingdon P. "Piccolo Pete" Ferguson, Herman Rickerdorf were arrested of charges, Rickerdorf was arrested with Knowles at Ottawa, Ill., just before Christmas but was freed after he and Knowles waived extradition. The proceedings and were brought here.

Reduction of Age of Pensioners Advocated

OTTAWA, Feb. 3.—(CP)— Reduction of the minimum age of Old Age Pensioners from 70 years to 65 years will be urged in a resolution before the House of Commons probably by the Co-operative Commonwealth Group, J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader said today. He would also urge that the monthly payment of $30 be increased.

Mr. Woodsworth will call upon the League of Nations to take steps to investigate the question of living out of the practice of nations setting colonies in order to secure raw materials. The C.C.F. group contend countries not sufficiently civilized to govern themselves, should be under mandates of the League, rather than the colony of any particular nation.

Mr. Woodsworth will also move a resolution urging cancellation of Canadian Utilities along the lines of the one proposed last session. The C.C.F., comes back to the House with only seven members, the result of the election recently held before the forces of Social Credit in Alberta.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE BEAR AND THE WOODCHUCK

The bear or the groundhog, whichever you believe in as the prophet of the next six weeks, saw his shadow Sunday in the brightest day of the season as if nature wanted to make it very clear so that there should be no doubt about the kind of weather that day was to have. According to the old adage the hour is that of noon. There was no doubt yesterday, for the day was cloudless, not as in some years when it is cloudy up to noon with the sun then bursting out into a blaze of glory and as soon as his rays have glinted on the eyes of the bear or the woodchuck, retreat, behind the shadows of the clouds as if for protection from the chill of earth's snows.

February 2nd will always remain a day in the calender, for it is the day when custom says that the Weatherman hesitates and says—"To be or not to be." He lets the bear or the other animal decide.

Zoo experts say there is no truth in the old story after all—they point to their bears and their woodchucks in the "gardens", soundly asleep, far more asleep that the laziest man that ever lived in bed in wintertime. There is likely nothing in the bear story after all, indeed a scientific mind would be inclined to doubt it. Is there a mid-winter break in the sleep of the bear and woodchuck? Do the animals if they do arouse for a time go up for the rest of the winter? Traditions of course says they do, if the weather is dull, but scientists are inclined to deny. Does the weather of February 2nd indicate the trend of the next month and a half?

Anyway whether there is truth or not in it, the winter started in again Sunday with a storm and it is said that there should be a revival of winter.

The story is a good one for children and adults. It makes them think of animals, and think of Nobody seems to suffer damage in believing this winter break in the sleep and it adds zest and interest to the winter.

MID-WINTER FIRES

Night fires in mid-winter sweeping away homes and often claiming lives are all too frequent. It is not an isolated occurrence to have to report the death of one or more of a family trapped by fire in bedrooms or the homeless often suffering burns ,painfully making the way to neighbor's. Never does man seem so helpless as in the face of fire, which fights in several ways—with its smoke and its wall of fire which make rescue almost impossible and often fatal to those who dare to attempt to save those who become victims.

Yet in human nature it is natural that attempts at rescue be made. Men and women rise to the great emergency and even the children do and often perform feats which are the admiration of the country. Their emotive lends them strength and quite often there is a rescue. But often too their efforts mean but another victim.

U. S. TRIBUTE

Tributes to the memory of the late British Monarch, King George Fifth continue to be paid and Sunday evening's memorial service in the P. E. Cathedral of St. John the Divine, that magnificent edifice in New York, rivalling in extent and in beauty ancient cathedrals of the Old World added another proof of the sense of sorrow and sympathy of the American people in the passing of the King. Bishop Manning officiated, former Ambassador Davis spoke from personal knowledge of British affairs and of the sovereign and assured the American people of the lifelong efforts of the king to cement British and American friendship. The British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay read the Scripture lessons played a lament and the organ sounded the strains of the funeral march. A graceful and sincere and heartfelt gesture was the singing of the British National Anthem, followed by the singing of "The Star Spangled Banner."

So the fame and glory of the late monarch will endure as long as memory lasts and history is read.

THE LECTURE SERIES

It is with a great deal of satisfaction that the Chamber of Commerce members have witnessed the greater interest in the Citizenship series of lectures for the present season. At the first lecture one week ago Tuesday, the hall in which the lectures are held was comfortably filled. That others will join is to be expected as five fine lectures remain to be delivered on the next five Tuesdays. The subjects are such as attract the interest particularly at this season of the year when there is a desire to take advantage of the winter months to extend knowledge of practical public life and issues of the day. These lectures are of great importance to the individual.

The first impulse of conscience is apt to be right; the first impulse of appetite or passion is generally wrong. We should be faithful to the former, but suspicious to the latter.—Tryon Edwards.

SEVEN TIMES ONE

I've said my "seven times" over and over....
Seven times one are seven.

I am old—so old I can write a letter;
My birthday lessons are done,
The lambs play always—they know no better;
They're only one times one.

O Moon! in the night I have seen you sailing,
And shining so round and low
You were bright—ah, bright—but your light is fading,
You are nothing now but a bow.

You Moon! have you done something wrong in Heaven,
That God has hidden your face?
I hope, if you have, you will soon be forgiven,
And shine again in your place.

O velvet Bee! You're a dusty fellow—
O You've powdered your legs with gold,
O brave Marsh Mary-Buds, rich and yellow,
Give me your money to hold!

O Columbine! Open your folded wrapper,
Where two twin turtle-doves dwell!
O Cuckoo-Pint! toll me the purple clapper
That hangs in your clear green bell!

And show me your nest with the young mouse in it,
I will not steal them away:
I am old! You may trust me, linnet, linnet!
I am seven times one today.

DIONNE QUINTUPLETS HAVE A NEW YORK LAWYER NOW. Seems that Yankee notion makers have been making miniature reproductions of the Callander quints, offering the same for sale under the name of Dionne Dolls, and without cutting the quints into and share of the profits. Hence the Ontario government through Minister of Welfare Croll decided that a quint lawyer was necessary in the United States to look the Yankees seal the shirts off the backs of Dr. Dafoe's babies.

QUINTE SUN HAS CHANGED HANDS. This newspaper was built up from very small and humble beginnings by the late Thomas Jarrett, Police Magistrate of Trenton, until it became a sizable and interesting newspaper, a Sun shining out upon a more or less appreciative world, like all other newspapers. Mr. Jarrett received great assistance from his wife, a capable and hard-working newspaper woman, and she carried on the business after his death. Now Mrs. Jarrett has decided to retire and the business has been taken over by Mr. and Mrs. Cowan, whose habitat has hitherto been that great debatable land known as "West of Toronto". Mr. and Mrs. Cowan will be welcomed to the Bay of Quinte region, the garden spot of Canada, and by some enthusiasts called "The Garden of the Gods." The people here will be found to be much the same as those elsewhere, although we kid ourselves that we have more punch and progressiveness than most folks who live to the east and the west of us—but perhaps that's all hoey. Nevertheless it's nice to think so and perhaps puts more pep in our punch at that. And so, here's hoping you'll like us and we'll like you.

Although the Lindsay boys were much the heavier they were thoroughly outplayed in every stage of the game by the fast, light Belleville team, who seemed to be on wings on the good hard ice here. For the Lindsay team Flavelle, their defence man, and Carew of the forward line, were the pick, while perhaps it would not be fair to particularize as to the Belleville team as everyone from Nurse in goal to Armstrong at right wing played a good game which was well worth seeing. The following composed the team: Belleville—Nurse, Linn, Halliwy, Whalen, Arnott, Green and Armstrong. Lindsay—Mitchell, Flavelle, Hall, Reid, Mills, Carew and Griffith.

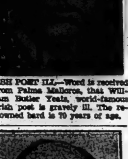
FORMER EDITOR OF PUNCH DIES

Sir Owen Seaman, Best Known Writer of Light Verse

London, Feb. 3 (CP)—One of the best known writers of light verse and parodies in the United Kingdom, Sir Owen Seaman, died yesterday at the age of 74.

His death ended an association with the magazine Punch which lasted more than a quarter of a century. Sir Owen joined the staff of Punch in 1902. He held that post until 1932, when he relinquished it to E. V. Knox.

Sir Owen described the function of humor as "a solvent against shams and hypocrites. It is a corrective against vulgarities and extravagances. It cleans the air."

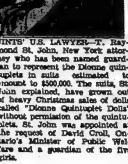


Punch pulled first, then Mayor of Chicago, William Hale "Big Bill" Thompson when he was conducting an anti-British campaign in 1927. After Thompson's defeat Punch ran a poem by "Q," it called "The Chastening of Big Bill".

An excerpt follows:

"Brave by the land where the pineapple's laughter,
Breaks out at the blue sky and breaks off your head?
Know ye the Eden of gunmen and grafters,
Where no one can tell you how soon you'll be dead?
This is the land of the west (and the middle of that)
Where the hooligan-fat—has secured all the fat;
Where are the weirdest of Wallace's plays
Are the tales of its things and the hell that they raise."

While perhaps best known for his humorous contributions to Punch Sir Owen variably struck an appropriate note to valedictory lines he wrote to emphasize the tragedy of the hundreds were during the war was considered an asset to the cause.



Sir Owen once described "dropping the pilot" by Tunnicl as one of the greatest cartoons ever published in Punch. Is depicted the discarding of Bismarck by Chancellor of the German Empire by the young Kaiser Wilhelm in 1890, shortly after he came to the throne.

Pilots Narrowly Escape Death in Forced Landing

Haileybury, Feb. 2.—(CP)—Dunlap Air Service Skyways Limited pilot, and his mechanic, J. D. Gibbard had a narrow escape from serious injury here on Saturday, when their plane was damaged after a forced landing on Lake Timiskaming.

During a take-off from the lake, McDonald detected engine trouble when only a few feet in the air. In landing, the propeller and one ski were broken and considerable damage done to the engine. McDonald and his mechanic, Gibbard, forcibly forward in the cabin but escaped injury. They were attempting to fly to the Wal Mart mining section in Quebec when the accident occured.

On the steps of Saint Hill. The porch was completely demolished.

BALK EXPANSION IN EAST EUROPE

France Said to be Welding Stronger Ties With Balkan Federation

By EDWARD KENNEDY.
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Feb. 3 (AP)—French authorities pursued negotiations with Balkan rulers and statesmen today as authoritative sources said, in an attempt to raise a wall against any German expansion in Eastern Europe.

A welding of stronger ties with Balkan nations and re-establishment of their economic equilibrium through French, British and Russian trade concessions were reported to be France's major objectives in the conferences.

A blocking of the campaign for restoration of the Hapsburgs, for fear it would launch Austria into certain disorders and possibly splinter the Little Entente between Czechoslovakia, Yugoslavia and Rumania) also was said to be part of the plan.

Hunters Rescue Starving Moose

Port Arthur, Feb 3—(CP)—A moose herd which migrated to Isle Royale, near here, from the Canadian shore several years ago, faced starvation because of exhaustion of food supplies on the island. The animals are being rounded up and transported back to the Michigan mainland, where food is plentiful.

Hunters, describing the pitiable state of the herd said there is insufficient food on the island because they had increased so greatly in numbers in recent years. Individual animals were losing strength and vigor.

"HELL ON WHEELS" COLUMN MOVES

Italy Claims Control of Large Tract in Ethiopia

(By Mark Barron)

(Copyright, 1936, by the Associated Press)

With the Southern Italian Army at Negelli, Ethiopia (Via Mogadiscio, Italian Somaliland, Feb. 3) —The Italian high command claimed today control of a vast area of Southern Ethiopia extending from Italian Somaliland half way to Addis Ababa.

The "Hell on Wheels" column, driving up the Valley of the Ganale Doria River, has forced the Ethiopians back 90 miles farther than Wednesday, when the drive began to Addis Ababa.

This would place Gen. Rudolfo Graziani and the vanguard column 175 miles northwest of Dolo, starting point of the offensive and about 225 miles directly south of Addis Ababa, with some 80 miles to go to Addis.

At the same time, the column advancing along the Parallel Valley of the Dawa Parma has pushed forward almost 100 miles, capturing approximately 10,000 square miles of new territory.

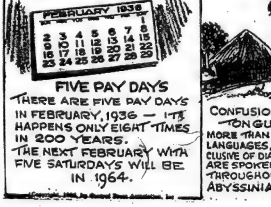
Gas Fumes Nearly Overcome J.R. Roach

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP)—John Rose Roach, formerly a local resident and with Detroit Red Wings, of the National Hockey League, was recovering today from the effects of gas fumes in his home here.



He was found in the downstairs of his home with gas issuing from a stove oven. Apparently Roach went in the kitchen to have even burning. Sometime during the night the flame became extinguished and the ex-goalie went downstairs to investigate and was overcome by the gas. He was revived with difficulty.

Roach resides with his mother. She heard him fall in the kitchen and raised the alarm, bringing police can to the house with first aid. Roach later was removed to the hospital where his condition was stated to be quite satisfactory. Emergency gas he performed in the nets for Toronto Maple Leafs.

American Section of N.H.L. Win Four Out of Five Inter-Section Games Over Weekend

Many Experts Call This Group to Win Stanley Cup

LEAFS BREAK EVEN

Score Overtime Win on Saturday But Blanked on Sunday

(By the Canadian Press)

Those who believe the American division of the National Hockey League will produce the next Stanley Cup winner could point to the way the Americans today to back up their argument. United States clubs won four of the five inter-section games played.

Toronto Maple Leafs won the only victory for the Canadian forces with a 3-2 overtime decision over Chicago Black Hawks at Toronto Saturday night and Hawks evened that by beating Leafs 2-0 in Chicago last night.

New York Rangers won 4-2 from Montreal Maroons at Madison Square Gardens and Boston took a 3-1 decision from New York Americans at Boston in other games last night while Detroit won the odd one 3-2 over the Canadiens in Montreal.

Toronto was the only move in the standings, leaping up to third in a tight scramble of members of the American section. The four winning American division teams played only four games between them with Chicago just where they were Wednesday night leading Detroit by a point. Montreal Maroons are trailing the Wings by three.

Nick Metz a Hero

Nick Metz was the hero of the Toronto win with a goal that finished the game at 4:00 of the extra period. When Johnny Karakas blew out of the net in an attempt to smother his shot, Metz leaped in and slipped it under the net.

Glen Brydson had sent the game into overtime by scoring in the 15th minute of the third period after Bill Thoms had given Toronto a 2-1 lead with their second period counter. Nash's March scored the first goal in the opening period of the well-played game.

Toronto had more of a margin of play but Karakas kicked out 37 of the shots to score his seventh shutout of the season.

Paul Thompson and Dunnie Mc-Fadyen did the Chicago scoring in the first game alone and Thompson with Frederic Ramsay Goldsmith and Doc Romnes, Sydney Goldsmith and March assisting. Both came in the third period, one in the last minute of play.

Detroit snapped a losing streak of three straight games when Larry Aurie took the direction leadership in the 4-3 win over Hawks Mon 15 back last night. Herbie Goodfellow, the American division's leading man, helped the Wings up, in the first period and Syd Howe and Gordon Pettinger added the others.

All Scoring in Overtime

While Goodfellow was serving one of the game's 4 penalties in the middle period Canadiens got their only goal on a rang play Armand Mondou scoring after Howie Morenz, Paul Haynes, Irvin Frew and Leroy Goldsworthy had assisted.

All the scoring in the American-Boston game came in the last three minutes of overtime after the teams had played more than three periods of hockey.

Some of the crowd were on their way when Lars Kaentzel scored tonight with less than two minutes to play, Lorne Carr tied the game on a rebound from Art Chapman and Boston immediately came back with the winning goal.

Dit Clapper scored the valuable goal but Babe Siebert got most of the credit for the play. He led the rush and passed to Carr. Beattie who relayed to Clapper. Siebert also had a part in the first counter.

Montreal Maroons had the score tied in the first period of the game as New York Rangers put three Regular goals in the middle session decided the issue. Frank Boucher, Cecil Dillon, Bill Cook and Bowie Morenz scored for Rangers, while Herbie Cain and Dave Trottier were the Maroon marksmen.

JACK BOWERS—the boy they built into a scoring marvel. Pep of the Scunthorpe in his first start at league football, was scouted by many first division clubs as a result of his prowess on his slight build. Derby saw his possibilities, signed him and were rewarded with a first class centre forward full of fast and a sure shot. Although Bowers was kept on the touchlines with injuries for a greater part of last year, he scored eight goals in ten matches, which is good pegging for any forward.

Founder of Game Of Basketball To be Honored

New York, Feb. 3.— (CP) — Basketball teams throughout the United States will pay tribute, starting Friday, to Dr. James A. Naismith, the Canadian originator in 1891 of a game that is now played world-wide by an estimated 18,000,000 men and girls.

The period of Feb. 7-15 has been designated as National Naismith week by the National Association of Basketball coaches and a fund will be raised to send Dr. and Mrs. Naismith to the Olympic games in Germany as well as to establish an annuity in their behalf if possible.

The general committee, headed by William S. Chandler of Marquette University, has asked every High School, College and University to make one of its contests during that interval a "Naismith Game" and to contribute one cent from each paid admission for the benefit of the 73-year-old founder and his wife.

While a member of the staff of the Y.M.C.A. training at Springfield, Mass. in 1891, Dr. Naismith was asked by Dr. Luther Gulick, the physical training department head, to devise something to employ the abounding energy of the prospective Y.M.C.A. secretaries, for whom the ordinary exercises with dumbbells and Indian clubs were too tame between the football and baseball campaigns. Basketball was the ultimate result.

His boyhood game of "duck on the rock gate Dr. Naismith, born at Almonte, Ont., the inspiration. He recalled the comparative value of the tossed rock that was fairly apt to hit the "duck" and the tossed rock that, if it did hit, sent the "duck further. Dr. Naismith concluded the tossed missile was the better and so established that as one of the principles of his new game.

Rochester Cards Win And Lose Over Week-end

(By the Canadian Press)

Ken Doraty, cagey little fellow, who would still be in the National League if he carried more flesh on his bones, popped up again today as one of hockey's most surprising performers. Doraty and the Cleveland Falcons, an ideal combination, held another joint triumph.

Two and a half games out of first place in the International League's western group, the Falcons blanked Windsor Bulldogs 3-0 Saturday night for the second and Doraty scored both goals. The former Toronto Maple Leaf pinch-hitter ran his season's goal total to 18.

Since the Falcons have played two games less than Detroit Olympics, holders of first place, the Cleveland entry has a legitimate challenge for the lead. Doraty added one on a pass from Speedy Groh and Lloyd Gross and again on a pass from Frank Daley.

Olympics Win

Olympics, no longer the league's most feared team, held their margin by winning 1-0 over Rochester Cardinals last night at Detroit. A goal in the first period by Art Quazzo proved enough. Rochester although the Cards forced the pace thereafter.

Against London Tecumsehs Saturday night, the tail-end Cards were comfortable as Ralph Lawrence and Hebbe Bartholome put in a big evening. The Cards won 5-1 and Ferrari having a hand in all three goals and Bartholome in two of the Eric Pettinger scored the only London tally.

Buffalo Bisons and Syracuse Stars staged a home-and-home series over the week end and each team managed to please its own supporters. Syracuse at home Saturday night and the Stars snatched a 6-5 decision in Syracuse Monday.

Paul Jarvis and Sammy Godin scored for Buffalo Saturday night for the Buffalo victory and when the Stars made their comeback Monday night Bobby Connor and Chuck Shannon were outstanding with two goals each.

ONE MILE WALK RECORD BROKEN

Hank Cieman of Toronto Did The Trick at Madison Square Garden

New York Feb. 3.—(CP)—A new record for the one mile walk by Hank Cieman of Toronto and Joe Mangan's victory over Peter Hegenberger, Canadian, stood forth today as the premier performances of the 1936 edition of the National Track ing Field meet.

The 5'6" Canadian walker shattered the outdoor as well as the indoor world mark by negotiating the headlines even in Madison Square Garden Saturday night. His winning time of six minutes, 21.7 seconds, clipped the outdoor mark of 6:25.3 set by Goulding set at Montreal in 1919 as well as the indoor recorg of 6:27.3 held by Fredo Metcalfe.

Mangan, whose race with Cuningham in Boston a week ago resulted in a change in the Kansan had blocked him and thrown him off stride as he tried to pass the Australian, set out in the Wanamaker mile here with the definite intent to demonstrate those charges were not unfounded. He allowed the blacky Kansan to make the pace, staying at his heels until the last lap was reached.

Then he cut in, rsalad by in the stretch and split the tape in 4:11 2-5 which broke by ever had recorded for the distance.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

Doc Romnes of Chicago Black Hawks, and Bill Thoms of Toronto Leafs threatened Sweeney Schriner's hold on the National Hockey League scoring leadership today as they advanced to within a point of the New York American.

Thoms scored a goal and Romnes an assist over the week-end to bring their totals to 24 points, compared with the 26 held by Schriner who went scoreless in the American tilt with Boston.

The standings:

	G.	A.	P.
Schriner, Americans..	10	16	26
Thoms, Toronto....	12	12	24
Romnes, Chicago....	8	16	24
Thompson, Chicago..	13	10	23
Dillon, Rangers....	13	10	23
Boucher, Rangers....	9	14	23
Chapman, Americans	8	14	22

'Red' Loses Bet By a Period

Chicago, Feb. 3.—(CP)—"Red" Horner, lead-man of the Montreal Hockey League, tried to be well behaved while on the ice to win a bet, but he just failed. The fiery thatched defenceman of Toronto Maple Leafs agreed with his coach, Dick Irvin, he could stay out of the penalty box for four games—he missed the mark by a single period.

During games in Toronto with Detroit Red Wings and Chicago Black Hawks and with Canadiens in Montreal, Big "Red" was such a "good boy" he got by without a penalty. Then in the last session Horner was banished on two occasions to bring his penalty total to 127 minutes.

Leads All Hitters In Minor Baseball

Durham, N.C., Feb. 3.—(AP) — Oscar ("Ox") Eckhardt of San Francisco Missions of the Pacific Coast League led all the "regular" hitters in Minor League Baseball during the 1935 season, it was announced today by the Press Bureau of the National Association of professional baseball clubs. His average was .369.

As a result, Eckhardt will be able to make the Louisville slugger trophy, a full-sized sterling silver bat, to Florida when he reports to the Brooklyn baseball camp for his third major league trial.

Stopping pucks in Detroit Red-wing nets successor to a long line of goalies famous in Hockey Town, Smith, one of hockey's romantic figures. A saga of drama and excitement could be written about this smiling puck-blocker who took over four years out of a promising hockey career to sail Pacific waters in the capacity of a permanent berth in Detroit. Born in Toronto, he learned his hockey with school and industrial teams. Professional scouts were casting appraising glances his way when sixteen years old and with travel itch, he decided to ship as a sailor. Finally he joined the Alaska fishing fleets and forgot hockey for four years.

Back once more in 1929, 20 years old, Montreal Maroons took him on. He went to the Windsor Bulldogs for re-seasoning. Next year he again essayed to earn the Maroon job but failed and drifted off to minor league cities. Finally St. Louis Eagles scored him for his first year. Redwings were minus a net-man with brilliant Willie Orr under contract to Dearborn. Jack Adams grabbed Smith in a trade for Bure Williams who alternated with Johnny Rosch and when the Port Perry veteran faded out this year, fell heir to the citadel. So far he has done a fine job.

Second smallest net minder in the league, Smith is also one of the most agile. His record with minor league clubs would rank him as a really great player. In any event he is one of the most travelled, with a background that would make a novelist happy.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

The largest pre-sale of tickets this season is reported for tonight's preference ad Belleville intermediate O.H.A. fixture. Belleville has suddenly become hockey-minded in a big way and tonight the local arena will be the mecca for the largest crowd of the season to witness the return of hostilities between these two ancient hockey rivals. Skipper Thomas' squad has fully recovered from the going over they received at the hands of the Petes one week ago and the battle at the century will swing into action about 8.30 p.m. The Littlock City sport scribe has been touting Red Geddes, Bill Caladine and Archie Watt as good enough to beat the locals alone, but Harry Pogson, Bill McDonald and goalie Don Morton say—they shall not pass and we're going to rub 'em in." Kids will be on hand early after a two week lay-off, while Speedy St. Louis is anxious to know if Weir is as tough away from home as he tried to be before the home crowd. All in all a good game can be assured, that goes without contradiction. Tickets are on sale, may be injected, so come early and avoid the rush.

Proudly "Sandy" Ferguson of the Arena, has completed negotiations with the manufacturers of British Columbia Electric for the installation of a new time-clock at the Arena in the near future. The old clock, which has seen service ever since the Arena was built, has faithfully done its duty, but the mechanisms recently became affected and refused to operate. The return of the time-piece will be a welcome feature in the Arena. Incidentally it is understood that the new clock is to operate similar to the one in the Maple Leaf Gardens in other words the clock is turned on when play starts and continues as play progresses and is stopped when the Referee steps play for he's decision.

At this time, we'd like to remind players of the danger in swinging sticks when they get peeved. Hockey is a game best of all when one keeps his temper for a moment. We don't mind seeing "em part a fast one on the other bird's chin, but it has happened more than this year, too —swing the stick at the other guy's heads. A fracture of the skull or a lost eye is not to be found in the club convocals. Players should keep their minds on the game and not forget cross should hand out stiff penalties to any puckster who fights with his stick. It is a cowardly stunt, anyway.

The Senior Interscholastic loop holds away at the Arena again on Wednesday night with a full card booked. This week the Albert College-B.C.I. and Y.S. game will hold the limelight. With the interscholastic schedule already more than completed we find neither Albert nor the B.C.I. "Collegians" having tasted defeat, the former playing two times, however. The last time the Albert "Yellow-jackets" and Coach Shiels' squad of "Collegians" met they played a one to one draw, both claiming a moral victory. With the teams entering into the second half of the schedule, however, there is only one point difference between Albert and the B.C.I. in the group standing, while the St. Mikes 'Irish' team are only one point in arrears of the second place Albert. Incidentally the green and white clad 'Irish' tackle Frank Cunningham's battling O.S.D. squad in the curtain-raiser, so the feature game will be the Albert-B.C.I. tilt.

Here's one for the book—"Evidently trying to help the home team, a dog bounced on the ice during crucial closing moments of play in the Central Alberta hockey league playoffs, and carried the puck deep into enemy territory. The umpire ruled it a foul, however."

"Duke" Smith today announced that Trenton was definitely in the Bay of Quinte League next year. The Yacht Club team would open hostilities in that town on Wednesday night with the return game being possibly played back in Belleville Tuesday night. The Belleville-Picton and Napanee are battling tough for all the glory of the loop. The "Sailors" are well forti-fied in the second place and headed towards better times.

Frankie "Sandy" Ferguson of the Arena, has completed negotiations with the manufacturers of British Columbia Electric for the installation of a new time-clock at the Arena in the near future. The old clock, which has seen service ever since the Arena was built, has faithfully done its duty, but the mechanisms recently became affected and refused to operate. The return of the time-piece will be a welcome feature in the Arena. Incidentally it is understood that the new clock is to operate similar to the one in the Maple Leaf Gardens in other words the clock is turned on when play starts and continues as play progresses and is stopped when the Referee steps play for he's decision.

In a friendly exhibition hockey game played at the Arena on Saturday night, the Kingston Frontenacs from St. Carthagh School at Tweed defeated the Arena with the St. Michael's Academy juniors. The game was closely contested and enthusiastically followed by fans. Then the Arena "Mice" faltered their first game on the Ice Owl League by virtue of an 8 to 3 win over the North Enders also.

After bulwarking the scores of last year's Kingston Frontenac might appear in a Napanee uniform this coming season. The Kingston scribe goes on to say—"These other N.O.H.A. clubs never were much in love with the presence of Kingston in the league, mainly because the Ponies had to go there and again because of the distance they had to travel, though the Ponies had to do the same when they and did so appearing. Poor schedule-making, weak umpiring and the weather hurt the O.H.A. last year."

"Y" NOTES

Several educational films, the property of the Bell Telephone Co. were shown to Junior Groups of the Y.M.C.A. Friday evening and Saturday.

The films illustrated the work in mines, cotton fields, silk mills, model labs and rubber plantations from where the raw material for construction is secured. Films also illustrated the discovery and progress of the telephone and television, also the additions on the lines, and in exchanges. Interesting and informative, the boys enjoyed the films very much. The films were secured through the kindness of Mr. W. J. Penrose, local manager of the Bell System.

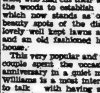
Weddings

WILSON—BARLOW

A quiet but interesting wedding took place on Saturday evening at the home of Bridge Street Methodist Church Parsonage when Miss Kathleen Barlow, daughter of Mrs. J.F. Barlow became the bride of Stanley W. Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson of this city. The Rev. Dr. James Semple officiated.



The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. F. Wilson, while Mr. Gordon Barlow, the bride's brother supported the groom. The happy couple left amidst showers of rice and the best wishes of their many friends for a short honeymoon and on their return they will take up residence at St. Agnes' Manse, Dartmouth.

RAWDON COUPLE 50 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. James Williams Well Known Throughout County

On Wednesday, January 29th, Mr. and Mrs. James Williams of Rawdon township celebrated their fiftieth wedding anniversary. The very charming couple recall the happy event with mingled joy and amusement as they look back on their friends of today, the old-fashioned manner of dress and the mode of transportation used in these early days. Mr. and Mrs. Williams who are well known throughout the entire district for their contributions to the general welfare of the Community, are still quite active, in taking a keen interest in public interest within the neighborhood. In good health, brimming over with energy and happiness that is real Mr. Williams at past his eighteenth year and driving his own car, milks his pet Jersey cow every day and keeps remarkably active for one of the times. Before her marriage Mrs. Williams was Christina Ann Stapleton daughter of the principal of Forest School and on that fateful day the ceremony which took place in their manse at the same as we are having now, Rev. Mr. Stapleton officiated from the home, there they have resided in a home and happy because of the lack of snow to make sleighing. Residing on the farm at that time were Mr. Williams' parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Williams and his grandmother, Mrs. Gypson, descendants from pioneers of the district, who had cut their way through the woods to establish the home which now stands as one of the most beauty spots of the districts with prosperity and happiness and love and an old fashioned large stone house.

This very popular and much loved couple spent the occasion of the anniversary in a quiet manner, Mr. Williams is a most interesting man to talk with, he has a wide intimate knowledge of all important events in the history of the county and possessing a remarkable memory with which to recall them.

In 1925, there appeared a biographical sketch of the Prime Minister of that time entitled "Mackenzie King; the Man, His Achievements", by John Lewis. A new revised edition of this book has been compiled by the Hon. Norman McLeod Rogers, Minister of Labour in the King Cabinet. In his volume, "Mackenzie King", Professor Rogers has presented the challenge of a new era as applied to the programmes and policies of Liberalism. The Prime Minister is shown as a student of public affairs, as Minister of Labour, and as leader of the Liberal Party.

Somerset Maugham was so captivated by a visit to Seville that he planned to write a novel about the Spanish Golden Age. The story however, has never written. Instead the author has collected the results of his research and observations in a series of informal chapters in his book "Don Fernando; or, Variations on Andalusian Themes". Mr. Maugham has presented reminiscences of individuals people of great figures of the sixteenth century Spain, El Greco, Lope de Vega, Cervantes. He has told and retell of Don Juan and the stage, of great Spaniards who are not historic characters. He talks of Spanish food and Spanish courage. He has much to say of the art of writing.

"To write simply is as difficult as to be good". The book is an especially personal one and the reactions of Somerset Maugham are as he divided as his style of writing. G. Foore of the New York Times says of this book "There have been more books on that land than there ever were castles. But this one is not like any other I know".

Cecil Roberts, feeling the desire to possess the Englishman's heritage, "a view of friendly hills, green fields an old garden", purchased an Elizabethan cottage. "Goose Rustic" describes with humor his perplexities as owner and host. In this book Cecil Roberts in the novelist appears as a close observer of the beauties of landscape and people. There will be a tendency to compare this volume with the Beverley Nichols' books "Merry Hall" "The Garden Path" and "A Thatched Hood". In doing so the reader will find that though they may excel this book in sparkly and humour, "Goose Rustic" presents a quiet charm and a delightful philosophy altogether its own. The book is illustrated with delicate watercolor reproductions of Pilgrim Cottage and its garden.

The author of "Men and Machines", "The Economy of Abundance" and the "Tragedy of Waste" has analyzed the expenditure of government control since the latter part of the nineteenth century. Stuart Chase in his book "Government in Business" blends statements and statistics in a graphic account of government participation in business both in Europe and America. Mr. Chase emphasizes particularly government control as shown in the New Deal in the United States.

CANNIFTON Y. P. U.

Canniffon League opened on Friday evening with quiet music played by Miss Grace Mills. All sang hymn 182 and prayer by Miss Marion Pound. Miss Margaret Smallhorn read Scripture. A reading was given by Miss Evelyn Bolman. Miss Mary Merrick took charge of the following programme: Hymn 362; reading by Mr. Cyril Major; solo by Mr. Harry Atkinson, of Albert Bay.

Mr. Sterling Kitchen, also from Albert College, gave an interesting address on "What is the Purpose of Young People's Union?" He said that the purpose of Young People's Union is closer fellowship. Mr. Cyril Major then favoured with another reading. Hymn 94 was sung and Mr. Merrick led in prayer.

Mr. Merrick was called upon for the business part. He asked Mr. Mills to come to the platform who has been president of Young People's for the past 10 years and was presented with an occasional chair by Mr. Mary Pound. Mr. Merrick read the following address:

Canniffon,
Jan. 31, 1936.

Mr. Chas. Mills:
Dear Friend:

While we are together here this evening it is the desire of the members of this Y. P. Society to have a little additional programme, a part which we hope will convey to you something of the warm appreciation felt by the Young People's Society, for your untiring devotion while President. Tonight we look back on the past years and note with pleasure the splendid example you have set before us. Your attendance at the League meetings has established a fine record; summer or winter or through all kinds of weather was unfailing. Your readiness to undertake anything in the interests of our League and Young People was always apparent. When plays and concerts were put on to raise money any funds you were always ready to assume a major part of the work involved. In the religious aspect of the Young People's Society you have always been anxious to lead each member to a better and larger life of usefulness. You have worked unselfishly and well and just as heartily joined in our recreation and fun, so that we may ultimately develop our talents for the enrichment of our lives and characters, that we may be better fitted prepared for our life's task in the larger and more responsible department of our church's work. Therefore we trust that this future association will have still greater joy than the happy years that have passed. We hope, too, that in these coming days you will take some of your spare moments by the fireside to reflect over your long and successful years with us, and it is our united desire to provide you with a comfortable seat for your meditations. Therefore, with pleasure, we present you with this chair as a practical and lasting token of our esteem and gratitude, also our very best wishes for your future happiness in our Society and Church.

Signed on behalf of the Canniffon Young People's Society.

Myrtle Johns, Pres.
Marion Pound, Sec.
W. H. Merrick.

Mr. Mills thanked them for the chair in a few well-chosen words. Hymn 347 was sung. The meeting closed with the League benediction. Lunch was served afterwards.

Mother of 14 Now Feels Fine
Husband's Friend Gave Good Advice
"I am a mother of 14 children and have suffered this last 7 years with rheumatism," writes Mrs. McCurdy, of 8 Willshire Ave., Toronto. "My joints were so bad that at times I thought I would go crazy. My husband advised me to try Dodd's Kidney Pills, as a man he worked with told him what they had done for him. I took 8 boxes in all and feel low as well as I did the day I was married. am now never without Dodd's Kidney Pills in the house."

Rawdon and District

Rawdon, Feb. 3—Miss Mabel Dunkley of Stirling, has been holidaying with her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dunkley.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen attended an executive meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of Belleville Presbyterial Tabernacle United Church, Belleville on Thursday, January 30th. The year's reports were read and plans made for the coming Presbyterial to be held in the city on March 25th and 26th.

Miss Anna Sharp spent a few days this week with Mrs. Edith Sharp at Wellman's.

Wellman's Sunday School held their annual meeting on Tuesday evening and the treasurer reported a favorable balance. Following is the slate of officers for 1936.

Superintendent: Mr. Carl Clancy.

Assistant Supt.: Mr. Omar Dracup.

Secretary: Mr. Frederick Beckett.
Treasurer: Mr. Howard Wallace.
Pianist: Miss Priscilla Cook.
Assistant: Miss Carolyn Johnson.
Home Dept.: Mrs. Robert Wallace and Miss Dorothy Dunham.
Cradle Roll: Mrs. John Sharr.
Temperance Secretary: Mrs. John Rainie.
Missionary Secretary: Mrs. Ira Casey.
Organized Boys: Mr. John Paine.
Organized Girls: Mrs., George Mayhee.
Primary: Mrs. M. Seeley and Mrs. E. Sharp.
Juniors: Miss Grace Dayman and Mrs. Walter Dracup.
Adults: Mrs. Lindsay Pollock and Mrs. Carl Clancy.

Among those who attended the Memorial service for the late King George V. were Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Elliott and Mrs. Charles Dracup, Mr. C. U. Heath, Mr. and Mrs. Percy MacMullen, Eileen and Ermel and Mr. Gerald Sprague.

Mr. Ernest Sharp of Hoardt's took ill in Stirling on Wednesday and was immediately rushed to Belleville hospital for an appendix operation. He is now slowly convalescing.

Mount Pleasant congregational meeting was held on Wednesday evening at the church parlors with fifty in attendance. The service was opened with a hymn, Scripture lesson and prayer, and all joined in singing a hymn.

Miss Edna White was appointed congregational secretary and Rev. J. F. Beckel gave a brief address. Miss M. Milligan favored with a solo "Almighty Hawaii."

Mrs. John Holmes gave a splendid resume of the year's work in the Women's Missionary Society and said this organization particularly ministers to the women and children in other lands.

Miss Edna Thrasher told of the work accomplished in the Mission Band, particularly the sale of Christmas cheer sent to Ore Hill.

Miss Frazer McKeown reported a goodly sum of money in the Young People's treasury.

Mr. Frank Spencer, church treasurer gave a detailed account of monies received and spent with a balance of $236.00 on hand.

Mr. James Shasp reported for the church stewards and commended the envelope system.

No reports of the Missionary and Maintenance Fund and Cemetery were heard.

Mr. Ernest White gave the receipts and expenditures in connection with the church hall.

The Misses Edna Thrasher and Frances McKeown gave piano duet "March Militaire." Mr. A. W. Garrison briefly addressed the meeting.

The following will assume office for 1936:

Elected Trustees: Messrs. A. W. Garrison, Frank Young, Ernest White, Irvin Reid, George Weaver, Ross Hoard, Wilfred Smith, Frank Spencer, Frank Williams, Will Potts and James Williams.

Assistant: Miss Edna Thrasher.
Choir Leader: Mr. John Coggins.

CHORUS TO STARDOM — The girl is Miss Marjorie Gayle, now known as the "Chiquita of the Chorus." The shoes are Eleanor Powell's. When Miss Powell suffered a breakdown from overwork, producers of a New York musical show looked high and low for some one to fill the top dancer's shoes. Miss Gayle, chorus girl, filled the bill.

Patronage Board: Mrs. Allan Bellamy, Mrs. Will Potts, Messrs. George Weaver, Allan Bellamy, Ross Hoard and James Williams.

Representatives to Sunday School Board: Messrs. Will Potts, Herb David and Frank Hutchison.

Mr. John Coggins sang "Old Faithful, Pal of Mine." The pastor closed the service with prayer.

Stirling and District

Stirling—Messrs. J. R. Thompson, Ben Bleecker and J. E. O'Dette represented the Stirling Agricultural Society at the annual meeting of the Central Fairs Association which took place in the Belleville city hall on Thursday, January 30th. Mr. J. E. O'Donnell who for the past year has officiated as 2nd Vice President of the Association, was this year appointed 1st Vice President.

Mr. W. C. West is the recipient of many congratulations these days, having been recently appointed to occupy the position of Warden for the County of Hastings. Mr. West has been associated with the Stirling Municipal Council for the past seven years and ever since his election for the past five years and since that time has been a member of the County Council acting on various committees which include the Old Age Pension Board, Public Health and Finance Committee. Mr. West is the fourth Warden to be chosen from the village of Stirling, there is no doubt in this honoured position were, Messrs. Wallace Ketcheson, 1914, Walter Martin, 1926, and W. H. Mather, 1910.

Mr. West is an active member of St. Andrew's Church, Stirling, Lodge No. 69 A.F. and A.M., and the Orange Order and Black Preceptory.

The members of the Stirling Oddfellows Lodge held a very enjoyable ladies' night in their lodge room on Wednesday evening, January 29th. After the address of welcome was delivered by Noble Grand H. E. Hubbs, Bro. H. B. Hubbs directed a very interesting and entertaining program which included community singing under the leadership of Mr. R. A. Patterson, vocal duets by Miss Ella Miller and Mr. Walter Warren, an address by Dr. J. H. Wallace, M.P., solos by J. R. Thompson and C. Carter and some fine games directed by Miss E. Bellger. Miss Wallace and Miss Hagman refreshments were served and a pleasant evening for all the evening spent in card games.

Stirling Public School Defeats Frankford 4-3

The youthful aspirants to hockey fame in Stirling Public School league are being given a chance to show their ability these days through the fine efforts of the coach, Mr. Hubbs of the school, who has organized the boys into a fine team. A great deal of interest is being shown in these games by those who are interested in the future hockey material as well as the proud parents of the players and the large attendance each Saturday afternoon.

The arena rang louder than ever with cheers of the fans on the pupils of the local school when their classmates defeated a team from Frankford on Saturday by a score of 4-3. Both teams gave a real exhibition of fine hockey and much credit from them will come some famous star of tomorrow. One of the outstanding features of the game was the performance of Mickey Armstrong at the Stirling goal and Pollard of the Frankford team. Both of these boys played a brand of hockey worthy of players much their senior.

The line-ups:

Frankford—McFarland, goal; defence, Wardell and Carr; centre, Pollard; wings, Bowerman and Reynolds, Lawrence, Mills, Loney and Payne.

Stirling—Rosebush, goal; defence, Long and Ashley; centre, Armstrong; wings, Foster and Spencer; subs, Delire and Bailey.

Referee—Mr. Scollie, Stirling.

JOHN ST. Y. W. GUILD

The January meeting of the Young Women's Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Laurie Lewis, 34 Dunbar Street with an attendance of forty-five members who participated with keen interest in the discussion theme of the evening, "The Conquest of Fear." Devotional exercises were taken by Mrs. Plumpton, Mrs. Graham, vice-president, presided in the absence of the president. Opening remarks on the subject of study were devoted to "Fear and Personality," ably led by Miss Olive Knox who attempted to show that its very form is very detrimental to personality and who showed by concrete examples that all are more or less victims of fear, various forms of which originated in early childhood.

Miss Barahman, school nurse, dealt with fear in childhood, impressing upon parents how responsible not only in allaying fear but that it has to be never acquired. Miss Mildred Bertram read a paper on the effects of fear stressing as her theme "Fear detrimental physical effects. The discussion closed in a very practical way with the ways in which fear may be conquered; love, sense of dependence, direct action, co-operation, an objective attitude.

At the conclusion of the program, reference was made to the illness of Mrs. Lewis, the president, Mrs. Roger Thompson, who has worked so energetically for the Guild and has been especially interested in the School for Leisure Project. Sincere regret was expressed in her departure from the city and as a token of the esteem and affection in which she is held, the gift of a handsome wrought iron candelabra was sent to Mrs. Thompson. Delicious refreshments brought the meeting to a close.

LIKED REDD'S SINGING — She likes his singing so much she follows him from city to city. That's the explanation given by Miss "Barbara Clark of South Bend, Ind., student aviatrix, concerning her chaser of Nelson Eddy, screen and radio star, from town to town. Miss Clark denied there might be a romance.

SCARLET FEVER ON INCREASE — Toronto, Feb. 3 — (CP)—Scarlet fever cases have increased in Toronto to such an extent it has been necessary to open a long-unused wing of Riverdale Isolation Hospital, Dr. Gordon Jackson, medical officer, said today.

When You and I Were Young Maggie—
IN THE GOOD OLD HORSE AND BUGGY COURTING DAYS—when a copper (one cent to you)—a Great Big Copper, bought a Great Big Stick of beautifully striped Candy, a large hunk of Lutter, or other Tatty,—Yes—it's a Cent went a long way in those good Old Fashioned Days, and the Candy was Old-Fashioned, too, it was made from Pure Sugar, without any chemical substitutions.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 3—(CP)— Toronto mining list today had a few new faces but the general tone was moderately soft. The senior golds were generally lower in the early New York market in the early afternoon, but Kirkland Lake Gold recovered McIntyre, Lake Shore and Teck-Hughes were showing moderate gains.

In the secondary group Macassa advanced in active trading and Moneorpe, Braunore, Canadian Malartic and Sylvanite were also higher. Base metals, Read-Authier, Paymaster, Pamour and San Antonio sold down to new low levels.

Base metals mildly reflected the lower London market prices on metals. Noranda Basin dropped 10 cents, Hudson Bay 3-4 and Sherritt 1-4. Waite Amulet held to the top side Castle was a weak spot.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP) — Toronto industrial market appeared moderately heavy today in the early trading hours but there was a better tone in the early afternoon with Brantford Cordage, Class A recovering some of the ground lost during the forenoon.

Volume was again concentrated in Brazilian, the oils and a few of the specialties. Liquor stocks were quiet but firm and in the oil group Imperial Oil remained steady, Imperial recovered early recessions. Dominion Oil, Ventures and Canada Northern Imperial Mills were strong and fairly active. Ford A, C.P.R. and Bell Telephone were also in demand. Smelters was strong around 200.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A rally in the stock today helped the stock exchange houses. American Can, Consolidated Gas, Montgomery Ward, Goodyear, Goodrich, Firestone, Douglas Aircraft, Western Union, Northern Pacific and N.Y. Central.

Trading was fairly steady. Transfers approximated 2,000,000 shares.

Weekly Livestock Review

The present market is generally an unsettled condition, although the daily runs were not heavy. Supplies of beef on hand appear to be liberal, and there is need for moderation in free cattle marketing if present rates are to be maintained according to the latest issue of the report of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Reports to the United States are not of sufficient volume to offset the depressing effect on the market of the visible supply of cattle in poor quality stock. A considerable quantity of cattle grading export is being shipped direct from country points. During the week the Winnipeg market was quite strong, but there was no further price recessions. Supplies were substantially reduced. The far western markets complained of the large numbers of short cattle being offered, and for which there was little or no demand.

Prices and Trends at Stock Yards

The Toronto market showed no further reduction, although the loads were draggy and poorly assorted volume. Butcher cows advanced 25c and odd lots of choice heavy steers sold at $6.75, with butcher tops at $6. Montreal lost ground on steers, with best offers forced making $6. Winnipeg had a top of $5.50 and the better grades maintained, with receipts considerably reduced. Calgary market was about steady, with steers at $5 and an odd $5.10. Edmonton showed better activity and a firm close, with nothing better than $5. Prince Albert had a top of $5.75, with best cows better than good. Moose Jaw had a top of $5.25 on one choice heavy. Regina had a top of $5 and Saskatoon paid $4 for good butcher steers. The Vancouver top was $4.50.

Steer Cattle Trade Quiet

Stockers were a draggy class at Toronto, although no material change in price took place, the range remaining at $2.50 to $4.75 and a few loads feeding up to $5. Winnipeg was quiet also, with some fleshy feeder steers selling at $4 and light stockers from $3 to $3.50. Calgary had stocker steers at $3.75, while Edmonton had a similar top price.

Exports to United States

Export shipments to the United States dropped off to the 1,000 head mark, the total amounting to 2,287, as compared with 3,582 during the previous week. The week's total was made up of 1,960 beef cattle, 287 dairy cattle and 40 calves. This places the total for the year to date at 4,869 cattle and calves. Shipments this week were about equally divided between Ontario and the western provinces.

The Buffalo market had a good number of Canadian cattle on offer, and the steers of good quality were ranging between $8 and $9.25, with the latter price paid for a load averaging close to 1000 lbs. Lighter steers sold in small lots of around 1,000 lbs. and below from $8.25 down to $7.50. Heifers sold with some as low as $7, and an odd light heifer sold down to $6.50. Canadian cows on Wednesday at $7.50 for steers, $7.10 for heavies, $6.90 for fair to good, $6.50 for loads of feeder steers from Canada sold at $7.50 to $8.25, and a part load of slaughter steers made $8.75, with some 900 lbs. at $8.10.

Calf Market Stronger

Toronto had another light run of calves and veals were in good demand and strong. Choice veals sold at the top of $11.50. Medium veals displayed added strength and sold at $10 to $10. Winnipeg was firmer up to $3.50, while Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon topped at $6, and Moose Jaw at $5.50.

Hogs Trade to Great Britain

A shipment of 81 dairy cows, destined for Great Britain, is due to leave St. John, New Brunswick, on February 6th. Purchases in this city of these were from Ontario and one was added at Montreal.

Hogs Generally Advanced

In most cases, hog markets were generally higher during the week, but Toronto was an exception Winnipeg, Regina, Moose Jaw prices were forced down about 50c. The closing price at truck hogs was $8.25 to $8.65 for bacons. Montreal was firm, however, Monday's top was $8.75, and an odd sale at $9.10 and $9.25. Winnipeg sold at $8.50 to $8.75, while Edmonton was steady, with top at $7.50. Prince Albert closed at $7.75; Moose Jaw $8; and Saskatoon $8.25. Calgary sold at $8.50 for trucks. Vancouver sold killing hogs at $8 to $8.50.

Lambs Steady

Toronto sold western lambs up to a top of $9.25. Montreal had a few hot-house lambs at prices ranging from $6 to $8 each. Ewes and wethers topped at $8.50. Winnipeg's high was $7.50; Calgary $7.50; Edmonton $7; and Saskatoon $6. Vancouver topped at $8.

JAN. MINING SALES BEST SINCE 1934

Reached Total of Nearly 37 Million Shares

January mining sales and values in the Toronto Stock Exchange exceeded all months since April of 1934. Total sales were 36,833,365 shares, almost double the 18,500,000 number while values of transactions were up sharply at $36,182,813.

Production reports and a wide public interest helped to create powerful individual markets, while events in the United States gave an impetus to speculative trading on demand. For with the collapse of the AAA, Washington was urged by private interests to advance the price of gold and despite Secretary Morgenthau's statement, the market was slow to discount the theory. In addition, the market read an inflationary tendency in the extension of Roosevelt's power to shift the Treasury's dollar gold content.

Senior golds came into action and the whole board witnessed a higher type of trading than had prevailed in several months. Undoubtedly, this led to increased volume in other sections, while at the market base metal group had a revival of interest.

In the third week, additional evidence was given of the receptivity of the New York market. The big golds were indirectly concerned with the defeat of the French Premier and the consequent possibilities of a breakdown of the gold bloc.

The main motive running through the whole history of the week, however, was the further indications of inflation. Speculatives brought about by the passage of the Bonus Bill. Briefly, all stock went through for New York account where gold is more conducive to trading against inflation. As a result, the gold issues were the first to all time peaks, gaining more than 12 points on the month.

During the month 163 issues appeared for trading of which 141 advanced, 13 declined, and 9 unchanged. Individual floor slips sent a new high at 74,582.

In sales volume three of the junior golds went above the two million mark. Paymaster leading by 2,396,645, Malrobin 2,436,700 and Chibougamau with 2,175,990 shares. Most active of the senior golds were Sisco's 1,118,823 and Teck Hughes and Hollinger's hundred thousand each. Base Metals had Aldermac with 940,900, Sherritt Gordon 198,167 and Falconbridge 82,104 while the silvers were dominated by Castle Trethewey's 475,293 shares. Oils, Trans-Canada, Ventures and Waite Amulet carried the lead in the gas and oil section.

Storage Butter Stocks Decrease

Toronto, Feb. 3.—According to figures released Saturday by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics storage in Toronto—as at the first of February—totalled 1,191,191 pounds as compared with 85,280 for the same date of last year and 56,099 as at January 1st, 1936. The total was shown in storage holdings of cheese in those cooperative cities alone, however, were sharply down from a year ago. Comparative figures follow:

	Feb. 1	Jan. 1
	1936	1936
Butter, boxes	45,101	55,380
Cheese, boxes	35,232	54,589
Eggs, case	2,937	5,018
Eggs, stor. cas.	2,319	11,202
Eggs, stor. loose	1,050	1,050

The local butter market Saturday seemed to be a shade firmer, demand being reported from 32½ to 33½ cents and a better demand for cheese was noted. It is believed buyers' present supplies have reached a point where additional supplies will be needed.

The chief item of interest on the egg market was concerned with the export trade. Shipments are going forward steadily to Great Britain and approximately 4,000 boxes were exported during the past week, made up mostly of chickens.

HAY AND STRAW

No. 2 timothy hay, baled, ton, $9 to $10. No. 3 timothy hay, $7 to $8; straw, wheat, baled, ton, $4 to $5; oat straw, $5.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Feb. 3 (CP)—Reflecting a weak Liverpool market, wheat prices eased in quiet, early trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Values near mid-session were ½ cent lower. May at 86⅝, July 87⅛ and October at 85⅝ cents, ½ cent lower.

MADOC PRESENTS FIRST CARNIVAL IN WINTERTIME

Over 500 Persons Attend Gala Event in Arena

SKATING PROGRAM

Madoc's first Winter Carnival, presented under the supplies of the Men's Association of Trinity United Church in the Madoc Arena on Friday evening last was a huge success. The much credit can not be given Mr. Alex Kidd, President of the Association, his executive, and members for the excellent program provided. Despite the very cold weather over five hundred people turned out to the gala event which it is hoped will become an annual affair. The program commenced promptly at eight o'clock with the National Anthem. Fifteen minutes of hockey between two public school teams was very interesting.

The Young Men's Band arrived on the scene at 8.15 and were escorted by police constable Jack Pilis. The members were very suitably attired and provided excellent music during the evening. A feature of their members was an solo solo by Mr. Arthur Keeling and a very pretty pastoral selection by Mr. Geo. Thompson, suitably accompanied.

Promptly at 8.30 o'clock a call-themplian parade of floats representing the various merchants in town mounted past. Among the stores represented were the First Dominion Stores Ltd.; Weddick's Tire Store; Wyrotzki and Hardware; Armstrong's City Service Garage; Madoc Dairy; Campbell and Jack's Men's Shop; Blair's Grocery; Barry's; Mcdonalld's Jewelry Store, Chas. A. Johnston's Meat Market; Stone and Rine's Hotel. The judges, Rev. W. J. Wilson, Rev. Father Meagher decided in favor of Barry's Dry Hardware Float.

A very pleasant and much appreciated item was the display of Army Signalling by members of the members of the Belleville Rifle Club under the direction of Mr. Shea who gave the first opportunity local people have had to see them for indoor and they certainly were treated to a fine exhibition.

Prizes for Masked Carnival

Two-step—Rene Rose, Ardell Smith, Rene Parker, Phil Rawsome, Spackett, Gordon Davies and Calvin Davies.

Comedy: Palmer and Lloyd.

Tag Skip: Olivia Davies, Gordon Davies, Georgia Smith, Blake Wrenn, Lillian Anderson, Lewis Dale, Phyllis Rawson, Clare Ridley, Ardell Smith, Rene Parker, Lillian Sprackett, Stan Wilbur.

Duet: Olivia Davies, Gordon Davies.

Comedy: Palmer, Lloyd and Co.

Waltz: Same as above group.

Solo: Olivia Davies.

Comedy: Palmer, Lloyd and Co.

Finale: Complete group on the ice for 2 minutes.

Following their display of fancy skating the Belleville skating club were entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. White where a very tasty lunch was served.

At 9.45 the grand march past of members of the club and the judges, Mr. Wilbur of Belleville had a very hard task to pick out the winners of the various prizes. The following were finally selected:

Best Dressed Miss Leary Rose, Best dressed girl, Mr. Geo. White, Best fancy dressed lady Miss J. Wyrotzki, Best fancy dressed gent Mr. C. B. Rowsdn. Original costumes lady, Mrs. Edith Rose. Original costume gent, Mr. Rd. Howell. Comic lady, Miss Dorothy Keller. Comic gent, Mr. Harry Tate. Girls, 12 and under, Miss Marcret Weir. Lad, 12 and under, Miss Bess.

Boys 16 and under—S. Hawthorne, W. Gillen.

Little Folks—John Jack and Sylvia Abbott.

The last event of interest was a hockey game between two teams of former days. W. C. Pellis and W. Hall acted as referees; Dr. E. Howell and C. I. Walbridge, Reg. N. acted as medical assistants. During the battle many minor incidents had to be taken care of but a very serious complication occurred when it became necessary to amputate the leg of Charles Whytock following a fight between him and Rolland Wright. The many laughs were provided by the comic costumes of the players with particular interest in Leslie Ashley and James Irwin who surrounded in the fairy scene. A beautiful cup was awarded the winning team and was accepted by Mr. George Lough on behalf of the victors.

The teams:

Old Timers—W. McBain, goal; W. Hulin, defence; C. Whytock, defence; A. Kidd, centre; wings, N. Whytock and Dr. Wper.

All Stars—C. Lough, goal; defence, L. Ashley, J. Irwin; centre, R. E. Wellman; wings, A. Sine and George White.

The game brought to a close the program and during the balance of the evening those present enjoyed a wonderful skate.

Obituary

HAROLD HASLETT (Roxmore)

The late Harold Haslett, who was about 27 years of age, had been in the employ of the Swift Canadian Company, Limited, as a driver of one of their trucks, since the opening of the company's branch in this city close to five years ago. He was an energetic and reliable young man and was well thought of by his employers and popular and well esteemed by his fellow employees and by all others who knew him.

Surviving him is his mother with whom he resided at Roxmore and to her the sympathy of his and her friends will be extended in her bereavement.

PICTON WOMAN FOUND HANGING

Death of Miss Lena Hare Shocks Citizens of That Town

Picton, Feb. 3.—(Special)—Miss Lena Hare, aged 40 years, youngest daughter of Mr. George R. Hare, was found hanging dead in the attic of her father's home on East Main Street, here, at eleven o'clock this morning. No inquest will be held and the date of the funeral has not been set.

Miss Hare told members of the family that she made her decision the information which can be gathered is that she was going out for a walk. As she has not been to return later in the day members of the family thought she was visiting relatives. However, when she had not come this morning and nothing had been heard of her since she spoke about the walk, a search of the premises was made and it was then that her lifeless body was discovered in the attic.

The woman had made no complaint of ill-health except of headaches which she said had been troubling her.

Surviving her are her father, a retired business man of Picton, two sisters, Mrs. Clayton Hambly and Mrs. M. B. Dowe and one brother, Albert Hare, proprietor of the Picton Arena.

CRUSTED DRIFTS BLOCK TRAFFIC

Two Passenger Trains Engulfed And Snow Plows Sent

MOSSTON, Feb. 3.—(CP)—Ice-crusted drifts blocked traffic on the Canadian National railways between Quebec and the Maritime Provinces today, engulfed two passenger trains and three snowploughs sent to their assistance.

The Maritime Express and Ocean Limited, which left Montreal yesterday for Halifax were both buried by drifts along the south-shore of the St. Lawrence River, where a gale sweeping in from the gulf rattled sailed as fast as they could be excavated.

Two ploughs sent out to aid the passenger trains were stalled between Levis and Mont Joli. Another was held fast on the mixed local trains while another plough was derailed on the Matapedia subdivision.

MORE ETHIOPIANS CALLED TO COLORS

Urgent Demands Made by Commander on Eastern Front

HARAR, Feb 3.—(CP-Havas)—Mobilization of new Ethiopian contingents was ordered today following urgent demands for more troops by Ras Nassibu, Ethiopian commander of the Eastern Ogaden Army.

Arms and ammunition will be distributed among tribal warriors, Ribbeto kept unarmed due to famine, over their loyalty to the Addis Ababa Government, in order to get them to fight against the Italians in Ogaden, it was learned.

The announcement caused much interest than previous mobilization decrees recently posted here since it was believed that it was for the rapid reorganization of the southern forces ordered by Emperor Haile Selassie.

A daring plan to encircle Gen. Rodolfo Graziani's motorized Italian army far to the south has been reported under way at Addis Ababa.

POLICE DOG RAIDS FLOCK OF SHEEP

Depredations of a large, unidentified police dog in his sheep flock has aroused Mr. Bert Doctor of this city to the point, where notice has been served upon the animal's owner, that it will be shot if further raids are made. The big dog is held responsible for the killing of a young lamb in the flock on his farm east of the city some time ago. The killer is described as bearing a collar and tag, of tan color and black muzzle.

DOLLAR-DOLLAR RELIEF GRANTS

Dominion Must Match Provincial Relief, Says Hepburn

Toronto Feb. 3.—(CP)—Ontario's contributions toward relief costs are to be limited strictly in future to dollar grants made by the Federal Government, Premier Hepburn announced today.

With the Federal contribution increased to $1,050,000 the province is at present in the position of granting about the same amount, and in the future, the Premier said, Ontario's contributions will be adjusted so the two governments provide the amounts.

Within a day or so the Hepburn Government will enunciate a new relief policy, he said.

"In the past we have been sandwiched in between a reluctant Federal administration and municipalities which made ever increasing demands," the Premier said.

At the same time Mr. Hepburn announced with the exception of the stretch of the trans-Canada highway on which work is to be started at once with Federal co-operation, no new relief road work will be undertaken by the Province without Federal help.

"There will be now arterial road work in Northern Ontario unless it is a joint undertaking with the Dominion Government," the Premier said.

PROBE COUNSEL MAKES CHARGE

Says "Minor Gangster" Offered Money to Break into Room

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP)—Norman F. Newton, counsel for the Royal Commission investigating Toronto police affairs, declared today a "minor gangster" was offered $100 to break into his hotel room and obtain some information duly obtained by counsel at the time.

As the inquiry resumed, Mr. Newton demanded an apology from William Miller, police investigator, as the result of a newspaper interview in which Miller, in dictated Chief Constable Draper and meddling in civic politics and Commission counsel criticized Miller's failure to call Miller as a witness. The latter then defended the reason for this failure was that Mr. Newton was fraternizing with the chief.

Mr. Newton today indignantly denied he had fraternized and invited Miller to meet him at his hotel this evening.

"It makes a difference whose ox is being gored," said Commission counsel. He cited the incident on the back when pressing charges against Constable Michael O'Shea but there was a difference when the "sacred order of the purple cow" was involved.

Wild Life Program Urged on President

Washington, Feb. 3 (AP) — Seventy hundred conservation leaders opened a five-day North American wildlife conference today. A message from President Roosevelt and a recital of the wildlife "Crisis" by Dr. W. J. Hoag, former chief of the Biological Survey, were chief features of the day's program.

The conference was called to formulate a national wildlife program for Mr. Roosevelt and to organize a national federation of all groups with game and fish problems.

Greetings were to be read from the President of Mexico and Prime Minister Mackenzie King.

Arthur Newton Pack, president of the American Nature Association, advocated the combining of all governmental activities dealing with conservation and wildlife into one bureau under the department of agriculture.

Second Woman Appears in Case

Hull, Que., Feb. 3 (CP)—A second woman appeared in the Nadeau case here when Jeanne Lavoie etie of Ottawa, was arrested in the Capitol Saturday, charged with being an accessory after the fact to the slaying of Armand Nadeau, the 19-year-old bank clerk, nearly two months ago. With this woman's arrest the total held on various charges arising out of the slaying mounted to 14. Of this number half a dozen are now facing charges of murder.

It is alleged she helped Nathan Boverman, trigger-man in the holdup, escape.

COLORED MAN SENTENCED

Chatham Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—Nelson Hurst, colored of Chatham was sentenced by Magistrate Arnold to the Guelph reformatory today for stealing from his employers, the Canadian Fertiliser Company. He will serve four months determent and two years less a day indeterminate.

TAKE JAIL TERM

Chatham, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—Nicholas Wakaro, 36, and Leonie Midwelch, 49, Indians of Moravian-town Reserve, today went to jail for 10 days in lieu of paying fines of $10 for being drunk in a public place.

The couple was arrested late Saturday night following complaints they had been causing a disturbance in the East End.

BUSINESS MUST RENDER SERVICE

E. J. Young Says Entire Protection Would Destroy Business

Toronto, Feb. 3 (CP)—If a man wants to be in business he must justify his right by rendering a service the people want, E. J. Young, former Liberal Member of Parliament for Weyburn, and author of the minority report of the Price Spreads Commission, told the Canadian Club today.

"We must realize it is not the duty of the government to keep every man in business," said Mr. Young. The opinion seems to prevail in some quarters once a business has been established, it is entitled to perpetual life and it is the duty of the government to see no new force arises to destroy it.

"If every business, once established, were sheltered and protected by the state it would mean an absolute end to progress," he declared. "The electric railway would be forbidden to compete with the horse car, the car with the stage coach."

FEAR LEPROSY IN CHINAMAN

Immediately Placed in Isolation Hospital Under Observation

Toronto, Feb. 3. — A suspected leper, Mark Duck, 64, Chinese laundryman, was located in Toronto Friday night and is in the Isolation Hospital, under observation.

Lawrence Worker.

Duck, The Globe learned, had been working in a laundry in the northwesterly section of the city. It came to that had worked at gardening on a Chinese farm on the outskirts of the city.

Ten days ago the Chinese became ill. His attending physician was treating him. He became suspicious of the man's illness and was consulted with Dr. Gordon F. Jackson, Medical Officer of Health.

A staff doctor from the department with the man's physician visited the place where the Chinese was living. The doctor's suspicions were confirmed to the extent arrangements were made for the placing of the man in isolation during the period of observation.

Medical tests are being made, and until such time as these have been completed, Dr. Jackson said, the man could only be classed as a suspect.

DORMITORY FIRE FATAL TO 8 MEN

Winds Sweep Flames Thru Building at Parker Dam on Colorado

Los Angeles, Feb. 3 (AP)—Eight men burned to death in a dormitory fire at Parker Dam on the Colorado River, the Metropolitan Water district was informed today.

It was feared others had perished.

A score or more were injured, said a brief telephone message from the six companies headquarters.

Ninety men were living in the dormitory. A high wind swept the flames through the structure and carried the blaze to the mess hall and commissary, also destroyed.

Parker Dam is located approximately 100 miles south of Boulder Dam to divert a portion of the Colorado River into the $220,000,000 aqueduct being built by the Metropolitan Water District of Los Angeles and nearby communities.

Search for bodies was started by fellow workmen in the debris of construction village.

The fire broke out at 2.30 a.m. and in a few minutes the dormitory was in flames, the victims being trapped in their beds.

The fire destroyed another dry spell allowed the desert sun to bake the frame dormitory and make it highly inflammable, increased the seriousness of the blaze.

Habitual Committing Restricted by U.S.

Washington, Feb. 3—(AP)— The United States House of Representatives today passed a bill designed to restrict the habitual commuting of aliens from contiguous foreign territory to engage in skilled or unskilled labor or employment in continental United States. It now goes to the Senate.

Under the law live outside United States jurisdiction would be prohibited from crossing the international border daily or periodically for regular employment within the United States. The measure provides these aliens shall be considered as "immigrants" under the immigration laws and shall be excluded from the United States unless they have either a non-preferred immigration visa or an unexpired re-entry permit.

CHARGE OF MURDER

Oshawa, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP) Mrs. Martha Sparling today was remanded in Magistrate's Court for one week today when she appeared on a charge of murdering a newborn child on January 18.

FOUR KILLED, MANY INJURED AS TRAIN PLUNGES FROM BRIDGE—An aerial view of the spectacular wreck of the "Williamsporter," a Reading railroad passenger train that leaped its rails near Sunbury, Pa., and plunged from an overpass to a highway, killing four and injuring 32. Wreckage is shown scattered along the highway for 150 yards. The train was approaching the Susquehanna river bridge shown, when it reached a sharp curve over a highway, when the engine and tender jumped the railway. Dragging a baggage car, two passenger coaches and two refrigerator cars after it.

BENNETT AT CAPITAL

Ottawa, Feb. 3—(CP)— Looking in the best of health, Conservative leader Bennett returned today from Calgary and was early at his office in the corner block of the parliament buildings.

There was considerable speculation over the attitude of the Conservatives to the proposal that Pierre Casgrain, former Liberal whip be the next Speaker of the House. No comment was forthcoming from Mr. Bennett and it is likely any consideration of it will await the arrival of some of the Conservative members.

REMANDED WITHOUT PLEA

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 3.—(CP)— Claimed by police to be connected with sending a note to Eli Lochak, demanding $300 and threatening to expose him unless he paid, Andrew Farkas, appeared before Magistrate Burbidge today charged with extortion. He was remanded until Wednesday and did not plead to the charge.

SETTLEMENT MADE OVER INSURANCE

Toronto, Feb. 3—(CP)—Settlement has been reached between U. T. Payette of Penetang Ont., and the nine insurance companies involved in a claim for payment of $90,000 as a result of a fire at Payette's pattern plant at Penetang, it was announced today. The amount of the settlement was not disclosed. A further expansion of trade for 1936 is anticipated.

ADMITS CHARGE

London ,Ont., Feb. 3—(CP)—John Mansbridge, 34, of London today pleaded guilty before Mr. Justice McTague to a manslaughter charge growing out of the death of Albert Corbin, 10, in a motor accident. He was remanded to jail for sentence.

Charles Drummond, 23, and Albert Marshall, 21, friends of Mansbridge, are being tried together on charges of manslaughter and car theft.

Family Cat Goes to Jail With Owners

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP)—Alvin Jones, Ottawa, was under a 10-day jail sentence today following conviction for being drunk in charge of a car. His wife, found guilty of intoxication in a public place, received a similar sentence in lieu of $15 fine and costs.

Traffic Officer C. Johns testified he found the car in a ditch near Prescott, Jones staggering about on the shoulder of the road and his wife lying in the rear seat. The two were on their way to Toronto.

The family cat went to jail with them.

Cockshutt Plow Co. Has Sales Increase

Brantford, Ont., Feb. 3—(CP)— Despite difficulties faced by the industry during the year ended Nov. 30, 1935, operations of the Cockshutt Plow Company Ltd., Brantford, showed a profit of $119,195.36 before deducting depreciation, interest and other charges compared with a loss of $182,931.23 in the preceding year. Net loss of $218,627.99 was shown. Sales for the year showed an increase over the preceding year of approximately 40 per cent, the report indicated, and a further expansion of trade for 1936 is anticipated.

"Eleven billion dollars a year for FOOD?"

THAT'S HOW MUCH American women spend. If you are buying food for the so-called "average" family of four your share is at least $11.00 a week.

The job of getting the most out of that eleven dollars requires thoughtful planning, if not ingenuity. You've got to keep a supply of staples on hand—flour, sugar, shortening, baking powder, essential condiments and spices. A variety of breakfast cereals is required. Milk, butter, eggs and cheese figure in meals constantly. Tea, coffee, cocoa and canned fruit juices are consumed daily. Fresh, as well as canned fruits and vegetables, can't be overlooked. Meats and fish — either fresh, smoked or canned—demand that you buy them. Jellies, jams, relishes and canned soups insist upon a place in your market basket. And last, but not least, is bread three times a day.

So what's the best rule to follow in buying this wide assortment of food? How can you avoid monotony in meals? How can you discover new menus and recipes? How can you have enough money left over each week for your food allowance for a few tasty luxuries that make meals more appetizing? How can you save time and money in buying?

Well, you can tramp through the markets daily—looking, pricing and comparing. But there's an easier way—a more course way — a more up-to-the-minute way—

Dale Plays The Game

BY

Ann Forester

It was new before, she caught a sight of it through the wooden steps by squatting at the cross roads; a dizzy eternity before she went up the steps to the unrailed porch, blocked by an overhanging wooden shed.

At the sound of footsteps a woman came to the open door. She was in time to see the girl stump clumsily into the old wooden rocker. Dale's face was white and wet with exhaustion; her eyes were sick.

The woman hurried inside the house and came back with a glass of water.

"Drink it slow!" she warned the girl as she gave it to her. "That's too cold to hurt you, but drink it slow."

She sealed herself on a wooden bench and watched Dale as she obeyed.

An enormous woman she was — she must have weighed well over 300. She was somewhat surprisingly dressed in a pair of men's blue denim overalls, the ends of the trousers laced into stout, high boots. Her lively blue eyes took in the exhausted girl, and when Dale had somewhat recovered, the woman began eagerly.

"Pretty near all in, wasn't you, dearie. Walkin' too fast in the sun. Gosh, I thought you was goin' to flop when you come up the slope!" She wisely nodded her head, and exhausted though she was, Dale felt a flush of humor go over her. That little hard knob of grey streaked hair above that tall forehead reminded the girl of nothing so much as a freshly peeled Bermuda onion.

"You the little bride from up back the road a piece?" the woman jerked a large, flat thumb over her shoulder and chuckled. "You don't need to answer, child, you're blushin' like a peony! Steve Kemp said you was pretty as a picture—and he's got an eye for a pretty girl, that one!" she finished darkly.

When Dale had acknowledged her identity, Mrs. Watties went on heartily: "Well, I'm sure glad to see you, dearie. Pa an' me heard about you bringin' your poor young man out in the desert to get him well. You're a good little girl—"

Dale was acutely uncomfortable. To play the role of the loving wife was the last thing she desired. But Mrs. Watties had formed her own ideas on the subject, and she was not an easy lady to diverge.

She raised her voice astonishingly and bawled:

"Pa-coma ous . hare an' meet somebody . . .

"Pa" came, a gentle, grey-haired man, who smiled shyly. "It's that little Mrs. Kendall from up the road. Her that's got the sick husband. Well, don't you lose hope, dearie. Give me up to die six years ago, doctors did—right off hot at me!"

Against their friendly belief Dale felt herself sinking unhappily into the part of the sick and anxious wife. And she could make the bitterness of her own smile as she remembered the belief in Brant's grey eyes yesterday.

CHAPTER 21

CLASHING WILLS

It was impossible to resist the Watties. There was a hearty frankness about them which was balm to the lonesome girl. To them Dale knew she was not "the solorine," a dangerous and unknown quality, but Dale Kendall, the sick little wife who was living a romance. To the warmth of their hearty admiration she unconsciously expanded.

"Pa" saw in her the fairy bride he dreamed of in the depths of his romantic old heart. Pa was given to reading a well worn volume of Tennyson's poems, a habit which filled his wife with pride and a secret awe. "Pa's real well read," she would confide to each new comer in a booming aside. So to Pa, Dale, with her fair hair and brown eyes, was at once Elaine the Lily Maid and Guinevere the Queen.

To "Honey"—so Mrs. Watties, for all her 200 pounds, was rather astonishingly known—Dale was something more. "You're 22 . . ." she said to the girl on that first conversation, when they became so surprisingly well acquainted: " . . . my, my! You're just about the age our Emma would have been if she'd lived.

"There was not a chance in the world that Emma Watties, had she lived, would ever have looked at Dale, but to the eyes of Honey and Pa, the girl now was the reincarnation of the baby they had lost, and they took her to their hungry hearts.

Honey exclaimed over Dale's smarting arms. "You're going to be real sun-burned, you poor lamb. Better let me put some grease on you."

Soothed by the salve; soothed still more by their frank delight in her, Dale sat and rocked in the old wooden rocker on the porch while she sipped lemonade and visited with the Watties.

The problem of supplies was solved. She could do all her trading here at the cross roads store. Pa would make deliveries in his truck. He'd drop by the shack a couple of times a week and Dale could do her ordering. The girl's courage picked up at this. Then she hadn't done anything so dreadful in disabling the car, she thought confidently. Brant needn't know that at her . . . But the very thought of Brant was disturbing, and she crushed it back in her mind. It was pleasanter to bask in the warm friendliness of the Watties.

The Watties made Dale stay to lunch, and then eaten the dishy meal in back of the store, where closed windows and doors had acquired a degree of coolness by shutting out the hot wind. After that, of course, it was too scorching to return until the heat peak of the days had been passed, so that it was well toward the end of the afternoon before Pa started to drive Dale home.

Honey had showered the girl with gifts—a cold roast chicken, a mason jar of preserved watermelon rind, a stack of old magazines. . . . "to read while you're restin' down restin' your feet, dearie . . ."

A rib cracking hug in Honey's hard old arms after Dale had promised "to come down and visit often," Pa started the engine.

Dale twisted about in the seat and waved until the big bulky figure on the store porch had disappeared behind a rise of ground. Her eyes were misty when she finally turned around and settled herself against the back of the seat. She was not entirely alone in this hostile country . . . She had made a friend . . .

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

It was the morning of the day following that upon which he had been shot before Tarzan regained consciousness. He felt weak and sick. When he tried to move, he discovered that his wrists and ankles were securely bound. His head ached horribly.

As recollection slowly returned he realized, because of the tent, that in some way his enemies had captured him. He tried to wrench his wrists free from the cords that held him, but they resisted his every effort.

His listened intently and sniffed the air, but he could detect no evidence of the teeming camp that he had seen when he had brought the girl back. Hearing voices he realized he was not alone, though he was confident that there were only a few men in camp.

Deep in the jungle he heard an elephant trumpeting. Tarzan drove again to snap the bonds that held him, but they would not yield. Then he turned so that he faced the tent opening and from his lips burst a long low cry; the cry of a beast in distress.

staring at each other in silence and the hot, sunlit room about them seemed to quiver with the intensity of their hatred.

Brant spoke in a low voice shaking with anger.

"You are unforgivably criminal.

The words were like the fall of his hand across her face and Dale felt a murderous rage leap in her heart.

CHAPTER 22

THE NIGHT OF FIRE

"You can say that to me," cried Dale, "when I'm out here solely to help you get well! You can be a—so—fiendishly ungrateful!"

The wide, shining river and the dark green patches of orange grove had sunk behind them. They were joking through the dun colored desert, dotted with clumps of dreary sagebrush. Dale's arms and shoulders were burning in spite of the salve Honey had tenderly dabbed on, and she sat bolt upright to keep from contact with the seat.

The little shack looked deserted when the truck pulled up before it, and Dale caught her breath sharply. But the noise of their arrival brought Brant to the door. Never had he looked so big, so grim, so unkempt. The girl's heart sank. He was in a black rage!

His eyes swept over her as though he could not see her, and never once did he address her directly. But he was quiet enough to Pa Watties — too civil, in fact, and Dale felt the hot color come into her cheeks as he answered the old man.

"We kep' your little wife down to our place to lunch," Pa said, smiling his faded blue eyes in the strong light. "Couldn't hardly make 'em tear themselves away. Honey's got a fair crackin' hand at vittles, I'll tell you!"

"You are more than kind," Brant Kendall had answered softly . . . too temperately . . . "to take such an interest in my private affairs."

This was the remark which had whipped the proud color to Dale's cheeks and flashed her eyes like swords at the man, who did not meet her glance. Pa's simple heart did not perceive the irony. When he had climbed in his truck and rattled away in a cloud of dust, Dale turned on Brant in trembling rage.

"How contemptible of you to talk like that to that dear old man!" she flamed.

It was the opening gun of the triumph.

battle. Brant's voice was devil ridden.

"Why, did the old fool begin to gossip about my private business then! Don't you think I'd have enough that was the gossip of the town without having every hick in the country gathering first hand information from—from—" he had been about to say "my wife," but the words had stuck in his throat.

"You'd made yourself the gossip of Coli City before I ever laid eyes on you!" Dale flashed back.

Brant's eyes flinched at that and the girl knew a wretched sort of

"That's beside the question," the man answered in a smothered voice. What immediately concerned us is the car you've laid up. Cutting two days' good time to pieces, in your infernal temper—"

"It wasn't my temper!" said Dale hotly, to drown a twinge of guilt. "I did it for you. Yes, laugh! But it's true. I came out here to get you well. The doctor told me to keep you from town. And if the car was going to take you to town —to undo the good being out here in the desert is doing, I made up my mind I was going to destroy the car!"

SPEED ARTISTS FROM BETHEL WIN

West Huntingdon And Glen Rose Battle to Tie

Stirling, Feb. 3— (Special)— A good crowd of supporters were present at the skating rink on Friday night, when the Centre League resumed activities after a week's lay-off. The meet Foxboro team have taken a keen interest in speed artists by a score of 3-3. And in the second half of the double bill West Huntingdon and Glen Rose battled away in a real hard fought battle to a 2-2 tie.

First Game

In the first game which was a bit slow getting underway Bethel showed a great deal of improvement over their Former games, when they took Foxboro for a 3-0 game. The smart Foxboro team which is coached by Hooser (Ged) Tyrrell and gave a smart exhibition of fast skating but greatly missed the services of Johnson their flashy wing man, Lee, Kolcash and Guay formed in a fine game and though they got through on several occasions they failed to beat Dickey in the Bethel nets. Bethel started in a hot speed and in the first five minutes of play Foxboro were scored on a pass from Simms. From the face-off Foxboro played very neat up in order to overcome the lead and Colhane by defence man of the Bethel squad, broke away, dirted the defence, drew Dicky out of position and put the second counter on one of the best plays of the night. Harry Dickey challed up the other counter on a pass from Simms. Foxboro made consistent brave attempts to get back in the game and fought till the final bell went for a real fast fighting game. Kolcash although leaving for a The game reduced the strength of his team by serving three penalties, other penalties in the game were M. Dickey, Simms and Cranston and Guay, Colhane and Simms. Referee—Armstrong for Bethel with the former turning in the finest game of the season.

Line-ups:—

Bethel—Dickey, goal; Cranston and Colhane, defence; Simms, centre; R. Dickey and M. Dickey, wings; Lapcinska, Grant and Calvert, Alternates.

Foxboro—Senior, goal; Kolcash and Cawsley, defence; Lee, centre; Joyce and Chapelle, wings; Ketcheson, Sills, Guay and Guay, alternates.

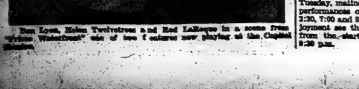
Referee— J. Ackers and H. Brown.

Second Game

The fans had been thrilled with the speed of the game but the second game proved even more interesting as the last year's champions put up a great attempt to get themselves out of cellar position. They were a lot faster all team in every department and played up to their last year's form which carried them through to the championship. The crowd went wild when Fraser, one of the best first goal and started the ball end. Then what happened to Dickey. MacDonald got the second one and West Huntingdon turned on with Cook getting the third and quickly after J. McGowan got the tying goal on a shot from centre ice. Wright sifted through to make it three for the West Huntingdon crew and the Riverside boys fought back it and Fryer finally tied it up and the game ended with both teams fighting hard.

Line-ups:—

Glen Rose— Hagerman, goal; Brown and Armstrong, defence; Hagerman, centre; Howlett, Rowbens on the wings; Alternates, Scott, Fryer and Macdonald and Sidecott.



West Huntingdon—Sarles, goal; J. McGowan and G. McGowan, defence; Cook centre; Wright and Reid on the wings; Alternates, Thompson, Cook.

Referee—Ackers and Simms.

CANADA'S FIRST POSTAGE STAMP FOUND IN OTTAWA—The first Canadian postage stamp, in fact, the first proof of the first stamp designed by the late Sir Sandford Fleming, has come into the possession of H. Borden Clarke, well known Ottawa philatelist, after having been lost for many years. Known as the three-penny beaver, the stamp was found mounted on a page of Sir Sandford's diary, dated Monday, Feb. 24, 1851, which bore the words, in his handwriting, "Shed breakfast at the hotel with Mr. Rubbel and Hubbell. James Morris, postmaster-general, designing postage stamp for him" The stamp is an oblong, bearing the words "Canada Postage, V.R." across the top, with a beaver surmounted by a crown in the centre. Mr. Clarke has placed a value of $10,000 upon his acquisition based on the general value price now being asked by collectors. In time he intends to lend or give the stamp to the Dominion archives for public inspection. Mr. Clarke, after receiving the first proof of his design, attached the stamp to his diary as a souvenir. It was lost for a long time until a prolonged search brought it to light.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Her Master's Voice"

with Everett Horton, "Prince Wisterfreet" with Ben Lyon, Helen Twelvetrees, Edward Everett Horton is starring in a new Crosby-Gosden type of radio barber-shop ballads.

In his new picture, "Her Master's Voice", which comes today to the Capitol Theatre, and which features Peggy Conklin and Lenya Hope Crews, Horton plays the part of "The Fireside Troubadour", radio crooner who specializes in the mournful harmony numbers so dear to the hearts of every generation. His chief number is that immortal classic, "Down by the Old Mill Stream", which has been warbled with equal gusto by gray-haired grandfathers and modern high-school sweeties.

"There was something honest about these old ballads," he said recently. "Even though they may not have been high-type classical music, they conveyed the feeling of an era in which simplicity and the plainer virtues were prized. I don't think they're swell, and I'd feel very sorry to see numbers like 'Down By the Old Mill Stream', 'Sweet Adeline' and 'Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage' die and be forgotten."

"Prince Wisterfreet"

San Francisco has always been one of America's most colorful cities, and has recently provided the locale for a number of successful photoplays, among which the new Republic presentation must be character-ized as one of the best.

"Prince Wisterfreet" is the story of a man who rises from stevedore to governor, and then finds on the eve of his election that he was sided most.

Ben Lyon plays the governor-elect, and his interesting career is told in the enthralling medium of motion pictures. He lends the part one of his finest portrayals, and is ably abetted by the remarkable histrionic powers of Miss Twelvetrees and Rod LaRocque.

The supporting cast is also of uniform merit. Among those who must be mentioned for their individual performances are Russell Hopton, Barbara Pepper, James Burke, Henry Kolker, Purnell Pratt and Norman Houston.

Arthur Lubin presents Norman Houston's story to theatre audiences with a deft directorial technique which is rapidly bringing him to prominence among Hollywood's younger film members.

AT THE BELLE

"A Tale of Two Cities"

New Dickens Drama Takes His Fancy

With Screen's Finest Photoplays.

Sweeping across the screen with a magnificent cast, sequence and pageantry never surpassed, "A Tale of Two Cities", starring Ronald Colman, opened Saturday to three capacity audiences at the Belle Theatre. It takes its place among the truly magnificent photoplays of all time.

For a breathless ninety minutes the film carries the thrilling throbs and pangs of romance, of adventure, of spectacular magnificence, and pushes that great picture a towering giant of entertainment. It is a picture that will live long in the memory of all who see it.

Ill presents Ronald Colman as Sydney Carton in a role that eclipses any of his previous achievements and it is safe to say that he has never been tailored to his measure, giving him a full scope for his dramatic talents. Sardonically humorous, carelessly brilliant, utterly at ease in the midst of the most dramatic heights of sacrifice for a love that he could not hope to win, Colman may well count "A Tale of Two Cities" the peak of his artistic career.

The story is familiar to every reader of the words of Charles Dickens' pen. It comes to the screen without major alterations. It tells of the joys and tribulations of a little group of people, English and French, who become embroiled in the sinister workings of the French Revolution of 1789. On the printed page it was a masterpiece of literature; on the screen it becomes a moving, vivid reality in which every element of entertainment is deftly blended.

The love of Sydney Carton for Lucie Manette, played by Elizabeth Allan, is a glorious thing. Although it never is consummated, could never be consummated, and although Lucie gives her hand to Charles Darnay, played by Donald Woods, the romance between Lucie and Carton transcends the limitations of life, defies the gates of death and becomes a thing of beauty to be remembered forever by film fans.

For spectacular values, it is doubtful whether any picture since the advent of sound can be compared with "A Tale of Two Cities". Swinging the focal point of interest between London and Paris, it depicts the slow fermenting of revolt among the masses of French peasantry, shows the intimate events that touch off the flame to the powder, and then crowds the screen with such stirring scenes of tumult that words are empty to describe them. Scenes of the storming of La Force prison and of the Bastille, scenes of the Revolutionary Tribunal, scenes of the famous Old Bailey trial in London . . . these are spectacular highlights that cannot be forgotten.

With the star cast of 112 stars and featured players, most of them world favorites. Among these, outstanding performances are contributed by Elizabeth Allan, Edna May Oliver, Reginald Owen, Basil Rathbone, Blanche Yurka, Henry B. Walthall, Donald Woods, Walter Catlett, Fritz Leiber, H. B. Warner, Mitchell Lewis, Claude Gillingwater, Billy Bevan, Isabell Jewell, Lucille Lavverne and Tully Marshall.

FREED ON THIRD TRIAL FOR LIFE

Mrs. Beatrice Chapdelaine Found Not Guilty of Poisoning Husband

Quebec, Feb. 3.—(CP)— Mrs. Beatrice Chapdelaine was free today. Twice within a decade or the gallows during almost four years' imprisonment, the middle-aged woman heard a Court of King's Bench jury acquit her Saturday night of a charge that she murdered her husband, Ludger Chapdelaine.

Mr. Justice Adolphe Stein immediately ordered release of the woman, giving her freedom for the first time since July 4, 1932, when she was arrested at East Angus, Que., and charged with murder. Her husband died in a Sherbrooke hospital on March 9, 1932. The Crown claimed he was poisoned.

Cheering in the staid courtroom marked the clerk of the case that had been argued before three juries and three Appeal Court benches during the long period of the woman's imprisonment. Twice she was sentenced to die but each time won new trials on appeal.

The jury required but 35 minutes to reach its decision after listening to a brief charge from the bench. Earlier in the day Crown Prosecutor Valmore Bienvenue argued for conviction. He sought to show Chapdelaine, a taxi-driver, died of arsenic poisoning and not natural trouble as claimed by the defence.

Antoine Rivard, defence counsel, concluded his plea on Friday. His closest evidence of Dr. I. M. Rabinkwitch, Montreal expert on stomach disorders, that Chapdelaine did not die of arsenic poisoning as no trace of poison was found in the hairs of his head.

Mr. Bienvenue admitted no arsenic was found but he claimed evidence of Dr. Rosario Fontaine, medico-legal expert, has always been of the man's organs indicated arsenic poisoning.

Mr. Justice Stein in his 10-minute charge reviewed technical points brought out in evidence and told the jury to judge the case on its merits. The 12 men, French and English-speaking left the court-room at 5.46 p.m. and returned at 6.21.

The pale, overwrought accused heard the foreman pronounce "not guilty". Applause broke out in the crowded court as others shouted for silence.

As she walked from the court-room Mrs. Chapdelaine posed for photographs after warmly thanking the members that had fought for her battle before two Court of King's Bench juries in Sherbrooke, twice before the Court of Appeals at Montreal and once before the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa.

General Mobilization In Italy Considered

Rome, Feb. 2 (CP)—General mobilization for Italy is being considered by the Fascist Grand Council, observers said today, as a result of the European diplomatic front now aligned against the Rome government.

The report was current following the week-end meeting of the council, presided over by Premier Mussolini.

It was explained new tactful or military decisions may be made by the supreme defence council to meet tomorrow. The grand council is expected to resume its session shortly after this meeting.

Perhaps the most dramatic picture of all taken at the funeral procession was that of King Edward as he marched behind the gun carriage bearing the remains of his father (CENTRE). His face torn with grief and pain, biting his lips to retain a composure that has caused amazement and admiration everywhere, King Edward is shown as he limped along on the cross and a half-mile procession. Once a section of the crowd cheered as he passed. It stopped short instantly as His Majesty frowningly jerked his head in the direction of the cheer.

"Purge" Relief Rolls Of "Cheaters" Challenge Sent to Municipalities

Welfare Minister Croll Announces Increased Contributions

INCREASE RETROACTIVE

Only Enough to Satisfy "Needs Not Greed" Claimed

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Ontario municipalities today received a challenge Minister Croll can announcement the province would increase its relief contribution from 33 1-3 per cent. to 75 per cent. and this challenge to "purge" their relief rolls of "cheaters."

Deadline for the "purge" if April 1. After that the province will continue to contribute on the 75 per cent. basis in all municipalities but only up to maximum amounts established upon "legitimate relief needs" as indicated by recent government surveys.

The increase is retroactive to last January 1 and follows the increased Federal contribution. Ontario now pays $1,050,000 monthly as its contribution to Ontario relief costs in place of the former $700,000. The few municipalities receiving 75 per cent. or more will continue on the present basis of assistance. Contributions of the increased payments after March 31 depends on continuation of the Federal contribution.

No sufferers for legitimate recipients is involved in the new system of maximum payments which comes in April 1, Mr. Croll said. There would be enough money to take care of [Continued on page 11]

MISS LAMOUREUX LEAVES HOSPITAL

Quintuplets Show Slight Weight Decrease in Past Week

Pending the appointment of a successor Miss Lamoureux, Mrs. Dorothy Dale of North Bay is assisting Yvonne Leroux, veteran nurse of the staff, with the babies since their birth. Dr. Dafoe said a replacement would be named Wednesday naming Miss Lamoureux's successor.

The Board of Guardians for the quintuplets met today to pass accounts for payment and transact routine business. Those attending were Judge J. E. Valin, Dr. Dafoe and W. R. Finnerty, secretary to the Board.

Aged Antiquarian Dies Amidst Relics

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Robert Farquhar, 77 year old recluse, died as he lived—in an atmosphere of another era—surrounded by his beloved antique furniture and other relics of a day long since gone.

His body, by the dim flickering light of oil lamps, the only illumination he used in his little house which neighbors had long whispered was "haunted."

Physicians ascribed his death to a stroke. He was unable to communicate with his daughters, Jessie and Isabella, and died without medical aid. For six years, neighbors reported, Farquhar had not left his house.

Trade Commissioners Urged to Return to Developed "Export Spirit"

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—With the object of awakening greater "export consciousness" among Canadian business men, R. E. Thomas, Montreal, chairman of the Foreign Trade Board of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce, suggested today in his report to the 10th annual meeting a few of the Canadian trade commissioners should be brought back to Canada and be permitted to concentrate their efforts here.

Mr. Thorne said approximately 10 per cent. of Canadian business firms were carrying on the Dominion's export trade.

Total trade for the last calendar year increased by ten per cent. over 1934, he said.

NATIONAL STATE PILLARS FIRM IS NATION'S NEED

Sectionalism Has No Part in National Life Says Chamber

PRESIDENT'S WORDS

Links Consuming Patriotism With Proper Ethics in Business

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Canada's household goods should not be those of the individual parish or of the nine regional areas, President A. G. Watson told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce at the opening session of its tenth annual convention today.

Strong communities and flourishing provinces of course were necessary as a base for the nation, but "Canada should have done with provincialism and sectionalism," he said.

"Provincial rights should be respected but their force ought not be thrown against the nation or impair the pillars of the national life."

The president linked "consuming national patriotism" with proper ethics in business, sound public finances and national co-ordination of the unfair problem in a platform "on which business should stand united-ly today." And added: "Failure to face the railway issue, called for higher returns for the farmer and industrial worker, will have no excuse."

But while "wildcat ventures must be stopped and laws enforced against proven abuses, "the chamber stands definitely against regimentation of business."

Losing of Confidence.

"Some business men have lost the confidence of the public and they have lost confidence in themselves for it," said Mr. Watson in the past of the depression. "Others have lost their perception of business".

In prosperous days capitalize of industry rose to the height of popularity. "Then came the crash. Prices tumbled down . . . nobody seems to know what to do . . . not even our business leaders. Not only that but suspicion had begun to rear its ugly head . . . suspicion that Big Business was not only had fact of clay but a beast of stone."

Much Money Lost.

The public had lost a lot of money and it was natural to ask:

"They got their scapegoat easily enough, the speculator, the gambler, millionaire. His name made news and although he represented a meagre fraction of the total investment in business nation, he rated headlines and pages. His name was pilloried. Mud flew thick and fast. There was enough left over to spatter the foundations of the financial and industrial system with the very principles upon which business must rest—honesty and confidence.

"Guilty or innocent, business was doomed. Confidence had departed at the critical moment, and strangely enough, nobody else came forward to help restore it," said Mr. Watson.

"The press might conceivably have done so, but it could not accomplish the impossible. It could not, in spite of honest business or of the sound principles of capitalism never did exist in practice."

As the "one national voice of business," the Canadian Chamber of Commerce will endeavor to "help re-emphasize the conception of business under the capitalistic system," president added.

Mrs. Prentiss Tells Jury She Looked at Knew From Bedroom Window

Saw Nothing But Felt Very Uneasy During Night

RAIN FALLING

Witness Certain That Sound Came From Gerrard St. Hollow

Toronto, Oct., Feb. 4 (CP)—A cry from the dead and ravine where the 20-year-old Ruth Taylor was found dead last March 1 was a main point brought out in assize court today as Harry O'Donnell stood trial for the murder of the girl whose body was found in the ravine.

While the accused gas station attendant listened with his customary composure, Miss Mary Prentiss told the jury trying him that at midnight of Nov. 4, within a half hour of the time Ruth Taylor left a tram car near the death gully, she had looked out a window through the rain and darkness shrouding the ravine.

Two youngsters who were on the spot and two men who helped spread the alarm have been called to tell of the death scene. They were followed by two policemen—Patrol-Sergt. Robt. Dunlop, Constable John Rapley and Detective Sergt. James J. McIntyre, who gave details on the descriptive.

Calling Exhibited.

While McIntrath was being examined, the prosecution produced for identification the clothing Miss Taylor were for the last time. O'Donnell sitting in a corner of the dock, watched close as the girl's apparel, some of it torn and stained with red clay, was brought to the witness box.

McIlraith who attended O'Donnell said that a blood stain on the dead body, her skirt, was off, her slip was torn and her stockings were ripped. Her shoes had slipped almost all the way off her fingers. The skirt and slip were pushed up to the girl's waist and her blue sweater also was torn.

Miss Prentiss told of Friday.

A photograph showing the girl as she was found in this condition was identified by the witness as she scanned by the jurymen. The prisoner bruised right eye his head mousstache as the picture travelled from jury box to jury box.

An exhibit which the prosecutor said would also play a significant part in the case was a blue polo rabbit hair sweater was among the garments identified by Miss Meredith's identification. Yesterday Provincial Const. Albert E. Cooper, 234 blue hairs, taken from O'Donnell's clothes could not be distinguished from the girl's hair.

Second Day of Trial.

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Resumption today of the trial of Harry O'Donnell for the murder of Ruth Taylor, 20-year-old Smiths Falls stenographer, Smith testified, was drawn up parallel to the ravine's body. Only a pair of stockings were on the lower part.

Clothing Scattered.

Scattered about the girl's body, Smith said, were articles of clothing. Her shoes had not been stripped off. Her umbrella lay some distance up the side of the ravine. There was blood about the slain girl's head and her body bore bruises and scratches.

Smith, who lives near the ravine, identified articles of the girl's clothing.

No cessation of the [illegible] decision, or as to his successor, was immediately forthcoming. It was indicated that a statement would be issued later.

Hastings Deputation Will Attend Conference With Highways Minister

Belleville Chamber of Commerce will be represented at the annual convention of the Canadian Chamber being held in Toronto, starting today and continuing until Thursday of this week. Representing the local Chamber will be President Arthur Bernstein, immediate Past President J. B. Boyce and Secretary J. O. Herlihy, who left this morning. National economic problems and relative obligations of Canadian business will feature the tenth annual convention.

On Wednesday afternoon a deputation consisting of three more members of the Chamber, together with Mayor Harry Hill and Alderman Laurie Lewis, representing the city council, will wait on Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests and Northern Development, at which an endeavour will be made to have the highway between Foxboro and Madoc Village taken over as a provincial highway. It will also be sought to be made to press forward the work of completing the [illegible] connecting highway between Madoc and Bancroft villages.

Suspect Incendiarism In Dormitory Fire

San Bernardino, Cal., Feb. 4 (AP)—Possible incendiarism was considered by officials today as they hunted for additional bodies in the charred ruins of a Parker Dam construction camp dormitory where at least seven men died in a raging fire Saturday.

Twenty-one of the 140 men housed in the dormitory still were unaccounted for. Four others were dead and 11 others burned before fire ravaged the building while they slept.

The possibility of disgruntled workmen may have fired the building was investigated by Norman F. Henderson, San Bernardino District Attorney investigator.

A threat against officials of the camp was made three weeks ago by a workman, it was ejected Mr. Henderson reported.

It was near midnight then, she recalled, and she was trying to get to bed at her home across from the ravine. She said a violent noise made "awfully restless," and later she could smell something burning. The noise seemed to come from the ravine. "This was about 2 a.m. It was raining hard, very hard, and the noon and the ravine was very dark."

Sound Not From Radio

Under cross examination, Mrs. Prentiss said it was not possible the sound was made for an exclamation could have come from the radio in her home. It came in her open window from her general direction of the ravine.

Mrs. Prentiss, of the opposite side of the hill, said the sound came from the ravine." Mr. Justice Hope, presiding at the trial, as she answered. Alfred R. Smithson, glass cutter, called next, said he was driving past the ravine on November 5 when a truck passed him. Driving in the truck. Down in the ravine he saw the "half nude" body and went to telephone police.

20 Year Old Youth up For Cruelty to Animals

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 4—A case of cruelty to animals, the purpose of effecting revenge against a human enemy, was before the bailiff of the Crown Attorney Ballard, K.C., in Hamilton police court today.

Charged with ill-treating a mare by striking it in the stomach with a crowbar, Alfred Rose, 20, criminal[illegible] death, John Edmonton 20, will be [illegible] Thursday.

"Apparently the accused and the owner of the animal were involved in a dispute," explained Mr. Ballard. "It is alleged that the accused tried to get even with him by lump on the hired man by annoying it when it was in charge. He struck it and did it with a crow bar which penetrated its stomach and bowels. Peritonitis developed and the man died the next day"

Former Jockey Held For Poison Murder

Boston, Feb. 4 (AP)—Deputy Police Superintendent John M. Anderson said Stephen L. Mabey, Jr., 50, former jockey, was held in connection with a murder charge today in the death of Mrs. Mildred Rose.

Mabey, Anderson said, confessed giving Mrs. Rose poison "because she had jealous." Mrs. Rose was administered in a glass of whiskey, Anderson said, by Mabey.

Mrs. Rose, 36, was found dead in her home last week.

Cabinet Not Taking Part in Negotiations of Italo-Ethiop Dispute

LONDON, Dec. 4.—(AP)—Prime Minister Baldwin told the House of Commons today that details of a British plan for rearmament would be made public "at an early date."

The Parliament which heard him was the first to assemble in the reign of King Edward VIII.

The Prime Minister said a white paper containing the plan would be issued but he told Austen Chamberlain on the floor of the Commons that he would be no Parliamentary debate on the defence plan in the immediate future.

Anthony Eden, new Foreign Secretary, is conducting negotiations at Geneva and in European capitals since the Christmas adjournment. Premier Baldwin has replied that Great Britain at present is taking part in no negotiations for settlement of the Italo Ethiopian conflict.

MAN FOUND DEAD ON TRAIN TODAY

Death is Discovered at Marysville This Afternoon

J. C. Hodgson, 6901 Terrebonne avenue, Montreal, was found dead in the washroom on number 1 passenger train No. 5 running between Montreal and Ottawa early this afternoon. He had passed Marysville about 3:15 this afternoon by Alex Martin, conductor of the train. The conductor was hanging from a hook to which he had attached a scarf, that he apparently had been wearing.

The body was lowered by the train crew and brought on this city, where it was taken to the funeral home of the Belleville Burial Company, Dr. G. S. Cronk, coroner attended and there is a likelihood of an inquest.

It is understood the man had been in poor health for some time and was on his way to a Sanitarium in Guelph for treatment. This evening he was a school teacher and had a nervous breakdown a short while ago. Arrangements are now occupying the time of the man on the train.

Panel System of Quebec Likely Used in Alloting Share

Toronto, Feb. 4—Premier Hepburn refused today to disclose his government's policy with regard to the request of the Catholic Taxpayers' Association for a larger share of corporation and public utility taxes.

The policy of the government will be outlined in the Speech from the Throne. I have said nothing beyond that and I don't intend to," the premier said.

It is understood, however, that "details have not yet been worked out" and "the matter will be submitted to a liberal caucus at the first of the session."

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Premier Mitchell Hepburn's Ontario government today was confronted with a step boldly into a religious controversy more than fifty years old at the coming session of the Legislature and grant Separate Schools a share of the province's corporation protest against the pending step that Premier.

While the premier and his cabinet withheld comment on the school situation yesterday, it was known that Dr. T. Albert Moore, moderator of the United Church of Canada, led a delegation of Protestant ministers to Mr. Hepburn's office to protest against legislative concessions to Separate Schools.

ROYAL VISITS ARE UNLIKELY

Talk of Future Journeys of King, Regent Is Taken With Reserve

London, Feb. 4 (CP)—Stories of possible visits in the near future to the Dominions by the King and members of the Royal Family should be taken with a good deal of reserve.

To begin with, the court is in mourning for nine months. Then, the coronation will follow and it is almost essential that every prominent member of the Royal Family be present, not only to participate in the coronation itself but to assist in entertaining the hundreds of visitors, of regal and common estate.

Whether or not the Duke will go to India for a coronation ceremony in October is believed to be doubtful. Even if the establishment of the new India constitution is effected without serious trouble it does not become operative for some three years. And it is thought probable the king would visit the Indian Empire until the dominion question there has been settled itself.

Sooner or later it is extremely likely the Prince of Wales, as heir-apparent, will make a tour of the Dominions as did his father when he held the same title. The Duke of York has repeatedly expressed a desire to visit Canada. His only experience there being a brief call in Halifax when he was a midshipman.

But regarding the Dominions' tour, or any journey, the question mark and other considerations that may devolve either at home or overseas and any such forecast is little more than a guess.

J. R. Burnette Wins Trophy on Cheese Scoring

At the annual meeting of the Ontario Cheese Patrons' Association recently held at the Eastern Dairy School, Kingston, two presentations were made to high scoring cheesemakers.

The Kingston Whig-Standard Trophy together with a suitably engraved handsome piece of silverware, was presented by Mr. R. B. Muir, K. C., Mr. James R. Burnette, of Salem cheese factory, who obtained the highest average score for cheese made in Frontenac County during the grading season of 1935.

As there was no similar trophy awarded in Addington County, Professor A. D. Gibson, Superintendent of the Eastern Dairy School, was pleased to present a gift of $10.00, from an anonymous donor, to Mr. E. W. McNeil, of Moscow cheese factory for being the high-cheese factory-maker not only in Addington for 1935, but in the three districts of service of Addington, Lennox and Frontenac. This was Mr. McNeil's first year as cheesemaker in charge of a factory. He operated on a Permit, having only graduated from the Eastern Dairy School last winter. Professor Gibson and the staff were naturally very proud that one of their students should gain such a distinction during his first season as a maker immediately following graduation.

Members of the Belleville Canadian Concert Association had the pleasure last evening of hearing in recital Miss Frances James, soprano, the well known Canadian singer, who brings to the concert stage not only a lovely voice but a charming personality which instantly captivates her audience. She sang groups of folk songs, English airs, French and German songs given full justice to her charming voice. Sweet and soft in quality her voice possesses a wide range of tone while her markedly clear enunciation gives true value to every word. Folk melodies which she sang delightfully, opened the program, the old English "Nine Maids" was sung by a white little crow" and the Swedish lullaby "When I was seventeen" being especially appealing. Four French numbers, Miss James chose the works of well known composers Debussy, Faure and Charpentier. The vague charm of Debussy was expressed in "Mandoline" and the more vivacious "Chevaux de Bois" and the pathetic melodies of "Les Cloches" from the opera by Charpentier showed the singer's ability in a dramatic vehicle.

Miss James was particularly at home in her group of German songs the first of which was "Gretchen am Spinnrade" with its delightful lyric beauty and swinging tones. The serenely beautiful "Straus" "Morgen" Durch die Felder" and his sparkling "Serenade" were delightfully sung, while Schubert's "Botschaft" by Brahms was included in this group.

Miss James musical gift of interpretation was displayed in the final group of English numbers, delightful gems of melody and lyric. Many in her audience felt that more songs in English would have added to her program and thus her French and German selections might have included those with which they were more familiar.

Miss Randolph Williams, recognized as an outstanding professional pianist contributed to the evening's support to the singer. A concert artist in her own right, Miss Williams' two numbers revealed her majesty of technique and her understanding skill.

The program was as follows:

I.

(a) Have you seen but a white lilnis grow?—Old English.

(b) I know where I'm going—arr. Herbert Hughes—Irish.

(c) Ma Mie Rose—Ma un bouquet?—arr. Arthur Somervel—French-Canadian.

BEAUTIFICATION OF CITY URGED

Rotary Club Hears Plan to Improve Water Front

Beautifying Belleville was the subject of discussion at Belleville Rotary Club meeting Monday, and many interesting facts and figures were brought out. The possibilities of improvements to the lake and river front of Belleville were discussed and the discussion crystallized in a resolution that the City Council instruct the engineering staff of the city to make a plan of the bay and river waterfronts and that suggestions might be made and plans submitted of various ways in which this city might be improved.

Past President W. B. Deacon, of the Rotary Community Service Committee, outlined a plan whereby the bay and river waterfronts of Belleville might be improved and made beautiful and a valuable asset to the city, the work to be carried out in such a way as not to cover a period of years—even if it is ten, twenty-five years. The project could be worth while, said the speaker, only if a period of a thousand cars would be provided by the proposed improvements, properly now and for years to come. There would be given substantial value for the money spent and all who are involved would draw many visitors here. The shore line of Coboconk was where a beautiful beach had been created with the result that it was visited weekly by thousands of visitors.

However, the first move suggested by Mr. Deacon does not contemplate any expenditure. This being the quiet time of the year for the civic public works departments, a survey could be carried out by the engineering department and plans made upon which could be based a series of improvements which could be spread over a period of years.

It was suggested that when the plans were prepared prizes could be offered for suggestions of a beautifying character for Belleville.

Past President Chas. T. Dolan spoke briefly in approval of the suggestion, also Past Henry Hall and Bert Boyce spoke briefly on the subject and gave it whole-hearted approval.

The most unanimous approval was given the suggestion by the Rotarian present.

Visitors included Rotarian R. Waller Buckley, of Southampton; Rotarian Frederick George Stoniker of the Trenton Rotary Club, and James Holmes, of the same club.

RECIPIENTS OF RELIEF TO PAY $8.50 FOR WOOD

Lengthy Discussion on Action of Welfare Committee.

EXTEND TIME

Phone of Certain City Employees to be Paid For by Selves

Cutting the price of wood to relief recipients to $8.50 a cord was the keynote of discussion when the wood dealers of the city, who converged on the Council chambers on Monday night in vain to state their protests in no uncertain terms, although some of the dealers gained the ear of the council, that although the margin of profit at that figure was low, they were willing to supply wood at those terms. Accusations that wood supplied at some cases was not of good quality and that in some cases there was short measurement, were met about the chamber and Mayor Harry Hill was forced to rap for quiet for order on two occasions.

Alderman Ellis, who was again appointing Chairman of the Welfare Committee by a by-law passed by the Council at its regular meeting last night with Miss Lynch and Mayor Hill, introduced the wood question and announced a price of $8.50 a cord for good body wood and this decision was the cause of the delegation, which appeared before the Council. Alderman Lewis defended his position on the matter from the start of discussion of the discussion being, that Miss Lynch will be invited to come to his next committee meeting and the council to answer questions on the relief situation as it now is.

Mayor Against Price

The discussion was opened by Mr. Mason who declared, that it was impossible to buy wood at that price with any margin of profit.

Alderman Lewis,—"Every opportunity was given to buy supply wood at that price and I consulted with Miss Lynch before I made that motion. This price was secured by Miss Lynch from a wood dealer, who is a councillor, and I think Mr. Mason—"I was never given the opportunity to buy wood at that figure?"

Mr. Lewis,—"Are you willing to take that price and supply wood?"

Mr. Mason—"No, it can't be done. Either the wood is not the right quality or short in measurement."

Alderman Lewis—"Then I refuse to deliver wood not according to specifications. Things are going to be run differently.

dealers were getting $8.50, while the relief recipients got $7.00 and the last question is a serious matter and the Council should be willing to deal with the load they have to carry."

Alderman Safe—"Why can't we have Miss Lynch at a committee meeting?"

Alderman Thompson —"Do you think that you can get other merchants. No doubt this person, who is supplying wood at this figure has other reasons for so doing."

Mayor Hill—"I think if we ask for tenders we will get wood for less than $8.50 a cord."

Not Profiteering

John Hanna—"I am one of the wood dealers and I am not profiteering at the expense of relief recipients. I am willing to let the council knows the amount of work involved in handling wood for the relief recipient, from the bush. If I cannot get some of the wood business at a fair rate, I will be out of business with the rest. My customers pay $10 a cord and I do not get more than a cord for wood in the bush forty miles away."

Mr. Moore — "The only people that get any protection are the outside fellows who pay no taxes. Our measure has always been up to standard including Mr. Mason who said, 'You are the last person, that I expected measure my wood.' I brought a quick retort from Mr. Mason to the effect, that he always gave full measure and wood of good quality. Mr. Moore further stated, that he would deliver wood at $8.50 a cord of good quality.

Mr. Mason—"I never measured the wood that Mr. Moore delivered but I was told by Inspector Hanten, that the wood was a little short but the wood was not measured until after it was delivered."

Mayor Hill—"To be sure about the measurement, wood should be measured before it is taken from the truck."

Alderman Jennings, — "I am of the opinion, that this council should secure tenders for wood."

Vicious Practice

Alderman Arnott— "That would be a very vicious practice because tenders would then have to be secured on everything given out by the relief office. . . . It might mean a few dollars net to the city but it would leave the question wide open and some reputable dealer would have to be without a share of the business, because they could not meet a cheaper price. I am definitely against calling for tenders."

Alderman Hudson—"Are the men supplying this wood taxpayers of the city?"

Alderman Lewis—"Yes".

Alderman Clapp—"I am sure that there is no profit in delivering wood at that figure".

Alderman Lewis—"I have to take a small margin in my business and if we can get wood at that price, I think the saving should come to the city".

At this point, Mr. Quinn, a relief recipient, stepped before the bar, stating that he had received wood of poor quality from Mr. Moore and he had not been given a full measure".

Mayor Hill—"We have got some where in this question. Did you go to the Relief Office with your complaint?"

Mr. Quinn—"Yes and I received no satisfaction and then paid no attention to me".

Mayor Hill—"I don't believe you. If you come down in the morning, I will go with you to the office".

Mr. Quinn—"I will be there".

Mr. Quinn—"I waited hours to receive a $1.50 voucher and for reason given was that I didn't go to the office in the morning. It is impossible for me to go, because the water pipes in my house were frozen".

Mayor Hill, —"You have to go to work when you can get there in the morning. I am not going to the office".

Mr. Quinn—"I will be there".

At this point Alderman Armstrong moved, that Miss Lyhch be added to the next committee meeting and the motion carried, which closed the discussion.

The passing of the by-law forming a Welfare Committee was opposed by Alderman Wills, although the Alderman stated, he had not formed a definite opinion as to whether it should be done. "There is nothing to conceal in the matter, I am about to make," said Alderman Wills, "but I think I understood Alderman Lewis to say at the earlier meeting of this council,-that he would give the standing of the relief situation and also, that the Mayor would call a special meeting to fully discuss the question. Nothing has been done in this respect. It is up to the council, to appoint to the Provincial body, yet we are taking a great deal on ourselves in the matter of administering the relief. Provincial auditors come to this city at regular periods and if there are any irregularities we are soon informed about them. I think the council is vested with the control by the by-law. I do not think, we should go careful and not rush this by-law tonight and discuss it more fully."

Alderman Armstrong— "I cannot see, where the appointment of this committee and the appointment of a chairman changes the position of Miss Lynch as Welfare Department in Toronto. This committee will not be a supervising committee but to the ratepayers we are responsible for the relief. All things and questions can be submitted and referred brought down to a point, where the ratepayer is willing to pay."

Report Ready

Alderman Lewis—In answer to Alderman Wills, I have the report ready for the council and have made a great deal of time investigating the relief situation and am ready to discuss it. I could tell a lot of stories about relief, but I have not time for them tonight. My duty is to object is to give to each recipient, the relief they are entitled to. The relief rolls of "cheaters" and to get the right price for the stuff that is purchased.

The by-law was passed through all stages, Alderman Wills and Hanna being taken, the vote was Yeas, Aldermen Thompson, Arnott, Bailey, Bateman, Jennings, Lewis, Safe, Hall and Clapp; and Nays Clubing. Thompson and Wills. Alderman Domenico was absent from the meeting.

Continuing with the subject of relief, Alderman Lewis introduced a motion, "that the City Treasurer supply the council with the names of the establishments in the city during the past year". The motion was carried. Alderman Bateman explained he was not "trying to get" anybody, but decrease wages, but simply a figure as to the cost to the city to maintain the relief rolls.

Auditor's Report

Going to the business before the council, an auditor's report on the City Hall was received by the council from P. O. Chamberlain. The report was referred to the Mayor, who will take the matter up with the Parks' Board. The auditor's report is as follows:

"January 31st, 1936.

"Mayor and Council,
"City of Belleville.
"Gentlemen:

"I have completed the audit of the books of the Parks' Board for the year ending December 31st, 1935, and beg to report as follows. The Secretary-Manager was credited from $150.00 to $300.00 per year by a motion at the meeting of February 27th, 1935, but was paid $75.00 quarterly, I find however instead of $150.00 per annum, $162.50 was paid in the first quarter and the balance of $10.00 was paid June 6th.

"Accounts:

"A number of accounts were passed and paid to Commissioner Lafferty's department. Among them included gas and oil for the personal cars of various Commissioners.

"There was also an account passed and paid to Commissioner Symons for bathing suit $5.50. Misnamed item.

"Two cheques were received from the Bandstand Receipts amounts of $85.67 and $42.61 in payment for Amusement Tax tickets. These were returned to the Bank as N.S.F., this entailed a loss of $128.28 together with unaccounted for tickets of $23.77, making a total loss of $151.05.

"Subject to the above I found the receipts duly accounted for and proper vouchers produced for expenditures.

"Respectfully submitted,
"Yours very truly,
"P. G. Chamberlain,
"Auditor."

REV. B. HOWARD SPEAKS TO CLUB

Theme is Boys' Work And Training of Boys

Rev. Bert Howard, Principal of Albert College was guest speaker at the Nightly Ye Men's Club meeting speaking to the members on work among boys, the major project of the Ye Men's activities. Rev. Howard warned the members that while Boys Work is a vitally interesting and greatly needed activity, it must be seriously undertaken. "Boys," he stated, "will quickly detect any pretence at interest. . . . one cannot 'play' at the boy game or service." The speaker then went on to outline those things which a boy feels he should be entitled to and it is frequently denied, such as a fair start in life, a strong and healthy body, a clean mind, and the opportunity for mental, moral and physical training. Mr. Howard graphically brought home his point by speaking in the words of a boy in court for delinquency, pleading his case before a jury of grown-ups. The lack of interest and understanding for boys, both in their homes and schools was depicted by the speaker, who eloquently pleaded that they be given a good example and a good environment.

Mr. J. Arnold Thomson contributed two humorous readings during the evening which were greatly appreciated.

In connection with the Boys' Work activities of the club, a group of active sixteen boys were formed the club at a recent meeting, when the nucleus of a junior club was formed. Each member of the adult club is pledged to take an active interest in one member of the boys' group, with additional meetings to take place under the boys' elected officers. This is in line with the International Y's Men's program of boys' work and an extension of the local club's program.

City Solicitor A. B. Collins was ordered to take immediate action to secure from Edward Kelleher the services of Angus Ray Fowler in the store which he is occupying on Dundas Street.

Telephones now in the homes of city employees and previously paid for by the Corporation will in future be paid for by the employees according to the council's decision at the meeting. The telephones coming under this order are those in the homes of Fire Chief Leach, C. A. Mott, City Engineer; Mr. Mallory, School Board Secretary; Mrs. Kidd, Hose Mistress; F. Crooks, S. Cobbett and E. E. Austin.

Debentures Retired

A letter was received from City Treasurer Harry B. Stock, suggesting, that in view of the fact, that the Waterworks Department, have a surplus of $20,000, that the debentures of $4,000 each due February 1st, 1936, 1937 and 1938, be retired forthwith. "This will save considerable interest", said the letter, "and at the same time not impair the financial standing of the Department". The suggestion was acted upon and the debentures will be retired in the near future. An effort will also be made to collect water rates in arrears. The department be given authority to proceed with the collections.

W. C. Tanner, an insurance broker, requested from the council some insurance, that will be placed with year. The request was turned over to the committee looking after the matter in hand. "The Mayor was authorized to issue the permit for the holding of a Tax Sale of properties in arrears of taxes in the city. The sale will be held some time in March or April, St. Julien Chapter of the I.O.D.E. was granted the right to hold a Tag Day on Saturday. This is a Victoria Day and has always been observed in this city.

A communication from the Chamber of Commerce respecting the trimming and preservation of trees in the city, was read to the council and on motion Arthur Sills, chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the Kiwanis Club, respecting the same matter. The letters were referred to the Parks' Board for their action and consideration.

Jobs Delegation

On Wednesday, Mayor Hill and Alderman Lewis will join a delegation from this county, who will journey to Toronto to interview the Minister of Highways, Hon. T. B. McQuesten, respecting the taking over of the County Road from Picton to Meaford. The Provincial Highway and the early completion of the road from Belleville to Madoc. This will be one of the largest delegations to go from this county and it is fully expected that an early start will be made on these two roads. Dr. J. F. Wallbridge, member for West Hastings will also be in the party. Plans will be introduce same to the Minister of Highways.

Settlement between Mr. French and the city respecting the removal of the Ward House to Victoria Park Ward has not been effected and the council decided that the matter better be referred to the City Solicitor. "Some of the workmen have not been paid their wages as yet and Alderman Wills explained, that the pay slip had not been received from Mr. French on the contract, "if arrangements with the workmen who have not received their wages, be made, I think the council has no right to pay the same until the matter is settled", said Alderman Wills, Alderman Bateman thought the proper procedure would be to refer the whole affair to the City Solicitor and let all the parties interested called together for an informal discussion.

SMITHFIELD BOYS UP FROM BEHIND TO BEAT WOOLER

Score Is 2-1 And Easily Best Game So Far in The Loop

PAPERMEN WIN

Hinde And Dauch Score Easy 8-5 Win Over Benedict Proctor

Trenton, Feb. 4 (Special)—In the first game of the Trenton and District Hockey League match played here at the arena last night the Smithfield boys came from behind in the third period of the game, to defeat Wooler by the score of 2 to 1.

In the first period the Wooler boys had it all over the Smithfield aggregation and time and again were in on goalie LaMorre in the Smithfield net, only to have him stave them off. About halfway through the canto C. Ruttan, brilliant Wooler defenceman rushed down the left boards, let go his shot at the Smithfield defence, which fooled LaMorre in the Smithfield goal completely. From then on till the end of the period, both forward lines, of each team raced up and down the ice, only to be stopped at each others defense. The period ended with C. Ruttan of Wooler, right in on top of the Smithfield goalkeeper.

The second period opened at a fast clip and the Smithfield forward line of Drake, Davis and Anderson gave the Wooler goalie plenty of hard shots to handle. Although Smithfield put on the pressure throughout the period they seemed to get nowhere against the Wooler forwards, who backchecked like fiends. The period ended with Drake, Davis and Anderson of Smithfield holding the Wooler team back in their defence zone. To start the third period under way Waldron of the apple-growers picked up the puck at his own defence, skated down the right boards, let go his shot from the side of the Wooler net, to even the score. For the next ten minutes of the period the Smithfield boys peppered shots at goalie Bryant from all angles but could not score. Finally they were rewarded for their work, when S. Thompson took a shot from the blue line which fooled Bryant completely.

Game Roughens Up

With the Smithfield team out in the lead the game started to roughen up and M. Waldon of the apple growers received a penalty for interference. While he was off the Wooler forwards did everything but score and had goalie LaMorre literly standing on his head to keep the disc from crossing the crease. The game ended with all the Wooler team down inside the Smithfield defence zone shooting the puck at LaMorre from every angle.

Final score: Smithfield 2; Wooler 1.

Lineups:

Smithfield: Goal, T. LaMorre; defence, W. Lemoire and H. Waldron; wing, C. Drake and K. Davis; centre, B. Anderson. Alternates, M. Corbett, W. Hansen, H. Hansen, S. Thompson, G. Niddery and B. Bedal.

Wooler: Goal, E. Bryant; defence G. Ruttan and C. Ruttan; wing, Carmen Ruttan and L. Redcliffe; centre, Gordon. Alternates, M. Wilson, A. Putman, D. Steinburg and P. Perault.

Referee: Burit.

Second Game

Had not the Hinde and Dauche forwards run five counters past Blondin in Benedict and Proctor nets during the first period of next evening's second game of the evening would have been an outright affair as it was it, after a hotly fought battle for the many spectators, who witnessed the 8 to 5 win of the paper men over the first period was all Hinde and Dauche's with some five goals during the twenty minutes.

The first game after the bell rang to start the game, Mattis on a pass from Lott, G. Barr scored the second paperman's goal on a lone attempt. Lott took a neat pass from Mattis to score their third Lott got the fourth out of a scramble and Hood scored the fifth goalie of the period out of a scramble.

From then on till the end of the game the Benedict and Proctor team put four men up at the second period opened G. Bowen of the papermen received a penalty for illegal body checking and as a result, the sivermen ran in their first goal. E. Beale on a pass from the corner off J. Mills' stick. This seemed to spur the Benedict boys on, and they soon tallied another count. This came, when E. Cotrel took a pass from T. Blakley to let go a terrific ankle shot that goalie Bannerday didn't see. E. Beale of the sivermen scored their third goal after getting through the entire Hinde and Dauche team. From this till the end of the period the sivermen kept the peppermen under close subjection. Whether or not the Hinde and Dauche boys were holding off no one knows but it appeared later for as soon as they returned to the ice for the third stanza they seemed to be a rejuvenated team, and it was not long before they were rolling home the goals again.

Lott scored Hinde and Dauche's sixth goal, when he slammed Mattis' rebound past the sivermen's goalie. A few minutes later F. Snell mounted the Hinde and Dauche total to seven, when he banged one in, out of a scramble. The sivermen then showed a little action and Ellis scored their fourth goal on a pass from behind the Hinde and Dauche net by T. Beale. Holden Benham of the sivermen and R. Stenzel of the papermen were the only ones charging. Lott scored Hinde and Dauche's eighth and last goal of the evening on a pass from Mattis. In the dying minutes of the game the sivermen scored their fifth goal when T. Blakley took a lovely pass out of the corner from L. LaBelle.

Lineups:

Hinde and Dauche: Goal, A. Sternburg; defence, G. Bowen and O'Malley; wings, S. Mattis and D. Hood; centre, B. Lott. Alternates, R. Shmuer, G. Barr, J. Mills, R. Perrault.

Benedict and Proctor: Goal, G. Blondin; defence, S. Gould and E. Beale, G. Bowden, J. Beale and J. Wells; centre, T. Blakley. Alternates, C. Benhani, C. Harvey, T. Beale, G. Bowen, J. Beale and J. Ellis.

NIAGARA'S WINTER BRIDAL VEIL.—In the cave of the winds at Niagara one looks upon the brilliant veil of the falls which usually forms a sunning archway over the spectators. Now in winter the falls are stilled. From above and below great icicles, like huge stalactites, seem to be decorations for the hall of some fabulous ice king — a beauty that borders on phantasy.

STRONG SUPPORT FOR KINSMEN PLAY

Box Office Busy Reserving Seats For "Oddities"

"Oddities of 1936", a musical comedy production sponsored by the Belleville Kinsmen Club to raise funds for its eye clinic service work is assured of strong public support. From the moment the box office opened at Sills' Book Store on Saturday morning only was a steady stream of people intent on securing reserved seats throughout the day.

While everyone who saw "Showboat Days" produced under auspices of the Kinsmen last year, agreed that it was one of the best amateur shows that ever staged locally, it is predicted by those who have followed the rehearsals closely that "Oddities of 1936" will out-rival last years production by the Kinsmen.

George Zarfas of Canadian Production, of Hamilton, who has worked extensively for the past few weeks directing the production, will see the culmination of his efforts when the curtain goes up on the show at the Collegiate at 8:30 o'clock on Wednesday night for its two-night run.

The committee in charge of tickets urge those who intend to witness this outstanding performance to secure seats as soon as possible and avoid disappointment.

GRANT SEPARATE SCHOOLS SHARE

"When the Ontario Legislature opens its session a week from today, Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce will read a throne speech forecasting the government's plans. Whether Mr. Hepburn's government will make public details of his plans before that is not known.

Separate School supporters have fought for years for the right to share for the upkeep of Roman Catholic schools, always without success. The present government's decision to apportion corporation taxes between public and separate schools is expected to bring a storm of protest.

Catholics Want Quebec System

Existing legislation provides that investors of a corporation shall, if they so desire, pay a share of the tax from their company to separate schools.

The present act makes, in part: "Unless all the stock or shares are held by Roman Catholics, the share or portion of such land and business or other assessments to be so rated and assessed shall not bear a greater proportion to the whole of such assessments than the amount of the stock or shares so held bears to the whole amount of the stock or shares."

Catholics in Ontario for many years have argued for and demanded a system familiar to the three-panel division used in Quebec.

Separate school supporters have declared that there is no possible means to determine the relative amount of stock held by Catholics in large companies, such as railways and mining corporations. Such stock, they maintain, is held all over the world, with the result, they say, that practically no corporation taxes are paid to Separate schools unless the corporation is owned by Catholic.

The three-panel system has been used in Quebec since 1869. Briefly, it works upon the following general principles:

Into the second panel the Protestants pay their taxes in support of Protestant Separate schools.

Divided by Population

Into the third panel are paid all taxes arising from corporation and public utilities. These taxes are then distributed by municipalities to the two system, or the two previously mentioned panels, on a basis of relative school population.

Although the separate school tax controversies date back to Confederation, in recent years they have centred around the question of splitting up a corporation's taxes between the two school systems.

At the last session of the Ontario regime legislature, the then Premier Henry announced that a series of stated questions on separate school tax rights would be submitted to the higher courts for a decision, and election followed in three months and nothing was heard of these questions.

Separate school supporters met Premier Hepburn and his cabinet a year ago and the Premier then promised that the legislature would make any decision on the claims of the separate school supporters.

At that time it was stated that the Roman Catholics were asking for the legislation for their grant in Ontario which was conceded to Protestants in Quebec under that system.

Then and on other occasions Premier Hepburn stated the matter was going to be viewed with an open mind.

There was no doubt, he did say, that the makers of the School Act had not anticipated the growing industrial age.

NEW SENATOR LONG—Mrs. Huey P. Long, widow of the late Senator Long, was appointed by Governor Allen to serve at least part of her husband's unexpired senate term. She will serve in the upper house until a general election in April fills the seat for the remainder of Long's term expiring next January. It was believed, however, that the Louisiana Democratic state committee would also designate Mrs. Long for the remainder of the unexpired term at its Feb 5 meeting.

Eldorado and District

Eldorado—On Thursday evening, January 30th about twenty-one members of the Eldorado and Union Young People's Union, journeyed to Hazzard's to spend a very enjoyable time with the Hazzard's Young People.

The meeting opened with the president of the Hazzard's Young People, Miss Alma Moorcroft presiding at the opening Worship service.

Mr. Vernon Strebe president of the Eldorado Young People's and People's had charge of the programme for the evening and opened with a hymn. Scripture reading was well chosen words thanked the Hazzard's Young Peoples for the kind invitation to be present at this meeting. The business meeting then was then given. A solo, Mrs. Albert Harvey; a reading, Mr. Cecil Robinson. Quartette, Vernon Strebe. The topic "The Church and the Unemployed" was given by Miss Annie Thorpe and Rev. W. G. Fletcher gave a short talk and discussion based on the topic. Other numbers were a reading by Mrs. A. Harvey; a solo, by Miss Gladys Martin and a poem, by Miss Annie Holmes.

The business that were going were patriotic in respect to our late Monarch, King George V. The meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction. Miss Florence Walker then conducted a short recreation period in which contests were enjoyed by the different groups. A delicious lunch was served by the Hazzard's Young Peoples and a social time enjoyed. The president of the Hazzard's society on behalf of their present moved a vote of thanks for the very interesting programme put on by the Eldorado Young Peoples and closed by singing "For they are a Jolly Good Union."

Eldorado Sunday School

The annual meeting of the Eldorado Sunday School was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mr. Wm. Holmes for the reading of Sunday School Reports and election of officers for the New Year. UTOPIA IN 2436 OR 2936 A.D.

A vision of a happy human society five hundred years or a thousand years hence is the picture drawn by the "gloomy Dean", Very Rev. W. R. Inge, D.D., in this week's New Outlook. Society is not moving to that blissful state at present but he believes that the world has almost unlimited time for us to make every possible and impossible experiment in social hygiene. His findings will no doubt be bitterly attacked for some of them are decidedly radical.

First he fixes the optimum population of Great Britain at 20 million, "far from the saturation point", but as there is more than food to be considered, crowds are to be abolished and "the majority live in villages and small towns. There are no very large cities except London."

Certificates of mental and bodily fitness are required before marriage, because by that time almost all human ills will be eradicated. There will be no reckless breeding submerged class and every little interference with personal liberty is necessary. In that day the A1 husband or wife will be as much sought after as title and wealth are now. Physical perfection is cultivated and a rational costume enables beauty to be recognized in the body and limbs as well as in the face. Women's dress will be sensible and becoming and corsetless will be forbidden. For men, a cap, tunic, and long stockings, as worn in the Middle Ages, will be cheap, convenient and graceful. Each trade or profession wears a distinctive badge.

War, tariff walls, are abolished. Nations are distinct, independent, and enjoy friendly intercourse. Each nation is self-supporting in food and manufactures. Britain raises enough food for her people without depending on export trade. Food is cheap, abundant and less is eaten for reason of health.

No wars, no navies, no national debt, no mass-bribery by legislation, leave the functions of the central government almost nil. It is an honour to belong to a parliament of old retired officials and business men.

It is impossible to make large fortunes, and there is no motive for desiring them, since the prestige of wealth is gone.

Local taxation is necessarily high but people get full value. Every city supports its own university, with technical and art schools, which are very popular. Sculpture, painting and architecture have reached a high standard of excellence, because most of citizens use abundant leisure in practising arts and crafts or in studying literature and science.

Each parish has its own public garden, recreation room, gymnasium, swimming pool and library, large hall for concerts, public meetings, theatricals, cinema shows, lectures and readings from good literature. On Sunday a screen is rolled back revealing an apse for (he hopes) united public worship.

Crime is rare and is never punished by imprisonment. Reformatories look after first offenders, and incorrigably anti-social persons are privately and painlessly extinguished without humiliation to their families.

Clergy are trained in the psychology of religion, their chief duties to give individual advice and help to those in trouble about their souls and wishing to overcome temptations. These interviews are consultations, not confessions. Some clergy would fill fame as consulting physicians, others would have a secular occupation as well in the villages. He might be the schoolmaster or parish doctor.

Wireless has partially superseded lectures and concerts but not entirely. New books are sometimse read on the wireless.

Newspapers are fewer than they are today but party feeling does not exist. Great popular interest is roused by scientific discoveries, by journals devoted to the arts and crafts. Airplanes travelling 500 miles an hour make international visits frequent.

A universal language is established for international intercourse and is taught as a secondary language in the schools. By immense majority, American (still intelligible in England) is chosen as the common speech.

The twentieth century is still looked upon as the age of discovery, abolition of smoke, extirpation of microbic diseases, with the exception of the common cold which still baffles medical science.

The League of Nations, having no more wars to prevent, deals with public health, international trade and goodwill.

One disease was attacked after another, and some hardship was enduring as the sufferers were segregated. There are sporadic outbreaks of diseases thought stamped out but these are soon dealt with.

There is his Utopia. "I am no disbeliever in progress, but I very heartily disbelieve in a law of progress. We can be as civilized as we wish to be civilized," he says.

THE KING

The King is dead, an Empire mourns,
And peer and peasant bow in grief
For him who for his people yearned
And for their ills e'er sought relief.

He has gone outward with the tide,
Our kind and kingly sailor King,
And O'er the Empire far and wide
Are sounds of sorrowing.

He lives for age, who ruled as he
Amid war's clamor, sane and sure.
For in his empire's history
His name will e'er endure.

The King is dead! Long live the King!
May wisdom all his paths attend,
With Britain's banner floating free
Till earthly dynasties shall end.

"Russian scientists report lobsters being revived after being asleep for 3000 years. The item should be of helpful interest to the citizens of Belleville."

So says the editorial paragrapher of the Peterborough Review, a new chiel who has come among us takin' notes. The meaning of the Belleville reference is a bit obscure. Does he mean to compare the citizens of Belleville to lobsters, or is it he desires to create the impression that we have been asleep for 3000 years. However, we point out that the lobsters in question though buried for 3000 years never lost their spark of life and when uncovered immediately go busy doing things to show that a man may be down but never out, (or even a lobster), and herein there is a similarity with Belleville citizens, they are always up and doing, and if they were buried for one year or 3000 would certainly be up and doing just as soon as released. We will not say that Peterborough has been asleep more than 3000 years—Peterborough is not near that old, and sleep indicates life, while—but what's the use?

IF YOU WANT TO MAKE MONEY you have to look like money. So said "Diamond Jim" Brady, who demonstrated this belief by investing his money in fine raiment and going forth to conquer the business world, which he did with neatness and dispatch, also adding to his creed that if you want to make money you must spend money, which he did in great gobs—mostly in publicity, which he found to be the most effective aid in climbing the ladder of success.

"LITTLE AMERICA" IN THE ANTARCTIC, seems to be famous for little save ice, millions of acres of ice, and cold which even discourages animal life. Rear Admiral Richard E. Byrd, who spent many uncomfortable and we presume unhappy months in this dark and dismal No Man's Land—for that is the way we visualize it from reports of survivors of the various expeditions seeking to cut their initials on the South Pole—announces that he is going to make a third voyage toward the South Pole and will start just as soon as he has revised the proofs of his latest book upon Little America. He is working on the vast amount of data collected on his second expedition, affecting twenty-two branches of science, which will be assembled and published during the next twe years. Those who think that Anthony Adverse was a big book had better suspend judgment until they see this Byrd of a Book which we are threatened with.

The water in the river is higher today than at any time during the flood and is still rising. Intensely cold weather prevails, the thermometer registering ten degrees below zero at 11 o'clock this morning with a cutting wind from the northeast. The water has backed up and flooded Front Street to the market square, the sidewalk on the south side being covered with water. The Queen's Hotel is surrounded and approached by a temporary bridge of boards. The premises of the Intario office is flooded and the presses had to be raised. On the west side of the river Coleman and Everett Streets are flooded for some distance north of Bridge Street. The few families who remained in the dwellings south of Bridge Street, moved out this morning. The number of sufferers is much greater than is generally supposed. About one hundred families are destitute and wholly dependent upon the charity of the public. A committee of the Women's Christian Association composed of Mrs. A. O. Northrup, Mrs. Ward, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. Denmark, Mrs. R. J. Bell, Mrs. Greatrix, Mrs. Dunnet, Mrs. Epps and Miss Mattie Holden associated with Mayor McIninch and City Solicitor Henderson have charge of the $500.00 appropriated by the city for the relief of the sufferers. Mr. E. G. Sills, M.P.P., for West Hastings has left five bags of flour at Conger Bros. store for distribution and Mr. R. J. Haight has given a quarter of beef. The ladies were out today in the bitter cold carrying on their good work.

BRITAIN AWAITS DOCTOR'S TRIAL FOR TWO DEATHS

Unusual Interest in Case of Surgeon Accused of Murdering His Wife and Nursemaid

London, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The "Devil's Beefsteak" murder case has aroused more public interest in Great Britain than any criminal case in recent years. Students of crime — and many others — are expecting sensational developments at the trial of Dr. Buck Ruxton, Lancaster physician, at the Manchester assizes in February.

The preliminary hearing at Lancaster, touched off public interest to a pitch unrivalled since 1910, when the notorious Hawley Harvey Crippen hanged for the murder of his wife, Belle Elmore, a music-hall artist.

In the present case Dr. Ruxton sternly denied the charges. He cried, "It's a lie — madness!" to the crown's contention that he strangled his wife, 36-year-old Isabella Ruxton, a former waitress, and then bludgeoned the life out of his nursemaid, Mary Jane Rogerson, 20, a pimply Lancashire girl with a cast in one eye.

But police built up a case which they claim is unbeatable — this despite the fact that the Dr. Crippen, the alleged slayer took every "perfect crime" precaution to destroy tell-tale evidence of his handiwork.

Dr. Ruxton went boldly to the police station, in Lancaster, before suspicion had fastened on him, and asked the desk sergeant to start "discreet inquiries" about the disappearance of his wife. Meanwhile, in a lonely spot on the Scottish border appropriately named the "Devil's Beefsteak", the dissected bodies of two women were found wrapped up in a score or more parcels.

Experts got busy and "reconstructed" the jig-saw remains in an attempt at solving their identity—a baffling business, since the murderer with surgical skill, had cut the bodies to bits. The veins had been drained. The hands had been cut off. In the words of the crown prosecutor, G. B. Paling:

"Body No. 1 consisted of a head, arms, forearms, hands, thighs, feet and lower part of the body.

"Part of the scalp and the eyes had been removed, the nose cut off, the ears cut off, the lips cut off, the teeth drawn and the face skinned.

"Body No. 2, in addition, had the fingertips cut off and the ends of the toes removed."

Police Evidence

Yet despite these handicaps police insisted on the strength of certain marks, notably dental work, that the victims were Isabella Ruxton and Mary Jane Rogerson—and they charged Ruxton of murdering them in his surgical operating theatre, overlooking the Lancaster police station across the park, with his three little children in the house when the murder was committed.

After all the scientific cunning in disposing of the bodies, the crown charged, Dr. Ruxton literally "went out of his way to leave tell-tale evidence against himself."

A clinical patient, Mrs. Hampshire, testified that shortly after Mrs. Ruxton disappeared the doctor gave her a blood-stained blue suit, explaining he had cut his finger. Early the next morning he appeared in a distraught condition at Mrs. Hampshire's home and insisted that she cut off the tailor's tab with his name on it, and burn it.

In return for presenting her with the suit, Dr. Ruxton asked Mrs. Hampshire to scrub the stairs and give the bathroom "a real good scrub." She noticed, she said, that the bathtub was stained a yellow-ish red."

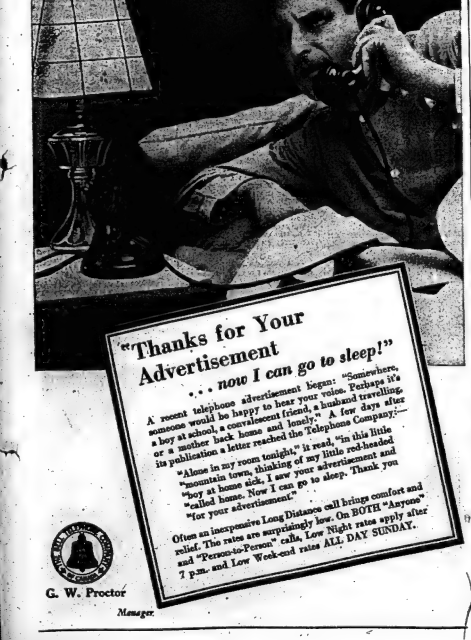
He had already stripped the carpets from the stairs and taken the rugs from the upstairs rooms, adjoining the surgery, and put them out in the backyard in the rain "to get clean".

Homeless lives, a charwoman, Mrs. Kirwan, heard a noise in Ruxton's backyard. She found him, she testified, scraping the wall with an axe, and he told her:

"There must not be any blood-stains on the wall or they will think I have done a murder."

A macabre touch will be added to the murder by the fact the Dr. Ruxton is already slated as the next subject for Madame Tussaud's famed Chamber of Horrors.

Bernard Tussaud, great-great grandson of the Frenchwoman who instituted London's celebrated waxworks exhibition, will attend the trial to identify Dr. Ruxton's features.



If convicted, Dr. Ruxton's wax effigy will adorn the murderers' cellar chambers in the company of such notorious murderers as Dr. Crippen, Jack Sheppard, Nellie Cream and Charles Peace.

WOMAN BLOWN OUT OF KITCHEN DOOR

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 3 (CP) When gas exploded in a summer kitchen here today, Mrs. T. Evans was blown through a back door into the yard and suffered painful injuries. Explosion, caused by a leak in a gas stove, shattered all the windows in the house.

SCOUT OFFICIAL RESIGNS

Welland, Ont., Feb. 4 (CP)—Organizer of the Boy Scout movement here since 11 years ago, W. J. Hickey, also Vice President of the Ontario Boy Scout council, has resigned from the executives of both the Welland and Provincial organizations. "I am not as active as I used to be and therefore do not should not continue in an executive capacity," he stated.

Marmora and District

MARMORA — "Parents' Night" was held in Marmora Public School on Saturday evening, February 1st, by the staff and pupils of Marmora High School. A great many parents and rate-payers were present for the programme which extended for a ninety minute period.

The walls of rooms one and two were lined with exhibits prepared by the First Form Art Class, while in rooms three and four, apparatus for chemical and geographical experiments was set out. The most noteworthy of these was a display of cards made by the boys of the entire school which was operated during the evening by a small battery, in place of steam. Another interesting object was a model of the future Marmora High School, which was made by Mr. Dennis Hall under the direction of Miss Farley, B.A.

The program commenced at eight o'clock with a pageant of living pictures, portraying characters in Canadian History. This was under the direction of Miss A. F. Wilson, B.A. Next the guests were shown the way class room mathematics were conducted by Principal E. J. Reid, and several of the other classrooms. This was followed by a French lesson by Miss Farley and was followed by an exhibition of physical training which was the enacting of a scene from Tennyson's Idyll of the Round Table, in costume under the direction of Miss A. F. Wilson, B.A. Many of these were taken from the same time but were completed at least in order to give each pupil taking an opportunity of seeing them. All the classes in physical training were under the supervision of Allan Smith, M.A. An amusing weigh-in of some of the pupils conducted by Wilfred McKeown and the proceeds were donated to the Red Cross Fund. Following the program refreshments were served in the school, through the generosity of the teachers. The delightful evening was then brought to a conclusion.

A delightful and amusing farce entitled "Quints" was given in Marmora Town Hall on Friday evening under the auspices of the Marmora Women's Young People's Association to a packed audience.

The play entitled "Clots' Modern", told the story of a middle-aged couple who attempted to live up to their children's idea of modern parents only to find that the children really wanted their parents to be the old-fashioned couple they were in the beginning. The cast consisted of George O'Neill and Mrs. Wm. Dougherty as the parents, Theresa Henry and Percy Gray as the daughter and son-in-law, Mildred McKeown, Jean O'Neill, Jean Gladney, Hilda Thompson and Arnold Jones, New York friends of the children, Keith Armstrong, the small town lover and Ollie Ackhart, the maid. The play was directed by Mr. Allan Smith, M.A., and valuable assistance was given by Mr. Wm. Dougherty, president of the Young People's Society.

Following the play, refreshments were served to the cast and guests at the home of Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth.

The G.O.I.T. held a delightful tobogganing party on Thursday evening with Miss Neale Crowder, B.A., and Mrs. A. Leonard in charge. After enjoying the thrills of the hills on "The Hog's Back" the girls returned to the United Church where lunch was served.

Rev. Wm. L. Wright, a former rector of St. George's Church, Lindsay, was appointed recently to the parish of St. George's the Martyr in Peterborough. Mr. Wright is also connected with Christ Church Cathedral, Peterborough. Rev. Mr. Wright follows Rev. P. J. Fytche, who has been rector of St. George's Church for the past twenty years, and who will become rector of St. Paul's Church, Bowmanville. Rev. Wright is a graduate of Trinity College and following his ordination at St. George's cathedral, Kingston, was appointed rector in 1921. His host of Tweed friends extend their felicitations on his appointment.

St. James' Church held its annual vestry meeting in the Guild rooms with the rector, Rev. W. O. Hope always presiding. The following officers were appointed for the year:

Rector's Warden: Mr. A. H. Mouck.

People's Warden: Mr. H. D. Reynolds.

Members of Executive Council: Messrs. A. H. Mouck, H. D. Reynolds, D. H. Morrison, Geo. Clark, W. A. Vanluven, W. H. Pickett, A. M. Rayburn, Mrs. M. Wallace, Mrs. Geo. Clark, Mrs. Vanluven, Mrs. O. S. Brown.

Delegates: Messrs. E. Graham, A. Lennox, J. C. Hayes, J. Luffman, F. C. Arber, Dr. W. A. Paul, D. H. Morrison, Fred Mitchell, H. Funk, G. B. Brown.

Mr. Leonard P. Kelly for the past four years accountant at the local branch of the Bank of Montreal, has been transferred to the Smith's Falls branch. He will be succeeded by Mr. H. E. Murat of Listowel.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelly and family leave behind a host of friends and take with them their sincerest wishes for their success.

Joe Marsh was the hero of the second half between Stirling and Tweed at the local arena on Friday night, banging in the winning counter after six minutes of play in the overtime session to give the home squad a 4 to 3 victory over the classy Stirling aggregation. Maguire gave Marsh the pass from behind the goal in a scramble around the net and the latter who was uncovered about ten feet out gave Morton no chance to block his shot. Incidentally Marsh's shooting all night was conspicuous by its deadly accuracy as he forced the goalie to be at his best to stop his stirring.

The game was easily the best of the season and drew the largest crowd of several years since Morton, Ingram, Wallace and Tulloch performed for Stirling on local ice and these stalwarts gave great exhibitions. Wallace's driving, unyhardest wing shot in the league, were deadly and he was deprived of goals only by Jimmy Simpson's great work between the posts.

Ingram's cleaner play-making and rushing gave the crowd many anxious moments. It was Hobson's clever centre, who stole the show, scoring all three of the visitors' goals, the first coming after four minutes in the opening frame, on Scully's pass. This was the only goal of the period as Morton block-ed every scoring threat. Elsbury, Leal and Courneyea bottled Stirling inside their blue line for several minutes during the middle session before Leal netted the score early in the second period on a beautiful goal executed with the aid of Leal and Elsbury. Maguire took Mervyn's pass a few minutes later for number three and Sailor Leal completed the scoring shortly before the period ended with a shot from the boards on which Morton fanned.

The final period saw Robinson rushing Tweed with no quick goal to tie the score. Tulloch drew two minor penalties but Stirling defence-bury got a minute with the three-man advantage without any success of the danger zone. There was no scoring of the pace in the overtime as both sides exerted a desire a division of the points. Ingram drew a penalty but was unable to have any damage was done. Marsh's goal satisfied the fans and the game was brought to a successful conclusion. Sorry Stirling kept the game well under control. The locals have been undefeated so far this season, and lead the league.

Stirling: Goal, Morton; defence, Ingram and Tulloch; centre, Robinson; wings, Wallace and Scully. Alt. — A. Fraser, G. Fraser and D. Rodgers.

Misses Rosilla Murphy and Kay Shanks had tea with Miss Mary Williams on Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Brennan and Mr. and Mrs. James Roache took in the hockey match in Belleville on Friday evening.

Mr. John Williams spent Friday evening with Mr. James Murphy.

Many from this line attended the euchre and dance in Marysville on Tuesday evening which was a success.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was starting to lite his cigar with a satisfied expression, and ma said, O Willyum, by the way.

Before you go any further let me report that I deserve a far away look in your eyes, and my experience leads me to deduce that it is going to be as far away as the nearest bridge game, but unfortunately this is my nite for reeding, pop said. There is a very instructive book in one volume entitled Mercier on the Bachstalk wich I have promised myself to finish before bedtime, and I never like to break a promise, he said, and me said Well Willyum, I'm sure I'm always willing to humor you in a way, but I think, it would be more impersonal if we substituted in an impartial basis of an entirely different character, such as going to the movies together.

But pa gods, where do I get any half way decent time on that as far as my reeding goes? pop said, and ma said, But where does it give me any half way brain on bridge? As a matter of fact most of the fights inclines on your side of the house because 98 out of a hundred you drop off to sleep over your book and it's six of one and half a dozen of the other that you'll drop off to sleep at the picture, so you'll have all the effect of staying home and reading, she said.

Meeting he'd take her to the movies, wich he did.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY
By Lydia E. Black, M.D., Ph.D.
Famous Authority on Health and Psychology
Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

We are not always as careful of our ears as we should be. . . In fact, most of us do not pay much attention to them until hearing is impaired. For the ear, a complicated organ is indeed a most delicate and marvelous mechanism.

The outer ear of course, is the shell-like appendage on the side of the head. This is the least important, although the most prominent of the ear anatomy. From this outer ear runs a canal to the middle ear, from which it is separated by the so-called drum membrane.

Inside the middle ear are those three tiny but wonderful bones—the malleus, shaped like a hammer; the incus, looking like an anvil, and the stapes, so-called for its resemblance to a stirrup—which transmit sound vibration falling upon the drum to the nerve wiggle of hearing in the inner ear.

Through these inner ear, connections are made with the brain, thus uniting the individual's every response and distinguish sounds as such. Degree of hearing ability varies in each individual, depending upon whether any disorder is present in the ear, illness, nervous state, nervousness and the attention paid to sounds.

The amount of partial deafness caused by the accumulation of wax in the ear is indeed startling. Often wax will accumulate even when the ears are syringed regularly. Cotton swabs have likewise been added a little bicarbonate of soda. Ear drums should never be introduced into the ear. Ear drops should be used only on an ear specialists how and again to make sure that the auditory canal is free and clean.

Speaking of obstructions in the ear brings to mind the habit of children of pushing foreign bodies, like beans, peas, buttons, etc., into the ear, the gluttenance it causes may be serious. Parents should be forewarned about such practices.

Noises in the ear, and they are of various kinds—ranging sounds, whistling, singing, rushing of water, etc.—may be caused by any number of conditions, ranging from catarrh, nervousness, high blood pressure to a nervous disorder. A physician should be consulted at once in such cases.

In children, the pressure of adenoids sometimes affects the hearing. Many forms of middle ear trouble, however, can be cured if the adenoids are removed. Deafness is allowed to become chronic before medical help is sought.

Deafness in itself is one of the most troublesome and dangerous forms of disability, and should not develop.

The ordinary earache, a hot water bottle is advisable besides gentle syringing with a glassful of warm water in which a teaspoonful of ordinary table salt has been added. Take great care of the ear drum and if they do seem to be functioning perfectly.

Dr. Black's Daily Diet Hint

The rather popular belief that it is necessary to boil drinking water in a can after it has been opened has no basis whatever in fact. Where acid fruits are held over in opened tins, they may acquire a metallic taste, which, however, is quite harmless. Be sure, however, to keep any such tins covered containing food well covered and in a cool place. This will help protect any food in an open dish.

The lamb heads in fur parades. Long, full capes of black lamb are worn over black woolen dresses. One such cape has a shirred collar, cape and is held at the throat by an antique gold and amethyst ornament.

It won't matter if there is a current of cold air to the girl who wears a fur evening frock. Much attention has been given to a frock made entirely of snowy ermine — a basic-less model with an elaborate arrangement of halter straps of the fur. The skirt is full.

Not so glamorous but extremely attractive and most useful is a tan tweed suit with a brown-and-green plaid. Trimmed with a collar and revers of brown natural lamb, it is cut away over the shoulders to form a sailor collar.

First prize for charm and beauty in the velvet frock combination goes to a frock of white and silver changeable velvet. The bright green sheer velvet panniers carry belly over the shoulder to fall in a train. The panels are held at the waist by a rhinestone strap.

You can't beat the tailored dinner suit for neatness. A delightful model seen recently used black and silver metal cloth. The double-breasted jacket and skirt with a slight train were done on strictly tailored lines. A black velvet ascot scarf held by a diamond pin offered a pleasing contrast.

Coffee Table

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Sorry to bother you with such a trifle, but is there a difference in opinion I venture to ask you—

What is the correct position of a coffee table? Is it correct to have it not in use?" A says it should be in front of the davenport, where it is when in use or a little to the left, while B says it is at the end of the davenport. B says it should be put over in the corner out of the way.

K.

I definitely agree with A. The perfect place for a coffee table, either when it is in use or not in use, is in the centre from of the divan. Then it is most conveniently placed when it is to serve after-dinner coffee or other beverages from it; and it is conveniently position to hold cigarette accessories or books or magazines when it is not in active service. Artistically too this centre-front position for the coffee table is the best, as it gives a balanced appearance to this grouping of furniture, a feature of decoration much to be desired.

Dressing for Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you be kind enough to answer the following questions for me?

1. May a bereaved family send engraved cards as an acknowledgement of sympathy, or is a personal letter more in good taste?

2. At a house party at a camp do guests "dress" for dinner?

3. If no man is present does a locally So, customarily we expect a written note of appreciation to flowers that we send or letters that we write—it need be a note of only two or three sentences. And, of course, it need not be written promptly.

2. No, usually guests do not wear formal dress at dinner in a camp. But it usually is correct to dress from sports clothes to a simple dinner frock.

3. Yes.

4. After the recessional has reached the front of the church, the ushers return to escort down the aisle the members of the two immediate families. First the head usher escorts the mother of the bride, the bride's father following. Then the groom's mother and the father of the groom, the groom's father following. The other ushers escort the other members of the two families. No guest leaves his or her seat until after the ushers have removed the satin ribbons, or until the ushers have escorted the bridesmaids of the two families.

5. Yes.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers. A woman take her own tea from the hostess?

4. After a wedding does the groom's mother leave first, unescorted?

5. Does a young man travelling with a young woman tip the porter for carrying her bag?

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

Better Cultivate a Little Response-ibility All Around

Dear Miss Fairfax:—

I'm a married man 34 years old, and have a lovely wife and daughter, my wife and I don't get along very well together, and the only thing that holds us together is the baby.

I fell in love with a married woman, who is 30 years old. We see each other frequently, and she doesn't get along with her husband any more than I get along with my wife. Lately, she can't get out to meet me as often as she did once. She, too, has a little daughter.

Please tell me what you would advise.

K.

Delighted to tell you what I would advise. But the question is—will you follow it? As a group you've had too many grand opera emotions for youngsters of your age. You're married, 24, and a father, and have now fallen in love with a married woman who is a mother.

Haven't either of you any sense or responsibility toward your home, your marriage vows, or your children? You can't live on grand opera emotions in this kind of a world. Take a brace! Realize your obligations, and stop chasing thrills. But will you?

Going in Debt for the Engagement Ring

Dear Miss Fairfax:—

I'm getting a very small salary, and suppose it's needless to consider marriage at all. But I am wildly in love. The only ring my fiancee fancies is a square-cut diamond, which will take me almost a year to pay for. I've tried to talk it over with her, but she doesn't seem to be willing to accept anything less expensive. Does she really care for me, or the square-cut diamond?

Doubtful Ike

Try to talk sense to this foolishly extravagant girl even if she are "wildly in love" with her. An engagement ring is not necessary at all. Such an unsuitable gift, even if you can afford it. Some of the most successful men in this country were obliged to dispense with the charming formality of an engagement, owing to the small salary they were in the beginning.

If you honestly feel she's more in love with the diamond than with you, better back out of a marriage which doesn't promise very much.

Better Take a Chance on Waiting

Dear Miss Fairfax:—

He's 18 and I'm 17, and we're both desperately in love. The firm he works for is taking of transfer him to another city. He will be gone for a year and will be in Halifax as manager of a branch. And after that we can be married.

I suggested that he better not have an engagement during his absence. But he refused, and said we could be married before he leaves. I love him enough to wait a year, but—

E. M.

It's a question in my mind if a boy can legally marry at the age of 18. And it would be much more sensible if you defer your marriage for a year, when he will be better able to support a wife than at present. Also, it will be the test for you two, to discover if you're really in love, or if it's only a case of youthful infatuation.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE BELLE

"Magnificent Obsession"

Reveals Strong Title Worth Mint of Money.

More precious than rubies is a good box office title, whether it be figured on the gold standard or on any other basis. An excellent title is worth a mint of money.

Three hundred odd years ago Shakespeare said, and proved, "What's the thing," but since that time producers and theatre managers have discovered that the title is also important from a box office viewpoint. Books and pictures are to continue, this question does not have to be considered. "What is a good box office title?"

The title must be unusual, must stir the imagination, make people wonder and talk about it. Such a title should be familiar to thousands of people; one which can be made familiar to many more thousands. For example, take "Magnificent Obsession," the super-picture playing which will be seen for three days, matinee daily, at the Belle Theatre, starting tomorrow (Wednesday).

The phrase "magnificent obsession" is unusual. It does stir the imagination. It makes people wonder. It is already familiar to thousands, because the novel of Lloyd C. Douglas is now in its fortieth edition. The demand for this best seller from the publishers busy getting the printing presses of the country busy.

Like a snowball rolling down hill the name will take on added value every time somebody mentions the picture "Magnificent Obsession" to another person.

The picture was planned and filmed on a big scale by John M. Stahl, who made such successes as "Back Street," "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life". Some more of the definition . . . "majestic in appearance, quality, character or action." The film was photographed by John Mescall, who obtained such striking pictorial effects in "Bride of Frankenstein".

A little more from the dictionary . . . it says, "possessing splendor, exhibiting magnificence." The leading feminine star of the photoplay is lovely Irene Dunne, whose splendor will be again revealed in a role which fits her like a glove.

Now for the "obsession" which is defined as "an idea that persists, that dominates the mind." The theme of "Magnificent Obsession" is dominated the mind of everybody who read the book. That keynote was carefully preserved when the script was prepared.

The public will be obsessed not only by the certain fame of the story by Irene Dunne's golden beauty, which has been likened to sunrise gleaming on a flowing river, when she was seen in "Back Street" and "Showboat". The actor who plays opposite Miss Dunne is Robert Taylor who starred in "Broadway Melody of 1936". For utmost enjoyment of "Magnificent Obsession" it is important to see it from the beginning at 2:40, 7:10 and 9:25. Performances starts daily at 2:30, 7:00 and 9:15 p.m.

A Tale of Two Cities.

With Ronald Colman at the head of an amazing list of stars and featured players, one of the great photoplays of all time, closes a highly successful engagement at the Belle tonight. It is "A Tale of Two Cities" from Charles Dickens' novel.

For a breathless ninety minutes the screen fairly throbs with scenes of romance, of adventure, of spectacular magnitude that makes this picture a towering giant of entertainment. It is a picture that every man, woman and child should see.

Performances start at 7:00 and 9:15. "A Tale of Two Cities" starts at 7:10 and 9:25 p.m.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Her Master's Voice"

With Everett Horton "Prince Waterfront"

With Ben Lyon, Helen Twelvetrees and Jack Oakie, what have been one of America's most colorful cities, and recently provided the locale for a number of successful photoplays, among which the new Romance-Drama-Comedy is characterized as one of the best.

"Prince Waterfront" is the story of a man who rises from secretary to governor, and then finds on the eve of his election that he was kidnapped by the two people he hated most.

Ben Lyon plays the governor-elect and his interesting career is told in the enthralling medium of retrospect. He lends the part one of his characterizals and is ably assisted by the remarkable hitrionic presentations of Miss Twelvetrees and Rod LaRocque.

The supporting cast, is also of uniform merit. Among those who must be mentioned are their individual performances are Russell Hopton, Barbara Barondess, James Burke, Henry Kolker, Purnell Pratt and Herman Bounton.

Arthur Lubin presents Norman Houston's story to theatre audiences with a deft directoral technique which has contributed largely to prominence among Hollywood's younger members.

Ralph Graves, star of "Her Master's Voice", which comes today to the Capitol Theatre, and which features Peggy Conklin, and Laura Hope Crews, Horton plays the part of "The Accident Troubadour" radio crooner who specializes in the successful harmony numbers so dear to the hearts of every generation. His latest number is that perennial favorite, "Down by the Old Mill Stream", which has been warbled with success by the world's grandfathers and modern high-school quartettes.

There was something honest about those old tear-jerkers," said Horton, "many songsters may not have been high-type classical artists, but they were typical of an era in which simplicity and the plainer virtues were paramount. I think they're swell, and I'd feel very sorry to see numbers like "Down by the Old Mill Stream," "Sweet Adeline" and 'Only a Bird in a Gilded Cage' die and be forgotten."

Whoooo, Mine., Feb. 4 (CP)—A biological survey showing some 30,000 ducks chose to spend the coldest winter in years in the Rapid Middle West from Canada to Tamids to the somewhat today the birds were observed in considerable numbers.

Hunters, they failed to seek the lush swamps of Louisiana, their usual winter habitat, the survey added in the decision.

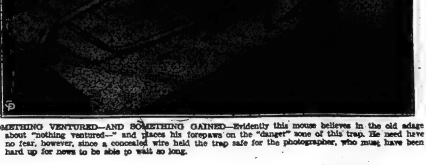
A Practical Plan That Is Helping Millions to Enjoy Greater Freedom from Colds

1. To Help Build RESISTANCE to Colds
Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep elimination regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily—outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

2. To Help PREVENT Many Colds



At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for—and checks—upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—helps to throw off head colds in the early stages.

3. To Help END a Cold Sooner

If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulation through the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed air-passages. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical home guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants, this commonsense and medically sound Plan is the result of their 30 years' specialized study of colds. Its worth has been demonstrated in extensive clinical tests supervised by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use by thousands. Directions for following Vicks Cold-Control Plan come in each Vicks package.

VICKS PLAN for better CONTROL OF COLDS

SOMETHING VENTURED—AND SOMETHING GAINED—Evidently this mouse believes in the old adage about "nothing ventured—" and places his forepaws on the "danger" zone of this trap. He need have no fear, however, since a concealed wire held the trap safe for the photographer, who must have worked hard up for news to be able to wait so long.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Biggar and Crawford by Financial Service.

The inflation topic is reaching the front pages of the newspapers. While this is a favorite cry on the Street does not have a clear conception of the meaning of inflation—he nevertheless realizes that it results in higher prices for common stocks. For the next month or so the market is certain to be influenced by the question of inflation, whether it be monetary or credit.

The buying of Canadian Traction has been of an intelligent character. It is being pointed out that not only has this company very materially improved its financial position in the last few years, but has been able to pay off $25,000,000 of bonds during that period, proof of the company's recovery can be cited by the fact that at the end of 1931, working capital amounted to $13,630,266 and at the end of 1935, it has been had grown to $24,930,247. The question naturally arises as to how much the company continues to pile up cash and other reserves? It is obvious that the company's shareholders are bound to obtain the benefits.

The forthcoming Chrysler report is to be eagerly awaited as showing equivalent to over 6$ a share on the stock.

Power Corporation

One type of security that is largely favored in a rising market is the common stock of holding companies in its portfolio. In this category, the investment trust company is to be commended which during the recent buying of Power Corporation, which is a holding company, the purchase of Power Corporation obtains an interest in a number of leading power and other companies operating across the country and thus seems to be assured of benefitting by a general increase of industrial activity than he would if he bought into a single power company.

Cockshutt Plow Annual Report

An increase of $1,000,000 in earnings is reflected in the annual report of Cockshutt Plow Company for the year ended December 31st. The Frost and Wood Co. Ltd., for the same period November 30. Despite the difficulties which beset the industry during the year, operations showed a profit of $2,035,000 after deducting Depreciation, Interest, etc., compared with a loss of $183,823 in the preceding year. After making the foregoing and other charges for the year statement a net loss is shown of $318,628 as compared with a loss of $418,788 the previous year, when no charge for depreciation was made.

"Sales for the year, while still substantially below normal, show an increase over last year of approximately 6%.

"The prospects in Western Canada during the forepart of the year gave promise of a decided improvement in our Sales and Collections, but our expectations in this regard were not fully realized because of the widespread damage to the wheat crop caused by rust, frost and drought.

"We look for a further expansion in our trade for 1936. There is good reason to expect that economic conditions will continue during the coming year, and in this recovery your Company will assuredly participate. While the general outlook is encouraging, the lowering of the customs tariff on farm implements by the Dominion Government is an adverse factor to be taken into account when appraising the outlook."

Nickel at 35

The sight of International Nickel continue selling at 35 when converted to the general market, although no great spurt followed. This is the first advance since March, 1929, that "INC" has worked up to that level. It will be interesting to watch and to see if this market favourite has any great difficulty extending beyond the last January mark.

The Oils

If this is a major move in the oil stocks, and on the tape it has all the earmarks of one, Imperial Oil and Royalite will likely prove to be two of the most attractive speculative situations. International Petroleum, with the largest reserve per share of any company, also would seem to have outstanding possibilities.

More Liquor Used

In one respect there was bullish news last week about the sale of the United States' Treasury. Liquor taxes are bringer bigger revenue than expected. In 1935 receipts were $83,823,383 more than the year before, adding to a deficit problem almost enough to finance a year's crop reduction program for agriculture.

Ford of Canada

Total Ford sales in Canada during 1935 were 89,977 units, covering 73 per cent. of the market. In 1934 Ford sales were 19,207 units, representing 27 per cent of the total for the year. The Ford increase in 1935 was 61 per cent. as compared with 15.2 per cent increase for the industry as a whole.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

TORONTO, Feb. 4.—Trading on Toronto industrial market today broadening out and prices firmed as volume increased.

Oils, Metals, Steels, Food, Construction Issues and Utilities were all in a higher price range at early afternoon.

Buying of C.P.R. was a feature of the trading and the price got from 13 1-2 for a gain of a full point. Buoyancy in the Rail group on the New York market was also reflected from London were factors in Toronto's performance. Construction, Food and Steel Issues also ruled higher.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Feb. 4.—While trading in heavy volume Toronto Mining market kept within a narrow range today, closing with small losing instances. The general tone for Oils and the Base Metals was irregular with scattered exceptions. Falconbridge dropped 30 cents in a run of profit taking but Nickeliferous Sudbury Basin were on the up side and fairly active.

The big Golds were quiet and Beaver Consolidated dropped was steady except for a sell down of about ten cents each for Central Patricia and Macassa.

Chemical Research and Texas Canadian were about the only kind in moderate selling and the other oils were firm.

WALL STREET

New York, Feb. 4.—The stock market confined its buying attention largely to specialties today, leaving many of the market leaders without any particular support. The rails, utilities, food and tobacco issues and a majority of the utilities, steels and rails were narrow.

Rises and declines appeared among Canadian shares, while a steady to slightly higher price range was maintained by Hiram Walker, Distillers Corporation-Seagrams, International Nickel, Dominion Stores and Canadian Pacific Rail. Abitibi and Gypsum improved a shade. Government bonds were about even. Canadian funds were off 1-16 of a cent lower at 100 3-16 cents.

Sales of stocks totalling to 3 or more point were recorded by shares of Wolworth, Case Thresh, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, International Harvester, Goodyear, Firestone, Consolidated Paper, Westinghouse, American Can, Continental Can and Pennsylvania Railroad. Curtiss Wright, Aviation Corporation and Canadian Telephone. Losses of around a point each were suffered by General Motors and Chrysler.

CANADIANS AND THEIR INDUSTRIES—AND THEIR BANK.

GRAIN GROWING

HENRY: "James, I can remember Dad telling us that, in his day, they used to thresh their grain with a flail. We couldn't get along that way nowadays; there's too much."

JAMES: "You're right, Henry. We must have mechanical help to produce grain at a profit in these days. But I'm in favour of employing as many men as we can."

HENRY: "That's every sensible Canadian's point of view. Our local Bank of Montreal manager tells me that, if the scarcity is all right, his Bank is willing to lend money for necessary modern implements. By the way, looking at our loan at the Bank has been paid off in full and the manager has promised to advance money against the sale of our wheat to pay for harvest labour. We couldn't get along without the Bank's co-operation. It has been helping us, as usual, when we need money in the spring for seeding—and for that new barn we'll have to build one of these days."

Some of the Bank's services to Grain Growers: Business cheaping accounts; savings accounts; money orders and travellers cheques; the cashing of grain tickets and cheques; banking by mail; safekeeping of securities; loans for planting, harvesting and farm equipment.

Best Fur Auction Is Held Since 1929

Hudson's Bay Company Sale Shows Better Values

London, February 3.— The Hudson's Bay Company has completed its most successful fur auction since the beginning of the depression in 1929, the Financial Times said today.

"The value of all types of skins advanced and the proportion of the catalogues actually disposed of was higher than before. Many collections were completely sold out, but this was due to the fact that the total offering was smaller than usual."

The Financial Times went on to compare prices in the sale just concluded with those of last October's sale. It listed the following advances— Beaver advanced 15 per cent.; muskrat 35 per cent.; otter 10 per cent.; fisher 20 per cent.; blue, Arctic and Alaska fox 10 per cent.; cross fox 17 1-2 per cent.; red, Canadian and Russian fox 12 1-2 per cent.; white fox 5 per cent; Scandinavian fox 10 per cent.

The price of marten rose 30 per cent; ermine 25; wild mink 36; ranch mink 20; Persian lamb 10; Canadian lynx 22 1-2 per cent; skunk 12 1-2; bail, dry and ranged seal, 30; and ring seal 12 1-2 per cent.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal Feb. 4—Butter and egg markets were easier yesterday. Saturday's late announcement of produce stocks here, showing 31,000 more boxes of butter than a year ago in store, was a bearish factor on the butter market. Cheese, potatoes and poultry ruled steady. The Bureau of Trade issued a correction on local cheese stocks, placing the February 1 total of cheese in store here at 1,128,000 boxes instead of 110,586 announced Saturday. Receipts for the day were reported at the Board of Trade as 780 boxes of eggs, 323 cases of eggs, and 30 barrels of potatoes.

The butter market was quoted all the week at 32 to 32 3-4 per lb. for No. 1 in cartons or l.c.l. lots. Some wholesale houses gave a range on 22 1-2 to 23 3-4c while others called the market 23c flat.

On the egg market prices were steady to 1c lower, graded shipments in cartons to l.c.l. lots were quoted 26-27c for A-large, 24-25c for A-medium, 22-23 for A-pullets and 22c for B large.

GRAIN

(Winnipeg, Feb. 4—(CP)—Despite weakness at Liverpool, wheat prices were quickly steady in early dealings on better grain exchanges today. Values near mid-session were 1-8 cent lower to unchanged. May at 1-4, July 36 3-4 and October 35 5-8

Petes Defeat "Redmen" 6-5 In Fastest Game of Season

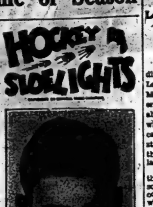
Third Period Rally Nearly Pulls Game Out of Fire

Taking advantage of the shortest of rebounds on each occasion, Belleville defeated Belleville "Reds" last night at the Belleville Arena by a score of 6-5 in one of the fastest and at the same time most bruising game that has been seen in this city in some years. More than 1,500 fans drawn from the surrounding district watched excitedly the two teams as the rubber was taken from end to end of the fine playing surface in speed-taking rushes. The forwards displayed excellent combination, shooted back the fiercest while the rival defences hit hard but clean and the goalies made, at times, miraculous saves. Hockey was certainly sold to the public last night and this type of game, will indeed make this pastime enjoy the popularity it so richly enjoys.

Little Thomas has a right smart time and it was only the breaks that prevented them from scoring a win over the fastest Petes. As Belleville will proceed in the intermediate "B" series after their game with Cobalt on Friday night, Belleville has a chance of again getting championship hockey, a privilege long denied. A smart goalie, in front of whom are two hard hitting, canny defencemen, with two forward lines that leave little to be desired. Belleville "Redmen" can be depended on to supply plenty of thrills in the Provincial playdowns just ahead.

Power Play Used

The power play was used extensively last night and many of the goals were registered when either team was shorthanded. The teams were quite even until the ten minute mark when McDonald was given a penalty and immediately Petes put on the power play and very quick goals were registered. Bellweir secured the first on a solo effort after taking a pass outside the defence, while Lindsay followed a smart game, although about from the sideline in the second session on account of a stiff boarding. In the first canto, knocked the other. The three Petes' forwards did "Speedy" St. Louis led many rushes on Tommy Foley in Belleville net and McGuire was rewarded when he let a shot fly and scored in the open twine.



Peterboro had much the best of the scoring in the second period and the territorial play and the locals were certainly outclassed for more than one occasion when after getting inside the finishing touch by their forwards was in evidence. Wharall counted on a pass from Jimmy Gowert at the same time Lindsay and four minutes later Callaghan stole the puck and beat Foley.

Belleville got on to the third period the locals carried the play to the Petes and had their backed to their own defensive zone for minutes at a time. Foley and Callaghan played his best game of the season, rapped home Berriage's pass. Callahan and Geddes teamed for a counter and the same played against Gowert with Wharall in "Redmen" then went to work and some goals by McGuire on a pass from Harry Morgan, St. Louis on a nasty play with McDonald and Harri Morgan on a beautiful shot effort with "Pete." Morgan brought the game within one goal of tying the count. The locals simply swarmed over the Petes but good defensive tactics allowed the Northerners to take home a win.

McGuire Back to Form

Callaghie, Geddes and Weir were through the best for the winners, the goals centre men being a hard man to stop. Gowert did consistently good work but was not generally could not fashion the defence of the locals. Lindsay, Foley and Berriage formed a hard hitting defence that they were not any better than Reginald McDonald at the other end, who played the entire sixty minutes without relief. Wharall was full value for his goals, while Williamson and Wright, the two juniors, showed to advantage at times. Jimmy McGuire is back to his juggling form and with Harry Morgan and St. Louis makes a strong line. The wings worked with Bill Morgan and Louis carried the play down the centre lane. The line-up: Belleville—Foley; defence, Callaghan, Geddes and Wharell; wings, Weir and Williamson; centre, Bellweir; subs, McGuire, H. Morgan, St. Louis and McBrath.

Peterboro—Joe Smith of Kingston.

Canada has long claimed the palm as birthplace of hockey players, but there is one puck-chaser under the big tent who never turned out with a Canadian team. It's "Doc" Romnes, centre ice star of the crack Rosmen-McFayden-Thompson line of Chicago Black Hawks, who claims White Bear, Minnesota, as his birthplace, and the Chihawks as his only team affiliation to date. At that he nearly travelled north to Toronto last year, when Toronto Maple Leafs tried to engineer a deal sending Andy Blair to Chicago for the forward.

Tommy Gorman says Romnes is the league's biggest eater despite the fact that he is a comparative lightweight. Tommy should know since he coached the Hawks to a Stanley Cup with Romnes on the roster. Back home in Togo, Minn., Romnes once got in the way works in town. He is, or has been, postmaster, general store owner, gasoline station proprietor, mayor and chief of police but "Doc", whose first name is Elwin, chose hockey as a business, quitting a St. Paul medical school to join the ranks.

Until he turned out with the St. Paul entry in pro. hockey this crack Rosman never had a pair of real hockey gloves. He learned deadly accuracy in his shooting by knocking the tops off jars in the basement of the home mansion. Around the circuit many of the managers will tell you he learned his lesson well.

BUZZ BOLL NOT TO PLAY TONIGHT

Leafs Can Go in Lead if They win, While Marcoens Lose

(By the Canadian Press)

"There may be new leaders in both divisions of the National Hockey League after tonight's skirmishing. Montreal Maroons, one-point leaders of the Canadian section, may be able to do something about it when they meet New York Americans but Chicago Hawks have to stand idle, while Detroit Wings seek the top berth they lost to Hawks last week.

Toronto Maple Leafs, who play their last game at Boston this season, are the chief threat to Marcoens' slim lead. Minus Buzz Boll, who won't be fit to play until Saturday, Lane on Burins needing only one points to catch the Montrealers.

But the Stanley Cup holders have widen that margin when they play in Montreal against Americans. In five meetings this season they have won four times and lost to Americs only once.

Detroit have almost as good a record against Rangers whom they meet in New York. Lester Patrick's team defeated Red Wings early in the season but in four games since haven't been able to do better than tie Detroit in one game.

DEACON A. C. TO SHOW WARES

Basketball Twin Bill on Boards at College

A basketball double-header will feature the week-end of sports on Friday night, when the Deacon A. C. Juvenilles stack up against Kingston Collegiate in the opening game of the Juvenile Ontario Basketball Association League. As an added attraction, a game has been arranged between a team composed of former Belleville Collegiate Girl Basketball stars, and the junior boys team at the Collegiate Institute. The game will be played under men's rules, and will be of an exhibition nature.

The latter game should serve to solve the problem of just how far a good girls' team of basketballers can progress against male opposition. For many years, the world-famous Edmonton Grads have dominated the hoop game in Canada and the United States, touring these years, the Edmonton girls have met and defeated many men's teams, which were rated as fairly-strong intermediate squads. The fair sex however, could not be expected to equal the basketeering efforts of the Senior Men's teams in Canada. The result of the Grads' games this Friday evening will therefore be watched with keen interest. The Grads will have such well known players as Marion Maclean, Esther Moncrief, Annie Cruft, Marjorie Huston, Mary Juby, Ada Gartley, and others who helped elevate the reputation of Belleville Collegiate basketball teams in years past.

The Deacon Juveniles will be making their first appearance in Belleville on Friday night. To date their only matches have been of an exhibition nature but both Ab Faulkner and Art Cole who are coaching the squad, are confident their youthful sharpshooters will make a favorable favorable impression. In games against Albert College Intermediates and the Kingston Y Intermediates, the fast-stepping youngsters demonstrated that they are the fastest-breaking attack seen since the celebrated "Lizzie" Juniors played here. The entire squad carries a scoring punch, so that the Juvenilles present a balanced action throughout the entire game, with no let-downs because of lack of adequate substitution. Due to the fact that the majority of the players are playing for the first time in B.C.I. teams last year, the game will carry added interest for pupils at the school.

WFC. 'SPIEL'

Winnipeg Feb. 4 (CP)—Curlers from many parts of Canada picked their rinks today and tonight and went in search of honors as Manitoba's 46th annual bonspiel swung into action.

A total entry of 232 rinks, including 123 from points as far east as Hamilton and as far west as Vancouver, was reported by the manitoba committee. Several United States rinks are participating in the events.

Play today will centre chiefly in the Dingwall trophy events with the Sir John Eaton trophy and the Macdonald's Memorial trophy getting underway after the first Dingwall games have been played.

Gordon Campbell of Hamilton, winner in 1935 of the MacDonald's Brier Tankard at Toronto will meet A. B. Cuthbert of Malden, Man., in one of the Dingwall games.

AMERICAN BORN HOCKEY PLAYERS COMING INTO OWN

No More The Monopoly of Those Born in Canada

DEVELOPING FAST

Lester Patrick is Best Booster For Many Amateurs

(By Andy Clarke, Associated Press Sports Writer)

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Major League ice hockey since the monopoly of Canadian-born players, is slowly making room for American puck-chasers.

There was a time, not far back, when a U.S. hockey player, was claimed American birth was looked upon as either a prevaricade or a wonder. Taffy Abel and Billy Burch were among those who first showed in the National League, that the game could be developed to a high degree by players born on the southern side of the Canadian-Faulkner and Art Coke who are coaching the squad, are confident their youthful sharpshooters will make a favorable favorable impression. In games against Albert College Intermediates and the Kingston Y Intermediates, the fast-stepping youngsters demonstrated that they are the fastest-breaking attack seen since the celebrated "Lizzie" Juniors played here. The entire squad carries a scoring punch, so that the Juvenilles present a balanced action throughout the entire game, with no let-downs because of lack of adequate substitution. Due to the fact that the majority of the players are playing for the first time in B.C.I. teams last year, the game will carry added interest for pupils at the school.

Today, however, it is possible to name an all-major, all-American team that shapes up as a good outfit. For the job of goal minding there is Mike Karkas of Chicago Blackhawks, the little fellow who helped Art Coner Chabot and then stripped the latter of his job. Karkas was born in Aurora, Minn., where he should fall down on the job. Normie Smith of Detroit Red Wings, born in Bellingham, Wash., could be called into service.

Good Defence Available

For the defence there would be Art Lesieur of Montreal Canadiens, who first saw the light of day in Fall River, Mass.; Alex Levinsky of the Blackhawks, who was born in Syracuse, N.Y., and Roger Jenkins of Boston Bruins, who is a native of Appleton, Wis.

The front line could be started with Doc Romnes of the Blackhawks, one of the leading high scorers during the early part of the National League campaign. He was born in White Bear, Minn. Then there is Carl Voss of New York Americans, Chicago, Mass.; Cecil Dillon, the speed boy of New York Rangers, Toledo, Ohio; Louis Trudell of the Blackhawks, Boston, Mass., and Leroy Goldsworthy of Canadiens, Two Harbors, Minn.

There is evidence that Americans will continue to indulge in the game that has taken many Yankee cities by storm. Lester Patrick, Manager of the Rangers, has become a big booster of the game in the United States and he has secured many an amateur team on his way. An International Intercollegiate Hockey League is expected to get under way next year with Yale, Princeton and Dartmouth playing series of home and home games with McGill, Toronto Queen's and Western.

KITCHENER READY FOR THE PLAYOFFS

Score 11 Wins in 18 Starts And Look Best For Finals

Kitchener Greenshirts, only team in the group to score more games so far in the season than the opposition were ready today for the Western Senior Group playoffs in the Ontario Hockey Association. Kitchener finished the schedule last night with an easy 8-1 victory over Brantford.

Greenshirts scored 11 wins in 18 starts and will be heavily favored to win the playoffs over either Niagara Falls Cataracts or Hamilton Pats. Brantford is deep in the cellar.

Kowalchuk, brilliant wingman, scored four goals and was credited with one assist in the Kitchener win, while Kuntz bagged two goals and had two assists.

Hamilton's Fighting Pats kept in the running by blanking Niagara Falls 4-0 at Hamilton. The Pats piled up a 3-0 lead in the first period when Litsen, Osborne and Conick scored. Conick scored again in the second period.

BRADDOCK RESTING—James J. Braddock who wears the crown of heavyweight champion on the early beach has exchanged the leather mitts for a rod and reel, as he relaxes at Miami, Fla. While James has been vacationing, his main contender, Joe Louis, pulmans the opposition. But handsome Jimmy doesn't seem to worry very much—yet.

Open Battle for Regular Jobs On Cardinals

(By Alan Gould)

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

MIAMI BEACH, Feb. 4.—(AP)—More power and an outfield "symphony in M" to support the hammering hurling of the celebrated Dean boys represent the keynotes of St. Louis Cardinals' theme song for the 1936 baseball campaign.

Circumstances have compelled the former world champions to do some experimenting this spring. The shakeup hasn't been as drastic as anticipated, after the Cardinals "blew" in the stretch last season, but re-inforcements have been summoned from the "Chain gang".

"There will be a wide open battle for most of the regular jobs", forecast Branch Rickey, the Club's executive mastermind today. "We have an exceptionally fine group of youngsters who will make every veteran on the team hustle when we call the roll at Bradentown".

The passing of the veteran, Jack Rothrock and Ernie Orsatti, emphasized the need for outfield shakeup.

"Both were fast losing power," explained Rickey. "Rothrock once an all-field hitter, good for many long drives, is now a dying out singles. It was the same with Orsatti. We need more punch.

Medwick Packs Punch

"It looks now as though Joe Medwick, Terry Moore and Pepper Martin will do all the outfielding and a good deal of the hitting we need. Medwick packs our punch, Moore is a sophomore, who should do much better this year. Martin will cover lots of ground and I look for him to hit more consistently.

"Pepper's shift to right-field from third base, where he has started for the past two years, is prompted by the fact we have some great young infielders coming up. There's Lyle Judy, for instance, a speed boy and a great prospect. Then too, Charley Gelbert made a wonderful comeback after nearly losing his foot in a hunting accident and he can play third base."

The loss of Bill Delancey, hard-hitting young backstop who has been seriously ill is a big blow to the Cardinals but Big Virgil Davis will be the no. one target for the Dean boys. He is considered the speediest start or this year's Cardinal staff.

Chuck Conacher's Wife Files Suit for Divorce

Toronto, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Application for divorce was contained in a writ filed yesterday at Osgoode Hall by Mrs. Charles Conacher, wife of the Toronto Maple Leaf star right winger. Conacher is in Boston where Leafs play Bruins tonight in a National Hockey League game.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

"I don't believe that I asked you to make this sacrifice," Brant's voice was smoothered. "I made you a straight forward business proposal. You agreed. But instead of sticking to your word you took advantage of my helplessness to get us both in this corner."

"Well, just a moment!" Dale's nails were driving into her palms. What Kemp had said the night before flashed into her mind. "That's another thing—you said something about that yesterday but then I didn't know what you meant. Now I think I do. If you think I'm doing this because—because your family is wealthy, you're wrong. You're horribly wrong! I don't expect your family to be grateful if you get well and—and frees us thoroughly."

The man's eyes were slits of steel. His tone was dry. "Then why did you buy this confounded plane?"

"Because there was nothing else to do. The doctor said you'd get well if I took you out here. It was up to me to—to play the game. I knew you wouldn't come by yourself. There was nobody else to do it but me——"

"I don't see that you were obliged," Brant said in a hard tone. "A meaningless ceremony——"

"That's just it." Dale interrupted and Brant found the level stare of her brown eyes disconcerting. "The whole thing seemed like—like—nonsense—for making light of everything. Oh, laugh if you want to! Just the name it was rotten of us to make a joke of it."

"And so you're doing penance by staying out here with such me?" Brant's curt laugh drove the color to the girl's cheeks again. "Well, please consider your ordeal at an end. I don't believe I'm worth the sacrifice!"

For a moment their eyes fenced. Tempers had long passed the danger mark. Each was secretly amazed at the other's ability to hurt, as a consequence they struck, blindly with words.

"I cannot regret inflicting my company upon you since the attention was not of my choosing," said Brant in a voice shaking with anger, "but rest assured I shall remove myself as soon as it is practical——"

"Don't bother," Dale interrupted hotly, "I am leaving tomorrow."

Two angry people cooped in a wooden prison beneath a canvas sky..... The rest of the afternoon passed like a bad dream. Dale's mind went over and over the bitter scene. Play the game..... a fine game it had turned out to be! she thought in bitter contempt. Well, it was over. Tomorrow she would go down to the Waldos. She would ask Pa to come for her trunk. Tomorrow..... she would go today if her arms didn't hurt so.

Tossing on his bed in the stuffy front room Ross was pacing his own wretched thoughts. What a fool he'd been to get into that mess. Now he was stranded—all his money sunk in this miserable hovel. And tomorrow Dale was going..... He hated her..... He hated himself.

Swift as clubs Black crept on night pressing about the small house of hate. A coyote howled and Brant, listening in the dark cursed it under his breath. What a country for a man to get well in. What a country for a girl to deliberately choose to live in! He drew a long breath. If it was true—what the girl had said this afternoon—if she had really come out here through an excessive sense of honor, why—why—Good Lord, it was splendid! It was noble!

For a moment Brant's eyes went wide and soft in the dark. The bitter crust about his heart broke. The little frail figure lying....stand-ing up to him like that! And he'd been in a beast of a temper. He'd been ragged with the heat and the ringing loneliness.....

Then the old distrust surged back over the man again. Noble—that was honey! Women were all alike in their sinister little materialists seeking only to advance themselves. Look at Mimi—he'd known Mimi if ever one human knew another and see what Mimi had done, destroyed his faith, his life for a whim. And this cheap little dancer—how could he expect anything else?

Then Brant found that he was sitting bolt upright, straining to the sound in the room beyond. That girl in there—she was crying.....

A moment to pull on trousers and shirt. Another moment and Brant was over by the door.

"Dale—" he called, "Is something the matter?"

He heard her gulp like a child. "It's my sunburn..... I'm nearly crazy!"

The man groped his way into the room and lit the lamp. As he turned to the girl a wave of pity went over him. Her face looked so small and lear drenched about the two bare ropes of yellow hair. Brant checked an exclamation when he saw her bare shoulders and arms. The delicate skin had turned an angry red and it was beginning to blister.

The face Dale lifted to him worked like a child's. "It woke me up..... you can't imagine the terrible fire of it. Wave after wave of fire going over me.....I can't lie down——"

Brant swore softly. "And we have'nt a thing in the place to use," I suppose!" Desperately his eyes went about the room feeling that the girl was watching him in forlorn hope. He ordered into the kitchen and returned with the tin of salad oil.

"It's a makeshift but it will help some. It'll take away that dry tightness anyway."

Gentle as a woman, Brant swabbed the oil on the tortured girl. All of his resentment had crumbled away. Secret admiration was creeping over him. Game little devil she was! Never even whined when he touched her. And not a word of reproach either..... Of course there isn't exactly his fault—yet in a way it was..... Good little soldier, that hurt, didn't it! Not many girls would have taken that without tearing the roof!

How young she looked with her hair hanging about her face and that lacy thick thing on..... She seemed no older than his own kid sister she had'nt seen her in years as though he were taking care of Nance now.

Unexpected tenderness welled in Brant. His voice was husky. "Never mind, dear, you'll be better in the morning.....

CHAPTER 22.

After Brant left her Dale lay uncomfortably propped on pillows so that her burning arms and shoulders should not bear the weight of her body. The burning pain kept her from sleep; she started with wide eyes at the window where the large bright stars of the desert blazed in a section of grey sky.

Her mind reviewed the happenings of the day..... the meeting with Pa and Honey..... the bitter quarrel with Brant..... the strange change of the past half hour..... Even through the torture of having oil applied to the blisters Dale had noticed Brant's face. She had never known that he could look like that, gentle and anxious—tender even. She was acutely aware now, even through the dark of the half opened door leading to his room.

"I'm leaving the door ajar," he had said, "if the pain gets too bad, call me."

Dale had not called him. She wouldn't, she knew, but that open door was comforting somehow. She held her breath and listened for the sound of his breathing through the dark. She could hear nothing. Was Brant, too, lying motionless, thinking? Did he too feel this curious sense of companionship through the dark?

Something of the enchantment of the night was lost the next morning, but the pendulum had not swung back to the point of yesterday. Brant too had done some deep thinking and he had the grace to feel more than a little ashamed. If the girl had acted as she did through some rare sportsman like quality what an ungracious beast she must think him! He flushed red at the memory of things he had said and tried to make amends by his actions.

Brant had plenty of opportunity, for after the manner of a bad burn, Dale's shoulders and arms were much worse this morning. After one attempt to get up and put on her clothes she had given up in despair. Crying from pain and a maddening sense of helplessness she slumped back on the creaking cot.

Had she been less tortured, Dale might have found amusement in Brant's awkward attempts to put the room in order. His struggle with the breakfast eggs was tragic. The coffee was weak and he burnt the toast. As he attempted to tidy the room he came across the half packed suitcase. It fell open as he moved it and Brant straightened like a man pulled by a wire.

"You were—going away?" he asked the girl in a tight voice.

Dale closed her eyes wearily. "Yes," she answered.

The silence which followed made her look up. Brant was looking down at the girl with an expression which she could not read. He said nothing further but as he dressed her burns later he was infinitely patient—infinitely tender.

Propped up in bed later, the stack of magazines which Honey had donated yesterday, within her reach, Dale looked about her. In some subtle way the shabby room had changed. It had taken on the color of something Dale had never known in all her starved life—it had taken on the appearance of home.

Brant came in from feeding the chickens and paused in the open doorway. He held a handful of eggs and he flashed a grin across the room at the girl.

"I haven't hunted eggs since I was a little shaver visiting my grandmother in the country," he said. His brown hair had fallen over his forehead and the grey eyes held a laughing light. He seemed almost startlingly young and boyish.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Dorsky, who was lolling in a chair before his tent, leaped to his feet as he heard Tarzan's cry. The blacks quietly seized their weapons.

"That's Dorsky asked his black boy. "A noise comes only from the jungle."

"What was he said: "Such as he neared the tent, he went more slowly and held his revolver ready in his hand.

"Well have a look at the prisoner," said Dorsky. But the black held back and the white man went on alone. A strange foreboding filled him; so that Entering the tent, he saw the man lying where he had been left; now his eyes were open and in them, the Russian saw an expression like that of a wild beast that had been caught in a trap. It sent a shiver up his spine.

"Soyou have come to," said Dorsky. "What do you want?"

The captive made no reply but his eyes never left the other's face. So steady was Tarzan's gaze that Dorsky became uneasy. "You had better learn to talk," he said angrily.

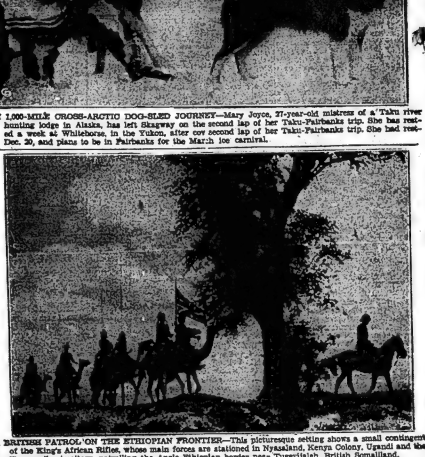
ON 1,000-MILE CROSS-ARCTIC DOG-SLED JOURNEY—Mary Joyce, 21-year-old mistress of a Taku river hunting lodge in Alaska, has left Skagway on the second lap of her Taku-Fairbanks trip. She has rested a week at Whitehorse, in the Yukon, after cov ering second lap of her Taku-Fairbanks trip. She had rest- Dec. 20, and plans to be in Fairbanks for the March ice carnival.

AUSTRALIA'S FAVORITE SON—Australia has a favorite child to love. He is Charles Kingsford-Smith Jr., a beautiful curly-headed blonde boy, who spent his third birthday picking flowers. Perhaps the blossoms were in memory of his father, the famous Australian airman, who disappeared while on a flight from England to his home continent, last year. Since it is generally believed that Kingsford-Smith has died, the Antipodes have taken his son to their hearts.



WILLINGDON NEARS END OF TERM—Huge crowds gathered at Howrah station in Calcutta to give a rousing farewell to Lord Willingdon whose term of office as viceroy of India ends in April. He is shown with Lady Willingdon at the station. Lord Willingdon, a former governor-general of Canada, will, it is reported, return to England to take over an undesignated government appointment.

TURF MONARCHS PREPARE FOR DUEL IN SANTA ANITA HANDICAP—Two of the fine thoroughbreds nominated to start. In the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap, the turf's richest purse event, do a bit of preparing in their own way. At the top, Alfred G. ...dill's famed Discovery, winner of many of racing's highest prizes, breezes through his first public workout in fast time. But the threat from Discovery doesn't worry Mrs. Isabel Dodge Sloan's great Cavalcade and that mighty monarch of the turf spends a glorious half hour rolling in his sand pit. If these two start at top form, racing should see one of the greatest duels of all time.

The heavyweight boxing champion wants to take up the sport and he is anxious to do it the right way. He wants to get into shape early for a future bout with Joe Louis.

Etiquette — 80 Years Ago

Eighty years ago it was "not the elegant" to gnaw corn on the cob. The use of the tooth pick at the table was denounced, as was spitting and smoking in the streets or at the theatre was only indulged in by shop boys and pseudo-fashionable idlers. Living in these days was a distinctly different experience from that of today, it is revealed by the pages of a book now in our possession, "The American Ladies' and Gentlemen's Manual of Etiquette, Fashion and True Politeness," which this book, compiled by Charles William Day are to be found many amusing notes on manners of a by gone age.

In the chapter on dinners it is pointed out, "The comfort of napkins is denied to those desirous to be genteel, while the cost can quite easily be urged as an objection. Even there be not any napkins a man there be not any excuse, he has no alternative but to be without handkerchief—an usage sufficiently disagreeable."

"At family dinners where the common household napkin is used, however, it is better to cut less than an inch and one half thick. There is nothing more unsightly than thin bread at dinner.

"It is not proper to gnaw Indian corn. The kernels should be cut off into the plate and called scraped off into the plate and called with a knife. Ladies should be particularly careful how they manage to cleanse the exhibition rub off a little desirable romance.

"Do not pick your teeth much at the table, as, however necessary it may be for yourself, to witness it is not at all pleasant.

"Finger glasses filled with warm water come on with the dessert. Wet a corner of your napkin, not your mouth, then rinse your wet mouth, not your fingers; but do not make a filthy display of gargling your mouth at table, albeit, the usage previous to dinner.

"If you are so unfortunate as to have contracted the bad habit of smoking, be careful to practice it under certain restrictions, or else no lady or gentleman desirous of being fit for civilized society.

"Spitting is a gentleman practice is a sensitive regard for the feeling of others, therefore smoke and spit as little as possible. It is at least likely to prove personally offensive by making your mouth and smell them with your breath and brush your teeth. What man of delicacy could possibly address a lady with his breath smelling of cigars? Tobacco is a vegetable poison. The tobacco smoker in public is the most selfish animal imaginable; he is guilty in contemplating the pure and fragrant air, carriers of which he pollutes and is but the filthy fumes of a brewery.

"Smoking in the theatre is only practiced by shop boys and pseudo-fashionables.

"All we ask that you may see written in praise of smoking, in magazines, newspapers, or hear it sung upon the stage are "puffs" paid for by the proprietors of the tobacco trade and tobacco shops to make the trade popular—therefore never believe or be deluded by them.

"Never be seen in clear dirous; they are frequented at best by an equivocal set. Nothing good can be gained beyond a mug less in self-respectability by being seen enter-ing or coming out of such places.

On Dancing

"Lead the lady through the quadrille; do not drag her or clasp her hand as if it were made of wood or lead she unhaply think you a boor.

"You will not, if you are wise, stand up in the quadrille without something of the figure; therefore if you are a master of the dance you can better. But dance steps as set out in books are taught quickly; do not kick or caper about, nor sway your body to and fro; dance only from the hips downwards, and let the lady as lightly as you would tread a measure with a spirit of possession.

"Do not place yourself on going steps nearly unless you are assured terms of being on a friendly manner; between whose motions and those of a gentleman there is a great difference.

"If a lady waltzes with you be sure that you have her waist; you must only lightly touch it with the palm of your hand, lest you leave a disagreeable impression not only on her dress but on her self.

"Do not wear black or colored gloves, lest your partner may unhappily prove to be in mourning wore white gloves, not black. People in deep mourning should not dress in any manner at all.

"Never enter a room of an evening without white gloves; they are the best. Wear them white silk are often used. Your dress coat and pants should be black, with a white or light vest. Let the neck tie be of white silk or satin, or silk; an upright collar is always more dressy than a turned down one.

"When the dance is concluded, conduct your partner to a seat and show the usual attentions; she may require a shawl scarf, refreshments, she may wish to promenade, or to have fan, for the time being; her most honorable reward would be your acceptance.

"If at some fashionable party you should, surprising, not appear to notice it. Your host, if a gentleman, will offer you his apology of the calamity, nor say, as is sometimes done by ill-bred persons, "Oh, it is of no consequence."

"Gentility is neither in birth, manner, or fashion, but in the mind. A high sense of honor—a delicate sensation and an exalted love of the vantage of another—an adherence to truth, delicacy and politeness towards those with whom you may have dealings, are the essential and distinguishing characteristics of a gentleman.

"If while walking up and down the promenade, you should meet friends or acquaintances whom you do not intend to join, it is only necessary to salute them the first time of passing, for to bow or to nod to them every round would be tiresome and therefore improper. It not be afraid that they will think you sort of unfriendly, for if they have any sense at all they will appreciate your reasons.

"An elegant manner has much snuff without losing "casta."

"Doctor," said an old gentleman with an inveterate snuff taker, "is it a physician, "is it true that snuff destroys the effect of wrinkles and otherwise injuries the skin?" "Why, sometimes," was the cautious reply, "since those who have snuff brains never take snuff at all."

Trenton and District

Trenton, Feb. 4 (Special)—A local man appeared before Magistrate J. J. Butler here today charged with being intoxicated and was fined ten dollars and costs.

A brother of the first local man to be charged with permitting a nuisance in his house contrary to Section 36 of the Liquor Control Act and was fined ten dollars and costs.

Commission Continues Probe in Private

Toronto, Feb. 4 — (CP)—Judge J. J. Coughlin and Duncan C. Ross, sitting as a Royal Commission to investigate Police Department affairs, continued their inquiry today in private. There will be no public session until Thursday, the Commission planning to meet again tomorrow in probing police department administration.

Counsel for the three Boards of Police Commissioners, Chief Constable D. C. Draper and the police and newspaper editors have been invited to give any information or suggestions they may have regarding the Toronto police force or its administration. Private audiences will be arranged, they were told in a statement from the Bench yesterday by Judge Coughlin.

The Commissioners announced they had completed investigation of former Constable W. J. Watty and committees 26 constables formed a "gang" looting stores and warehouses they were paid to protect.

When public hearings resume Thursday as Police Inspector William Miller may be called to substantiate charges he made in a newspaper interview that Chief Draper "meddled" in civic politics. Commission Counsel Norman Newton said Miller's evidence would be in public.

'OD' STAMPED ON WRENCH CLAIMED

Crown Counsel In O'Donnell Case Intimates New Evidence

Toronto, Feb. 4.—(CP)—Crown Attorney William Henry O'Donnell charged with murdering 30-year-old Sarah Taylor and robbing her in a ravine here November fourth last, slowly took form today. Prosecution evidence began at the Assizes yesterday before Mr. Justice Hope Hartt and Arthur Ivey as the 26-year-old service station attendant watched intently from the prisoner's box with little show of emotion.

Police witnesses established the attractive stenographer took a street car home after working until 11 p.m. and was last seen getting off the car at a transfer point a few hundred yards from the ravine where she was found dead next day. Her skull crushed and her clothing torn from her body.

C. G. McEwan, K.C., Crown Prosecutor, indicated he would produce a woman witness who heard a struggle and alerted about from the neighborhood of the ravine the night Miss Taylor was killed. The Crown Prosecutor said he also would call a motorist, who reported he had to swerve his car to avoid striking a man and a woman struggling across the street car tracks near the ravine that night.

Dr. Gordon Smith, stamped with the initials "OD" had been found on the dead girl's body, he told the jurors in a quick summary of the Crown's case, and a steel wrench, identified as that the wrench would be established as having belonged to O'Donnell, was spell formerly worked.

Charles Herron, Cox, streetcar motorman, said he knew Miss Taylor by sight and saw her get off the car near the ravine. A man got off the car at the same time, "a tall, slender man" with a cap and a topcoat. Directed to look at a photograph, he declared it was O'Donnell, who got off the car after the girl. Cox said he had visited the morgue with Miss Taylor's friend dead and identified her as the girl on his car.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

No individual living is without a nickname, now I, nor anybody. Each one of us is likely to make mistakes, both ourselves and friends and somehow, at some time or other, create doubt in the minds of those who care for us.

And when we do commit error, then we fall from the pedestal of adoring or believed person, have placed on on, there is a crust and harsh awakenings usually hurt!

And in a like manner does it hurt when the reverse is true— when we are disappointed in somebody else! To guard against such heartaches we must also guard against the habit of mind that leads to those catastrophies. We must realize our own human frailties—those that everybody possesses—and stop over-idealizing.

We tend too often and too much to overestimate in every particular: someone whom we admire in one way or another. We became acquainted with a stranger on a railway journey or a steamship, for instance; he appears gentlemanly and kind. We are led to believe, therefore, that he is a fine character in every one of his activities—in business, in his home, in his social relationships, let us say.

But he turns out quite differently! He does something that surprises us. We shrink or exclaim, "Another idol smashed", we wail.

But is not the fault really ours! We should have been aware of the principles set forth above and been on our guard. We had no right to hero-worship. We had no business to expect that human nature is many-sided and essentially weak.

But this over-idealization streak in all of us dates back to childhood and is deep-rooted. We worship our parents as children, especially during the tender years between five and eight. Then those we loved seemed without fault.

And the habit sick. When we like people we want to love them in every way and without reservations we jump at conclusions and deserving the pendulum of admiration too far.

Much of course, be suspicious of everyone you meet. But be reasonable, and use judgment before it is too late.

The best way to remain free of disillusions is to over-idealize as little as possible. Judge people for what they really are.

Before you form a friendship, try to see the man or woman, as the case may be, under as many different circumstances as possible. Particularly is this desirable between members of the opposite sex.

Over-idealism in love often steps in too soon, and what otherwise would have been a happy and lasting marriage becomes, after the contrasting parties have really acquainted, a union of mistrust and disappointment.

Watch your step in your relationship with others. Idealize only when it is deserved.

The Haymaker

By HAL G. VERMES

Of course we call him Bezzer Bertie on account of his nose. Not because it's so big but because it's left of it is jammed plumb deep into his mug.

It was way back the year when Man o' War copped the Futurity Stakes at Belmont. Bertie was only a kid then, though he already stood six foot two and topped the scales at 210 stripped. He'd been following the hides since he was a shaver and had worked for Jim Power's sweltes to usher in the field stand. But that year he got a big notion to be a fighter. Like all of us when we're maidens, he figured he was due to lick the world.

That's the season he meets up with Mickey McKork and me. Mickey takes one look at the boy standing over eighteen hands high and says: "There's a big boy and a big nose like you kid. What was you planning on doing with yourself when you grow up.

"Why," Bertie tells him, "I'm thinking on going to college."

"College!" laughs Mudder. "What you want to get a education for outside of me?"

"You!" I bursts out. "Why, you was thrown out of school because you couldn't learn to write your own monicker!"

"I'll have to tighten your mattle," say Mudder to me. "Why, I was a quarter-back at Concordia college for thirteen seasons."

"Yeah, I heard on the line," I says, "that you was still a freshman."

"Never neither there 'ere here," Mudder cuts me out. "What we got to do is take this big bum from him a head start in life. Listen, son, can you use your nuts?" he asks Bertie. Bertie makes a swing which goes wild, and after Mudder rounds him up with a left he suggests off his britches, he say to me: "Man, from now on I'm a silent man from now on what's going to cop us plenty cherries."

"Right," I says. "I only idea you got in your skull now!" I asks him.

"You are pounding my ear, you pounder," he replies, "and I am the manager of Battling Bertie here."

I got to admit that to me it don't sound a lot like a idea. Maybe it's maybe that's because I always been near-sighted. Anyhow, the way it looks to me is we got a elephant on our hands who was only interested in his food, his nap and is sick and tired of looking a hide in the face and the idea that he says that he never want to clean a stall again it will be too soon.

Well, Mudder gets a old kind-hearted guy, he draws up a usual contract; 50 per cent to him for managing the kid, 40 cents-for promoting the bouts, and all the rest of the dough to the boy himself.

Then we gets a couple handlers and takes him out to the farm where Mudder he's a grounded down to 185 and razor sharp. Meanwhile I arranges to get a couple of bouts for him just to see how he stacks up.

Now you know that you can't get a maiden down on no high class card right off. But that's okay with us. Mudder figures that anybody builds this Battling Bertie into a real slugger, just let him get a few bouts and knocked off him. In other words, we know that he'll be able to dish it out all right, but what we want to know first, is can he take it?

So the bout I arranges for him is with Killer Kelly from Pine Bluff, Louis. From that name I get, this bruiser Kelly don't fight according to no Marquis of Queensberry rules, but that's what I want because I know if our Bertie can take it from Killer, he can take it from anybody.

When Kelly comes up to Chi for the battle in a little arena down by the stock yards, our Bertie is ready, all primed and set to go to work on him.

"Gentlemen," Bertie says to Mudder McKork and me, "you don't have to worry none what I'm going to do to this Killer Kelly. When I goes in the ring all I got to do is think of all the times I was called a mermaid for and I gets mad enough to bust a few blood vessels.

But I ain't going to describe that fight again because it was too terrible. Suffice it to say that after thirty seconds to the gong in the first round our Bertie looks like the favourite, when Killer Kelly lifts a haymaker all the way from the mat, swings it around over his head, and lands it smack in the middle of Bertie's map. Bertie looks terribly surprised for a second and then goes down for the count of a million.

Well, when Killer Kelly and his manager had got over the shock and the arena was empty, Bertie opens one eye and asks: "Where am I?" I had found out by that time, and when I tells him, he says: If that's what happens when you get mad, I'll take me book to the turf, boys, and let a kind old gent support me in face."

With that he passes out again for three days.

And that's why we call him Bezzer Bertie; because his nose is now only a little bit out of center. Mickey Kelly carried a horseshoe in his glove.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

The overweight obsession which many women have keeps them from eating sufficient food to furnish the necessary amount of daily heat energy required by the body. Of course the kind of work a woman does makes a difference. A laundress doing muscular work, for example, requires about a thousand calories more than a woman of leisure.

HAD TO STRUGGLE TO ESCAPE FIRE

Inquest Ordered After Five Burned in House Fire

Lemberg, Sask., Feb. 4.—(CP)—With Dr. G. A. Findlay, coroner, presiding an inquest was scheduled to open today into the death of Joseph Jost, 62, and five of his children in the fire that destroyed their farm house.

Annie Jost, 16, only survivor of the seven persons in the home, escaped the half million northwest of here and 60 miles northeast of Regina, will be the chief witness at the inquest. Last night she informed Dr. Findlay and Royal Canadian Mounted Police she had to struggle from her father to escape the fire.

In the presence of her mother, Annie described to Dr. Findlay and police her battle with her father to escape from the burning house. Her mother and three other children spent Sunday night at Lemberg and Annie was the eldest of the children in the home with their father, when the fire started early Monday morning.

Annie said her father seized her and held her after she had broken a window with a chair in an attempt to escape and save lives in the house. She broke away, when the other children started to cry and her father went to them. She suffered severe frostbites to the feet and legs as she crawled half a mile to a neighbor's home for help.

Besides Jost, the five children who lost their lives in the fire were Raymond, 11; Lucy, 9; Irene, 7; Genevieve, 4, and Margaret, 1 1-2 years old.

of real cases of unemployment relief "but there will be only enough to satisfy the need and not greed," he stated.

Municipalities Notified

Municipalities have been notified by the province to "purge" the payrolls, cut the number of recipients to the legitimate minimum—but to maintain adequate living standards. The fact that the province will set the maximum as to what the municipalities should receive, "as indicated by recent government surveys," however, will not hamper the entire administration of relief in the hands of the province. The government's contention is that expositors and cheaters are cluttering up the relief rolls and that this laxity and exploitation have been revealed to an extent that "demands immediate and decisive action."

We know the extent of real need in the municipalities," said Mr. Croll. "Our maximum will cover that adequately. If a municipality does not purge its lists, the maximum will not cover its relief costs. It must look elsewhere for funds and it must only look to its own taxpayers. Our new policy is, therefore, a matter of justice or pay, so far as the municipalities are concerned. All municipalities will be notified shortly what that maximum will be."

The Provincial Minister made it plain that continuation of the new rate after March 31 was contingent upon renewal of the Dominion agreement for a monthly contribution of $1,000,000 towards relief costs in Ontario. Every cent of that income was for work relief only, the municipalities, Mr. Croll emphasized.

Hereafter the province would continue to need Federal assistance in dollar-for-dollar and transfer the benefit to the municipalities.

April 1st Deadline

April 1 has been set as the deadline for the completion of the purge. After that date the Province will continue to contribute on the 75 per cent basis if the municipalities not only up to maximum amounts established upon "legitimate relief needs," as indicated in surveys. Mr. Croll said there would be enough money to take care of the cases of unemployment relief.

"Our maximum will not cover it," he continued. "No suffering for legitimate relief needs is permitted. Our standard, highest in Canada, must be maintained.

"The 75 per cent grant means much to all municipalities," commented Hon. Earle Minister. "But I believe the 'purge' will have a more far-reaching effect. Isolated efforts have been made to cut illegitimate recipients from the rolls, but never till now has the problem been attacked on a province-wide basis. For months scouts of relief inspectors have been examining the situation in every part of Ontario. Firm, fearless and exploitation—the three foes of efficient administration—have been revealed to an extent that demands immediate and decisive action. We're supplying that action. Aid will be adequate but will be given only where warranted. Provincial regulations are in effect."

Important Departure

Refusal of partial relief to the lowest-paid workers is an important departure in the new policy.

"The low paid worker is not the 'highest believer,' explained Mr. Croll. "We have the exploiting employer to contend with as well. Thousands of men, solely because of their idleness, are being paid five to six dollars a week for full-time work. Many of them have been so brazenly by their employers: 'It's no use, but you can get partial relief.' That shameful condition will continue just so long as we grant partial relief to full-time workers. Overwhelmingly, we have been submitting private enterprise and knowing the general wage rate. Well, that must end before April 1st, but a willing worker, who is the victim of circumstance must be looked after and adequate relief must and will be given to him."

Are you a STRANGER in your own home?

IT'S A FUNNY THING—but most people don't half see their own homes. We pass by both the fine points and the places that need fixing, without a glance, without a thought.

Yes, we all do this—until some day we decide to look around and really discover the place we live in . . . Let's start with the living-room. The couch set—how dingy and dull it looks. And there's a rough place where the cat sharpens his claws. The little rug in the hall is ragged and frayed. (Why, that's a disgrace!) And that table top certainly must be done over. The mantel looks positively bare, since Ted broke that lovely green vase. And all those magazines and papers—what we need is a good-looking stand to hold them.

You see the point. Lots of little things need doing. And it doesn't take lots of money to do them, one at a time . . . Just make a list of what's needed and then keep watching the advertisements in this newspaper for good buys at low prices. Now's a fine time to find all sorts of good things for the house (February for furniture!) things you've been needing a long time, maybe, things you can have now without spending too much.

Jury Returns Indictments Against Vice-Ring Leaders

Eleven Men Are Held on Total Bail of $500,000

ARREST PROCURER

21 Year Old Girl Acted as Scout For Vice-Ring

New York, Feb. 4 (AP)—Federal agents joined with police of eastern states tonight to crush a highly organized vice-ring operating in connection with an estimated annual $12,000,000 business.

The ring, officers said, held 2,000 persons as virtual slaves in 300 houses.

In an unprecedented late night session of six hour panel vice grand jury, Special Rackets Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey obtained indictments against 11 alled "master-minds" of the ring who were held in a total bail of almost $500,000.

Made $1,500,000 Annually

Among them was Peter Bartino, alias Peter Harris, arrested in Philadelphia for extradition, and charged with compulsory prostitution. He is alleged to have made $1,500,000 a year in vice.

Federal agents in Philadelphia also arrested a 21-year-old girl as the "chief of procurement" of a syndicate operating in New Jersey from New York headquarters.

As an aftermath of the simultaneous raids made Saturday night on 94 houses, indicating the drive, Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine indicated divisional shakeups in the New York police department might follow.

Of the leaders indicted in New York, four were held in $75,000 bail. The lowest bail set was $10,000.

Held as material witnesses were 76 women and seven men.

Obituary

SAM LEWIN (Cash)

Galt, Feb. 4—(CP)—Sam Lewin popular in local sport circles, died in his thirty-fourth year. He had been ill with heart trouble for a year, and for the past two months had been in the hospital. Born in Midland, he moved to Hamilton when he was a boy, and came to Galt 20 years ago. He was a well-known baseball catcher, playing with local junior, intermediate and senior teams. Then he turned to golf and after several years as pro became an umpire. A widow and small children, big fathers, two brothers and a sister survive.

LATE WILLIAM J. RYAN

Monday afternoon the funeral of William James Ryan, late of 44 Caithness Street, took place from the Martin Funeral Home, Dereham St. A short service was held in the funeral home after which the funeral procession proceeded to Victoria Avenue Baptist Church where an impressive service was conducted by the pastor, the Rev. A. G. Sinclair, assisted by the Rev. W. J. Merrick of Carnation. During the service Mr. Fred Jobson sang a solo in keeping with the occasion. Many friends were present at the service and the floral tributes were numerous and beautiful.

The bearers were Messrs H. Brenton, G. Denike, T. Peacock, F. Gerow, G. Ellis and Beecher Doolittle.

Interment was made in the Shannonville cemetery. The Rev. A. G. Sinclair conducted the service at the graveside.

GEORGE H. MYLES

Old friends in this district will regret to learn of the death of George H. Myles, a former resident of this county, which occurred at his late residence in Burlington, Vermont, on Saturday, February 1st.

The late Mr. Myles was born in Hastings County 81 years ago, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. R. Myles. His early life was spent in this district, being engaged in the building trade. During residence here he was held in high esteem by a large circle of friends. In religion he was a member of the Methodist Church.

About thirty-five years ago the late Mr. Myles went to reside in the United States and in his business undertakings in that country he was successful.

Surviving him besides his widow are one brother, Mr. Fred Myles, of the United States, and one sister, Mrs. Harry Foster, Demorestville.

The funeral took place at Burlington, Vermont, on Monday, February 3rd.

MRS. LAURA BATEMAN

Mrs. Laura Bateman died at noon today, (Tuesday), after a lengthy illness at her home on North Front Street. She was 86 years of age.

The late Mrs. Bateman was born at Jerseyville, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sipp and she spent the earlier part of her life there. Her husband predeceased her about 35 years ago.

Mrs. Bateman was a woman possessing many fine traits of character and was a member of Bridge Street United Church. She was well known and highly respected by a large circle of friends. Funeral notice later.

CHAMBER'S PLAN FOR RELIEF AID

Canadian Organization Expects Federal Legisla-tion.

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Relief the relief policy of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce—co-ordination of the entire Canadian unemployment relief program—is likely to be implemented as the forthcoming session of parliament was expressed to the Canadian Chamber of Commerce today in the annual report prepared by W. McL. Clarke, secretary.

Relief recommendations, placed before members of parliament last April, urged appointment of an advisory committee to lay down comparable standards of relief administration to be observed by each province and enforced on municipalities as a condition of further federal aid. It also asked unemployment relief payments of such nature as to encourage those out of work to seek employment in private industry.

The chamber stressed sound public finance and two of its policies emphasized balanced budgets and a royal commission to survey the whole field of Canadian government expenditures.

Budget Balancing.

To stress sound public finance, the National Committee instituted an annual award on which would be placed the names of those municipalities showing definite progress along the lines of balanced budgets, reduction of expenditures and decreased taxation.

The Chamber disapproved the Federal Act establishing the Canadian Wheat Board, said the report.

The report referred to the establishment of a National Immigration Committee under the chairmanship of W. M. Birks of Montreal during the year and said it was the committee's general opinion Canada should increase per population by immigration, particularly British, as soon as conditions would permit. The committee's feeling was this immigration should be confined in as full a measure as possible to agriculturists.

MEAT HANDLERS' SECOND DAY IDLE

Fears Held in Some Quarters Strike May Spread

London, Feb. 4 (AP)—A strike of meat handlers at the great Smithfield Central Market went into its second day today with London housewives wondering whether they would be forced to resort to meatless menus. The supply available from cold storage was said to be probably sufficient to prevent a serious shortage for two or three days.

Dockers at many wharves refused to unload ship consignments and authorities expressed fear the dispute might spread from the Smithfield Market, centre of London's meat supply, to the Billingsgate, Spitalfields and Covent Garden Markets which supply the city's fish, fruit and vegetables.

The press commented on the ease with which London's food supplies could be paralyzed, the Daily Express asserting:

"Suppose it was war. Suppose this country was besieged. Ah, then we would start to think about food."

O'DONNELL'S STATEMENTS ADMITTED IN EVIDENCE

No Threat, Inducement Offered by Detectives Justice Jeffery Finds

OVERCOAT'S CONDITION

Detective Tells of Red Stains And Mud on Clothing

Toronto, Feb. 5 (CP)—Discovery of "reddish stains" on the clothes of Harry O'Donnell were the highlight of Detective Sergeant Frank Taylor's testimony before Justice Jeffery this afternoon at O'Donnell's trial for the murder of Jean Patrick, stenographer in an east-end razdine three months ago.

Detective Sergeant James McIlrath of the Toronto police told of finding the stains, the first evening coming just after Mr. Justice Hoiel Jeffrey had ordered O'Donnell's statements which O'Donnell gave police following his detention Nov. 4, the day the victim's body was found in the ravine.

Sergeant McIlrath told of finding the clothes in O'Donnell's home just after he had been taken into custody. The garments, produced in court, had been identified by Mrs. O'Donnell as those she wore the night of the girl's death, the officer said.

Finds Red Stains.

The red stains he said, were found on the prisoner's trousers and hat. Both articles, with the prisoner's coat and shirt, McIlrath said, had dirty blue hairs clinging to them. Previously he had testified that the prisoner found on the girl's body was evidently of blue rabbit hair.

The detective had told also of finding many fallen leaves and twigs stands in the prisoner's home, he said he found a dead leaf clinging to O'Donnell's left sock, several twigs stuck to his clothing.

Went On Clothes.

There was mud on the clothes too, he said. He based his opinion evidence to the effect the ravine was muddy.

McIlrath's story of how the statements were gained from O'Donnell, along with those of the other officers, was expected to come before the jury later in the day. At the lunch adjournment, the Detective Sergeant had not reached the point in his narrative where O'Donnell's home was being searched.

The position O'Donnell heard his testimony with the same outward indifference he had shown since the trial opened Monday. Nor did his expression change when the Crown relied against his counsel on the question of introducing the statements.

O'Donnell's Emotion.

Outsiders manifested more interest in the time that Mr. O'Donnell himself. Scores of persons lined up outside the courtroom as a cessation in the chance to secure a seat. Inside the courtroom the public benches were filled to capacity.

Early yesterday afternoon and throughout, part of today's session the jury in the trial of the first degree murder charge against Mrs. Evelyn Dick, 20-year-old

LOCAL PAINTER IS ARRESTED FOR THEFT

Frank Duby, 41 year old local painter, residing at 108 Jones street, was arrested this morning by Plainclothes Officer Fred Izard on a charge of theft. Clothing valued at Duby was taken into custody, appeared before Police Magistrate Masse and was remanded until Friday without being asked to enter a plea.

According to police Duby stole the articles found in his possession while painting a house at 104 Catherine St. which is occupied by A. L. Thompson. A suit of clothes, a coat, three pair of overalls and a baby's playpen were recovered by police. All of the articles reported stolen by Mr. Thompson were recovered by police and in Duby's possession police stated, except two pair of men's oxfords.

The matter will be thoroughly investigated by police and reported to the court on Friday, police added.

POLICE BLOTTER

Last night's storm and blizzard apparently kept truants out of the classroom today, yesterday and Monday last night, as the truant agents appeared at the police station in quest of a warm night's lodging last night.

When they modestly reversed his direction and stepped into the side of a passing automobile driven by Sanford, age 13 years, of 391 Front St., was knocked down and sustained minor injuries. According to Thomas Hopkins, 178 Station St., who was driving his automobile north on Front St. near the upper bridge, the little Sanford lad ran across the street in front of the motor car, but upon reaching the curb was apparently confused and darted back and ran directly into the side of the automobile. Despite frantic efforts on the part of the driver to swerve his vehicle out of the lad's path. The motorist stopped and rendered what assistance possible, later reporting the matter to the police.

Senator Borah Seeks Republican Nomination

By NATHAN ROBINSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington, Feb. 9 (AP)— "Liberal" and "Conservative" wings of the Republican party today plunged toward a showdown fight after Senator Borah of Idaho had formally entered the United States presidential struggle.

Borah's announcement he would campaign for delegates in the 1940 presidential primary May 12 foreshadowed a wide open race for the nomination. It served as a challenge to other Republican possibilities and to party leaders whom the Idaho Senator has battled.

NO THREAT, SAYS JUDGE AT TRIAL

against the 36-year-old filling station attendant.

Similar testimony was given by Detective Frederick Munro, one of the men who visited O'Donnell after the slain stenographer's rag-soaked body was found in the office of Gerrard Street East, her skull crushed.

O'Donnell heard the testimony of the officers with the calm that has marked his bearing since the trial for his life opened Monday. He sat with his elbow resting on the railing of the prisoner's dock, his glance alternating between the witness box and a window behind it.

He was groomed neatly as ever, wearing the same brown suit with matching tie in which he first came to court. His hair was carefully combed and his blonde moustache closely trimmed.

Spends In Court Filled

Detective Sergeant John Stewart continued the recital of police testimony on O'Donnell's statements. The officer said he had made no conversation with the prisoner.

He was followed by Detective Alexander Duncan, who said he made no threats or promises to obtain a statement.

All seat in the courtroom were filled as the testimony continued.

Outside the courthouse, main entrance and police kept them in line. Three women were among the spectators—the first to appear on court sessions since the trial opened.

McCabbie was the last of the Crown's witnesses on the admissibility of the statement he and McRuer, Crown Counsel, immediately began to argue on the point. No witnesses were called by the defence.

Mr. McRuer said when O'Donnell was first taken into custody there was "no suggestion of threat or influence. It was the officers' duty to take from the accused anything from his home after seeing blue balls, mud and what they believed to be blood on them."

Had to Be Held

O'Donnell had to be held; also, until it might be shown whether the hairs were similar to those of Miss Taylor's blue rabbit hair sweater.

As headquarters, Crown Counsel said there was no evidence to show O'Donnell's statement to O'Donnell had not been "absolutely free", "voluntary" or free from cross-examined or browbeaten in any way, said Mr. McRuer.

Though Mr. McRuer had not been cautioned in his early stages of interrogation, his judgment was one he felt this was proper since O'Donnell was not under charge at that time with murder. He had been given a chance, Mr. McRuer said, to declare his innocence of the crime.

Later, when the murder charge was laid, O'Donnell was told he was cautioned that anything he said might be used against him at his trial, a representative continued. This was the statutory warning.

Several arguments were quoted by Mr. McRuer in support of his contention the statement should be given as evidence. He referred to Rex vs. Rodney in the Ontario Law Reports, where a sheet of conductor was questioned by police about missing tickets, but the pull had not been admitted.

Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey, interrupting the Crown Counsel, said he felt O'Donnell should have been cautioned earlier in the case since he had been virtually under arrest when police left the house with him after finding there clothes he wore the night Ruth Taylor was killed. Police had claimed the clothing were bloodstained and bore blue hairs.

Searchers' Argument

R. H. Saunders, K.C., of defense counsel, argued against admission of the statements, said he believed O'Donnell had considerably more fear than the time officers took him from the gasoline station where he worked before going to his home.

From then on, the lawyer claimed, the police had "no right in the world" to question O'Donnell.

"I do not see that," His Lordship observed.

Mr. Saunders proceeded to quote references in support of his stand.

"Most assuredly," he said after reading a number of cases, "a police officer has not the right to question a prisoner under these circumstances. The very foundation of our system of justice would appear to rest on this."

As To Warning.

"The accused man should be warned," he continued. "It has been said no inducement was offered the accused. But I suggest the arrest was sufficient inducement."

He read from a judgment by Mr. Justice Duff in the case of King vs. Ray, in which His Lordship said the judgment arrest had been "a challenge to the accused to speak, an inducement within the rule."

As the lawyer sought more references, Mr. Justice Jeffrey interjected with the declaration: "The onus is upon the Crown to prove a statement is voluntary."

Continuing, Mr. Saunders outlined the "most important" point of this argument was that O'Donnell, when warned for the first time, refused to talk any further to the police.

"Surely," he claimed, "that carries itself back is anything he said previously."

"Surely," Mr. Saunders continued, "when a man is taken into custody the police have not the right to keep him in custody as long as they like and then lay a charge . . . that man was kept from early in the afternoon until ten o'clock at night before a charge was laid."

Action of Accused.

"The most important thing," he said, "was the action of the accused when he found he was not obliged to make a statement. He made no further statements then.

"I suggest if the police are to be allowed to do what they did in this case there is no use of the caution.

Here the man was cautioned after he made the statement."

"Why shouldn't the statement be used," Mr. Justice Jeffrey interjected. "If it was a voluntary statement?"

Crown counsel then entered upon rebuttal arguments.

"We have fully discharged the onus of proving no threat or inducement was offered," he said, "and that's all we have to do."

"It is quite clear," he continued, "that once we have shown there was no threats, no inducement regardless of caution or no caution, the evidence is admissible."

No Threat or Inducement.

"I am fully determined in my mind," His Lordship said in giving decision and stating there was "no threat or inducement" to the "guilty one" O'Donnell was in virtual custody for some time before his arrest. But this did not constitute an inducement or threat.

He decided to admit the statements and ordered a 10-minute recess.

O'Donnell, apparently unmoved by the loss of a round in his fight for his life, and without a change of expression during the argument and the judge's decision.

"I thought you'd be doing that," His Lordship smiled.

Motorman Recalled.

Charles Cox, motorman of the street car on which Miss Taylor rode the night of Nov. 4, was recalled for cross-examination by defence counsel Percy Regan, K.C.

For two weeks after the girl's death, Cox testified, he had searched for a man who left the street car near the ravine immediately after the murder. He had not found him.

Cox said he was paid by the police for this service, but that he did not find the man. Questioning with regard to the statement was resumed after argument by Crown Counsel.

After Cox, Detective Sergeant James McGuire, one of the men who arrested O'Donnell, was recalled to the witness box testimony. Mainly with respect to O'Donnell's statements.

At O'Donnell's home, he found the clothes O'Donnell wore the night Miss Taylor was slain. They were produced in court and McIlrath identified them.

The overcoat, he said, was damp when found and it held mud stains.

GUNNERS' CLUB CHANGES VENUE

Meetings Will Not Be Held in Battery Headquarters

Members of the Belleville Gunners Club will hold their regular monthly meeting in the 34th Battalion Headquarters from now on, it was decided by unanimous vote of the club at the meeting held last evening.

Invitation to use the artillery headquarters was sent the club by Major C. E. Wills of the 34th Battery. Memorial Hall was the former location of the regular meetings which will be held from now about one year ago.

Direct acceptance of the challenge made by Chief Alexander Kidd on behalf of the local police force for any local club to organization a hockey game was made by the Gunners, who will pick from the following members a hockey team: Russ Fisher, Lionel Harris, James Walmsley, Carl Elser, Peter Bezaire, Harold Hicks, Harry Hall, Fred Wigmore, Bruce Pennington, Wm. Service and Keith Martin. "Dew" Whales will be manager of the team.

As a chief feature of the evening, Wm. Van Steenburgh, entomologist of the local Dominion Entomological Laboratory gave an interesting account of his travels through the southern portion of the United States, dealing particularly with the cot mining industry throughout Pennsylvania County.

CLUBS PROPOSE BIG CARNIVAL

Organization Is Launched in Interest of V. O. N. Cause

Representatives from the four local service clubs, Chief Kidd of the Police Department, the Quinte Skating Club, the Belleville Arena, the Fly Department and other interested groups were on hand at the Arena last night to voice their approval on the proposed monster ice carnival that is to be held at the Belleville Arena in aid of the local Victorian Order of Nurses. Officers were appointed to look after various details and one of the largest ice spectacles ever seen here will be staged by the organization.

RELATIVE STATES MAN SUFFERING MENTAL ILLNESS

Brother-in-law of Deceased Gives Testimony at Inquest

ADJOURNED WEEK

Incidents Leading up to Rash Act Told Jurors.

The inquest enquiring into the death of John Christopher Jones Hodgson, 44 year old Montreal school teacher, who was cut off the C.P.R. Afternoon Montreal-Chicago passenger train No. 3 at Belleville yesterday afternoon after being found dead in the wash room in one of the coaches, opened at the Belleville Burial Parlor last evening before Coroner Dr. C. S. Cronk. Following the identifying of the deceased at the morgue he was released and taken to Montreal for burial, the inquest being adjourned for one week.

Sergeant Arthur Harman, who impanelled the coroner's jury, was the first witness called. The officer told of being called to the north C.N.R. station at 3.25 p.m. yesterday afternoon, where he received a rival he was shown the body of the deceased as it lay in the smoking compartment, after being removed by Conductor Mr. Mahon, from Montreal, who was in charge of the train. Later the officer turned the body over to Mr. Mahon, the Belleville Burial, who also assisted in the identification.

Relative Main Witness

The main witness heard last night was Allen Edson, Admiral and a brother-in-law of the deceased. Mr. Edson stated he was in Montreal with Mr. Hodgson on the train and was returning from a tour of Northern Ontario sanitarium.

"Was the deceased man sick or in any way ill previous to his death," asked Dr. Cronk of the witness.

"Yes sir, he had been a school teacher in Montreal for a number of years and had recently suffered from three severe nervous, the last one being the worst", answered Mr. Edson as he went on to say, that Mr. Hodgson had recently been relieved as principal of a Montreal school and the younger man, it was which had proved injurious to his health. Upon the arrival in North Montreal physician, Mr. Hodgson had been committed to the Asylum in an Oshkosh sanitarium, added Mr. Edson, as he told of his brother in law having been treated previously by nerve and mental specialists.

"We both got off at Kingston yesterday and exercised along the station platform, and that when we boarded the train I went in the smoker for a smoke and that was the last Mr. Hodgson go into the wash room. I thought nothing of this until he failed to return a few moments later. When I tried the wash room door it was locked, I immediately got in communication with the conductor, who unlocked the door and upon opening it we saw my brother-in-law hanging from a coat hook," concluded Mr. Edson.

The witness later stated that the deceased had apparently tied a woolen scarf around his neck close to a stool, and tied the other end around the coat hook, then from ceiling of the lavatory in the coach and then hanged.

Dr. Cronk informed the jury, that Mr. Hodgson's neck was not broken but he had doubtedly strangled to death. The inquest at this point was enlarged for one week, at which time Conductor Martin and other witnesses will be heard. The adjournment was made to be held in the police court rooms at 8.00 p.m. Wednesday next. Sergeant Harman stated today.

The coroner's jury was composed of the following:—A. Lockwood, foreman; S. A. Lockwood; Chas. Cochrane; Wm. Gaughan; Chas. Thorne; Thos. Holland; Geo. Ketchenon and Thos. Cushing.

Distinguished Career

Montreal, Feb. 8 (CP)—John C. J. Hodgson, whose body was found hanging on a passenger train near Belleville last night, was in his seventy years teacher, at West Hill High School here, and a well-known writer.

Aged 44, he had been in ill health for some time, it was learned today. He was a graduate of Lincoln College, Oxford, and was called to the bar in 1914, and, the following year was at Cralligad with the 87th Field Ambulance, later serving at Macedonia, Salonika and the Somme. Mr. Hodgson was promoted to second lieutenant in 1917, and served with the Macedonian Force from 1918 to 1919.

After demobilization, Mr. Hodgson became a solicitor, practicing at Liverpool, before coming to Canada in 1922. In the spring of 1932 he completed a book, "The Lion and Lily," dealing with New France. Shorter stories appeared in several periodicals.

His widow, formerly Eileen Holcot, and two children, both of Montreal, survive.

FRANKLIN W. GARBUTT
(Warkworth)

Franklin Webster Garbutt, a life long resident of Warkworth, Ont., and one of the leading business men in that village for over thirty years, died at his residence there on Tuesday, Feb. 8th, in his 80th year.

The funeral will take place under Masonic auspices Thursday afternoon.

MRS. JOHN SHERMAN

After a brief illness Mrs. John Sherman passed away at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Nelson Beatty at Lake, in Thurlow township, on Sunday morning, Feb. 6th, early 4th.

The late Mrs. Sherman was born in Thurlow Township, her maiden name being Ida Emma L. Hall, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hall. All her life was spent in Thurlow township and the many friends she was most highly esteemed. Mrs. Sherman was a woman of most estimable character and took an active part in the work of the Presbyterian Church at Rawlin; she was a member also of the Women's Institute and interested in all undertakings for the betterment of community life.

Surviving to mourn her loss are her husband, Mr. John Sherman; one daughter, Mrs. Nelson Beatty, Thurlow township; one sister, Mrs. Robert Hodge, Rochester, N.Y.

LATE MRS. MARY BROWN

Many friends were present at the funeral of Mrs. Mary Brown which took place from her late residence, 191 Church Street, Tuesday afternoon. The service in the home was conducted by the Rev. Robert Hicks, pastor of John Street United Church, who conducted also the service at the graveside in the Belleville Cemetery.

The late Mrs. Brown was a member of Lydia Lodge No. 330 Loyal Orange Benevolent Association, and about twenty members of the Association were present at the funeral. The last rites of the association were performed at the graveside by Mrs. Barney, Chaplain, Mrs. E. Bell, W.M., and Mrs. H. Armstrong, acting W.M.

The bearers were all members of the Orange Order and were as follows—Messrs. Harold Armstrong, Everett Bell, Millar Armstrong, William Kennedy, Frank Coombs and Christopher Alkey.

LATE JOHN J. MURPHY

The funeral of J. J. Murphy took place this (Wednesday) morning from the family residence, 15 Harriet Street, to St. Paul's R. C. Nicholson, V.G., celebrated Requiem High Mass at St. Michael's Church, the service being attended by a large number of friends of the deceased.

Interment was made in St. Jamestown cemetery, the Rev. Father Gill officiating at the graveside rites.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. H. Sanders, H. Hollis, G. O. Brennan, R. Willerton, C. Kindred and A. Boynton.

Annie Chouinard.

Trenton, Feb. 3.—(Special)—Mrs. Annie Chouinard, widow of the late Napoleon Chouinard passed away at her home here yesterday after a few days' illness. The deceased was in her eighty-first year. She was born in Quebec, the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Bazinet. Mrs. Chouinard was a devout member of St. Peter-In-Chains Catholic Church and a member of the Catholic Women's League. Left to mourn her loss are two daughters, Mrs. Napoleon St. Onge of Niagara Falls, N.Y., Miss Norma Chouinard, at home and three sons, Napoleon, William and Henry at home. Three brothers, Mr. Paul Bazinet of Montreal, Mr. Willie Cormier of Montreal and Mr. William Theoret of Trenton, and two brothers, Mr. Edward Allore of Trenton and Mr. Arthur Allore of St. Petersburg, Florida, also survive. The funeral will be held Thursday morning at 9 o'clock from St. Peter-In-Chains Catholic Church. Interment will take place in Mount Calvary Cemetery.

Following a rain and sleet storm which turned the snow-laden streets of the town into a sheet of glare ice, a stiff nine an hour gale hit the town and the three hours in which it was at its height put the fire department on the run. Within the three hours they covered ten calls to the homes of Mr. Farr, Sydney street, Mr. Lesperance, Mr. Le Blanc, Mr. Belair, Mr. Boris, Albert street, Mr. Woods, John street, Mr. Lazarkey, Leopold street, and had to return to the home of Mr. W. Anderson. Charles street four times before being assured that the fires were out. It is the first time in the history of Trenton that the department was called ten times in one day. It also saved many times damage was done to the homes of the people who lived in the district, as the fire department under the capable supervision of Engineer Baker did their work quickly and when also gave Mr. Baker an extra man around the hose. Today the fire department was busy other interesting happenings were given on the streets. A bread truck owned by Mr. G. Wilson was blown over three times. Some of the contents of home from school were blown along the engine hit the curb and drove it back into the ditch. One of Trenton's citizens, Mr. Arthur Allore was the worst caught he has seen hit the town during his lifetime.

Mr. Frank Tawns miraculously escaped injury yesterday when the car which he was driving was struck by a C.P.R. freight train. The accident was driving north on Stanley street, along the tracks when his car became lodged in a drawbar. The freight was coming south and the engine hit the car and drove it back into the ditch. Mr. Tawns escaped without injured as he was sitting on the off side. A light car he was driving was almost demolished.

EVEREST AS SYMBOL

Mount Everest has become the symbol of the loftiest spiritual height of man's imagination, according to the New York Times quoting the words of Sir Francis Younghusband. "If these men (those who attempted in 1933) could fit and train themselves to suffer and sacrifice and endure merely to achieve only a great physical height, how much more readily ought they to face the tribulations of life in order to attain spiritual height? That is what many have come to think."

Man will no doubt again attempt to climb to the crest of this loftiest of peaks, for men have been within a few hundred feet of the crest. The Government of Tibet has given permission for the passing of the new expedition toward Chomolungmo, the residence of the Goddess Mother of the Mountain." All eyes of mortals will watch the progress of the new attempt.

Sir Francis Younghusband who made the first attempt to scale this last Olympian height, said of the Rutledge expedition in 1933 that it was more than an expert expedition and more than a British expedition. It was nothing less than an attempt of the human race itself, feeling its way in its natural surroundings, measuring its capacities against physical obstacles "seeing how far it could go, testing the extreme limits of its capacities." They who undertake this perilous adventure are "man" in contest with the earth, not "man," but generic man, the race itself, "a chain of linked thought . . . compelling the elements with adamantine stress."

The Times points out that the race has taken pride in its representatives, as it sees them, with indomitable spirit, overcome one obstacle after another, stand up against the fury of hurricanes and every missile that the mountains would hurl against them. They go on this great errand to the highest heights that mortals have as said not only to be at the top of their physical development, but possessed of the first and tenacious spirit which drives the body to its seemingly impossible extremes. They has encouraged the throw away all hope of the prize in order to stand by a comrade or to give place to another if through him the goal might be more surely achieved.

IN METROPOLITAN PULPITS

End of war and race prejudice was predicted by the minister son of a Confederate soldier, Rev. James H. Provost, of Emmanuel Baptist church, Brooklyn, New York. He declared that there was almost pretty nearly as much dynamite today in Christ's doctrine that God loves all peoples alike as there was in His day. "He substituted love and brotherhood for formalism of religious leaders." The teachings of the Sermon on the Mount were revolutionary when uttered, and they would be revolutionary today if we applied them.

"Some things are going to be broken up the same as human slavery. War is going and the same was true of it. It is not essential to civilization, then neither is war, race prejudices nor economic injustice. The great trouble with all of us is human greed. We want more than we are entitled to. We have lots of material goods but brotherhood is scarce because it means self-denial and is costly."

Recognition of parental responsibility is one of the most crying needs of the day, according to the Rev. Henry Darlington, rector of the Church of the Heavenly Rest, New York. He declared that the lack of a sense of responsibility is not confined to so-called lower classes and went on to say "Among the gently born and carefully reared there exists today a total absence of any feeling of duty to bring up their children with a knowledge of God and His commandments, a complete indifference as to their spiritual welfare and an utter failure to show them any example of self-control and high ideals."

The state of communism was discussed by several. William Groll, chairman of the pastors' aid department of the New York City Christian Endeavor Union, said. "To-day Christian youth is faced by a choice of either following the advocates of fascism, communism or the great choice of following Jesus Christ. By clever scheming and propaganda many fine young Christian people have been led to identify themselves with organizations which, in spite of high sounding names and utterly fine principles, are nothing more than tools in the hands of agitators of communism who wish to use these young people with church connections in their dastardly work. Only a Christianity which is alive to the situation and Christian people who will dare in their private and public acts to live out the principles of Jesus can save this world from this monster of atheism, class war and demoralization."

Rabbi Morton M. Berman, at the Free Synagogue said "There are fewer Jewish youth in communism than our anti-Semitic friends would have us believe. They become communists through eviction; and not through conviction. The Jew is being evicted from the economic life, if not from life itself."

Declaring that the church must lead with worship and propaganda as its cardinal tasks, Dr. Curtis Cate Goffin of Union Seminary who said that the church is the divine society made up of men and women of courses, but unique in having God's presence in Christ in them. The first task of the church is the worship of God, he declared, at which men and women bring offerings and offer themselves in service and the second is propaganda or evangelism, which means the filling of the minds and thoughts of men with the Christian spirit. The mind of the generations, particularly of the younger generation of humanity must be formed on economic matters, on national unity, and on dealing with the folk of another race, he said.

There is a courage in the calm of hills;
There's fortitude and faith in towering pines
There's tenderness mix'd with sweetness in the twilight;
Pure beauty in the first clear star that shines.

There is gaiety in sun-fleck'd waves; a challenge
In the strength of wind upon a straining sail
There's a tense thrill in a sudden flash of lightning,
The boom of thunder, and the sting of hail.

But when the mists come softly down the valley,
Like half-forgotten things we used to know,
There is warmth and cheer and love in human voices,
And a world of radiance in a candle's glow.

GENTLEMAN BURGLAR OF CONSIDERABLE FAME in the land of Uncle Sam was busy dodging G-Men and making a good thing of it. His auto, however, threw him down. One day the burglar was guiding his car carefully through traffic when the darn thing took a notion to balk. The steering mechanism became fluey and the Gentleman Burglar found himself nosing into another car. Bumper to bumper the two cars locked horns and gave rise to notice of battle. When quiet was restored the Gentleman Burglar found that his car had been bumping that of a G-Man, and the G-Man became so interested in the driver of the other car that he just naturally invited him to a near-by police station to meet the boys. After he had undergone fingerprint, rogue and Bertillion measurements the Gentleman Burglar was invited by the G-Man to make himself at home, stay for the week-end at least as guest of the boys—and he became so after the preliminary to a long vacation up the river just because an auto went haywire, and a bumper met a bumper and bumped a burglar off for a stretch.

BELIEVE IT OR NOT A BROKEN NECK COST A RAILROAD NEARLY TWO HUNDRED THOUSAND DOLLARS. Twenty-three years ago Miss Jean Arnett, of Red Bank, N.J., suffered a broken neck in an accident on the New York and New Haven and Hartford Railroad. The accident occurred on September 1, 1918, and it seemed that the injured one had only a short time to live. The railway company paid Miss Arnett's $10,000 cash immediately after the accident and since then pays her $700 a month as long as she lived. Miss Annett is still alive and the railway company has paid her $190,000, and now the courts be be relieved of further financial responsibility in the case. The case is said to be without parallel in railway history both from the medical and financial aspects. Miss Annett is confined to a wheel chair and requires constant attention and treatment.

SWEEPING THE HIGHWAYS OF NAILS and other metallic substances is a new development of the automotive world. Machines have been constructed and put on the market which with magnetic aid pick up from the highway all nails and other metallics. The road cleaner travels fairly fast and does not take long to collect a ton of nails, bolts, potential punctures makers. Looks like the inventors are trying to take all the grief out of motoring.

NEW DEALS IN MUNICIPAL GOVERNMENT seems to be on the way, or already here. New City Council tackled the parking question right off the bat and seem to have a solution for that vexed problem, for the present at least. Then the same body expresses approval of the esplanade project, long advocated by the Chamber of Commerce; also seem strong for better street lighting and using the refund from Hydro for that purpose. The new council is going vigorously into the relief question and seems determined that there will be more work done for the civic money than in the past; also that relief recipients from other municipalities dumped here will be returned without thanks.

First Complete Story of Young Lawyer's Fight To Save Hauptmann Against Tremendous Odds

C. Lloyd Fisher, Convinced That His Client is Innocent of Murder, Devotes Entire Time in Effort to "Rectify Error" of Defence Counsel but Finds Every Avenue of Procedure Closed Because it is "Too Late"

Written for Central Press Canadian
By LOU WEDEMAIR

Mr. Wedemair, who has covered the Hauptmann case from beginning to end, is considered by metropolitan newspapermen as the best informed authority on the subject. Mr. Wedemair, a native Canadian born young country lawyer, who has never tried a case in a big city, fought desperately for more than a year to save the life of a man believed by many to be the murderer of the world's most publicized baby.

The hero is C. Lloyd Fisher, an earnest energetic and popular resident of Flemington, N.J., seat of Hunterdon county, within whose borders the body of the mysterious slayer, Charles A. Lindbergh Jr., was found on May 12, 1932.

Fisher, more than any other living person, is the confidant of Bruno Richard Hauptmann, former German Master Sergeant, accountant, and a Bronx carpenter until his apprehension of Lindbergh baby soon money became known. Fisher may not be the greatest criminal lawyer in the world — in fact he would cheerfully admit that he is not — but he has set an example of loyalty to a client which will go down in history.

His Associate

And by his side fights another country lawyer named Fredrick Pope —a retund, cheerful little former judge by his personal efforts while some of their neighbors are sympathetic towards the proper personal relations with the case demand man, most of them regard the two with considerable respect.

It would have seemed that a man under suspicion of being the world's outstanding criminal would have attracted legal talent in his defence commensurate with that rank. But the kidnapping and apparent murder of the Lindbergh baby stirred such widespread and violent public sentiment that no famous attorney would associate himself with Hauptmann's defence.

Not Certain of Fees

When Edward Reilly, Brooklyn criminal attorney, became chief of Hauptmann's counsel, he did so with an arrangement with a newspaper for the payment of large sums of money; and, as it developed, the newspaper's action was one which was costly to Hauptmann.

According to "inside stories" now being told newspaper reporters who lived learned from Reilly's office that payment of prospective witnesses, and furnished them to the prosecution, in return for favors from the prosecution. Thus the very arrangement which alone could provide Hauptmann with counsel of any note, worked directly to his disadvantage.

Reilly and Hauptmann Disagreed

Reilly and Hauptmann never did get on well together, a strange relationship between client and counsel. Reilly sometimes refused to visit Hauptmann in his cell when he was sent for; Reilly admitted in the Flemington trial that the body found near Hopewell was that of the Lindbergh baby, which Hauptmann says is a point he had told Reilly he denied.

After the trial was over, and Hauptmann was in the death house in Trenton, Reilly came to the assistance of the defence counsel, and Fisher became chief of the defence staff. Rumor was openly critical of Reilly's concession of the identification, and during the last 17 days he had been fought Hauptmann would have received at the most a life sentence.

Fisher's battle to save Hauptmann from the electric chair did not really begin until after Hauptmann had been convicted, and so had lost almost all chances of securing a reduction. But as soon as Reilly was out of the case, Fisher began work for the accused.

Because, under New Jersey law, attorneys are guarded, Fisher and Pope were unable to do all the legal work themselves. They are not counsellors in rank higher than that of ordinary attorneys. They therefore, were compelled to fall back on Egbert Rosecrans, Hunterdon county lawyer, who had made an enviable record in criminal cases.

A Futile Fight!

Rosecrans, however, admitted from the day of Hauptmann's conviction that Hauptmann had little chance of "beating the rap". He made one desperate effort, when the appeal was argued. There Rosecrans laid on the table the failure of counsel at the Flemington trial when he said:

"If, for any reason, Hauptmann did not get the full protection of counsel, to which he was entitled, that is not his fault. He should not be punished for our errors."

There Rosecrans put emphasis on an outstanding phase of the Flemington trial. He said that if Fisher and Pope wanted objections read into the record they would step taken that they believed would protect their client. Reilly, however, had been in charge of the case in a manner peculiarly his own had the chief counsel overruled them. For instance, the fact that a disorderly crowd filled the courtroom, and the fact that the jury was forced to pass through lanes of citizens jeering Hauptmann and calling for his conviction was never objected to by Flemington. And the count of appeals pointed out, in refusing a new trial, that the attorneys had failed to object.

Never A Point Won

In the argument before the court of pardons, which refused to grant Hauptmann a commutation to life imprisonment, Fisher and Pope, Gov. Harold G. Hoffman of New Jersey, and Wilentz, Fisher, Pope and Rosecrans again, were cast up against the expert, suave experienced attorney-general of the state, David T. Wilentz, with his staff of leading attorneys. As always, he lost.

Not once, since Hauptmann was arrested have his counsel won a single point in their fight to save his life. His 30-day reprieve came from Governor Hoffman, but not as the result of his counsel's application.

Two more attorneys came to Hauptmann's defence recently—two more wholly known, in all probability, than the others. They are Neil Burtnithaw and Nugent Dodds of Washington, in the courts in federal law. They fought valiantly for a writ of habeas corpus, in federal district court in Trenton, and later before the U.S. supreme court in Washington.

Burtnithaw and Dodds, whose views command respect in the nation's capital, argued a writ of habeas corpus on grounds which never had been heard in the history of jurisprudence. Before they entered court in Trenton they were certain of their legal position, but they were well aware of the fact that they were up for a case in community which has become famous for "lynch justice," with the contention of speedy disposition of applications in behalf of convicted men. The writ was withheld, precedent, but it was against them.

Fisher Is Last Hope

Now, as the Hauptmann case nears its legal final stage, the condemned man's hopes rest almost entirely upon Fisher.

Any other day Fisher visits the death house. He holds long conversations with his client. Unlike others of defence counsel, he does not plead with Hauptmann "to confess." Indeed, he says, him he has his memory for some lost fact, some clue, that will prove the man's innocence

Hauptmann, poker - faced criminal, so-called egocentric murderer, talks with Fisher fluently. But as far as he knows, all his writing, he has stuck to his story.

Fisher's Belief

Fisher says he believes Hauptmann has told all he knows, in his effort to protect his wife, child and friend, left him a package in which he later found ransom money.

O'Donnell accounted the burn on his clothing, the Detective said, by declaring he had stepped into a wood fire in the basement on his way home that night. He had gone straight to bed, he was represented as telling the officer, after writing his name in the book and also having a few beers on the way home.

He did not "think" his clothes were very muddy, McGrath quoted him as saying. Nor did he, according to the detective, "think" he had been upset by "burns and sand and mud and blood" on his clothes. McGrath said he had asked him this question point-blank in questioning at police headquarters.

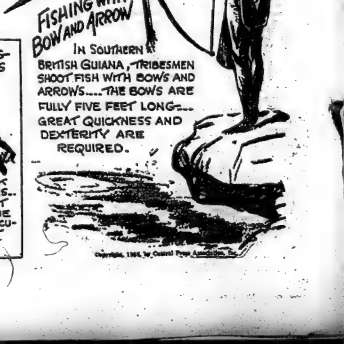
Detective Mcrath Tells Court of Conversation With Accused

TORONTO, Feb. 8.— (CP)—Admissibility of statements attributed by police to Harry O'Donnell was argued today at the trial of the 25-year-old filling station attendant for the murder of Ruth Taylor in a rainswept ravine here last November.

With the jury barred from the courtroom Prosecutor J. C. McRuer, K.C., was attempting to obtain entry of the statements, said by police to have been obtained from O'Donnell, when he was arrested after the Toronto stenographer had been found raped and murdered in the East Side Ravine.

Both of the evidence given yesterday came from Detective Sergeant James J. McIlrath, one of the men, who arrested O'Donnell, on November 11th, the day after the girl's body was found. He said the prisoner on being taken into custody at his place of work not far from the ravine, had remarked to a companion:



"It's about this affair down the street".

At that time, the Detective swore O'Donnell had not yet been told why the police wanted to see him.

O'Donnell accounted the burns on his clothing, the Detective said, by declaring he had stepped into a wood fire in the basement on his way home that night. He had gone straight to bed, he was represented as telling the officer, after writing his name in the book and also having a few beers on the way home.

He did not "think" his clothes were very muddy, McIlrath quoted him as saying. Nor did he, according to the detective, "think" he had been upset by "burns and sand and mud and blood" on his clothes. McIlrath said he had asked him this question point-blank in questioning at police headquarters.

Pomp Without Glitter Will Mark Opening Of Canada's 18th Parliament Tomorrow

Busy And Important Session In House

By WILFRED ROGERSTON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 5 — Simplified and pruned out of respect to the late King, but following the ancient ceremonial to the letter, the first session of the Eighteenth Parliament of Canada will meet tomorrow in the presence of new personalities and forces, to grapple once more with the dragons of unemployment and want, and to legislate for the peace and welfare of Canadian people.

Purple and black, expanded in shirring, drapery and hangings, will recall the memory of the beloved monarch. The customary glitter of gowns and jewels will be absent. The usual pomp and ceremonies are to be omitted. The Drawing Room —social highlight of the season— will not be held Friday night.

But the people's business must go on. The leaders of Commons and Senate and the vice-regal representatives, Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir, will participate in the solemn ritual by which every Canadian session since Confederation has been launched. The Senate chamber at noon, with Sir Lyman P. Duff, deputy for his excellency, in the great chair, the Commons troops along to the red chamber behind their mace, Dr. Arthur Beauchesne, only to be informed that they must return and appoint their Speaker. Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain, chief whip of the Liberals in the last House will thereupon be nominated and receive the unanimous support of the Commons.

THE Speech from Throne

At 3 p.m., with the vice-regal salute booming across the Ottawa, from Nepean Point to Parliament Hill, Baron Tweedsmuir will ascend the centre block and seat himself in the place of honor in the Senate. The Commons will be summoned in the traditional fashion, the gentleman usher of the black rod demanding entrance with three resounding knocks, and announcing that the governor-general desired their immediate presence in the red chamber. The Senate, amidst the hum of the morning habituents, will create an impressive spectacle as the Commoners come crowding in behind the brass bar, there to hear, from the lips of Baron Tweedsmuir, the speech from the Throne.

Due to the political revolution of October 14, and to other causes, this session will meet in an atmosphere new and sizzling with new figures dominating in many important spheres. Hon. Walter E. Foster, veteran premier of New Brunswick, succeeds Hon. P. J. Veniot as speaker of the Senate. Hon. Pierre F. Casgrain replaces Hon. Charles Bowman as Speaker of the Commons. Hon. Rose W. Gray of Lambton, Ont., is the new Liberal whip of the Liberal party. A sea of new faces, and some former leaders absent awhile now reappear, after the appearance of the two chambers. One hundred and forty-five members of the Commons are new — only 110 of those who waved good-by in July of last year come back to resume their duties in the new session. Even in the Senate, not subject to election mortalities, there are 19 newcomers to be confirmed. Two of the new arrivals on Parliament Hill are ladies, Mrs. George Black in the Commons; Hon. Iva Fallis in the red chamber.

Commons Will Look Strange

The conservative party suffered most disastrously in the October landslide. Instead of 138 members, with which they began the Seventeenth Parliament, they returned with 39. The Liberals almost doubled their strength — from 91 to 178. The United Farmers of Alberta, nine strong in 1930, were wiped out, but the Social Credit forces, mainly from Alberta, appear in their place 17 strong.

The Commons takes on the strangest appearance since the new building was occupied. So numerous are the government members that 36 of them have been placed on the Opposition side, next to the Speaker, who is now surrounded by Liberals. In the last Parliament "honorable members to the left of the Speaker" may always have used interchangeably with "Opposition members," but it will no longer be applicable. The whole right side of the Commons, 160 strong is a phalanx of Liberals. On the left come first the 39 extra Liberals, then the 39 Conservatives — Hon. R. B. Bennett; the lone member of the Reconstruction party; Hon. Gideon Macdonald; the seven members of the C.C.F. under J. S. Woodsworth; and finally, the 17 Social Credit members, making their first appearance in a Federal Parliament under the leadership of John Blackmore, high school teacher of Raymond, Alberta.

"Our Task to End Poverty"

The party leaders are familiar to the House and country, except for Mr. Blackmore; and some of the Conservative leader of the past, such as Hon. Ernest Rhodes, will now be seen in the Senate. But several new arrivals have arrived on the scene from whom much will be expected. Among these are Hon. C. D. Howe, Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Arthur Slaght, who has been invited to move the address in reply to the speech from the throne; M. J. Coldwell, G. G. McGeer of Vancouver, Hon. Norman McLeod Rogers and R. J. Deachman.

The keynote of the session is expected to be drawn from a line in St. Hon. Mackenzie King's election night statement: "We take up, at once, as our supreme task, the endeavor to end poverty in the midst of plenty.

Measures to assist employment, directly and indirectly, are expected to be in the forefront of activities. Of monetary and tax changes, we will be the highlight of the later part of the session.

May Need Senate Reform

Many points of discussion are expected to be (a) the government's bill to make the Bank of Canada a national institution; (b) the ratification of the United States trade agreement; (c) the debate leading up to the imperial conference of 1937; (d) the repeal of section 98; (e) machinery to alter the constitution along the lines recommended at the Dominion - provincial conference.

Any one of these can easily develop into an important debate while the opposition will be powerful and talented enough to create on any issue a debate of major importance, the Liberals will, in the Commons, be able to overwhelm any adverse vote when measures come to division. In the Senate, however the reverse is true. Government forces number only 31 to a cheerier of 61 persons. There is a distinct possibility of a deadlock being reached by Senate veto of government measures. The report of section 98 is expected to provide a test case. If the Senate again throws out the measure, as it did five times before in the previous Liberal administration, the government cry of "senate reform" will unquestionably be raised in the view of most observers here.

Ye Us Undersecretaries

A novelty in the new session will be the system of undersecretaries which will be introduced after the necessary legislation has been passed. Having reduced the size of the cabinet and thus having given it a heavier burden on the backs of the ministers, Mr. Mackenzie King proposes to relieve those holding the major portfolios from some of the routine duties of their posts in the way of public business by giving them the services of a member of parliament who will act as their understudy, obtain valuable training for future use, and save time in routine and departmental inquiries and decisions.

Legislation to amalgamate the departments of marine and railways into the new department of transport, and the formation of the department of natural resources from mines, interior, immigration, Indian affairs, etc., will be introduced, for with a bill to set up the loan councils for provinces proposed by Mr. Dunning. The customs and excise laws will be changed; and the power of the executive in regard to duties much reduced. An interesting bill for the average reader will be that which will enable Canadian tourists returning from the United States to bring back with them good to the value of $100 free of duties.

The parliament buildings will be draped in mourning for our late King when Canada's 18th parliament opens tomorrow. Baron Tweedsmuir (left) will read his first Speech from the Throne of the Senate chamber. Four major political parties will be represented in the House of Commons led by Premier King (Liberal) R. B. Bennett (Conservative), J. S. Woodsworth, (C.C.F.), and John Blackmore (Social Credit). They are shown in that order as (Right).

QUEENSBORO

Queensboro, Feb. 5—The monthly meeting of the Queensboro Women's Association was held at the home of Mrs. John Alexander Sr. on Thursday afternoon. There was a goodly number present. The meeting was under the direction of the vice-president, Mrs. Charles Thompson.

Mr. Jas. Moore, Henry of Ezerix spent the week in Belleville attending county council.

Mrs. Barnes returned to her home in Ottawa on Wednesday after spending a few weeks at the latter sister, Mrs. Geo. Glover.

Mr. Chas. Lapalm is spending the winter with his daughter in Orillia.

Mr. Chas. Thompson spent the past week in Belleville.

An interesting game of hockey was played on the rink here on Thursday evening between the married men and the single men of Queensboro. The score was 4 to 3 in favor of the married men.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Rollins were Thursday guests of the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. Rollins at Cooper.

The farmers are busy packing their ice away for summer use. The quality in the river is not nearly as good as other years. Their being less than ten inches of clear ice.

EX-INSPECTOR MILLER ACCEPTS INVITATION

Toronto, Feb. 4 (CP)—Ex-Inspector William Miller today accepted the invitation of Norman A. Newton K.C., and went to confer with the counsel for the Royal Commission investigating Toronto police affairs.

Mr. Newton extended the invitation yesterday after disclaiming he had fraternized with Chief Constable D. C. Draper as charged in a newspaper interview by the ex-police inspector.

Mr. Miller said he would tell Mr. Newton what he thought was wrong with the Toronto Police Force.

U. K. BUTTER FIRMER

Ottawa, Feb. 4 (CP)—Cable advice today to the Department of Agriculture said better was the run on United Kingdom markets yesterday. Quotations: Butter—New Zealand 95 to 96 shillings per cwt. (21.29 to 21.51 cents per lb.); Australian, 94 to 95 shillings per cwt. (21.07 to 21.29 cents per lb.).

CANADIAN TEAM TO MEET POLAND

Series For Hockey Championship of World Starts Thursday

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 4—(CP-AP)—Canada's Olympic hockey team, strongly favored to retain the title won by every team wearing the Maple Leaf since the game was put on the official Olympic calendar, will meet Poland in the preliminary round-robin series starting Thursday.

Altogether 15 nations will compete. The teams are drawn in four groups. The other squads in the Canadian team's division are Austria and Latvia, which places the Dominion's representatives in the position of encountering their strongest group foes first. Poland is next right behind the United States as formidable opponents for the Canadians.

The Americans drew Germany as their initial foe. The other teams in this group are Switzerland and Germany while the third group comprises Hungary, France, Belgium and Czechoslovakia. The fourth is composed of England, Sweden and Japan.

The two leading teams in each group will first be decided on a point basis after each team has played all of its opponents. The eight survivors will then be divided into two more groups for a similar series, after which the four survivors will battle it out in the final.

The American team arrived here today after a two-week barnstorming tour in England and on the continent. They have disappointed their followers with their exhibition games and it is thought that unless they improve they might have difficulty eliminating Germany from the first group test.

The weather here is still wet. Snow fell today but it was of the slushy variety. The bobsled run is still useless and ski-jumping is prevented from getting any practice.

MARKED UPTURN IN LUMBERING

Lumbermen Told, Local Consumption Yet Low

Montreal, February 4.—Though domestic consumption is still disappointing, demand for lumber, "is gradually exciting up with supply" W. R. Beatty, Pembroke, Ontario, said today in his Presidential address at the 38th annual convention of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association.

He believed "a marked upturn will be seen in the coming year."

The 1932 Ottawa trade agreements with the United Kingdom have been the backbone of Canadian lumber industry during the past four years, President Beatty said, referring to figures showing large increases in Canadian exports to Britain.

Another cause of optimism was the Canada-United States Trade Agreement which would likely lead to a marked increase in exports to the South.

He expressed dissatisfaction with the Dominion Housing Act because it did not provide for assistance in construction of a home for class of house and hoped to see Provincial and municipal governments finance building programs through relief contributions.

SNOW, SLEET, RAIN ENCASE PROVINCE

Highways and Sidewalks Glazed With Ice And Sleet Coat

(By the Canadian Press)

Snow, sleet and some rain left old Ontario shrouded in chill today. Highways and streets and motorists alike found it hazardous travelling glazed highways and ice on the wires disrupted telephone and telegraph communication.

Winter's first sleet storm struck Caledonia district about midnight and turned highways into icy sheets of glass. In rural areas trees shimmered in a coating of ice.

A three-inch snowfall was reported at Woodstock overnight, followed by sleet that left a hard thick crust on top. Temperatures were mild with skies overcast.

At Hamilton a downpour of rain which froze as it fell demoralized train services and made it hazardous motorists to leave their cars in the garage. Telephone and telegraph communication was disrupted by the wires distupted telephone and telegraph communication.

HIGH WINDS, SNOW PARALYZE AREAS

Freezing Record is Made at Washington, D.C. After 41 Years

Chicago, Feb. 4 (AP)—Renewed heavy snowfalls blew into the great central plain states today on the wings of high winds to gird the entire section. Widespread suffering was aggravated.

The greater part of the United States was paralyzed in an icy embrace with snow and sleet storms making travel hazardous. Trains were blocked or seriously delayed, motor traffic was at a standstill in places, boats were locked in frozen rivers and marooned islanders on the Atlantic coast continued to ration dwindling food supplies as sleet storms prevented the landing of airplanes with replenishments.

Several thousand residents of Tangier and Smith Islands in Chesapeake Bay and Nantucket Island off Cape Cod, Mass., remained cut off from the mainland by ice barriers.

At Baltimore, Md., 125 Tangier Islanders awaited the end of the sleet storm to return to their homes by plane.

Near Del Norte, Colo., highway crews sought to rescue two livestock truckers reported marooned by snow slides.

ETHIOPIAN FORCE DIVERTS RIVER

Second 'Aduwa' Feared as Makale is Encircled

Addis Ababa, Feb. 4 (CP)—Making the point of Italy's second battle line today was reported completely encircled by Ethiopian warriors.

The Italian forces entrenched in the mountain stronghold were said to be facing a "second Aduwa" if they did not surrender to the Ethiopian forces which have cut off the town's water supply.

Deployed at strategic points in the mountains surrounding Makale, thousands of warriors are poised for a final attack on the city, the dispatches said.

By shifting the course of a river providing the Italian garrison with its water supply, the Ethiopians have carried out a stratagem which may prove fatal as shot and shell in bringing about surrender of the Italians, the reports said.

At the same time a large Ethiopian contingent, seeking to shatter completely Italian communication lines, is understood to be locked in a pitched battle with Italian forces near Rausien, thirty miles north of Makale.

TWELVE KILLED DURING BLIZZARD

Worst Storm in 20 Years Sweeps Through Heart of Japan

Tokyo, Feb. 4.— At least twelve persons were killed tonight as the worst blizzard in twenty years swept through the heart of Japan.

Snow laden gales from the China sea swept over an area extending the empire's six greatest cities Tokyo, Osaka, Nagoya, Kobe, Kyoto and Yokohama.

The storm struck at noon, tying up transportation in the cities disrupting trunk railways and paralyzing industrial activity. Not Tokyo and Kyoto were in darkness because of the failure of power plants.

More than one hundred steamers were compelled to take refuge in the ports of Kobe, Osaka, Moji and Shimonoseki. Many smaller vessels went unreported.

Weddings

PAUL—KETCHESON

A quiet wedding was solemnized at the United Church at Salderson, Ontario, on Sunday, January 26, when Miss Edna M. Ketcheson was united in marriage to Mr. Kenneth R. Paul, both of Salderson, near Sister Frankford, Ontario. Rev. G. A. Healy, B.A., officiated.

The bride looked charming in a brown crepe ensemble with matching accessories. The bridal party will stand a few days at the home with their old friends, Rev. and Mrs. Healy, then visit Ottawa and points east before returning to their home in the Fifth Concession of Sidney where they will reside.

KANE—BUSH

Stirling (Special)—A very pretty midwinter wedding was solemnized at four-thirty in the afternoon of Wednesday, January 29th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Hesseman on Balsam Avenue, Toronto, when Fannie Louise Bush, daughter of Mr. William Hesseman and the late Mrs. Hesseman of Sidney Township, became the bride of Mr. John Kane of River Valley. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. J. Erwin of Dunland's United Church, Toronto.

The bride looked charming in a gown of Copenhagen bliss triple sheer crepe with matching accessories and carried a bouquet of Sweetheart Beauty roses. Miss Gertrude Hesseman in a charming gown of navy crepe and carrying Killarney roses attended her sister as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by Mr. James Hesseman, brother of the bride. After the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served in the dining room which was appropriately decorated for the occasion. The groom's gift to the bride was a lovely white gold wrist watch and to the bridesmaid a gold compact.

The happy couple left later for motor trip to Peterboro after which they returned to their home at River Valley where they will reside.

Y. P. LEGION HEAR TALK ON EARLY DAYS

The young people of the Salvation Army held their regular Legion meeting on Monday evening at 8 p.m., with the president in charge. The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn "Down Down We're Marching to Zion," after which Mrs. Brown offered prayer. Miss Irene Young, chaplain, read the Scripture from the first chapter of Hebrews. The minutes of the minutes of the last meeting were read and they responded to the roll call.

The singing of choruses followed the short business session, and the time was then taken up by interesting discussion periods. The Fellowship group with Miss Pearle Wardle leader, were in charge of the programme. Community singing was enjoyed.

Mrs. B. W. Brown, a Salvationalist of high standing in the local corps and a woman with a keen interest in the young people's activities gave a very interesting talk on her early days as a Cadet and Officer in the Salvation Army. Mrs. Brown's training was obtained at the Training Home in London, England, and dates back to August 18, 1894, when she entered the home, now known as the Training College. At that time our present General, Evangeline Booth, was the Training Home Principal.

Mrs. Brown told of some interesting happenings during her life as a Cadet and later as a young Lieutenant. Things were not as easily accomplished then as today, all the visitation had to be done by walking the often walked four miles to conduct meetings. She told of an interesting six weeks' tour she and one of her young corps cadets were taken on when they had many opportunities of using their vocal talent, and of a wonderful Officers' Council she attended that was conducted by the late General, William Booth.

Mrs. Brown closed her address with a delightful vocal solo with piano accompaniment by Miss Dorothy Mitchell. A vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Brown by Miss Wardle, on behalf of her group, and by the president. Mr. Eric Naylor, for the entire Legion.

The members then enjoyed a social half hour of games and the meeting closed with the singing of "Auld Lang Syne" and prayer by the Secretary.

Rawdon and District

Rawdon—Bethel Congregational meeting was held at the church with about forty in attendance and Rev. J. E. Beckel presided. Mr. C. H. Wardle was appointed Church Secretary. Every department was represented and all gave splendid reports of the year's work.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"Men of Iron"

Another Smart Two Feature Programme at Capitol Tuesday

When Manager Maynard promised better and finer pictures for the Capitol for the coming season, he wasn't exaggerating. It has been rarely but has been since the beginning of his management.

"Men of Iron" and "Sweet Surrender" at the Capitol mean the acme of perfection.

"Men of Iron" the First National picture which treats of the adventures in high society of an unpolished woodsman, who, played by Preston MacLaine, the screen's Public Enemy No. 1 his first appearance in a heroic role, comes to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow.

The picture is based on a story by Dawn Powell in which she takes a sled forgeman and elevates him to high executive position.

Part of his duties in performing his duties, his vanity is fed by an assistant and a woman secretary, both of whom are scheming for his fall.

They influence him with social ambition, and he becomes the laughing stock of the socialites without knowing it. The plot has many dramatic as well as thrilling action and romance.

Supporting Barton MacLane are Dorothy Peterson who plays the part of his very sensible wife who tries to save him from his own egotism and stupidity, Mary Astor and Robert Gleckler who have the roles of the two who are conniving the downfall of their boss.

Others in the cast include Joseph Crehan, Craig Reynolds, Joseph King, John Qualen, Joseph Sawyer, Herman Bing and Edward Keane. William McGann directed the picture.

"Sweet Surrender"

One of the busiest young men in the entertainment world is a chap named Sweet. Which is not a misnomer. This is Frank Parker, the world-acclaimed radio singer, who is now playing the lead in the film musical, "Sweet Surrender," a Broadway Production now being released by Universal and coming to the Capitol Theatre tomorrow. Thanks to the story, Irene Dunne has acquired a killer hatred of Robert Taylor and it is only after long manoeuvring that he is able to induce her to enter his automobile.

While the car is parked Taylor, affected by the beautiful moonlight night, attempts to put his arm about the shoulders of the girl he addresses so much.

Leaping out, Miss Dunne steps directly into the path of an oncoming car, suffering in the ensuing crash a brain injury which brings on apparently incurable blindness.

The story is an interesting development progresses to situations of the tensest pathos. The locale of the drama is both in the United States and Paris.

Miss Dunne and Taylor are seen in the starring roles of "Magnificent Obsession," which is the film feature that includes such popular screen players as Charles Butterworth, Betty Furness, Sidney Blackmer, Henrietta Ralph Morgan, Cora Sue Collins, Jeanne Sinclair, Ralph Forbes and Gilbert Emery.

"Magnificent Obsession" is the newest picture which John Stahl has created for your entertainment. He gave you "Back Street", "Only Yesterday" and "Imitation of Life." This latest offering is the crowning achievement of his brilliant career. Irene Dunne, star of "Cimarron", "Sutter's Gold" and "Roberta" is the central feminine figure of the photoplay. You know her charm and acting ability — but you do not know the splendid emotional heights to which she can ascend — you have seen "Magnificent Obsession."

Co-starred with Miss Dunne is Robert Taylor, remembered for his sensational portrayal in "Broadway Melody of 1936." His characterization in "Magnificent Obsession" adds a new triumph to his list and a new treat for your enjoyment.

You will want to see the 38 fashion creations in this tensely stirring drama of emotion. You will want to be thrilled by the romance and the vivid realism of the story. It's the kind of picture you will want to see a second time.

"Magnificent Obsession" will change the life of everybody who sees this truly fine film!

For utmost enjoyment see "Magnificent Obsession" from the start at 2.40, 7.20 and 9.26. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.10 and 8.15 p.m.

IN MEMORIAM

McLEOD—In loving memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Alex McLeod who passed away at Bannockburn P.O., Feb. 7, 1932.
A voice was calling that seemed so sad,
A voice we dearly knew,
It said that we weary come and rest,
Lay down your head upon my breast.
Come follow Me and I will guide
Thy foot steps on the Jordan's side.
Our mother heard the sweet command,
And gently took the Saviour's hand.
—Sadly missed by Daughter, Jessie. 23-1t

FOSTER—In loving memory of our dear mother, Mrs. Dr. Linda Frederick, Halloway, Ont., who passed away Feb. 5, 1934.
Treasured thoughts of one so dear,
Memories fond and true,
Thoughts return to scenes long past,
Years roll on but memory lasts.
—Ever remembered by Daughter, Mrs. C. Riggs. 23-1t

TRIAL OPENS OF CHAS. GIBSON

Condition of Nausea

Miss Wagar was also in a nauseated condition at the second examination disclosed, said witness. This condition had lasted from Saturday night, until Wednesday, Sept. 3rd.

Mr. Payne took up the questioning.

"Is it true when people consume liquor have bloodshot eyes; it is an individual characteristic," "Yes."

"And with a fractured skull a person would suffer great pain?" "Yes."

"Miss Wagar was very temperamental, a neurotic type. She couldn't sing things like some other people? "Yes."

Some time elapsed before the ambulance came after it had been telephoned for, said witness placing the period at about forty minutes. Then Constable Evans accompanied it.

"Did the constable ask you what happened?" "Yes."

"And you told him the girl caught her heel in the carpet and sprained her leg?" "I did nothing of the kind. I told him that she had received a fracture of her left leg. We were talking about fractures at the time. I had fractured shoes".

"Why would you be discussing fractures with a policeman while the girl was lying there in a state of excruciating pain?" pressed Mr. Payne.

"We were waiting for the ambulance at the time standing out in the hall," he added.

Sedatives Given

Miss Wagar required medication which lasted for two days, following the fracture was recurrent later, declared the witness. Some hysterical condition lasted several days during which time she required to be administered.

"Did you see the examination of Miss Wagar when first called to see if she had been drinking? No."

"But there were conditions present consistent with the fact that she had been drinking? Not from my point of view."

Crown Attorney Donnan brought out the statement from the medical witness that the bloodshot eyes and flushed face was not due to drinking.

Adjournment and a brief recess for the jurors was called at this point.

Court resumed with Dr. G. H. Stobbe on the stand. Witness placed the time of Miss Wagar's practice as registered nurse at about five or six years. He told also of making an examination of her condition on the night in question and described the fracture she had sustained.

"Eyes' Condition

Her conditions appeared greatly changed; she was flushed, her eyes were bloodshot and she appeared in great pain. There appeared to be a hemorrhage of the membranes of her eyes. She was nauseated, the swollen condition of the muscles of her neck prevented her from seeing below the angle of the jaw. The scratches were superficial."

And from these examinations were you able to form any idea of the cause?" questioned Mr. Donnan. "No."

Further bruises and discolorations were found on Miss Wagar's breasts, it was testified.

The bruises and scratches were still evident eight or ten days later, while the redness and swollen condition of the eyes was observed for about the same period. Miss Wagar's temperature was charted and her to wake up in the middle of the night after her experience, declared Dr. Stobbe.

"Miss Wagar was in a very dangerous condition. She would not be able to retain any food on her stomach; she became very weak. Her condition was critical for the first ten days or so," testified the physician further.

Seven Fractures of Bones

Identifying charts and photographs made of exhibits, Dr. Stobbe pointed out that seven fractures of the bones were found in the injuries.

"Was the structure of this girl's body normal?" "The X-ray showed it quite normal."

"Were you able to determine the cause of the injuries further questioned Mr. Donnan. "There are many causes—acute nervousness, indigestion of the stomach—anywhere from there to pure nervousness, shaking of the body, fainting spells, a gruesome sight, pain, shock, so on."

Mr. Payne—"And sedatives sometimes create nausea?" "Yes."

"And Miss Wagar, getting given sedatives. What was being administered to her? Was it morphine?"

"Yes, she had some."

"This fracture would cause excruciating pain?" "Yes."

"Miss Wagar was a very temperamental girl?" "I have never thought so."

"The condition of this limb and the pain she suffered prior to become hysterical?" "Not the kind of hysteria she had."

Cause of Hysteria

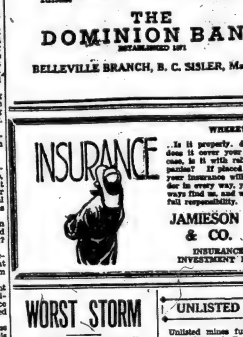
Donnan questioned witness as to whether in his opinion Miss Wagar's hysterical condition was caused by pain. "Not in my opinion, she was terrified, frightened when she awoke during those periodic screaming in fear. At these times she did not refer to the fact."

"What, in your opinion, was the cause of this condition?" "Fear."



Adjournment until 2.15 was called at this point.

WORST STORM

was blown down some time last night but was not discovered until 125 residents arose early today. The lowered chimney hampered the building of fires in the home today.

Storm Troubles Hydro

Ontario Hydro patrolmen reported the storm as being "just about as bad a time in as befell them" for over considerable long the lines "it was not the serious loss of the damage, but more in the suddenness of the trouble when it commenced to happen," they pointed out. The majority of the damage reported by Hydro and the Telephone employees was due to ice-covered wires and limbs of trees falling over the wires and breaking them off. Three electrical interference were reported along the line from Oshawa to Cornwall and south to Picton. All breaks were minor ones and only needed the actual repair work of replacing the broken wires. One serious break was reported in Harrow township, however, and the wreckage was removed prior to the arrival of the Hydro repairmen.

Bell Telephone officials reported at least thirty poles were blown down inside of the city limits, all being of a light character and caused mainly by small limbs of trees falling on telephone wires and breaking them. One serious trouble was on our rural lines, some of which have not been repaired yet," stated one repairman of the telephone service today. Both Hydro and Telephone linemen reported that broken tree branches, rather than the ice, caused the wire and hail caused the majority of the wire breaks they experienced yesterday.

Sign Damages Car

A large lobacco sign on front of the United Cigar Store Store situated at Front street and Bridge and struck a parked automobile nearby, crashing through the right front window of the vehicle. Fortunately no one was sitting in the automobile at the time. The car was also scratched considerably along the side and top, but a settlement was later reached between the owners of the sign and Mr. Pinnock, owner of the car. Plainclothes Officer Fred Hunt investigated this incident.

Citizens in general reported heavy losses in property damage, when dozens of panes of glass in windows were blown out. Throughout the city, one citizen on the west hill reported as many as thirteen panes being broken in the sun-porch of his home. Shade trees were likewise torn to pieces, also badly damaged as one of the worst midwinter wind and storms in many years visited Belleville yesterday.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Reflecting strength in outside markets and bolstered by fair-sized overnight export sales of Canadian wheat future prices held quietly firm in early dealings on Winnipeg grain exchange today.

Values near mid-session were 1-4 cent higher to unchanged, May at 86 1-4, July 86 7-8 and October 88 1-4. Liverpool was up 1-2d near the close while Chicago also held firm.

TORONTO MINES

TORONTO, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Soft spots developed in Toronto Mines Board today following several days of rising prices. Mercantile was the only bright one, losing about thirty cents and nearly half a dozen, Hollinger, McKenzie, Beattie and Chibougamau were all lower. Base metals were steady to firm with golds.

On the big gold group losses up to a point appeared for Dome, Lake Shore and McIntyre. Little Long Lac was off 35 cents to 7.05 in heavy selling. The Metal market was fairly steady and the Base Metal shares reflected that condition. Wendigo weakened a few cents while Noranda and Hudson Bay remained unchanged. The oils were slightly stronger.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Considerable liquidation developed in Toronto industrial market today and recessions were boarded for the majority. Building and Steel group, Standard, Brantiam, Nickel, Ford A, O.P.R., and the big Oils were active and heavy with under their closing prices of Tuesday.

Domestic listings did better, giving a fairly strong tone to the Food, Building and Steel groups. Page Hersey touched its new high for a point. Beer issues were again active but they lost some of Tuesday's gains. Brewing Corporation common was down, 1-4 to 7-8. Distillery issues traded in fair volume and at steady prices.

HOGS

Toronto, Feb 5.—(CP)—Two 15-cent advances, at Brantford and Barrie, were registered on hourly hog prices from outside reporting markets points today leaving other markets unchanged at other reporting markets. Prices:
Brantford, $8.35; Stratford, $8.35; Kitchener, $8.35; Hull $8.40; Barrie, $8.40; Brantford, $8.55.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied by Bigger and Crawford by Financial Service.

According to an official statement over the signatures of Mr. Pierre Beauchemin, vice-president of Sullivan Consolidated Mines, limited, latest progress report from the mine states that the new shaft is now completed to the second level and that the bright spot of the week was the encountering of a fine vein in the 380 crosscut. The vein has a true width of 7½ feet and consists of tourmaline and pyrite. Diamond drilling had previously indicated the vein at a depth of 150 feet by five holes showing good to very high grade ore values, from 0.10 ounces to 7 to 10 feet.

It is too early yet to determine the grade as no drifting has been done on this vein.

Total production for 1935 amounts to $470,597 from the milling of 31,-761 tons or $14.13 per ton.

The development program for 1936 will be extensive and production will be published every three months.

The Toronto Daily Star carries the following story on Chibougamau, which is published in full:

"Current reports as to tonnage and grade ore in the property of Consolidated Chibougamau Goldfields now under development by Consolidated Smelting and Mining Co. of Canada, in an extremely optimistic light, are denied by Arthur Roy Brown, president of Smelters, in an official statement issued today.

Rumors have been rife on the local street of late with the stock being boosted on the property of steadily mounting prices. Ore grade estimates ranging up to $40 per ton have been made with one source stating that as much as 4,000,000 tons of ore is in sight.

Mr. Warren states: "No report has been issued by the directors, officers of the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co., or any member of any group of interested persons, and the results of our development to date do not justify any such statements as have been published. We have, however, met with difficult conditions but we are warranted the continuance of the development program originally formulated and expectations of ultimately developing a profitable mine.

"It should be remembered that the district is remote and without transportation facilities. Large scale operations will be necessary before production can be attained, and that extensive expenditures for transportation will only be justified after large tonnages of ore have been indicated, the statement concludes.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Feb 5 (AP)—Gains of a point or more in scattered issues of stocks list in late trading today but most of the improvement was fractional.

Case and Western Union advanced six points each while Deere, National Cash Register, Burroughs, Lambert, Johns-Manville and Loew did nearly as well. Fractional gainers included Chrysler, Pennsylvania, Bethlehem Steel and Ohio.

General Electric, Santa Fe, and Westinghouse declined.

The late tone was firm. Volume approximated 2,700,000 shares.

Livestock

Montreal, Feb. 5 (CP)—Steady prices continued in light trading during early dealings on Montreal Stock Exchange today. Volume was very barely steady, calves were unchanged and hogs, sheep and lambs remaining unchanged.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch: Cattle 36; calves 196; hogs 160; sheep and lambs 400. Offerings were offered but not enough to make a market. Calves remained unchanged and hogs were steady at the close of good veals selling for $9.50. Common, $8.50 and grass calves, $7.50.

Toronto, Feb. 5 (CP)—The Toronto livestock Market commenced another slow session today with cattle and calves unchanged and sheep and lambs unsettled. A few sheep offered were also steady. Receipts were a little under those of 800 head from yesterday.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 400; calves, 400; hogs, 600; sheep and lambs, 400.

With cattle trade dull, this lowered will be unchanged and there were no early sales. Other grades sold barely steady. Choice steers brought $4.00 to $5.25 and good cows $3.75 to $4.25. Choice fed heifers sold at $4.50 to $4.75.

The calf market ruled unchanged at $5.50 to $11.00 for choice and a few tops at $11.50. Common veals brought $6.00 to $7.00.

No grass calves established so hogs in early morning sales and prices were steady to early bids. Yesterday's light hog run gave truck hogs a 15-cent rise to $8.65 for bacons and car supplies 25 cents higher at $8.50 f.o.b. and $8.25 weighed off cars.

There were no early sales on Western lambs and no bids were made. The few sheep sold steady at from $2.00 to $5.00 ewe, according to quality.

HAS NARROW ESCAPE

Wallaceburg, Ont. Feb. 5 (CP)—Richard Jinkerson, R. Soulis Wallaceburg, had a narrow escape from burning to death last night when his automobile caught fire while he was driving on Dover road.

Jinkerson was thrown from the car by the impact of the collision. Neighbors carried him to safety.

WALES DEFEATS ENGLAND

Wrexham, Wales, Feb. 5 (CP)—Wales defeated England 2-1 in an international soccer match here today. England led 1-0 at half-time but the Welshmen came back in the final 45 minutes to wipe out the lead and go on to win by the odd goal.

Produce Prices on Montreal Mark

Montreal Feb. 5.—Wholesale butter prices at Montreal were steady to lower yesterday. Speculative trade was quiet but the undertone was steady. New potatoes were practically off the market being held small to form a basis for quotations. Supplies of poultry were steady. Receipts were posted at Board of Trade as follows: 1,000 eggs, 800 pounds of butter and boxes of cheese.

The butter market ranged 22 1-2 to 23c for No. 1 in carlots and 1-c lots, compared with 23 to 24c on the previous day.

On the egg market graded receipts in carlots were 16 1-1 lots mainly 26c for A-large, 24c for A-medium, and 22c for A-pullets.

Leafs Move Into First Place Shuting Out Boston Bruins While Maroons Tie Amerks

Detroit Red Wings Also Draw With New York Rangers

C. DILLON STARS

Clancy, Kelly And Metz Marksmen in Toronto's Win

(By A. E. Fulford)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Lester Patrick's New York Rangers are playing in such spotty luck these hockey evenings, and even when one of them gets hot enough to score three goals they can't do better than a tie. Cecil Dillon was a very warm member of the Patrick Parade last night but failed to bring them a win from Detroit.

Dillon, who seldom allows the rise and fall of Ranger fortunes to affect his consistent scoring, came through with the two goals enough to have his night's work all done early in the second period when Rangers led 3-1 and Detroit looked brighter than Broadway for the New Yorkers.

Wings had other ideas, however, they tied the score in the third period, Lorne Chabot in goalies third and matched Rangers' overtime goal, with the game ending up tied in a 4-4 draw.

The shot-for-shot into a tie with the idle Chicago Black Hawks for leadership of the National League's Canadian division while Toronto Maple Leafs were overtaking Montreal Maroons in the American Association.

Quagmire Bruins decisively, even won 3-0 in Boston while Maroons gained a single point by holding New York Americans to a 1-1 tie in Montreal, largely through Bill Beveridge's fine goaltending.

Dillon's True Effort

Dillon's true effort, though, one goal short of a record for one game this season, proved a belief he has to be lost in a 4-4 tie. He netted in the first minute of the game in New York's second change of the other pair in the second, while Wings were two more short, Ivan Johnson threw the puck over the first goal while Marty Barry tied Herb Lewis' pass in same period, and Howie Morenz and Bill Cook added to the Blue Shirts' scored within 63 seconds.

They got the New Yorkers a two goal lead with a little more than four minutes of the middle session gone and 3-1 was added ten minutes later before Bucko McDonald dropped through with a shot that got brought Wings within striking distance. Aurie went down under Wings' third goal.

Butch Keeling took a pass from Lou Coulbeck, and when overtime only 32 seconds old for the British Ranger sniped one that Orrell got the last wing counter with only three minutes to play.

Goals Were Three-Period

Leafs' staring against Bruins in much the same way Rangers did in the New York. Frank Clancy scored at 32nd second of the first period, relied on Art Jackson's pass and Busher Jackson and Joe Primeau got their second two minutes and forty-seven seconds later. They got a third midway through the second session with Andy Blair assisting.

Leafs looking very good against Bruins, beating the opposition at ice of every one of their seven games in most of this year. Bruins, on the other hand, could possibly have done better than enough as usual. Blair and Bill Thoms of Leafs got the only penalties of the game.

Americans did everything but score in the second session, driving shots at Beveridge compared to three Roy Worters handled in the Americans nets. They put on particularly strong offensive, but Allan Shields was serving a penalty but Beveridge beat them

Maroons got the only goal of the period, when Hooley Smith drove the puck past Worters from the goal-mouth after a scrap with Jimmy Ward and Baldy Northcott. Sweeney Schriner tied it up in third on a nice solo dash, that let him from losing his league scoring leadership. Dillon's three goals caught him into a tie with the ex-Yorker, each having 26 points.

New Haven Eagles Can Gain Third Place

New Haven, Conn., Feb. 5 (CP) — New Haven Eagles scored 10 unanswered possession of third place in the loop race, oppose the Philadelphia Ramblers at Philadelphia tonight in a Canadian-American league contest.

The official standing announcement yesterday, the Eagles, tied with Hartford, in third place with 29 each, trailed the league leading Ramblers by 12 points.

By RAY COLLETT

Johnny Sorrell doesn't like trains. He doesn't like travelling nohow, and rather than wander all over the map to play a few hockey games, he would go down to the minor league. That's the story they tell about the speedy Detroit wingman, who earned brickbats by the dozen for goals in a single game once and duplicated a year later by making a triple against the same team. The unfortunates were New York Americans and the occasions, the opening games of the 1932 and 1933 campaigns.

Sorrell offered to drop to Detroit Olympics rather than meet around the major circuit with Red wings and his suggestion was only turned down by Farrand Gillis decided he didn't want to replace Sorrell with Detroit. In the International league then, there was far less travelling.

Sorrell, born in the Ottawa Valley, though he lives now in Windsor, came up from London to the Redwing ranks. He led the league scorers as a freshman, a lanky forward in a frail looking fellow but its on record that in that season he missed only two games which would prove that he has endurance.

He also has speed, probably as much as any hockeyist in the game, and a deadly sniping eye that gives goalies the jitters. All in all Sorrell is quite a valuable piece of hockey livery.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By the Canadian Press)

Three goals behind the second Detroit shot Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers into a tie with Sweeney Schriner for the National Hockey League scoring leadership today. Each has 26 points.

Dillon has 16 goals, three more than Paul Thompson, Chicago Black Hawks. Toronto and Aurie Sullivan, Canadiens tied for second place in goals scored.

Dillon's trio of goals threatened to push Schriner out of the top spot but the New York American picked off Aurie's goal in the 1-1 draw with Maroons to tie with the Ranger. They were the only members of the Big Seven to add to their totals.

The standing:

	G.	A.	P.
Dillon Rangers	16	10	26
Schriner, Americans	11	15	26
Thoms Toronto	12	12	24
Romnes Chicago	8	16	24
Thompson Chicago	13	10	23
Boucher Rangers	9	14	23
Chapman Americans	8	14	22

Cecil Dillon, New York Rangers, scored three goals, when the New Yorkers tied Detroit 4-4.

LONDON TECS STAND SECOND IN SECTION

Defeat Syracuse Stars, 5-3 Moving Two Points Ahead of Buffalo

CARDS WIN AGAIN

Score 3-1 Win Over Buffalo Bisons in Peppery Game

(By the Canadian Press)

London Tecumseh were alone in second place of the Eastern Section standing of the International Hockey League today but may find themselves back in a tie with Buffalo Bisons tomorrow, when beat the section-leading Syracuse Stars 5-3 at London last night and moved two points ahead of Buffalo as the Bison took a 3-1 trimming from Rochester at the Cards' home town. Bisons have a chance to recoup tonight against Shamrocks at Pittsburgh.

The other game tonight pits Detroit Olympics in Western Section leaders against Cleveland Falcons, their closest rivals, at Cleveland. Falcons trail the O's by five points.

Rochester's Cards, last place in the Eastern section, hope they are in for another winning streak. They nailed off three straight wins before Detroit stopped them 1-0 at Detroit Sunday night. The Cards victory last night was their eighth of the season, and their first point total to 17, just 15 behind Buffalo.

Start on Right Foot

Two goals in the first period started Rochester off in high spirits last night and adding another in the second before Stars' second in the third. Ellis Pringle scored on assists from Farrand Gillis and Thaina Smith. Mike Brophy, brought to Rochester from Cleveland, added another with Anderson and Bill Cunningham furnishing passes. Bill Cunningham netted Bartolone's pass in the second and Sammy Godin saved Bisons from a shutout Saturday night by Roche's second goal. Stars scored a year later in the third off assists from Roter Roth and Milt Halliday. In the second period Moe Levine's two goals, the held the puck too long and Milt Halliday tried a penalty shot, missed.

Norm Locking's two goals helped Tecs pull Tom of Stars up and beat the Stars. Yank Boyd for Tecs in the first minutes with assists from Cal Gallagher and Locking added Locking took a pass from Calligher for the tying goal. Gallagher in the middle period, Yank Boyd and Eric Pettinger scored unassisted. Tecs one and-Rabbit McVeigh slamming in another with passes from Lolo Gouthro and Bobby Hammond. Eddie Convery scored the first for Stars in the first minutes with assists and Eddie Burke getting assists, Thomas Smith Locking added Locking took a pass from Calligher for the tying goal. Gallagher in the middle period, Yank Boyd and Eric Pettinger scored unassisted. One

ONTARIO ANGLERS MEET SHORTLY

PLAINFIELD

Plainfield—During the year 1935 there were 152 preaching services held on the Plainfield Mission charge, consisting of fifty at the Plainfield appointment, thirty-seven at Elsie, thirty-six at Mount Pleasant and thirty-five at Bethel. Upon six Sundays during the year four services were held, on four Sundays, two and on forty-two Sundays three services, making two services over and above an average of three services for each of the fifty-two Sundays in the year. There were eleven deaths, six marriages, seven baptisms and six Young People who united with the church on profession of faith.

The contributions to the Missionary and Maintenance Fund amounted to $307 and to the Women's Missionary Society $315.00 a total of $320.00 to missions. A total of one hundred dollars was spent on church improvements.

The church attendance was not large but consistent and the spirit in all the congregations good, and the pastor would take this opportunity of thanking all those who by their faithful service and unlimited support helped to make a measure of success and of soliciting your further co-operation in making the church a real power to help realize the purpose the church requires to be sure it of victory is that the people in their several communities will step in behind it and boost for it by their leaders and it's work, as today people of all ages in large groups are hooking for sport, social and political enterprises.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE—

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Ready to Go

The liver should pour into the bowels at least one pint of liquid bile every day. If this bile is not flowing freely, food does not digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You get constipated. Your whole system is poisoned and you feel sour, sunk and the world looks punk.

Don't just treat the constipation. Get at the cause. You need something that will get the liver going. Dr. Chase's Liver Pills do just that. Dr. Chase's Little Liver Pills get down into the system and make the liver pour out a flood of bile. They are purely vegetable. Ask for Dr. Chase's Little Liver Pills by name! Refuse substitutes. 24 pills, 25c.

Export Canadian Buffalo to Aid Conservation of European Herds

Successful Experiment in Alberta to be tried in Germany

Canadian buffalo, from the reserve at Wainwright, Alberta, are being shipped to Berlin, Germany, where they will be used in an experiment designed to conserve the European bison, near extinction. KOP picture shows cowboys rounding up a herd.

By JAMES MONTAGNES

Central Press Canadian Writer

Ottawa, Feb. 5.—Early this month twenty buffalo will start a long journey by rail and steamer from Wainwright, Alberta, to Berlin, Germany, were quarters are now being provided for an experiment which has as its aim the saving of European buffalo from extinction. Canadian buffalo have in the past travelled long distances to zoological gardens in various parts of the United States and Canada, and across the seas to as distant points as Sydney, Australia. But no mass migrations as the present have ever been undertaken across the ocean with buffalo.

Canada's experiment in saving the buffalo from extinction with the salvage of the last herd in 1907 has become so well-known among conservationists throughout the world, that Europe's animal specialists have decided to try an experiment on this Canadian method.

There are, according to the best estimates only seventy buffalo or bisons in Europe, mainly in zoos in England, Holland, Sweden, Poland, Hungary, Austria, Switzerland and Germany. Some wild buffalo are said to be hidden in Poland.

Buffalo two-year-olds have for some time now been rounded up on the 200 square mile preserve of Buffalo National Park, near Wainwright, Alberta, and early in February the best of the two-year-olds will be picked out. Shipped by rail to Berlin. Nineteen cows and one bull will make up the shipment. They will be crated and placed in baggage cars for transport to probably Vancouver for shipment on a freighter to their new home in Germany.

More Than 18,000 in Canada

There the Director of the Berlin Zoological Gardens, Dr. Lutz Heck, will place them with small herds of European bisons in various parts of Germany. By means of cross-breeding and subsequent in-breeding" it is expected that a pure bred herd of European bison will be developed and the perpetuation of this species of the buffalo family be assured.

The buffalo will be shipped by the National Parks Branch of the Department of the Interior. The American Bison Society is understood to have been instrumental in making this experiment of buffalo an actuality as the society is anxious for conservation purposes to save the European branch of the buffalo family. If the European experiments are as successful as were Canada's, the bison in Europe will be saved from extinction, for Canada's buffalo have grown from the herd of 700 originally purchased in 1907 to over 15,000 today, of which nearly 8,000 are at the Wainwright Preserve.

CARRYING PLACE

Carrying Place— Cold weather with all the trimmings is still making itself unpleasantly at home among us, and the old-timers who have been telling of the almost unknown rigours of the cold spell of away back are perspiring for the good old days and to tell of the difficulties of the present season. The continental zero and sub-zero weather is setting a record for the season, and there will be few who will not welcome the return of the warmer breezes. One of the greatest handicaps for the motorist is the drifted road. On Saturday last a strong west wind piled the snow high and heavy in every available fence corner. Persons attempting to travel the Carderville road found almost impassable banks between the post office and the Wellers Bay corner. Only stout work by shovellers and snow ploughs served at night to fall left the road in fit condition for Sunday travel. The highway snow plough has been keeping the main road from Picton to Trenton well opened up, and on Monday made a trip up to the Geo. Hardy cemetery and return.

Community League held in the United Church hall on Thursday evening last attended a large crowd than usual in spite of the cold. A fine programme arranged by Mrs. H. LaTour, Mrs. C. Weller and Mr. W. T. Cowley kept the audience interested and entertained and at its conclusion lunch was served by the committee in charge. The president, Mr. Norrington, occupied the chair, and all local affairs were on hand. The meeting was opened with the singing of hymn 400 and after which the scripture reading was given by Miss Marion Hazlewood. The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. The reading of the minutes by the secretary, Miss Jennie Green, was followed by the roll call. During the business portion of the meeting it was decided to join with the Women's Association in buying a number of hymn books for the church. Four committee leaders were appointed to look after supplying of refreshments for ensuing meetings. The programme proper began with a reading from Tony's Scrapbook by Mr. W. M. Weese. Mr. Norrington gave a resume of current events followed by a reader's contest consisting of thirty questions regarding present day events. The contest was won by Rev. Mr. Sanders of Consecon and Mr. Alex Campbell who were tied with 28 correct. A small prize was given following this Miss Lela Black read a portion of the testament and a short period was devoted to the reading of a letter given by Miss Mia Sine, a quartette consisting of Misses Will Le Tour, George Cowley, Alec Campbell and A. Norrington also rendered a selection. Refreshments were then served with the closing hymn sung soon after and the meeting closed with the repetition of the Mizpah Benediction.

Mr. Fred Hicks, Jr. is visiting his sister and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. J. St. Pierre, in Sudbury.

A baby dance was held in the Parish Hall on Friday evening last in the interest of wiring the Hall. The church was wired several years ago, and the wardens and members of the congregation of St. John's Church are to be congratulated on the reasons in getting both these buildings wired so quickly. The wiring in Parish Hall it is understood, will begin at once, and is to be completed before the opening of the next dance a few weeks hence.

Teachers have all been received for the wiring of the public school but owing to bad weather and deep snow the trustees have not yet been able to make definite arrangements for final plans.

Sickness is taking its toll in the community as it always seems to do during this season of the year. Influenza is the almost universal complaint, with church congregations and school attendance not up to the standard of long ago. Reports of deceases are reported about but so far have not visited this community.

When the Trenton-Carrying Place hockey team meets the R.C.A.F. six at Rockcliffe fixture of the T. D. H. L. on Wednesday night a large delegation of loyal supporters from this community will be on hand to

BOAT CAPSIZES 21 ARE DROWNED

Badly Stowed Cargo Believed Cause of Tragedy

Buenos Aires, Feb. 5 (AP)—Police announced 21 persons drowned when the 45-ton steamer Vargas-capsized in a remote stretch of the Upper Parana River near Posadas. Eight others were reported rescued.

Although a sudden list, when many of the passengers rushed to one side of the craft after a burst of wind hit into the water, was first blamed for the disaster, police declared the ship had overturned because of excessive badly-stowed cargo.

Passengers declared the steamer was so heavily laden when it left Corrientes that it was virtually a wash.

Domingo Buvart, a member of the crew, told the police of the accident when he was brought to Posadas after being picked up by Capt. Gabriel D'Annunzio.

"I was off duty at the time of the disaster and was sleeping," he said. "Suddenly a sharp jolt of the ship awoke me and I simultaneously heard cries of terror from passengers and crew the magnitude of which like myself momentarily did not realize what was happening.

Belleville Presbyterial W.M.S. Holds Executive Meeting

An executive meeting of Belleville Presbyterial Woman's Missionary Society was held on Thursday, January 30th in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, with an attendance of nineteen members and Mrs. D. B. Wilson called the roll.

The President, Mrs. W. G. Dougherty, of Cherry Valley, presided over the two sessions and the morning devotion was in charge of Mrs. F. E. Walden.

The business was primarily to pass the various secretaries' reports of the year's work before they were forwarded to Branch and also to make plans for the coming Presbyterial to be held in Tabernacle United Church, Belleville, on March 25th and 26th.

Mrs. E. Farnsworth speaking on "Christian Stewardship", stressed that many surveys adopting a missionary for pray, using the budget system, and she listed several splendid leaflets and pamphlets to be had entitled "Wakeg Up". Mrs. Frank Herrington urged the senior women to assist the young women to establish mission circles. Mrs. James Redick recorded one hundred and fifty-nine girls in auxiliaries and Mrs. Bailey has received very encouraging replies from fifty-seven mission bands with special prizes going to Enterprise and Cannington.

Mrs. F. L. Hooper said "World Peace" is a definite part of the year's work and a woman should be appointed to this office who is willing to read and study the subject. She paid tribute to the passing of our beloved King George.

Mrs. W. J. Corkill has remitted to Branch $14.075 and while success is not measured by financial returns, it is regretable that ten per cent. increase was not reached in this tenth year of work.

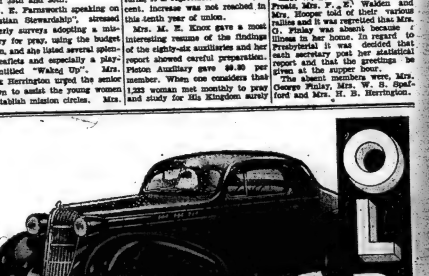
Mrs. M. E. Knox gave a most interesting resume of the findings of the eighty-six auxiliaries and her report showed careful preparation.

Picton Auxiliary gave $9.80 per member. When one considers that 1,333 woman met monthly to pray and study for His Kingdom surely the year had been most successful.

The ladies of Tabernacle Group served luncheon to the delegates at noon and Rev. R. W. Foley, chairman of the Presbytery, took charge of the afternoon devotional and in his brief address he said, "Let us always remember the missionaries are the foreign lands to help these people help themselves.

Mrs. Haggerty stressed the three links of the United Church, Sunday service, Sabbath school and Women's Missionary Society. Mrs. Raymond Fretts outlined several points of interest along the lines of Baby Branch.

Mrs. G. S. Reddick received thirty-seven splendid bale of supplies and these have been distributed in various parts of Canada and were gratefully received. It is hoped that in 1936 more Mission Bands will assist with toys, scribblers, lead pencils and knitted socks.



Mrs. A. Empey told of the many acts of kindness being accomplished by Stranger's Secretaries and the large number o. people visited in homes and hospitals. Mrs. H. D. Williams asked that all orders of literature be sent through her and Odessa auxiliary has read 104 books.

Mrs. Frank Dafoe was pleased with the Temperance Department and in the near future all secretaries will be supplied with free literature through the generosity of the W.C.T.U.

Mrs. Percy MacMullen paid tribute to the late Mrs. S. E. Reveille, Branch Press Secretary, who has been called to Higher Service. Sixty four auxiliaries, one study group, two evening auxiliaries six circles, seven mission bands and three C.G.I.T. groups have sent in one each secretary report and eighteen items of missionary news to the local papers.

Mrs. W. S. Coggon, Mrs. H. Fronis, Mrs. F. McC. Walden and Mrs. Rupert told of their various talks and it was regretted that Mrs. G. Finlay was absent because of illness in her home. In regard to Presbyterial it was decided that each secretary post her statistical report and that the greetings be given at the supper table.

The absent members were, Mrs. Coggon Finlay, Mrs. W. S. Spafford and Mrs. H. S. Herrington.

THE BIG NEW CAR THAT HAS EVERYTHING

NOT SO LONG AGO such scenes as this were more or less common in Canada—well within the recollection of the oldest inhabitants, especially in the West between Winnipeg and the foothills of the Rockies. Even farther east North Bay, Sturgeon Falls and Temiskaming pioneers can remember similar scenes. The Trading Post depicted looks not unlike Pipe & Presley's General Store at Cobalt, which was the biggest thing visible from the first trains which entered Cobalt, but which soon shrank into the shadows cast by larger and more pretentious buildings erected after the silver rush started—after Larose the blacksmith, sharpening drills at his portable smithy on the right of way, threw his hammer at a fox, missed the fox but struck one of the biggest silver finds of all time, which resulted in the Larose mine, with workings down about 3,000 feet and still producing—the mine that made the Timmins boys of Mattawa millionaires, also Duncan McMartin and his brother, and Dave Dunlap, the Mattawa lawyer, whose law practise furnished him barely enough money to indulge his penchant for grub-staking ambitious prospectors. The whole bunch became millionaires overnight in Cobalt and multi-millionaires later from Hollinger where they staked their earnings from the Larose mine at Cobalt.

It might also be a picture of the original Temagami, before the tourist came and the Friday family of Ojibways turned Bear Island into a tourist resort for those who did not care to pay the greater prices of such society places as Temagami Inn or Lady Evelyn Hotel, far up the lake. Veteran Hudson Bay men or Royal Northwest Mounted Police could interpret the language of the Indian holding up his hands in the picture to the trader. The Injun sees only one jug of rum and too much ham and bacon and dress-goods. He holds up two fingers which signifies two jugs of rum or no deal.

And so the title of the picture is THE ROOTS OF EMPIRE LIE IN TRADE . . . AND TRADE IS BUILT ON CONFIDENCE. This was especially true of the early dealings of the pioneers with the Indians. The Hudson Bay Company, great band of Gent'emen Adventurers trading into Hudson Bay, would not tolerate a crooked tongue in its employ and the Indians found that the great company could always be trusted—they had confidence in it. Independent traders with false hearts and crooked tongues soon lost the confidence of the Indians and were fortunate if they did not lose their sca'ps, for there was nothing the Indian despised more than the crooked tongue of the liar, and with no great love for the white-faced invader of his hunting grounds at any time, he would not stand for deceit. His white brother to be accepted must play fair and keep the faith, otherwise the Indian believed that such a white man was better dead with his scalp helping to adorn a truth-telling Indian's tepee.

Note the missionary priest talking to the squaw holding her papoose strapped to the Indian contrivance which kept the baby contented hanging from a tree or elsewhere and gave the mother plenty of time for her various duties. Perhaps there is talk about a baptism, and the wife of the trading post proprietor is telling the priest what a good little papoose it is. Note the boy with the dog on leash. The canine is excited at the smell of wild beasts coming from the bales of furs just unloaded from the birch bark canoe of the Indian in the foreground of the picture. The log buildings and the covered wagon, drawn by a sturdy team of oxen, Brown and Boss, perhaps, the horses and burros at the hitching rack, and the hunters swapping yarns on the steps of the Trading Post, while the mountains form a majestic background, fringed with lordly pines, sharing glory and honor as nature's finest productions with the straight and beautiful silver birches in the foreground.

TRADE IS BUILT ON CONFIDENCE.

Trade must always rest on Confidence; the implicit Confidence of the customer in the store he buys from or the professional man he has dealings with.

Confidence has nothing to do with age or size. A small storekeeper may have it and his patrons will swear by all he sells. A great merchant may lose it . . . and be great no longer. The Confidence of Customers is the one thing business men prize above everything else . . . BECAUSE THEY REALIZE HOW EASY IT IS TO LOSE IT.

IN THE OLD DAYS TRICKERY COST THE TRICKSTER HIS SCALP.

IN THESE NEW DAYS TRICKERY COSTS THE TRICKSTER THE CONFIDENCE OF HIS PATRONS, and loss of prestige and business is the result.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Dale thought about that after he had left the room. Always curious about Brant's family she asked this to her scanty store of information. Brant had spoken of his grandmother before—how he made the queer proposal of marriage—and it had been with this same boyish tenderness. It was a loving sprig of memory which had not dried up in these last arid years.

The olive branch was tardily extended between them after that, nothing was said of the quarrel, both content to ignore it.

In the afternoon Jimmy Wattles drove up, loudly solicitous.

"My land o' goshen!" she boomed as she tramped into the room where Dale lay, "I just had a hunch you'd be laid up today. This here desert sun is a caution for blisters!" She looked at the girl's raw shoulders and clucked sympathetically. "You poor lamb! Here—I brought some stuff to cool it."

Brant watched from the doorway as the woman deftly smeared tender skin with her brum red lineaux, and the man found himself chuckling softly over the picture they made.

The overalled Amazon with her hard red arms and absurd little onion knot of hair was such a lusty across contrast to the slender blonde girl. He stole a glance at Dale. Now that his pupils had adjusted to what a pretty little beggar she was. Brant shaped favorably that description of brown eyes and yellow hair. What he used to call the flower faced girl. But there was no lack of character behind that delicate beauty. The wry shaft stood up to him yesterday. And he was no sweet ream in his black moods. Brant reflected with a shamefaced grin. His wife..... after all she was his wife. It didn't mean anything to either of them of course, but in the eyes of the world she was his.

Honey was tremendously overcome by Brant's good looks and air of breeding. He was frankly taken, somehow distinguished in spite of the worn and faded khaki. "It's a grand day, mister, desrie!" Mrs. Wattles confided to Dale in a booming aside which was perfectly audible to Brant's crimsoning ears. "A regular he-man. Me—if I'm a big man. Never had no use for shrimps. 'Course I'm now, he aint so big—but then, Pa's different."

Dale suppressed a giggle and this took her mind from the strained leap of pride in her heart at Honey's words.

The next day the girl was going gingerly about the house with the blue robe pinched below her arms to leave her blistered shoulders free.

Brant had gone away early this morning and the house seemed strangely still. She had had sense strangely still. She had had sense enough about going down to the cross road store for cigarettes but as the hours passed, creeping evening gave increasing heat, the girl grew uneasy. Was the peace of yesterday only a dream? Had Brant terday only a dream? Had Brant slid back to the old degression "ways?

It was mid afternoon before he returned. Dale heard him out in the shed by the disabled car and when he entered the house he wore something of the dazed expression of a small boy. He handed the key of the car to her.

"I got Wattles to drive me in to Colt City and I bought two new hair bow [illegible] I don't want you doing this [illegible] stunt again. You use the car after this."

How had he got the money for the time? Dale wondered secretly. Later she saw him pull a roll of watch from his pocket and conceal it. The expensively flat gold watch had gone—gone for her time!

CHAPTER 24. CHANGES

In the weeks that followed a sort of awkward friendship sprang up between Dale and Brant. The man seemed to have turned some corner in his mind. There was even, Dale found herself thinking, a different look to him. The grim line of his mouth relaxed and he discovered that he had a charming smile. More than once she found herself watching for the flash of those even white teeth in his brown face.

Not a question had that disappointing gifting for his healing work. Brant coupled less frequently and he could work longer at his ivy and jobs about the place.

Nor was the change only physical. Dale understood, that he had used the longing for drink as a certain to veil his longing for her. That had punctured the bubble of Brant's delusion. Since that bitter quarrel, there was no desire to drink. Secretly the man marveled at this. After all, it was true! One of those words had dragged the skeleton from the closet and now that he looked at it in the full light of reason, what a ridiculous skeleton it was, what a ridiculous skeleton it was, what a ridiculous skeleton it was

City of Ur of the Chaldees Revealed in Discoveries Made in Ancient Tombs

Principal H. A. Kent of Queen's Theological School Lectures

OLD CIVILIZATION

Dr. Kent Unfolds Story of Treasures Found in Royal Tombs

How the river Euphrates when it flows at its course as rivers sometimes do brought to an end one of the earliest of civilizations, the oldest of which mankind today knows anything in detail, was told by Principal H. A. Kent of the Queen's Theological College, Kingston, at the second lecture of the Citizenship series under Chancellor of Commerce auspices on Tuesday evening at the Y.M.C.A. Dr. Kent was speaking on "Babylonia Before Abraham" and particularly of the Ur of the Chaldees from which Abraham (Abram) came out. The civilization of Ur dates back at least two thousand years before the time of Abraham, which means that it was as much older than Abraham as St. Paul was older than the people of today. The civilization or which he was speaking was revealed by the recent discoveries in Mesopotamia, showing the civilization that goes back to 4,000 years before Christ.

In the lower reaches of the Euphrates River, . . are was a very large plain of alluvial origin. That land was once fertile and supported a rich civilization. Today life there is wretched, he said, and with intolerable heat in the dry season, while in the wet season the land is a vast swamp in which reptiles abound. Despite this many valiant efforts of the archeologists have to be called off. "For this was the traditional site of the Garden of Eden. It was productive. It was the granary of the world, the most comparatively easy and pleasant," said Dr. Kent. The ancients had vast irrigation projects which drained off the land in the wet vast system of canals in the dry season and watered it through the season. Babylonia at that time was the most productive part of the ancient world. But today the canals have long since been filled with silt so that the land is a vast plain of sand or swamp. This alluvial land at the lower reaches of the Euphrates extended for 150 to 200 miles.

Island In Sand.

"The City of Ur of the Chaldees from which Abraham went out lay alongside the Euphrates in the days of Abraham. "Now it is a little island in a wilderness of sand. The river is twelve miles away, and the city which was once the sea and enjoyed a great trade is now twelve miles inland. At one time nearly one million people lived in this city, the country was rich and civilized, the city enjoyed a wide commerce. It became abundantly because the river changed its course and people became too lazy to keep open the canals which filled with sand. It is the home of one of the earliest civilizations of which we know."

It is interesting, commented Dr. Kent, that two great civilizations developed along rivers. The valley of the Euphrates, Man looks upon the civilization of Egypt as old but it must be remembered that Egypt in the world was stirred a few years ago by the discoveries in the grave of King Tu-tankh-amen, that civilization was young when, whereas the Babylonian civilization was at least 4000 years older.

There were two great centres in Babylonia—Babylon which was destroyed by the Assyrians in the seventh century B.C. by conquest, fire and by turning the river Euphrates flowing through it into a lake. It was the greater site, was one of the most luxurious cities of the ancient world because it buried forever a great civilization. The other great city of Babylonia is at the bottom of the swamps where Babylon stood," the lecturer said.

Ancient Civilizations.

Another centre was Nineveh. This was a younger civilization. In 1853 the discovery of a palace and library of the kings was made, one of the greatest finds in history, which throws a great light on ancient civilization. But to go back to the civilization at Ur of the Chaldees one has to go back 2500 or 4000 years B.C. Noting that there have been various theories about prehistoric history, the interval between one wave and another sometimes being one thousand years, Dr. Kent said that this Ur of the Chaldees was the first people known of in the Euphrates Valley. Whence they came no one knows, perhaps from the Steppe Asia, about 10000 B.C. From 5000 B.C. the Sumerians began to disappear. They were a highly cultured people and had entirely vanished by 3000 B.C.

Until after the Great War almost nothing was known of them. An American people, Dr. Hall of the British museum in London, and others began digging in a mound near Ur. In 1927 a joint expedition of the British Museum and the University of Pennsylvania set out to explore the mounds in the sand. Dr. Kent explained that under the ancient style of building cities rose perhaps as high as fifty or sixty feet above the original foundation rock.

Royal Tombs Found.

By 1932 or 1933 the excavators had dug down under the other civilizations' relics down into the vestiges of Sumerian civilization. There they found fabulous discoveries, royal tombs and prehistoric graves. In Ur, scattered in the graves, were treasures from the standpoints of the archaeologist.

Dr. Kent said a number of slides confirmed his illustrations to the lecture. One showed a queen's grave and a prince's grave. Several slides of the extraordinary complexity of the life at Ur are shown. The excavators knew the graves by the colour and dome. Underneath, gold and artisans with precious stones had reached the very highest stage of art development. They did show however lack of proportion in their representation of forms of animals.

The discovery of a royal tomb, sticking out of the sand on top of the mound led to the discovery of three royal tombs. The roof of one of the wooden coffin which had long since disappeared. In the tomb was a gold helmet on the head with a dagger and rein rings. One of the slides shows the reconstruction of the death pit of the king, this reconstruction based on the discoveries of metals and other precious evidences in the pit. There were two chariots, bodies of drivers and asses, courtiers, women with lyres and harps as well as oxen attached to the chariots in the pit beside the king's mound. At first this was thought to indicate human sacrifice when a terrific scale, but all the bones of the human bodies found in the pit do not one showed any sign of death by violence. They were there by their bodyguard, the oxen had silver rings in the nose. It was more probable that on the death of the king the bodies were brought to the ramp into the pit with oxen hitched to them, that some one came down and killed them and then they filled in the pit. The people entered the pit and singing, probably drank poison and died peacefully to die. The bodies were all there. Another slide showed a bull side with the knees drawn up under the chin. It appears to have been a case of voluntary death to accompany the king's spirit. Later the entire pit was filled in. Over the mark or the wisest of one of the chariots a hand and an there is the black stain it is believed the chariot had tires of leather. In the queen's tomb, which could be palaced, were fewer. Asses were used instead of oxen with the one chariot in the death pit.

Goldsmith's Art

Another slide showed the richness of the two lyres found once magnificently ornamented with golden stags. A bone of a finger evidently of the woman playing it was found where the lyre string once was.

In the queen's grave were discovered a golden crown ornamented with lapis lazuli and the queen's dagger and beside it a golden stag. This cloak having evidently been on the body.

The helmet in the prince's grave was of beaten gold of the form of a wig, the hair indicating the individual hairs of the head." This goldsmith's work of the time showed the days of Abraham was the envy of the neighboring peoples in the ancient. Principal Kent said. The gold dagger of the prince in a gold sheath had a handle of lapis lazuli. this gold work all being done by the Sumerians, neighbours of the Assyrians or harps was very rich.

Gold was used in the harp of lapis lazuli and precious stones, showing the king in peace and in war.

Archaeologists have come to have discovered the value of the cylinder seal in the days of Abraham drawing war chariots.

Gambling and gambling among the people was shown by discoveries of dicing tables.

The queen's discovery was a gold ram standing on its hind feet, caught in a thicket, the body being of lapis lazuli overlaid with gold. This figure being in mind the story of the scene of Abraham and Isaac when a ram caught in the bush when he was about to sacrifice his son.

A reconstruction of what a score of three days might look like was made by taking a skull of a woman found near the queen's grave, modelling it to represent flesh and skin, and then placing on the rich headdress found.

Evidences of Wealth

It was pointed out by Dr. Kent that gold and precious stones were not found in Ur and Babylon, but were from India. This is done by using the wealth of the people of Ur by their ability to possess such jewels and wealth.

The people of that civilization used mascots as little gold figures found indicate.

Further great discoveries are likely, said Dr. Kent, when more money is forthcoming for excavation.

Rev. L. S. Wight moved a hearty vote of thanks to Principal Kent. Lieut. Col. Riggs was chairman and Rev. W. J. Walker introducing the speaker spoke of the riches of the Old Testament. "There are some who say We should do away with the Old Testament," he remarked, "and that it should not be taught to our children, but one finds its importance after all under the guidance of a great scholar."

Mr. Walker closed by saying the Old Testament most interesting and valuable and should be the work of Dr. Kent at Queen's University.

MISS B. SOUTAR KIWANIS SPEAKER

Tells of Homes Visited In City And Surrounding District

In a word picture, Kiwanians at their weekly luncheon on Tuesday noon got a view of the district by Miss Bessie Soutar, in charge of V.O.N. work in this city and it was one of the most graphic pictures that could be painted. Her visit took the members to a home of a prominent family and from there down to the most squalid of conditions, a home devoid of furniture, but, through all the V.O.N. was at hand to assist the doctor in making sick people well. It was one of the most interesting addresses given to the club in some time and the members left the luncheon with a feeling of thankfulness and cheer and comfort a V.O.N. nurse brings and also the great amount of work, that is accomplished by this organization of helpful people, that other organizations do not touch.

Continuing the fine attendance of previous meetings, the members and visitors numbering about 60 with Frank Domenico in the chair, Leo B. Riggs presided at the piano for the community singing, while that old Seldon led the members and Chief Lynch collected the usual fine. Mrs. Frank Domenico, wife of the president, was an honored guest at the luncheon and occupied a seat at the head table. George A. Lee, chairman of the dance committee announced that the dance on Valentine's night was going to be a success. He told the members, that the invitations had been sent out and that the succeeding committee would soon be functioning. Eddie Shapiro, chairman of the entertainment committee, told of the feature, that would be provided, Bill Garton, who was in charge of the program for the Carnival, will act as Master of Ceremonies for the evening and Bobby Roberts, singer at the Silver Slipper will entertain with popular songs, being accompanied by the orchestra, while Frederick Cull his dancers will do the best night spot, in Toronto will give a number of their interpretative dances. There will be novelties and favors galore and a real good time is expected.

Carnival Mooted

Leslie Pearsall, speaking for the president of the Kinsmen Club stated that the Kinsmen would support the dance and that the presence of the Kiwanians was expected at the show being given by the Kinsmen for the Eye Clinic work. Cliff Baragar informed the members there would be no luncheon next Tuesday but a night meeting would be held at Picton, when that club will entertain the Belleville Club and challenge them at the Chief Kidd to the Kiwanis Club for a hockey match in aid of the V.O.N. has reached large proportions, the result being, that all four service clubs have banded together to put on a carnival for that worthy organization.

Emile Pinkie introduced the speaker of the day with Cliff Baragar voicing the appreciation of the members. Miss Soutar before proceeding with her address thanked the Kiwanis Club for the many splendid donations and more especially for the fine new car given by the club. "It makes such a work a real pleasure because in the cold nights, when one is called out we know we have a car that will start", said Miss Soutar. Pathos and humor were interspersed, the nurse describing the different homes, that were visited. Miss Soutar also sketched briefly the setup of the V.O.N. and its chief aims and objects. Some of the pictures of homes visited were a revelation to the members. The speaker in one particular instance told of a mother, who subsisted with her family on what the neighbors brought in, yet had not sought relief, believing there were others more deserving than she. The address was up to the finest given the club in some time.

W. W. POPE QUITS HYDRO OFFICE

Retiring Official Once G.T.R. Assistant Counsel

The resignation of W. W. Pope, secretary of the Provincial Hydro Commission, and the appointment in his place of A. R. Dyer, McKinnon, is announced at Toronto.

Chairman T. Stewart Lyon stated it was with regret the commission accepted the resignation of Mr. Pope, who for a number of years had been secretary since 1909. He retires on pension at his own request.

Mr. Pope was born in Compton County, Quebec, 67 years ago. As a young man he joined the staff of the Boston, Clinton and Pitchburg Railway at Boston, Mass., and served there for four years. In 1874 he came up the story of the Belleville. In 1876 he became assistant to the late John Bell, Q.C., solicitor for the Grand Trunk Railway when the offices were at Belleville. He remained in that office until 1905, when he was transferred to Montreal as assistant to W. D. Lighthgar, K.C. In 1929 he joined the Hydro as solicitor and secretary.

Mr. Pope held the office of major in the 15th Regiment, A.L.I. from which he retired in 1905. He served in the Fenian Raids.

Mr. McKinnon has been acting secretary as well as comptroller since August, 1934. For many years he was an official, residing in Brasil, of the Brazilian Traction, Light and Power Co. He was born in Kincardine, received his early education at Upper Canada College and is a graduate of McGill University. During the war he served in France with the Cyclist Corps and was later assistant chemical adviser to the Canadian Corps.

"The Commission are fortunate in finding so well qualified a successor to Mr. Pope," Mr. Lyon stated.

T. K. Jones, who joined the Hydro in 1934 as assistant treasurer and has been acting-treasurer since the retirement of J. W. Gilmour, has been appointed treasurer.

MAIN PROBLEM OF DOMINION IS FINANCIAL

Solution of Railway Deficits, Budgets To Be Tried

Ottawa, Feb. 5 (Special Parliamentary Correspondence) — Behind the curtain rises on the Federal parliamentary stage next Thursday and the national setting stands fully revealed, the obvious comment which will occur to all spectators will be that if the legislators fail to achieve some first-rank results, it will not be for want of doughnuts problems with which to grapple.

It is doubtful if any Parliament of Canada—let alone one with so high a percentage of first-term-ers—has ever faced a situation most replete with challenges and opportunities to wise statesmanship. Five years of depression have been cumulative in the credit balance which they have been piling up for the Dominion, and all budgetary points to the inevitable day of reckoning being close to hand. With the depression having sent the total of unbalanced budgets, expenditures uncontrollably in excess of income, and of reduced railway revenues, it is the task of the legislators who take their seats Thursday to see that the Dominion from reaping the whirlwind.

Chief Problem

The main problem is, of course, the financial one. Federal income has halved in the depression years. The truth is that when Canada was plunged into the present depression of which history has any record she faced problems which, through her prosperity had been accumulating, had escaped national attention. These problems, with adverse trade balances and a consequent shift in international buying, assumed such proportions that it is only by the most heroic emergency measures that national bankruptcy was avoided.

Municipal, provincial and dominion authorities were caught with a gigantic unemployment relief problem for which there was no previous preparation. Transportation drifted into the tide of easy borrowing. With falling world prices our rail transportation could not meet its interest on horrored capital. Obviously some improvement in prices levels and national recovery these problems could be tackled without extreme hardship to Canadian citizens anywhere. Canadians pursued policies which enabled the British Empire which have resulted in substantially raising wholesale and general commodity prices.

Relief Burden

The time hasrrived, when the solution of thesproblems of railway deficits, relief burdens and unbalanced budgetsin the national finances, should be considered. One figure may believe to indicate the seriousness of he situation. In the course of the three years there has gone into thesde to the extent of more than $46,000,000 without having into consideration the contingent liabilities that to was necessary for it to assume in connection with railway situation. Last year the railway situation system cost the public treasury $43,000,000. The second problem is the burden of the provinces During the past calendar year the Dominion has had to advance $37,000,000 to the provinces to meet their deficits. Western provinces have been unable to carry on and meet their obligations. The final problem is the question of unemployment relief. Of the current year it promises to each a total of $45,000,000.

Inflation and Railways

Outthese three situations, inflation and railways are the most important session since Confederation.

Miss Taylor's Father on Stand Does Not Look at O'Donnell

Toronto, Feb. 6.—(CP)—William Gibson, Ontario Land Surveyor was recalled to the witness box today at the resumption of the trial of Harry O'Donnell, charged with the murder of Ruth Taylor.

The surveyor, first of the Crown's witnesses when the 25-year-old flirting station attendant went on trial Monday, was brought back to give a further description of the east and north sides of the Humber's ravished body was found Nov. 8.

O'Donnell was outwardly disinterested as ever when court opened for the fourth day of the trial. Again dressed in brown and meticulously groomed, he leaned back in the prisoner's dock, apparently paying little attention to the proceedings.

Many seats in the courtroom were vacated today for the first time since Monday. Scores lined up outside the door, but court attendants would let none in except on invitation.

Capt. Orr, motorman on the street car that carried Miss Taylor to the Humber bridge, was recalled after Gibson, but could not be found. Another witness, Detective Sheriff did not respond, and crown counsel Arthur Ellis said he would call Detective Fred Misner of the Toronto police.

Gibson, one of the officers who screened O'Donnell, said of the O'Donnell of the statement made to him: "I am not guilty of murder. I am guilty of manslaughter. I am sorry for what I have done. I am not a criminal at heart. I did not do it deliberately."

On 102 cross from theirs of the father of O'Donnell's parents motioning was said, but in view of the fact the parties to the case are O'Donnell's boss, Munro, counsel the prisoner, replied: "In that case where the big affair happened the other night" the officer said he'd rather not.

From the O'Donnell home, he said the detective's car was taken to police headquarters.

"Did he say anything there?" asked Arthur.

"Not a word," O'Donnell's agent-counsel. Munro said he saw O'Donnell clothing in the bathroom. The hat he had on was a brown felt, the right side being damp, the back of the head and neck on the same he drew the knee: threads were also found on the coat. He saw Burns on Keele street Wednesday, Nov. 11, and Burns appeared to have washed his hands and face. He also saw Burns on the police station Nov. 12 and Burns was then clean-shaven.

Under cross-examination by Hazen Hazlitt, counsel for the accused, Munro said he saw O'Donnell's clothing in the bathroom. The hat he had on was a brown felt, the right side being damp, the back of the head and neck on the same he drew the knee: threads were also found on the coat. He saw Burns on Keele street Wednesday, Nov. 11, and Burns appeared to have washed his hands and face. He also saw Burns on the police station Nov. 12 and Burns was then clean-shaven.

On the rocker, Munro said, there were threads like those found on the dead girl's body. The shoes he usually wore were handmade, with soles of the same type as those found on the murdered girl.

Describing the apartment Munro said he picked up certain articles, which were placed in envelopes and sealed for identification purposes. The envelopes were placed in evidence at the police station when the detective said, had been given to Dr. H. M. Kay, Provincial Pathologist.

One of the knives, the witness related, was found in the O'Donnell kitchen in a small pool of water. The living room rug was found bare, threads and what appeared to be a small piece of hair. The brush was placed in evidence. There was also a "scraper on the floor." A clothes brush had a number of "what I thought" were hairs on it. The brush was placed in evidence.

Munro began the general public was let into the court. While it was very cautious, it was filled in a couple of minutes.

Pulsing is Revived

Cross-examined by Frank Regan, K.C., Munro said the nurse had not been raised since the time he reached it the day the girl's body was found. Later he said it had been "raised or pulsed" with sticks. He made the comment when Mr. Regan, questioning the witness about the preliminary hearing that the nurse had not been raised when it reached it.

Asked about the clothes brush, Munro said it was the same condition now as when he found it. He had not found a white. He said in answer to another question.

"It didn't occur to me to look for one," he added. "I don't know myself."

The detective then gave a detailed description of the O'Donnell apartment and its condition the day the body was found.

O'Donnell listened with a half-smile.

OPEN PARLIAMENT IN ATMOSPHERE OF MOURNING

Hon. W. E. Foster Appointed Speaker of The Senate

WILL HEAR SPEECH

Lord Tweedsmuir Will Address assembly in Senate Chamber

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—(CP)—In an atmosphere of mourning for the late Premier, overshadowed by a new government, its opening ceremony graced by the presence of a new Governor-General, begins its labors today. A heavy program awaits the first session of Parliament Bill as the members and senators gathered in the Senate Chamber for the Lord Tweedsmuir, read the Speech from the Throne.

The buildings are draped in black out of respect for the late King George V and great wreaths will replace the bright garments usually worn by the women in the Senate Chamber for ceremony in the Senate Chamber.

This is the first session of the eighteenth parliament of Canada and a large number of members are more formidable than later sessions. There take place advisedly out of the usual opening which occurs at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Senate Meets.

In the morning at 10:30 the Senate will meet to be addressed with the Governor-General's deputy, Sir Lyman P. Duff, Chief Justice of Canada on the throne. An order appointing Sir Lyman, Deputy to His Excellency the Governor-General, another appointing Hon. W. E. Foster, former Premier of New Brunswick, Speaker of the Senate, followed.

At noon the House of Commons is to be summoned to the Senate to hear Lord Tweedsmuir, which is finally to read the Speech from the throne. Then the House of Commons will meet and the Speech will be read by the Governor-General's deputy, Sir Lyman P. Duff, Chief Justice of Canada on the throne. An order appointing Sir Lyman, Deputy to His Excellency the Governor-General, another appointing Hon. W. E. Foster, former Premier of New Brunswick, Speaker of the Senate, followed.

Reference to Late King.

In the House of Commons, there is no reference to the death of the late King George V. when Minister Mackenzie King, will move and second the address in reply to the speech from the throne read in English and French speakers should alternate. This formality dates from the time when the speech of the throne was read in English and French, and the custom was on less friendly terms with the French Canadians than it is to-day. It asserts the right of the commoners to consider their own business before going to the King's speech.

Debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne is always the first real business of the session. The mover and seconder of the address in reply to the Speech from the throne usually make their maiden speeches in the House of Commons. They are usually selected with a view to their ability to make a good one and it was proper that a member of the province should be selected. It was a matter of satisfaction that there were many French-speaking members who were well qualified to move and second the address.

He had been impressed, said Mr. Bennett, by the loyalty of the Canadian parliamentarian to acquire a respect for tradition. The newness of the Indian empire of India and Canadians were making traditions of their own. The speaker was bound to protect members and to maintain order, and decorum in the House.

It was not usual for speakers to express opinions upon matters before Mr. Bennett said. As a rule they were governed by precedents but there were precedents for their opposition.

It had been said a former chief who made a good speaker because he was familiar with the rules. As a general way he agreed with that statement but there were exceptions to the contrary.

New Session Needed.

New measures to deal with unemployment relief, a bill to provide for loan council, and a measure to provide for a reorganization of departments of the government and consolidation of certain statutes and steps to amend the British North America Act, will pass be mentioned.

Amendments to the new agreement's trade policies will also be found in the speech and the recent trade treaty with the United States will be commented upon with satisfaction.

The parliament opening today is remarkable for the hearty personal welcome which was done Janet in the House of Commons. Never before in the history of Dominion has the government party been so small. Prime Minister King has a normal majority over all opposition groups of 112.

Two new parties, one conservative, by strong numerically, are represented in the House of Commons, the Social Credit Party with 15 members makes its appearance for the first time. The C. C. F. Movement, with 7 members, the Independent and a former Conservative minister, will be back to the sole representative of the new Reconstruction party.

Fire Damages Private Car Of Sup't Stokes at Toronto

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Awaking shortly before 2 a.m. to find the private car of Supt. G. A. Stokes of Belleville on fire and filled with blinding smoke, a colored porter assisted a clerk who were in the apartment were forced to flee in pyjamas and bare feet in the C.N.R. station yard one lengths away, where they turned in an alarm.

Firemen under District Chief Kearns, who put out the fire with water from a private hydrant on the railroad property, estimated the damage at $1,000. Stokes lost only the clothing of the two men, whose names neither police nor firemen immediately learned.

The fire is blamed on an overheated heater in the car.

Former Premier Bennett Critical Of House's Step

Refers to Tradition And Precedent in Speakership

Ottawa, Feb. 6.—(CP)— Pierre Casgrain was elected Speaker of the House of Commons after criticism of the nomination from Conservative leader R. B. Bennett, K.C., and J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader. The government nomination, proposed by Premier Mackenzie King, was adopted "on division" without a recorded vote.

The House met at 12 noon for a brief session, preliminary to the formal opening at 3 p.m. the afternoon. The primary purpose was to elect a Speaker.

Mr. Bennett after the House met, the gentleman usher of the Black Rod, Colonel Edward Fiset, of the Senate, summoned the members to the Senate Chamber to hear Lord Tweedsmuir read the Speech from the throne. Commons, obedient to the summons, filed down.

In the Senate, the members were seated in the usual manner, Sir Lyman P. Duff turn to the House and elect a Speaker, Choudhury, Clerk of the House, presented the corridor.

Coroner Testifies In O'Donnell Case

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP) — A new phalanx of witnesses was moved up by the crown today at the trial of Harry O'Donnell, while the man charged with the murder of pretty Ruth Taylor again viewed the proceedings and prepared to take his own an exhibit was introduced showing how the girl's slip was knotted about her crushed head.

Miss Taylor's father appeared to be teeth marks, said Dr. M. M. Crawford, the coroner, and an attempt had been made to violate her for the first time in her life. The coroner said he found signs the attempted violation was made just before death.

PECULIARITIES OF SNOW BLOCKADE OVER PROVINCE

By The Canadian Press

Scheduled to address Northumberland county council, Brighton council yesterday at Cobourg, on means of keeping provincial highways free of snow, W. J. Gage, member of the Ontario Legislature for Durham, didn't show up for his appointment. Mr. Gage was snowbound at Port Perry, 20 miles from his northern home.

Farmers in Orangeville district who have been digging their cars out from drifts are learning it necessary to melt snow for the animals. All rural schools in the area were closed yesterday and mail carriers did not try to make their rounds for the second consecutive day.

The gale ripped a ventilator off Philip Street Public School at Port Hope yesterday afternoon. The section trudged home late and Mail Carrier Ernest Bond of Bowmanville reports Bond home blown on to the lawn.

Commercial travellers all dejected the hotels in Owen Sound last night, after an all-day blizzard cut off trains from the north and east. Highway snowploughs staffed all day and seven building derby drifts, while trains, with ploughs hitched to the locomotives ran from Toronto to Owen Sound unhindered.

Two buses were blown off the road yesterday near Sarnia, but no one was hurt. The buses were not damaged. Only one bus succeeded in getting through from Sarnia yesterday morning.

Winter blizzards have forced residents of St. Peter's Seminary at London, Ont., to abandon their official hats in favor of caps that can be pulled down over the ears. Such was the decision of the staff at the University of Western Ontario. Snow men were responsible for the change.

Members of the Mitchell, Ont., fire department were forced to walk a mile yesterday to reach the scene of an estimated $15,000 barn blaze on the Hay Line. Their equipment truck stalled in a snowdrift.

Three Zorgvlough worked all day yesterday between Edgefield and Stratford, last night when they reached the highway was still impassable.

Two London, Ont., policemen went to bed last night, one of them having served with honest toddy because a pump of rum didn't succeed yesterday digging the top out of the street car tracks.

CANADA DEFEATS POLAND 8-1 IN OLYMPIC SERIES

Contest Played in Open And in Driving Snowstorm

PUCK LOST IN SNOW

Losers Only Had Rubber in Canadian Territory on Occasions

Lake Placid, Feb. 6.—(CP)—Canada defeated Poland 8-1 in the preliminary round today of the Olympic hockey championships. The game played in a driving snowstorm saw the Dominion representatives maintain their unbeaten record in the winter games competition by scoring five goals in the first period, two in the second and one in the final period.

The defending champions, cream of the Canadian amateurs accustomed to playing in the comparatively sheltered arenas, today found themselves called upon to play out on an open lake, that even confirmed Lake Placid fans failed to keep clear of several inches of snow.

So heavy was the snowstorm the 300 spectators saw more snow shovelled than hockey and at times the players were unable to distinguish friend from foe.

Hunt For Puck.

At one time the game was stopped several minutes as players, officials and spectators hunted for the lost puck. The missile was found buried under the foot of a rink attendant.

However, the conditions did not handicap the Canadians who were outclassed on offensive that climbed the match total to 16 goals, seven of them coming in throughout the game. At times the victorious team almost was so pronounced the Polish forwards and defencemen were shoved back to their goal mouth by the onslaughts.

Only twice during the entire tussle did the Canadian manage to solve the Canadian defence to enable them to get the puck into their opponent's area.

The Poles are a nice clean cut lot and Coach Conn Smythe Arthur, after the game was over, "but their puck amphibians run strongly the defensive side of the game."

Thomson Stars

Bill Thomson, starry wing of the Toronto Varsity Blues, was the outstanding performer for the Canadians, scoring four goals, three in the first period and one in the second session.

Sterling Thomson's "hat-trick" in the first the Dominion registered counters through Kenny Farmer, Varsity and Montreal Victoria defenceman Walter Kilchen of Toronto.

The lone Polish counter was scored near the half-way mark of the first period by Captain Kazimierz Wolkowski's pass. Four minutes later Thomson scored another with his second tally on Dave Neville's pass. The latter, right winger of the Toronto Varsity and the eighth Canadian tally on a pass from Farmer, scored another Montrealer.

Weather conditions made play almost impossible in the last session, which saw the Poles drop back and play on the defensive throughout. Nevertheless Thomson managed to score through several bodies in the snow for his fourth and Canada's last master.

Officials—Referee, Mielbach, referee; Robert Glachof, Berlin, umpire; Odie King, Garnisch-Partenkirchen, timekeeper.

Testimony as to Words Spoken after Accident By Miss Wagar is Heard

Number of Witnesses Testify at Thursday's Session of Assize

NATURE OF INJURY

Number of Nurses And Others Give Evidence at Gibson Trial

When the trial resumed today in the Supreme Court, of Charles Gibson, machinist, charged with a serious offence and also with occasioning actual bodily harm to Miss Frances Wagar, the first witness was Constable Harris, local traffic officer whose route covers the east side of the city. Witness said he arrived at the scene after 9 o'clock on the night in question in August last to the accident on Dundas street. While there he had sat in the apartment of Miss Wagar for a few moments when suddenly he heard a cry for help. This had come from the direction of the bed. He went over and to the head of the stairs and saw a girl lying at the foot of the stairs. It was Miss Wagar.

Miss Wagar's Cry.

"What did you hear?" asked Crown Attorney R. O. Donnan.

Witness replied he heard the "get that brute," a woman scream run out the door. Then I called her who it was. She replied, "Gibson." I went to the door then, followed the man in a corner of the house and picked up a saucer from an overturned flower pot at him. Then I returned to the apartment and found Miss Wagar on her bed."

Under cross examination by Mr. Payne, defendant counsel, witness said that the first words he heard were: "Charge, help".

Miss Wagar, he said, dictated what she was taken from the foot of the stairs to her bed, witness continued. She complained to him that her leg had been broken. "There was a bone sticking out and how her leg had been broken," he testified under close questioning.

Miss Marjorie Bray

Miss Marjorie Bray, registered nurse, residing at 188 Victoria avenue, Belleville, was the next witness called. She had been a patient for only a few moments when they heard a noise.

"It was a scream, coming from the hall, about the door," she said.

Mr. Donnan: "What did you do then?"

"I went out of the room and saw Miss Wagar lying at the foot of the stairs. Mrs. Harris and then two downstairs, witness added, testifying also that Miss Wagar say that brute', and also that a man was broken. A telephone call had been put in for Dr. Ponton and she had assisted Miss Wagar to bed. Witness, stirred in her chair appearing for cost, spoke slowly, in tones so low that repeated requests were made by the court for her to speak louder.

As To Exact Words.

"What were the exact words used by Miss Wagar?" Defendant Counsel Payne asked on the cross question but was overruled by the court.

"Miss Wagar said, 'Help' and even tried to rape me," witness testified in low tones. "After that she said something which indicated that he hadn't raped her, I don't just remember the exact words," added witness.

Miss Wagar had been visited later at the hospital. The same hysterical condition was noted. Visits had been made every day for several days afterward, she testified.

Mr. Donnan: "Counsel took you on examination. "There was nothing to indicate to you anything which you helped take off after that, the slightest force had been used?"

"No."

Mr. Jarvis and Mrs. Thompson were in the room with witness when Miss Wagar was put to bed," testified Miss Bray.

"No."

"And you've even talked it over with Mr. Jarvis?" "Yes."

"And you've even got an not actually sure of what really was said in the room?" "No, I might have been mistaken, but I'm very sure," said due to the excitement at the time."

Witness repeated that part of her evidence.

Cross Examination On Word

"No, Miss Wagar told Mrs. Thompson that Gibson hadn't touched her?" "That's correct."

"And the condition of her clothing lends further support to this?" "Yes."

Mrs. Elizabeth Thompson told the court of occupying an apartment with her husband at the address in which she was housekeeper. On the night in question she had entertained friends in her apartment until about ten o'clock. Then radio had been turned off at about 11:30 and a scream from the hall had immediately followed, she testified.

"I walked out of my front door and went into the hall there was no one in the hall and I walked into Miss Wagar's apartment," she said. Miss Wagar's was sitting on the side of it. After I had gone to Miss Wagar's side Mr.

Mrs. Thompson's Query

"Miss Wagar was crying. I asked her what happened, and she said she had fallen and had broken her leg but hadn't touched her," declared Mrs. Thompson.

Mr. Donnan: "What meaning did you take from the words 'he broke my leg, but didn't touch me?'"

"Over my objections, My Lord," interjected Mr. Payne. The question, allowed by the court, was answered by witness with a statement that she had taken no particular meaning from the words.

Under Cross Says Witness

Under cross examination by Mr. Payne, defendant counsel, the order had been noted in the apartment, her was any indication given that Miss Wagar had the bed from struggle had taken place.

"No," witness noted but as I would if Miss Wagar had prepared to go to bed" pressed Mr. Payne further.

Miss Wagar was not addicted to drink, witness said, but had been to the parties held in the apartment in the character, declared the witness.

Recess was called at this point by the court.

Miss Shea's Testimony

Miss Keitha Shea, resident of St. James Road Gibson had been employed by profession for the past eight years, had previously lived at 113 Victoria avenue, Belleville, in question. She had known Miss Wagar for about two or three years. The two were casual acquaintances. She had gone through professional contact at the hospital. On the night the accident is alleged to have been committed she had seen Miss Wagar at about the bruises and scratches, suffered by Miss Wagar.

Following the injuries, witness told of nursing Miss Wagar at the hospital. She had also noticed hysteria which caused her pains to awaken nights, screaming at frightened.

MANY WITNESSES CALLED AT TRIAL OF H. O'DONNELL

at a preliminary examination as to whether the accused should stand trial on the charge of murder.

"Positively not. He was not yet cold when I arrived.

"Don't it be practice for police to search a man why he is being detained?

"It depends on circumstances. He was not held in this case."

O'Donnell had admitted willingly to the officers, Munro said.

"Did he appear willing at all times to answer questions and do what he was asked?"

"Yes, sir."

Straw Car Transfer

Asked about a transfer for a 4.30 p.m. street car trip, found in O'Donnell's pocket, Munro said he did not know whether it was for an "up" or "down" trip.

The detective told of finding tools in the home of O'Donnell's parents at Desmond, opposite the house and other articles.

Munro was not asked if there were letters "OD" on any tools, evidence the crown said it would bring to Mr. McRae remarking, "we consider it best to proceed with one charge at a time."

Records of Search

A brief recess interrupted the cross-examination. At its end, Mr. Hogan again went into detailed questioning of the search of O'Donnell's home.

Detective-Sergt. minutely how the car transfer had been found in the breast pocket of O'Donnell's overcoat.

Miss Margaret Schell, daughter of O'Donnell's landlady, was next called and this time the slender brunette went to the witness box.

She told of O'Donnell, the expectant mother, going to a maternity hospital three days before the husband's arrest for murder. After she left, Miss Schell said, O'Donnell had not shaved. When he came she might Miss Taylor called, Miss Schell replied, though he was not home when she went to bed between 10.30 and 11 o'clock.

Out in the morning early

The following day she could see his bath room had been cleaned. There was "dirt or grit" two or three inches up the side of the bath tub.

Under cross-examination the girl said she did not see did in the O'Donnell kitchen after Mrs. O'Donnell went to hospital and before O'Connor arrived.

The morning after the slaying of Mrs. Taylor, she testified, there had been no mud in the hallway of the house or on the stairs leading to O'Donnell's apartment. She had there been any, she said, she would have seen it.

Asked about finding the dirt in the bath room basin, she said she had been attended there by her brother. Her bedroom was below the O'Donnell kitchen and she "thinks" would have heard O'Donnell if he had come down.

"Did you hear him?" she was asked.

"No."

Says Nothing Unusual

"Did the bath present any out of the ordinary condition next morning, considering O'Donnell works in a gas station and washed before going to bed?"

"No."

As for the rest of the house, she said, it looked as usual.

Under cross-examination, Miss Schell said she had seen O'Donnell and had spoken to him prior to his trial.

"I just wanted to show there were no hard feelings between them," said Crown Counsel McRae.

Mr. Justice Hind Jeffrey asked the girl: "Why did you not hear O'Donnell come in if you are a light sleeper?"

The girl answered this time it just happened he had not awakened her.

Dead Girl's Father on Stand

Edgar Taylor, father of the slain girl, was called next. He identified a body he saw at the morgue as that of Ruth.

O'Donnell watched the father without change of expression. Taylor, wearing a black tie, stood leaning against the back of the witness box, not glancing at the prisoner.

Mr. Hogan questioned Taylor as to weather Ruth customarily carried a purse. He said she did, though her purse had only two cents when found. Ruth, he knew, he stated the wind watch she wore had never been found.

Dr. H. M. Crawford coroner, followed the girl's father to the witness box. He described his position in detail, saying blood stained the clothing and one of Ruth's garments was drawn up over her head.

Coroner Crawford told of the body.

Many cuts had set in, he said. No injuries were visible as the girl lay on the ravine. Rigor mortis was completely covered. He saw blood on leaves below and a few feet from the body. Around the body he said, lay chunks of concrete.

"They were the most remarkable thing about the articles around the body," testified the coroner, "that although there was one had broken up a sidewalk and dumped it."

Examination at the morgue, said Dr. Crawford, was marked out by Dr. Ryb and himself.

He was shown a police photograph of O'Donnell with hand bearing scratches and a swelling, taken the day after the girl died. O'Donnell claimed in a statement to the police he hurt his hand in a gasoline pump. The doctor was shown the pump handle and asked if it could have caused the injuries.

Hand Injury

"If you grasped the handle at the top you couldn't possibly hurt the hand," Dr. Crawford said. "It could not be hurt if the handle were held below a point where a projector stuck out from the pump table.

The hand could be injured, he said, if held at this point but he did not see how a person "could possibly" get the injuries shown on O'Donnell's hand through working the pump. The part of the hand where the bruise showed would not come in contact with the projector.

Telling of Ruth's injuries, the coroner said she had suffered a bruise on the right side of the jaw, cuts on the split skin above the mouth, nose and outside.

Fractured Jawbone

There was a V-shaped wound on the middle of the head and other said the coroner, who thought a blow from a flat struck the girl on the chin hastily enough to render her "practically completely unconscious."

The girl was bruised also on the chest and legs and her head fractured, the coroner said, due to shoulder, said the doctor, and she had been strangled.

While the coroner held his first inquest, Detective Inspector Newton requested the jury to observe that "the part of the fist in contact with the victim is not the part that is bruised on O'Donnell's."

"That's right," said Dr. Crawford, "but there are other ways of administering blows with the fist."

"Granny Knot" Used

The doctor then showed the jury how Miss Taylor's slip was tied with a "double granny knot" at the waist. The slip was placed among the exhibits.

As it was being marked by an official, O'Donnell yawned widely, placing his hand over his mouth to stifle the yawn. His eyes closed for a second or two and then his glance roamed from the ceiling above the judge's bench.

Mr. Rogan asked if the coroner could deduce the hour of death from the fact the girl's watch had stopped when the body was first seen. It was not a definite indication, Dr. Crawford replied.

To the defense lawyer, the coroner said he had examined with the stump at the filling station and found the description supposed to have injured O'Donnell would not easily break the skin.

"I couldn't break the skin on my own hand," he said.

TESTIMONY GIVEN OF WORDS USED

took up the questioning. "The fact that Miss Wagar cried out at night is not worthy of special comment?" he asked Munro.

"Not the way Miss Wagar cried out," replied witness.

"And it is not ordinary as you walk through the hospital to hear patients cry out?"

"Yes, Mr. Payne."

Evidence as to Scratches

Evidence was mentioned were very slight—so Dr. Leavens has told us?" Witness declared she didn't know.

"Do you know if she had any?" "I saw them."

Miss Wagar's nervous condition caused her to dream of the accident and to awaken night, screaming and crying."

"Is that about the only way I can explain it," witness declared.

Miss Belanger's Evidence

Miss Belanger, who a registered nurse, of 138 Victoria Avenue had been Miss Wagar three or four years professionally. On the afternoon of August 30, she had seen Gibson Gibson in company with Patrick Belnap, a cousin, and Miss Wagar sitting in the latter's apartment, and each had a drink. I believe it was 7½", she added. The time was between five and six p.m.

Mr. Donnan—"You were invited to Miss Wagar's apartment for supper that evening?" "I don't remember."

Witness was on duty at the hospital the same evening when Miss Wagar was brought in in an ambulance, she testified, describing also the bloodstains on the bedding. She was also very hysterical." Witness had taken over the task of nursing her that night, administering hypodermics.

"Speaking of the suffused condition of her face", questioned Mr. Payne, "you would not attribute money that her face was only slightly suffused?"

"Yes, sir."

Miss Wagar was observed in the company of several girl friends, Belanger, otics, testified Miss Belnap.

"And she was friendly enough with him to call him 'Hoot?'"

"I don't know."

Called Good Mixer

"Miss Wagar was what is known as a good mixer, liberal in her views?"

A—"Yes."

"And at these parties in the apartment liquor was consumed quite freely?"

A—"Yes, always."

"And Miss Wagar was known as a good liquor girl?"

"She was always well liked," replied witness.

Objection to the term 'Party girl' was raised by Crown Attorney Gibson.

Other Parties Mentioned

"You've seen Gibson at parties in your apartment."

A—"Yes."

"And he always behaved himself as a perfect gentleman?"

"Yes, he always did."

"And he was always quiet and inoffensive at a party?"

"Yes."

"In other words, he held his liquor well?"

A—"Yes."

"Do you know the meaning of the word dishabille?"

"I think I do."

"I suppose you have seen Miss Wagar at these parties do things she would not do if she was sober?"

"I have seen her overcome by influence of liquor."

Miss Wagar, however, was never really drunk, hastily added witness, "I don't mean that she was actually cock-eyed," pointed out Mr. Payne.

A ripple of laughter through the court was quickly stilled by threat to have the room cleared.

Says Friend Followed

Carl Ray of 371 Dufferin Avenue, Toronto, and employe of a local plant, told of his friendship with accused over a period of ten years or so. On the night in question he had visited his fiancee, Miss Belnap and previous thereto until she had left for hospital duty. He had then visited Miss Wagar's apartment with a bottle of liquor which Miss Belnap's apartment.

The liquor was owned by "Hoot", he added.

To the best of his knowledge, decided the bank for those requiring cash on demand while the balance is loaned. The banking business rests on the experience that the public as a whole will never withdraw their cash at the same time, as most business transactions are paid by cheque, little cash is required by the banks to protect themselves. Thus it is, that in 1934, there were two billions on deposit in Canada while the banks only held two hundred millions in cash.

However, when the banks build up such a reserve that they are embarrassed by it, more loans and inclined to lend money too freely, boom times arise with false perspective of values and so when the bubble has been inflated to the fullest extent and a halt is called the values drop and generally go beyond what they should and so we have our depressions with consequent unemployment and labor problems. The function of the bank of Canada is to take care of the peak of bank deposits and to permit loosening up of funds when credit is most required by the operation of the discount rate—raising it when funds are plentiful and lowering it when money is scarce.

The discount rate is the amount of interest a commercial bank must pay the central bank for use of funds. The Bank of Canada is to the banks what commercial banks are to the public, namely a place to deposit excess funds and to borrow funds in time of need. The only customers of the Bank of Canada are banks. No individual can do business in the same manner as an ordinary bank which is closed by the public.

The speaker closed his remarks by saying the establishment of the Bank of Canada should provide the country with a smoother path for the conduct of business and cure of the business cyclical fluctuations that the country has suffered from for many generations.

Mr. R. C. Blaiw expressed the appreciation of those present in moving by police.

Prof. Knox for his interesting address. Mr. Jas Bankier and Mr. Fred Hubbard seconded, sales accompanied by Mr. P. Hunt and the meeting was held under the chairmanship of Mr. C. Burr.

SLEIGH IS RIDDEN UNDERNEATH HORSE

While riding his hand-sleigh down Charles St. hill yesterday afternoon a lad named Pearson rode the sleigh directly underneath a horse, drawing a local milk sleigh and driven by John Newery, 94 East Moira St. Mr. Newery immediately stopped his horse and picked the 13 year old youth, later conveying him to the surgery of Dr. R. A. Flynn where medical attention was received. Nasty cuts and bruised right leg constituted the injuries. Later Mr. Newery accompanied the little Pearson lad to his Albert St. residence little the worse for his experience. The accident was reported.

GIVES LECTURE ON BANK OF CANADA

Prof. Knox of Queen's Explains Banking Institution to Men's Group At Bridge Street Church

Last evening about one hundred members of the men's association of Bridge Street Church attended a dinner and lecture which was given by Professor Knox, Professor of Economics at Queen's University, who spoke on the Bank of Canada."

The guest speaker was introduced by Rev. L. H. Wight of this city, who recalled his association with Prof. Knox during his pastorate in Kingston a few years ago, and assured those attending that they would be well repaid for the time spent at the meeting.

Developing a dry as dust subject into an address highly entertaining and instructive, Prof. Knox captivated his audience with his fluent and humorous remarks on a matter that is so little known to most of the public.

He explained that "economic problems overshadow our other troubles and that until a method is devised to improve arrangements to take care of cyclical fluctuations that the country has suffered from for many generations.

Mr. R. C. Blaiw expressed the appreciation of those present in moving by police.

Prof. Knox for his interesting address. Mr. Jas Bankier and Mr. Fred Hubbard seconded, sales accompanied by Mr. P. Hunt and the meeting was held under the chairmanship of Mr. C. Burr.

Map of Site of the Winter Olympics

1,000 Competitors From 28 Nations March by Rostrum

TAKE OLYMPIC OATH

Germany Wants to Make Games Festival of Peace

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 6.—(AP)—The fourth winter Olympic games, drawing a record entry list of more than 1,000 competitors from 28 nations, formally opened by Chancellor Hitler today.

A large and cosmopolitan crowd packed the ski stadium to watch the colorful parade of the Nations and hear the Reichschancellor speak the words that inaugurated an eleven-day carnival of International competition in skiing, speed skating, figure skating, bob-sledding and hockey.

From a winter sports viewpoint, weather conditions were perfect. So thickly was the snow falling, that the peaks of the nearby mountain ranges were entirely obscured.

Canadians Smartly Clothed

Most smartly garbed of all the contingents as they marched past were the Canadians in glistening uniforms of red and white. The Americans wore dark blue ski outfits.

As each national delegation marched past Hitler with flag low-ered, the Fuehrer gave the Nazi salute. Most of the competitors from foreign lands returned the salute, in kind, but the Americans did not.

"We Germans want to show the world that, true to the command of our Fuehrer, we desire to make these games a real festival of peace and understanding," said Dr. Ritter von Halt, President of the German Olympic organizing committee.

"It is a high honor and special joy for me, on behalf of the organizing committee, to welcome you all in the heartiest manner possible.

"The representatives of 28 nations have been waiting for this reverent moment for months. They stand before us in the flower of their youth. All are animated by a desire to bring honor to the idea of sport and to their nation."

Germany has made all its preparations "true to the Olympic protocol and to the Olympic spirit," Baron Von Halt declared.

Heavy Snowfall

Heavy, almost blinding snow, gladdened the hearts of the contestants as they reached the mountain top in the ski stadium more than an hour before the time for the official opening.

Chancellor Hitler arrived with a large retinue and was accorded an enthusiastic reception.

A holiday mood prevailed as thousands scrambled as best they could into automobile busses leaving the railway station every two minutes.

The delegations from the 28 nations entered in the games began their march to the stadium early. Many of them were quartered in hotels far removed from the site of the ceremonies.

Army men mounted guard outside the stadium.

Members of the Hitler Youth organization were conspicuous but other criticisms of the Nazi Regime were far fewer than has been customary at other big assemblages in Germany.

Amid strong, firm voice, Hitler spoke in German the words prescribed for the opening ceremony by the International Olympic committee.

"I proclaim open the winter Olympic games of Garmisch-Partenkirchen celebrating the fourth winter Olympiad of the modern era."

Olympic Hymn Played

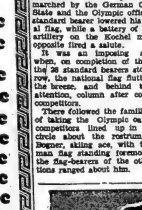
Simultaneously a German army band played the Olympic hymn, all the bells of Garmisch-Partenkirchen pealed, the flames of the Olympic fire soared heavenward from a gigantic steel tower next to the ski jump, a signal division of the German Navy hoisted the Olympic flag and salvos of cannon shots thundered from the mountain heights and reverberated and re-echoed from valley to valley.

Since ten in the morning, the competitors from 28 nations had stood ready with their torches and Olympic delegates on the road leading from the Hitle village of Partenkirchen to the Gudiberg with its festively decorated ski stadium and snow-clad hillsides. By 10.45 the head of the procession—the Greek contingent—had reached the huge, fir-lined gateway to the stadium. A few minutes later Hitler arrived with his adjutants.

Dr. Lewald, the Chancellor was officially welcomed at the gate by Count Baillet-Latour of Belgium, President of the International Olympic Committee, and by Dr. Von Halt.

Then two presidents conducted their distinguished guest and his entourage to the balcony of the Olympic Club House, where Hitler greeted the members of the diplomatic corps, who had come from Berlin to see the representatives of their respective national match athletic prowess.

The German National Anthem was played, whereupon at 1 o'clock in rows of three, the Olympic teams, each preceded by the nation's flag and an ensign bearing the name of the country, marched into the stadium.



Greeks March First

Following the time-honored custom, the Greeks, as originators of the Olympic idea, came first. Then followed, in order of the German Alphabet, the delegations from Australia to Switzerland, from von America, United States of America, and finally those of Germany, the host.

As each delegation, clad in some distinctive winter sports garb, marched by the German Chief of State and the Olympic officials, its standard bearer lowered his national flag before a battery of German artillery on the Kochel mountain opposite fired a salute.

It was an inspiring spectacle when, on completion of the defile, the 28 standard bearers stood in a row, the national flag fluttering in the breeze, and behind them at attention, column after column of competitors.

There followed the familiar scene of taking the Olympic oath. The competitors lined up in a circle about the rostrum. Willy Bogner, skiing ace, with the German flag clasped reverently, while the flag-bearers of the other nations ranged about him.

Lovely Irene Dunne co-starred with Robert Taylor in "Magnificent Obsession", from the book everyone is talking about. At the Belle until Friday.

NABORHOOD SHOES ARE GOOD SHOES

Contestants Take Oath

All contestants raised their right hands as, with stentorian voice and emphasis by loud speaker, Dr. Ritter pronounced the prescribed formula:

"We swear that we will take part in the Olympic games in loyal competition, respecting the regulations which govern them and desirous of participating in them in the true spirit of sportsmanship for the honor of our country and for the glory of sport."

Brightly Colored Picture

The contestants' varied garb presented a brightly colored picture. Dark colors predominated but red, blue and other colors stood out against the snow background.

Most picturesquely costumed men's group was the Austrian in Tyrolean garb—heather green coats, short breeches and hats with feathers in jaunty jauntily from the top.

Sonja Henie, Norway's perennial figure skating champion, received the greatest personal ovation from the crowd. She was dressed in white and wore a long fur coat. She nodded and smiled broadly at admirers. Etsuko Inada, young Japanese girl figure skater, also was given great applause.

The National delegations getting the biggest hands included the Austrians, both of whom gave the Nazi salute in pronounced fashion.

Experts estimated the crowd at 80,000.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inside—stimulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give lasting relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why an internal medicine like HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional career made many tests to relieve piles by correcting the cause. His confidence exceeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

Even if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to return your money. If but one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. J. S. McGeown or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

Picton and District

Picton—Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Chaplin of Belleville were called to Picton on Saturday, owing to the illness of Mrs. Chaplin's father, Mr. Geo Collier. Mr. Collier is now somewhat improved and expects to spend the remainder of the winter in Belleville with his daughter.

Mr. John Grindrod, of the Picton branch of Lipsen's store has been appointed manager of the Napanee branch, and has left to take over his new duties.

Mr. David Sayers has accepted a position with Mr. Will Price's bakery near Oshawa.

A number of friends and relatives of Mrs. Joseph Greeley, gathered at her home, Church St. and spent Sunday afternoon and evening with her, honoring her natal day.

Capt. and Mrs. Thos. Hefferman of Port Colborne, and Capt. and Mrs. Fred. Hefferman of Belleville, were in Picton on Sunday, attending the funeral of the late Mrs. Patrick Goodwin.

The ladies of St. Gregory's Church held a card party at the presbytery on Tuesday evening. Mrs. Kelner, and Mrs. Percy Bailey were in charge of the arrangements, and the affair proved most enjoyable, and many tables were in play, despite the stormy weather.

The Rebekahs sponsored a most successful card party on Friday evening at the lovely home of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Jones, Main St., W. Eleven tables were in play.

Fire extinguished a bad chimney fire at 2.30 Tuesday afternoon at the residence of Mr. Jos. Heffer, Main St., East. Only the prompt efforts prevented the fire from spreading, fanned by high winds.

Mrs. Douglas Wark, who recently underwent a major operation in Buffalo N. Y., is making satisfactory progress towards recovery.

The many friends of Miss Hilda Hefferman, who has been so seriously ill, will be pleased to know that she is now able to be up for short period each day.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Morrison whose marriage was a recent event in Saskatoon Sask. have taken residence at their new home, Crescent Farm, eight miles north of Picton. Mr. Morrison was for many years a resident of this County.

THE ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER

THE DAILY ONTARIO INTELLIGENCER is published every afternoon (Sunday and holiday excepted) by The Ontario Intelligencer Printing Company, Front Street, Belleville, Ontario.

THE KING'S DECLARATION

His Majesty King Edward VIII in his message to the House of Commons declared that his main object would be to maintain the liberties of his people, and to promote the welfare of all classes. He expressed his appreciation of the loyal and affectionate address of the Commons concerning the loss he had sustained and concerning his succession to the throne.

He is the second British sovereign to speak of himself as "I" instead of the more formal "we" used by monarchs since time immemorial. The British people are pleased to find that the King is following in the footsteps of his father as the use of the singular pronoun indicates his close association with the people.

This close relationship between sovereign and people is what has marked the throne. The declaration is a happy augury especially as it follows the lines of those movements to which the young King had lent great support as prince as in the rehousing and the elimination of slums and in every movement of this kind.

In this new reign which has just begun, following the noble reign which has closed, there is the evidence of a vast sympathy with modern life and needs. If kingly worn were the mark of king in ancient days, much more in these modern days has the throne been occupied by those who realize their great responsibility.

WINTER'S RUDE STORM

All the terms which can be applied to the weather of the past few days cannot describe it as it was felt by the people. One may feel like speaking of winter's fell storms but these words fail to tell the story.

The storm was an innovation in gales but winter always has a surprise in store. Ushered in with relays of sleet, snow and rain, the storm period took on his worst form on the afternoon of Tuesday when its rage was expressed in tempestuous winds which tore everything in tree or on house loose which was not firmly attached. Such little things as poles and wires bore the brunt of the storm and how so many lights of glass remained unbroken seems an unaccountable fact.

There is one consolation, the winter has produced its surprise—it cannot further excite one with a repetition of the storm period. It has also definitely routed the fair weather man who guessed badly some months ago as he anticipated a mild season.

Hereabouts the people are used to rather rough winters, but cold and tempestuous as it is, there are few who would exchange the winter season here for the experiences of many communities and districts much farther south. The local countryside and highways have not been tied up, but in other sections there is fear of scarcity of food and fuel. So far there has been no blockade here, trains are running, highways are free and most of the sideroads are passable.

ITALIAN WAR DRAGS

The Italian people have entered that stage of war in Ethiopia where the real test is coming—that is the stage when breaks of wars with all their tragedy have a glint of glory and carry the people forward with a rush which sweeps them off their feet. But the time comes when it is realized that even a foe which is looked upon without much consideration can yet put up a desperate fight and when it comes to the question of endurance this is the hardest part of the war when despatches tell little that will stir the heart and the time lags, with heavy cost of lives and fortune. It is said that Mussolini has realized that he will have to rest his armies until the wet season is past.

Some people can endure this state, for they have learned to discipline themselves. There does not seem much doubt that the enemy of Italy is disciplined by ruggedness of nature to stand whatever fate brings. A lull would probably strengthen the enemy. Will the Italians endure so well? Italy it is admitted has been fighting an unusual foe and perhaps a hard foe to defeat than a civilized nation might be, that is, Italy might make a better showing of discipline against a civilized foe.

Many predictions have been made as to the African War, some believing there can not be conquest, others that conquest will come only in a matter of years. Such a war then means a war of attrition and slow progress.

Meanwhile other nations want to end it for the reason of restoration of the spirit of peace and consequent reduction of the danger of other wars.

However Italy comes out of this war she does not seem likely to enhance her laurels. Defeat of a civilized foe might bring some glory, little can come from whatever happens in Ethiopia. More and more the Italians will face this testing of their mettle and discipline as they carry on a war popular only in Italy as far as observers can read.

CONSOLATION

Earth wears a Winter mood, her thoughts are dread;
Mourning her Summer green, her Autumn gold;
The naked trees with stiff arms brown and bare
Implore the sky; the dark-haired pines are cold.

Fled is the Summer; loitering with the Spring
Beneath a quilt of frost the ice-pulled land
Will sleep, will swoon, bereft of comforting
Until the magic touch of April's hand.

But soft as kindness to an aching heart,
Purer than dew or dreams of cloistered saints
Blossoms the snow, and with a native art
Behold the bloom of beauty that she paints!

This mystic flowering lifts earth and tree
From ugliness to fairy phantasy.

HERE'S A LETTER FROM A SIDELIGHT READER IN A DISTANT CITY, a Belleville Old Boy who still retains that deep and abiding interest in the Old Home Town which is so characteristic of the boys and girls of this town who have wandered far from their parents' fireside:

"Being a daily reader of the Belleville paper, the editorial re a memorial to Sir Gilbert Parker and Sir Mackenzie Bowell made a profound impression. Naturally I was keenly interested for I have so often said, pity though it is, there seems to be a tendency among Belleville people to belittle the efforts and achievements of local boys. They are the honor to a stranger and do it well, but one of their own is subject to continual bickering and criticism, and a memorial, unless constructed by the immediate family, seems out of the question. There are only eleven places in Ontario which can boast of a citizen being a Federal Prime Minister and yet the growing generation in Belleville seldom hear of it and no stranger would ever know that such a person lived unless a careful scrutiny of the local cemetery was made. If you could through the columns of The Ontario Intelligencer generate a spirit of municipal pride and loyalty to its living citizens, as well as to the memory of its dead, which is so lacking in Belleville, you would, I feel sure, be making a real contribution to your Town and coming generation."

AS A MATTER OF NEWS, odd and interesting, do you know that children's hand sleighs have been completely sold out in Belleville and none are to be had now. This on account of the superfluity of snow and the old-fashioned sleighs. Not so long ago dealers found hand sleighs a drug on the market on account of the open winters. All of which proves that the slogan, or what have you, that "it's an ill wind that blows nobody good," clicks again in masterly manner.

A BATHING BEACH EAST OF THE CITY is one of the features in the plan for beautifying Belleville born in the brains of members of the Chamber of Commerce, and which will some day become true. Beautifying Belleville is a beautiful idea, homily or not sure to develope into a sturdy reality even better than its most sanguine promoter hoped for. Hitch your wagon to a star and you will at least reach a steeple, but don't stop trying just because the moon is a bit out of reach—moon rhymes with spoon and moon and spoon make the world go round.

LOEB AND LEOPOLD LIVED THE LIFE OF RILEY in a Chicago prison. Both sons of wealthy Chicago parents they murdered a fellow student just for the thrill, and had the distinction of being defended by the great criminal lawyer, Clarence Darrow, who saved them from the chair or gallows. Loeb was killed recently by a fellow convict while both danced around Leob's private prison bathroom in nature's garb. Loeb and Leopold lived like princes in the prison, having among others the following privileges: meal served in cells, special treats from the commissary, commissary accounts running as high as $10 a week, $7 more than the rules permit, convict servants to clean their cells, paid with money or commissary goods, special visitors brought to their cells by the guard captains. It is said that justice is blind—in the United States it has the blind staggers, very often.

BALANCED BUDGET IN COMING YEAR

Deficit This Year Will be Less Than 18 Millions, Hepburn Predicts

Toronto, Feb. 6 (CP)—Premier Hepburn predicted the province's deficit for the fiscal year ending next March 31 would be considerably less than the $18,000,000 previously estimated and he forecast a balanced budget for the coming year.

"If we were to charge direct relief to capital account the way the Henry government did, we would have a large surplus," he said.

The Premier made his budget prediction as the cabinet settled down to work preparing the legislative agenda for the forthcoming session of the legislature which opens next Tuesday. The Provincial Income Tax Bill and amendments to statutes providing for the distribution to the Separate Schools of a portion of the corporation taxes were two measures reported under discussion.

"I don't know how much our budget will be," Mr. Hepburn stated, "but I can say that it won't be nearly as much as we estimated. And what is more, we will have a balanced budget in the coming year. We would have had one this year, only for the contractual obligations left on our doorstep by the previous administration. We had to complete many of the works they had undertaken."

The Premier said one reason the deficit would be less, despite increase in relief costs, was because of the increase in revenues.

The government's revenue from race tracks amounted to $751,749 last year compared with $733,940 in 1934. Corporations tax revenue to the end of January last was $1,697,000, compared with $6,404,000 a year ago. Succession duty taxes jumped from $3,902,000 for the period ending Jan. 31, 1935 to $9,465,000 at the end of last month.

Without giving figures, Mr. Hepburn said also the government had achieved a saving in its insurance.

NURSE TELLS OF ALLEGED ASSAULT

privilege of remaining seated in the box at the invitation of the court, declared she had been married 18½ months.

Complainant gave her age as 27. She described her residence as at 186 Victoria Avenue, and her occupation as nursing this time she had been practising her profession of nursing. Most of the rooms was given by complainant with the aid of blue crinkle, a mirror fitted in a grey cloth, fur-collared coat and wearing a black felt hat, Miss Wagar, speaking in low tones, answered R. C. Donnan, K.C., Belleville, when Miss Gibson, defendant, also described as "just an acquaintance."

Miss Wagar, after accounting for her time spent in ordinary tasks around the apartment earlier in the evening told of preparing herself for bed, when defendant entered her apartment.

Claims She Was Refused

"Then Charles Gibson came in and grabbed me by the throat with both hands. He threw me on the floor, with his knee on my stomach. I screamed as loud as I could," she testified.

Mr. Donnan: "Was anything said?"

At this point Mr. Payne objected to the question.

"What was said?" pressed Mr. Donnan.

"They were vile, filthy words." "Are you in a position of repeating these words?"

"They were so vile I wouldn't like to," softly replied witness.

"So you have, you say, had your throat thrown down, that was the time you received the fracture?"

A: "Yes."

Witness declared that she did not know whether later, she was carried to her bed or found her own way there.

"Then," stated Gibson lying beside me. He was indecently exposed. I screamed again. Then there was a repetition of the same filthy words."

"He got up from the bed, walked toward the door, hung and told me to leave town. When he got up I scrambled to get out of the room to the hall. Then I shut the door," continued Miss Wagar.

"What did Gibson do when you got out in the hall?"

"He ran out in the vestibule immediately after me."

At this point the jury and witness were excused while the proceeding and defendant attorneys threshed a legal point, on which objection had been made by Mr. Payne.

From after his exit from the house Miss Bray assisted in putting her to bed, plaintiff testified. She had been suffering severe pains in her leg and was physically overwrought. To remedy her condition a hypodermic was administered at the house, after which she was removed to the local hospital, testified witness.

Explains Eye Condition

The "hushed appearances" of her face was declared by her to have been the result of constipation. The hemorrage condition of her eyes was held to have been caused by the blow.

The incident left her in a "terrible nervous" condition, which ended with nausea, made her very ill, witness told Miss Wagar.

After her discharge from hospital, she was forced to remain in bed at her home, Thursday, for a period of six weeks. Then 'crutches were necessary to get her around, it was added.

Nurse for the plaintiff was called at this point.

Resistance of witness was removed with Mr. Payne cross examining.

"When you visited Miss Bebap's apartment you saw evidences of drinking?" queried Mr. Payne.

"And the first drink had a rather good effect?" "Yes."

"And the second time you drank for friendship, didn't you?" "Yes."

"And when Gibson was called in, did you have another drink?" A: "No."

Defence Counsel Protests

Mr. Payne objected to witness smiling. "This is very serious for the defendant," he declared.

When Miss Wagar visited the apartment where Miss Keith, Mr. Gibson and Mr. Ray were she did not see the invitation, of one in the apartment, she testified.

Admission that she had taken a drink with the gentlemen Gibson before was gained by further questioning.

She knew, she said, when Gibson or Mr. Ray went up to their apartment to get their book a bottle or whiskey with them. When the liquor had been poured out for her, she and the rest were sitting at the table drinking.

Again Mr. Payne objected to witness smiling.

The time told my friend you had been in Gibson's presence before?" A: "Yes."

"And liquor was consumed on that occasion?"

"I don't remember."

Records of Hearing

Mr. Payne referred to records of the preliminary hearing.

"So now I draw your attention to the fact that it was in Miss Bebap's apartment that you consumed liquor with Gibson?" A: "Yes."

"What kind of liquor was it, rye or Scotch?" A: "I don't know."

"How long has it been since you commenced to consume liquor?" A: "Several years."

"And you have drunk enough to have been intoxicated?"

At this point jury was excused while again a matter of legal opinion was threshed out.

Mr. Donnan referred to the above question pointing to its relativeness.

Accused declared witness got up from the bed and walked toward the floor lamp. She then managed to get out of the room.

Police Arrival

When police arrived she was lying on the bed, hysterical, with her leg broken, she said. She had no conversation with the police "because she was asked not to."

"By whom?" questioned defendant counsel.

A: "By Dr. Leavens."

"Then with a police officer there you said nothing about anyone trying to ravish you?"

A: "No."

In spite of the hypodermics she received witness declared she was fully conscious.

"How soon after this was it you asked for 500?"

A: "I didn't ask for it," declared witness, adding that she had authorized her attorney to settle it any way he could.

One charge of attempting to ravish her was preferred against Gibson on the day following the accident by Bruyea and the second one on Sept. 24th, was her testimony.

Acquaintance Limited

Witness declared that she had never been closely enough acquainted to call accused by his first name.

Mr. Payne referred to witnesses' trip to Miss Bebap's apartment on the day in question. Questioning hinged on the contents of a whiskey bottle which witness could not clearly recall.

"When these boys left that day you knew they were going to the Fair?"

A: "Yes."

"And you asked them to get a blanket for you?"

She replied that she said if they were lucky enough, to bring her home a blanket.

Miss Wagar testified that at the time of the attack she screamed for food as she could.

Crown Counsel R. C. Donnan resumed cross-examination.

"Mention has been made of settling—settling what?"

"For my injuries," replied witness.

The first interview undertaken by Constable Hazel of the Provincial Police was about three weeks after the attack, declared Miss Wagar.

Adjournment for the day was made at this point.

Sparkling Musical Comedy Sponsored by Kinsmen Club Enjoyed by Large Audience

Dialogue Is Smart, Costumes Dainty And Singing Excellent

FINE DANCING SEEN

Popular Songs by Members of Cast Make Decided Hit

"Oddities of 1936," presented by the Kinsmen Club at the Capitol Theatre last evening, proved to be a sparkling musical comedy with all the melody, merriment and color that one looks for in such a production. Tuneful dances and clever diction delighted the audience and many of the best songs the members of the cast have heard in a long time were rendered in pleasing style. The entire production was staged and produced by the Canadian Production Company of Hamilton under the very capable personal direction of Mr. George Zarfas.

Interest Sustained

The play had more than the usual amount of plot for a musical revue and the book, written by Mr. Alfred Crozier and Mr. Norman Clarke, had the leading roles in the romantic story, as the music was very tuneful and lent, and in spite of the opposition of the former's sister, they succeed in being married in a rush. Mr. John O'Connor and Miss Jack Hughston as Dean Mildred Muddoon and Patrick Harmony, carry off the honours as comedians and the wed. Their clever dialogue and the way these bearing develops as a "problem party round" before the main bout was the program very entertaining.

Dancing Smart

As well as the chorus dances, whose routines were perfectly graceful, their smart costumes and their dancing attracting much attention, there were several specialties. They Ines Forster as a captivating soldier gave a toe-tap dance and Miss Ruth Hagerman, the acrobatic dancer, per excellent, satisfied with her skill. The dancing Forsters, however, stopped the show. Mary and George, as the brother and sister number, captured the admiration of the audience to such an extent that the show could not go on until they danced again, and Mary in a solo number also had to respond to an insistent demand for an encore.

Through music and general fun the plot of the story wound its way to a hilarious climax and the show closed with a gay chorus. The members of the Kinsmen Club can add another success to "Showboat" of last year.

Splendid Songs

The duets by Abbot Crozier and Norman Garland, "Tiger are my lucky star", "Alabamy Bound", "Land where the good folks live", and "Oregon Trail", Miss Bryant; "World is waiting for the sunrise", "Melody from the sky", "Music goes Round"—Bill Hinch; "Footloose and Fancy Free", "Love Walked In", "Alone"—Bill Shoog; "Lulu's Back in Town"—Norman Gen.

The Commodores Orchestra provided the musical setting, giving splendid support to the singers and dancers. Mr. Philip Huddleston, pianist of the orchestra, was also a special accompanist for many of the numbers.

In addition to the principals the following took part in the chorus numbers: Gertrude Armstrong; Rhoda Cherrie; Rhoda Symons; Milen Reid; Edith Reid; Helen McDermott; Eva Adams; Jessie May; Marguerite Asselstine; Agnes Roon; Hazel Halbert; Rose Mary Hilton; Grace Givins; Doris Caisson; Ronald Babburn; Roby Caisson; Ronald Reid; Keith Reid; Annie Mayes; Arnold Bryant; Harold Davison; Raymond Arnold; Walter Dorman; John Barrett.

HAS 16TH CHILD—The birth of another baby to Mrs. Matthew Kenny (above) of Toronto places her in the lead, the claim of the Miller will prize of $600.000 to the Toronto mother with most children in ten years. Mrs. Kenny claims 11 born in Ireland, 4 in England. Contest ends October this year.

The black face comedians, Bob Graham, Glen Allen, Charlie Prince and Bill McNinch with the "Rhythmaniacs" musical group led Teddi Pearsall, made this part of the program very entertaining.

Personals

Mr. Charles Cameron, M.P., and Mrs. Cameron left yesterday for Ottawa to attend the opening of Parliament.

Miss Madeline Harvey, graduate nurse of Montreal Baby Hospital, has arrived home after completing her course.

Friends of Mrs. Ernest Pope, Gilbert Street, will be sorry to learn that she is again confined to bed through illness.

Mrs. R. A. Wilson and Miss Bessie Ketcheson were hostesses to the Presto Musical Club at their monthly meeting. The programme consisting of selections from well known operas was in charge of Miss Evelyn Reddick. At the close of the evening in tribute to the life of our late King, George V, the National Anthem was solemnly rendered.

Despite the weather,a representative number of W. A. members was present at Christ Church Hall, yesterday. The meeting opened with a Senagambia hymn and responsive reading of W. A. Litany. Reports were given by Mrs. Crozier, Dorcas Secretary, Mrs. G. A. Gibson, Social Convener, and Mrs. C. E. Johnson, Flower Secretary. A brief review of the study, "Jews and the World Problem", was given by the President, in the absence of Mrs. Coulter, tried Christmas cards are needed for. These will be renovated and sent to Western centres in the fall. Mrs. Crozier, Mrs. Ketcheson, Mrs. Vandervoort and Mrs. Wiggins, assisted by Mrs. Harold and Miss Gray.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Club was held Tuesday evening in the lecture parlor of the church. The meeting was in the form of a banquet at six-thirty in honor of the retiring president, Mrs. A. Seymour, who has been the ninth president of the club for the past four years. The tables were attractively decorated with pink and daffodils and colored candles. Forty members were present. At the conclusion of the supper the new president, Mrs. Robert Wilson, called upon Mrs. George Wallbridge who read an address and made the presentation of a beautiful handbag to Mrs. Seymour, a token of the remembrance from the club. Corsage bouquets were presented to Mrs. Seymour and Mrs. Wilson by Mrs. (Rev.) Walker. Mrs. Seymour made a gracious reply wishing the club and the new president every success. Regular bridge was followed on for the remainder of the evening.

Many enjoyed the smoker party at the Moose Auditorium last evening. The door-prize was won by Mrs. Cater. Winners at euchre were: ladies' first, Mrs. Osborne; second, Mrs. Holland; third, Mrs. Shorey; fourth, Betty Elliott. Men's first, Bush; sixth, Mrs. Nixon; special, Mrs. Brickman; men's first, Mr. J. Nixon; second, M. Donavon; third, J. Selzwright; fourth, S. Andrews; fifth, George Gillespie; last prize, Mr. O'Brien. The Commodores played for dancing.

The Young People's Society of John Street United Church held an enjoyable sleighing party last evening at which about twenty guests were present. After a drive about the city, a hot supper was served in the church hall and for the remainder of the evening badminton and other games were played. Miss Sadie Denike was convener of the party and the refreshments committee was Gerald Jan Calcher and Jack Clark.

Miss V. Ray Tells of Journey In Nigerian Mission Field

Kuta, Via Minna, Nigeria,
West Africa.
Dec. 7, 1935.

After we were out of sight of the coast line of the land of our birth, we entered a rough choppy sea and it was so for three days. Needless to say I was sea-sick, but began to get my sea legs about the third day. It was quite cold too until we were nearing the British Isles then it seemed to get a bit warmer.

When we arrived in Liverpool it was raining and continued to rain most of the time while we were there. I think the sun only shone for about half an hour one afternoon. Our days were busy ones with shopping so we did not have much of an opportunity to see the city. We arrived Saturday am. and left for Africa on the following Wednesday.

The first of our journey down from England we announced that we would see again. The English Channel and the Bay of Biscay were very rough, but as we came into the warmer air it became calmer and the breeze became more balmy. The later part of our journey, down the coast was very pleasant indeed.

We stopped at Madeira Island and went ashore. We saw the shops where all kinds of Madeira embroidery work was on display. We discovered too late that we could have gone to the factory where the embroidery work is done by women and little girls. It was all very pretty and of course much more reasonable than it would be purchased for at home.

The pavements in Madeira are all cobble stone and one has to be careful as he goes to greet our eyes as we went ashore was mules and sort of carts in which one sits and is driven, seeing, quite antique. There are plenty of cars there, real modern ones as some of the streets are very narrow. Our party left Madeira for Liverpool in England to take in part of a tour up the mountain and it certainly was a grand trip. We were workers fek that it was a great privilege to have this opportunity, as some of the older missionaries returning to the field had said think the had never before had the opportunity to go ashore at Madeira.

Our next stop was at the Canary Islands at Las Palmas. We did not go ashore here, but the natives were at the ship selling their wares. There were canaries of course in little wooden cages, beautiful shawls, fancy work, drawn thread work and all kinds and colors of beads. The natives throw their goods and seem to make their money by selling these things as well as getting all they can from anyone who go ashore.

Our boat was not a freighter as I had been told it would be, but a passenger boat, which carried a great deal of cargo. There was much of this to be unloaded at these ports all the way down the coast and sometimes it took all day to unload at one port.

The next stop was our first view of African soil, Bathurst. We did not go ashore here; from the boat it looked like a very nice place.

We reached Freetown the next day just before dark. We were sorry it was so late as the rules on the boat had been telling us what expert penny divers they had here, but it was too late for them to see the pennies so I will have to wait until I return home to see them. Only two of our party went ashore and they were meeting friends.

The next day was November the tenth (Sunday) I was glad they had services each Sunday, we had an Anglican service in the morning.

On Thursday we arrived at Takoradi, several of our party went ashore. We were practically all day in port as there was so much cargo.

Next day we were at another at Accra, when we arrived at 7 in the am. Our boat could not go in so the Kodks and Gas came out on a deal of cargo again to be unloaded. It is very interesting watching all the natives as they came out in their boats and took to the boats. I think the most fascinating thing to record was the perfect rhythm with which they paddled their boats. They do not have long paddles like we have at home, but very short ones and there are about 6 oars on each side of the boat. They sing as they paddle and that is how they work with perfect rhythme.

Lagos, our next stop, and our destination as far as the boat was concerned. It has the prettiest approach of any of the ports along the coast. The palms were beautiful and the Government has buildings all along the shore with grounds looking just as nice as any grounds at home. It is a very large place, but we did not have time to do sightseeing for time was being up going through customs. Though we found them very fair and kind it took a great deal of time for a party of eighteen to get through.

The next day we boarded the train for our journey up country. The natives on the coast have learned all kinds of tricks to get money out of the white people. They apparently think we have too much. They even pretend they are trying to sell you a good to get money. They can pull a very woe-be-gone looking face too, to convince you.

One has to be right with their toes or they are doing something for which they will expect pay. If they give you any instructions of how to find a place, they expect a dash as they call it. We found the train journey very warm during the day and very cool during the night. We arrived at Minna on Saturday, November the 16th at two-thirty in the afternoon. We tired and dirty from the train as one usually does but more so than usual. The roads here are very dirty. We did not sleep very much in the station selling rams, bread, bananas, oranges and all kinds of things that the Africans were very noisy and did not mind losing any sleep over it. They sold their wares. So even on this continent there is that greed for money that one finds at home the world over.

On Sunday morning we went to an open air meeting which was held in the centre of the town. Following the open air meeting one lady missionary had Sunday School for the children, after which we went to the church service. There are a few native Christians. At 4 p.m. we had our first trip through the surrounding country and stayed overnight. After spending two weeks at the Mission home in Minna I received word that I was going to go to a bush station, so I am now stationed at Kuta, which is about thirty miles from Minna. The road was very rough in places from Minna. I came up in a motor lorry with all my camp kit, boxes, etc. loaded in the back. It just took many hours to cover the distance the road was much fire any country road at home with a few bumps that one finds.

There are two other missionaries here, nurse Avery and Mrs. Nicol. Percy who are graduates of the Toronto Bible College. We have spent the year before I started at T.B.C. We are quite happy here at Kuta. We have 18 inch rain fall. We have a very kind interpreter named Yusufu. He is not interested in them. They are so busy trying to appease the evil spirits and of the right way for them to do not think much about anything else, until the missionaries try to help them in a medical way. So here I am endeavoring to learn the language in order that I may tell them the message as I visit them in their compounds or they may help them in a medical way. I do long to talk to them and tell them of the Saviour who died for them and who is waiting to serve such a Saviour.

I wish to take this opportunity to thank the Daily Ontario Intelligencer for their kind offer to publish this letter, also to thank the many friends in Centenary, Alkens church and all who were so kind to me before I left for Africa. God's richest blessing be upon you all through the coming year.

Yours in the Masters Service,
Vera M. Ray.

Collegians, St. Mikes Blank Opponents in School Twin Bill

Jr. L. Defeats Albert 7-0, While The "Irish" Take O. S. D. 4-0

The B.C.I. "Collegians" and the St. Michael's "Irish" advanced in Junior Intermediate Hockey League at the arena last night when the B.C.I. blanked the Albert College 7-0, while St. Mikes applied the whitewash brush to the O.S.D. lads to the tune of 4-0. Both games were of a thrilling nature with feeling running high. Referee Bert Mott, numerous being the order of the night during the "Irish"-O.S.D. game while no quarter was asked or given by either contest as some 600 fans voiced their approval upon the night's goal fest. The B.C.I. victory carries the "Collegians" into second place, one place above two points west of St. Michael's, whose victory over O.S.D. elevated them to third place. The loss sustained by Albert dropped them into third place.

In the opening game between the B.C.I. and Albert, fierce feeling ran high throughout with plenty of body checking holding sway, penalties preceding the two periods of play. The first period was a hectic one, the latter fight between the boys of O.S.D. and Albert, the two teams with players of both sides entering into the melee to bring the fans pounding to their feet and also taking part. Forward Ross Burgess, B.C.I. star, was seriously injured. Although most of the players left the ice showing outward signs of battle. The first period, the lead early in the initial game, Jimo sank home pass and from that point were never headed until the final bell. Fifteen penalties, goals and O'Neill's solo were the other counters regist-

The O.S.D. lads formed in a spirited manner and the nimble footwork of Tommy Hughes in the St. Michael's net kept Albert from scoring. After they carried their play of the offensive play. Injuries to Albert players also cost the O.S.D. many a goal, Tommy Hughes starred for the victors with Voisin, Amo, O'Neill, Dillon, and Kelly playing good for the O.S.D. Hoags, Samuel, Green, Major and Kosti starred for Albert and played hard but were defeated.

Line-ups:

Michael's—Goal, Hughes; defence, O'Neill and Voisin; centre, Amo; wings, Potats and Dennis; subs, Amo, T. Frets and Madip.

Albert—Goal, Shorter; defence, Wilborne and Kosti; centre, Green; wings, Hoags and Bostnair; Wallop, Green, Major, Meisnik; Campbell and Burns.

ever, cost the Albert Yellow Jackets many a counter as they continually kept on the puck into B.C.I. territory, only to be thwarted by Voisin in the "Collegians" net. Amo was given splendid protection by Logie and Derry, his defencemen, breaking up each time they came in the form of a miraculous effort between the B.C.I. goal-posts to star. Morgan, Muir, Ronsky and Morris carried the attack speed for the Alberts on Coach Shiels' front line with Burton, McDonald, Burgess, LaPain and Ross looking the best for the losers. Muir and Derry scored for B.C.I. in the initial frame, with Morgan, Morris and Ronsky bagging counters in the second clinker, with Burton and Morris scored in the last frame to make the final count 7 to 0 for B.C.I. The second game was instantly tought but clean.

The line-ups:

B.C.I. ..... Goal, Monk; defence, Logie and Derry; centre, Morgan; wings, Muir and Hanna; subs, Ronsky, Bowchuck, Green, Morris, Liddle and Culhane.

F. FRANKHOUSE GOES TO DODGERS

Babich And Moore Given in Exchange For Pitcher

New York, Feb. 6.—(AP)—After dickering with most everybody in the National League, Manager Casey Stengel of Brooklyn Dodgers today swung a deal with Boston Braves for Fred Frankhouse, right-hand pitcher.

Batting several rival managers to the punch, including Bill Terry of the Giants, Stengel obtained Frankhouse, Boston's only 1935 youthful performers—Johnny Babich, California outfielder, and Gene Moore, Texan who developed outfielding promise in the Cardinal farm system.

Frankhouse at 31, has been in the majors for five years, three with the Boston club since 1930. He was on the National League All-Star team in 1934 when he won 17 games and lost nine with an earned run of 3.34. He ranked one of the steadiest righthanders in the circuit.

Last year, with the Boston Nationals ever experienced Frankhouse was credited with 11 of the Club's 38 victories. He lost 12 games.

Frankhouse came to Brooklyn in the footsteps of Ed Brandt, Big Boston southpaw obtained along with Randy Moore earlier in the winter in exchange for a quartet of players—Al Lopez Tony Cuccinello, Bobby Reis and Ray Benge. Brandt and Frankhouse will form the back bone of the Boston pitching staff for a number of years.

BAR TWO FROM ENGLISH TEAM

Goalie And Wingman Failed to Get Transfers From C. A. H.

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 6.—(CP)—England's hockey entry in the fourth Olympic winter games, which opened today, was shorn of two of its brightest stars by the transfer ruling of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

By unanimous vote the International Hockey Federation last night declared James Foster, crack goaltender once of Winnipeg and Moncton, and Alec Archer, graceful winger from Edmonton formerly of Winnipeg, ineligible to play for the English side, they were among the 22 delegates who met in special session concurred with the decision of Frank G. Gilroy of the C.A.H.A. that the players had disqualified themselves by not complying with the Canadian transfer rule before departing Canada. Foster and Archer, playing with three delegates abstained from voting.

The Canadian delegates emphasized they were not complaining about the participation of England's English team. From the large number of Canadian hockey players, who have emigrated to the British Isles, the British International Hockey Association picked a few who were born in England and raised in the Dominion. There was no objection on this score.

As it stands today, the English team appeared with but three players, who recently left Canada. It is expected Harry Oke, formerly of Guelph, Ont., would tend goal for A. Sinchcombe, ex-Winnipeg player, and Jack Marshall, Winnipeg, Ont., also have been named to the squad.

However players may be given permission of the C.A.H.A. to leave Canada, veterans Foster and Foster did not apply for transfers.

Weather is Perfect For Opening Games

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany Feb. 6.—(AP)—Weather, the indispensable part of the winter Olympic sports was well nigh perfect today as athletes from 28 nations and Nazi leaders convened to open the fourth winter Olympiad.

A lot more snow fell last night on top of the heavy fall of the last few days to provide what everyone agreed was an ample supply. The sudden change from the spring-like weather of the past few weeks was a source of satisfaction to the thousands, who came here for the opening ceremonies.

DAY BY DAY

The B.C.I. "Collegians" and St. Pickon C.I. for calling our attention to this mistake, which proves that at least one person reads this column.

The latest financial reports from the offices of the New York Yankees, the American League, reveal that the "Highlanders" played to something like 250,000 fewer customers last summer than the year previous. This amounts to approximately $100,000 or better. It is estimated in round dollars. Now we subscribe anti-Babe Ruth fans, did the Bambino earn his eighty grand per, nes?

Bert Cook, the Lennoxville hurler who was once recommended to Belleville by a local baseball lover as a possible prospect for the Bert-ville senior hurling staff, left here yesterday for Porto Rico, where he will be given a thorough trial with the Cincinnati Reds, after a successful season with the Leafs in 1933. The Reds have a Villanova some times pass up splendid material. Cook left here, a husky lad, weighing around 202 pounds and is no longer the retired dilletant rusher of a couple of years ago. With so much big league baseball talent in the area, it is interesting to wonder, when the local executive will get down to a baseball meeting. At least they could call a preliminary meeting and discuss future possibilities.

The local Industrial Hockey League is holding open night with a big schedule on the ice, this Friday night instead of Thursday, as has been the practice in the past.

We observe that something new has been added to the schedule of the Kingston City Collegian Junior boys' hockey team. The boys have taken up and coming boys will be carrying water. As a matter of fact the fairer sex always obtained that job, but rules were far easier to master, so the theory goes according to their words. The feature game of the night in the Intermediate Hockey League "Great" versus the Belleville "Greats" will be a juvenile game of the K.O.B.A. With two referees on the card for one admission only. It may prove some excitement to the fans.

Now that the Kingston scribe has branched out and is publishing a two column sports review, it is generally is grasping in all angles towards all stream of sporting space, we observe. Yes, the local Juniors are 6-in-1. Profits on what?

A real old fashioned open air ice carnival is being staged on Friday afternoon on the bay opposite the O.B.D. Under the direction of Physical Instructor Frank Cunningham the boys of the O.B.D. are cleaning sufficient space to hold hockey, and other field events, that should attract a large following on Friday.

ROCHE BROTHERS ASSIST IN WIN

Cleveland Defeats Olympics, Western Group Leaders by 6-2

By The Canadian Press

The smoke-swirls of the Roche brothers, just transplanted from Pittsburgh to Cleveland, made a favorable impression in Falcon uniforms last night. Jimmy Roche scored three goals as the Falcons beat Detroit, western section leaders of the International Hockey League, 6-2 at Cleveland. Brother Earl furnished an assist to Deese on each goal.

Buffalo Bisons today were back in a second-place tie with London in the eastern section. Pittsburgh's Shamrocks raised cheers from hometown fans last night, when they took a 2-0 lead over the Bisons, but Buffalo hit the groove in the second period and wound up on the top of a 6-3 score, counting four in a row and two more in the last period.

Little Ken Doraty flicked home a goal for Vic Ripley in the first period at Cleveland to give Falcons a start. Ripley made it 2-0 on Rothschild's assist before Foster scored for Olympics on a pass from Sherf. Bud Cook and Earl Roche abetted Jimmy Roche in Deese-Roche hits-one later and Cleveland were two up again. Sherf passed to Deese for another in the second and the same combination scored again in the last period. Doraty got his second point of the night by furnishing an assist to Frank Daley for the other Falcon goal. Liscombe scored for the O's on Brunelean's pass.

Major Fights

Harvey Jacobsen of the Cleveland defence and Art Otrouw, Detroit wing, drew majors for a second-period fight, that had the crowd in an uproar.

Goalie Martin saved Tor Shamrocks on Nick Wasnie's pass in the first period at Pittsburg, and Benson stretched it to 2-0 in the second with McCabe and Darragh aiding.

Two minutes later the avalanche of Buffalo goals started. Less Cunningham, Tiny Tossalo, Sammy Godin, Red Dutton and Cliff Barton got the six Buffalo goals.

Pittsburg took Joe Starke out of the cage at the end of the second period and young Paul Goeckler, loaned to Shamrocks by Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, made a smart impression leading the Pittsburg goal in the third. Harris and Barton scored on Gaukler, but he showed up well.

LOST COURAGE TO SHOOT SELF

Jewish Youth Assassinates Switzerland Leader of German Nazis

(Copyright, 1936, by The Associated Press)

DAVOS, Switzerland, Feb. 6 (AP) —The political assassination of Wilhelm Gustloff, 49-year-old leader of the German Nazis in Switzerland, by a Yugoslav medical student aroused fears today of grave international complications.

The assassin, who surrendered promptly to police told the authorities he was David Frankfurter, 26-year-old Jew, and he wished to strike a blow against the Nazi regime in revenge sufferings he said were inflicted on his fellow Jews in Germany.

Police said the student told them the bullets should have struck Adolphe Hitler but he lost the old aim in his power by removing the agent who "poisoned the atmosphere here."

The slayer said he came from Berne where he attended medical school and went yesterday to the home of Gustloff, a summer who had lived in Davos for 30 years.

When Gustloff rose from a chair to receive him, police quoted Frankfurter as saying, the student shot the man down on the threshold of the Nazi's study without uttering a word.

Lost Courage

Police said Frankfurter told them he intended to shoot himself as well but lost courage after tramping about in the snow for a short while and decided to surrender.

The authorities said the student told them he killed Gustloff because he was an agent of the Nazi regime, which made impossible a normal existence for his fellow Jews.

Frankfurter asserted he was incited by two police aides, acted on nobody's orders and belonged to no association or any party.

The slayer said he was the son of a Rabbi.

Gustloff, a militant Nazi, had aroused the anger of Swiss Socialists by organizing Germans in Switzerland in support of Adolf Hitler.

Gustloff, a native of Mecklenburg, Germany, who came to Davos because of lung trouble, was held in esteem by Nazi officials as the oldest in the National Socialist party service of foreign organizers.

Treatment of Cancer Of Mouth Simplified

London, Ont., Feb. 5 (CP) —Details signed by their discoverer of a radium applicator of a new type for treatment of oral cancer was announced today.

The physicians are Dr. F. F. Baker and Dr. George Wardell, McNeill is Professor of Radiology at the University of Western Ontario.

Details of the appliance are provided in the current edition of the Canadian Dental Association Journal.

In the treatment of cancer of the mouth, it is announced, doctors use radioactive have been faced with the possibility of killing bone structure and healthy tissue because of the strength of the radium.

The new applicator, based on the same principle as one now used in the United States, is said to permit the continued treatment of the cancer area without in any way endangering the bone or skin tissues.

HERE ARE THE REAL FACTS ABOUT BRAN

Brought Out by Tests with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN

Some years ago, there was considerable difference of opinion regarding the use of bran. So to discover the actual facts of the case, the Kellogg Company asked for a series of laboratory tests at leading universities.

Experimental studies on a group of healthy women showed that the confined use of bran was thoroughly satisfactory. Unlike cathartics, it did not lose its effect.

Other independent tests on men indicated that, with certain people, the "bulk" in bran was more effective than that found in fruits and vegetables.

Laboratory analysis proved that Kellogg's ALL-BRAN supplied vitamin B and iron as well as plenty of bulk. This "bulk" in ALL-BRAN is gentle in action. It absorbs a great deal of moisture, and cleanses the intestinal tract.

ALL-BRAN corrects constipation due to insufficient "bulk." It is the natural way—far better than taking pills and tablets. Serve as a cereal—or use in cooking. Sold by all grocers. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

SEVERE COLD FORCES POPE PIUS TO CANCEL ENGAGEMENTS—His Holiness Pope Pius is reported suffering a severe cold that for several days caused him to cancel engagements of the Vatican. It is also reported from Rome that the Pope is frankly discouraged that war has not ended in Africa. The above layout shows his holiness in various poses during his life. He will celebrate his seventy-ninth birthday anniversary on May 31. Born Damiano Achille Ratti, he was elected Pope 14 years ago (Feb. 6, 1922), the year of Mussolini's "march on Rome." Devoting his life in the peace, the Pope declared on his election, "This is a name of peace. I desire to consecrate my labors to the peace of the world. I choose the name of Pius XI."

ACCUSED STORMED CABIN FOR DAYS

Sensational Evidence Given By Woman in Murder Trial

Battleford, Sask., Feb. 5—(CP)—A verdict of a supreme court jury was expected today in the murder charge against John Harms, 45-year-old trapper charged with the slaying of his partner, Anthony Anchony, 36, last Nov. 23 in the isolated region of Saskatchewan 250 miles northeast of Edmonton.

Harms' arrest followed a manhunt in which dog teams and airplanes were employed. He finally surrendered to Reginald Pal Vernon, R.C.M.P., who with pilot Corp. Leigh of Canadian Airways flew into the open as he heard the plane and by upraised hands indicated he wished to surrender.

Harms took the witness stand yesterday and after a story of a prolonged drinking bout had been placed in evidence, declared he shot his partner in self-defence. The court also learned of a terrible four days' fight by a young woman as Harms tried to break into her cabin.

From Saskatchewan's northland witnesses had travelled more than 800 miles to testify at the murder trial and chief evidence was given by Mrs. Aeta Lindgren who told of the terror she endured after Harms had come over to her cabin and sought assistance.

She said she went with accused into his cabin. She declared Harms said, 'with is going to be a shock to you' and when she saw Anthony lying the floor she asked Harms, 'Harms, what is wrong?' Harms, she said, replied, 'Shed what you are going to find out."

Mrs. Lindgren saw Anthony was dead and she fled from the cabin, Harms firing once at her as she ran. She hid in the bush and finally managed to reach her home, where she saw Harms in a sleigh, in the sleigh. She locked herself in the cabin and then began a terrifying experience as accused stormed her cabin repeatedly for four days.

Inclusion of Canadians Claiming English Birth May Bring Protests

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 5.—(CP)—Possibility of fireworks in Olympic Hockey circles before the teams take to the ice on Thursday was seen today in reports circulated that not only the Canadian Olympic Hockey authorities but Thursday's opponents, countries as well may protest inclusion of so many "Canadian" players on the various competing teams.

A meeting of hockey team managers will be held tonight and, it is understood, the matter will be brought up for discussion. The aid was thick this morning with rumors concerning the eligibility of the members of the British team.

The British team includes five Canadians, claiming to be of English birth. They are Goalie Jimmy Foster of Winnipeg and Moncton; Jimmy Chappell, centre-ice of Whitby; Cecil Hart, Manchester, forward of Windsor, Ont.; Alex. Archer, forward from Winnipeg and Harry Pratchett, defenceman, University of Ottawa. The outfit is coached by Percy Nicklin, who led Moncton Hawks when they won the Allan Cup in 1933 and 1934.

Last night ten Canadian and other hockey officials conferred but the matter of player eligibility was not broached. Only routine questions, such as refereeing, were settled.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

All parents have a school problem. Each thinking father and mother wonders whether his children are attending the best school possible, and this problem of choosing the right school is not an easy one to solve by any means. There are many to select from, and they all offer such allurements!

Take your child to almost any private school and you are made to feel that you have chosen wisely. You will be told that the surrounding was planning only after the most careful study, and led to believe that individual attention is the key note of the instruction given. You will even get the notion that the school was specially created to take care of your child.

I don't wish to be flippant in this respect nor to exaggerate, because not all schools make claims they cannot live up to. In fact, most of them are entirely honest and sincere, and they try their best.

More than likely, the difficulties that arise after the child is entered are not the fault of the school nor, again, the fault of the child. They arise, because, somehow, the child and the school don't fit.

What I mean is this. No two children agest ten, for example, think alike, act alike or feel alike. But the average school treats them as though they were alike! Whether in private or public instruction, expediency and lack of time and equipment demand that all children of a certain age be assigned certain prescribed course of study. The inevitable results, naturally, are scores of misfit everywhere!

In all fairness to a child, every parent should note whether the teacher in question is taking such individual differences into account. No child should be treated in a wholesale fashion.

Up-to-date schools attempt to make up the deficiencies and the qualities of group teaching by promoting pupils according to subjects and grades, by extra private tutoring, etc.

Still, such practices are not as universal as they should be. Meanwhile, unless you choose the school wisely, your child may be made to suffer.

Don't take only one's word about any school but investigate the school yourself. Find out if the school is practicing modern pedagogics.

If you discover that you have made a mistake, better take your child out and try another school, even if the term has already begun. Far better than forcing an immature, developing mind into an impossible situation.

Children who do not attend the right school develop bad learning habits, they become discouraged, they are disobedient, and sometimes they develop nervous disorders because of it.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Judicious exercise is necessary to health. We often see, however, young men working in office or factory who spend the best part of their lives here playing handball or catching a baseball immediately after eating. This is far from judicious. In fact, no time could be worse especially for violent exercise. When the stomach is engorged with food it is better to rest, or take a slow walk.

70 MILE GALE BATTERS BUFFALO

Buffalo, N. Y., Feb. 5.—(AP)—A gale which reached 70 miles-an-hour battered the ...uffalo area yesterday, injuring scores of persons by blowing them off their feet.

"Lifelines" were stretched in exposed places in downtown Buffalo when pedestrians were unable to progress against the wind over the icy sidewalks and groups of people could be seen attempting to cross streets by clinging together and backing against the wind.

EDUCATION OF QUINTS STARTS

Miss Jacqueline Noel of Montreal, Now Head Nurse

Callander, Ont., Feb 5 (CP)—The famous Dionne quintuplets have reached the stage now where their education must begin in earnest, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, their physician, said today, in announcing appointment of Jacqueline Noel, Montreal as head nurse at the Dafoe hospital.

The Montreal nurse is especially qualified to take charge of the quints' pre-school training. She speaks both French and English fluently and will be in a position to teach the youngsters in their mother tongue. As parents the cheery little doctor said, the babies have only baby talk at their command.

But he is looking out for the time, expected shortly, when the babies' vocabulary enlarges. They will be trained in proper methods of play and correct speaking. For now, at least, he said, the major portion of their training will be in French.

Abandon Oil Sanction is View at Geneva

Geneva, Feb. 5—(CP)—Havas)—Complete abandonment or proposed oil sanctions against Italy was foreseen today by League of Nations observers who expect the United States Congress to drop the neutrality legislation now before it.

Without the partial support implicit in the original neutrality bill, limiting exports to belligerents in peace time quantities, League authorities believed the last hope of applying an effective oil embargo against Italy would entirely disappear.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Then, with a roar the wind had begun and the heavens opened. The deluge must have been like this, thought the frightened girl as she watched the rain dashing against the small windows as though it would beat in the glass.

The wind swooped down on the small house and shook it as a terrier shakes a rat. Dale went about the place with a worried little frown. Brant had started this morning for Colt City to replenish their supplies. Dale found herself wishing that he had not gone. He had expected the rain to hold off for another day.

Dale's heart leaped as she heard the sound of a car above the shriek of wind. She ran to the door and opened it. The wind caught it, rushed in, slamming the door back against the wall and smiting the dishes on the shelves to clicking. The man, swept in on that rush of air and water, struggled to close the door, then he turned about to face the startled girl. It was Steve Kemp.

CHAPTER II.

THE UNWELCOME GUEST

At the sight of the man Dale felt clammy creeps into her heart. Steve Kemp was the last person she had expected—or wanted—to see. But in this storm she could not deny him shelter. She forced a slight smile to her lips.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Kemp. Brant's not home. He left a couple of hours ago—just before the rain started."

The man's eyes roved slowly over the girl and Dale was suddenly aware of her costume. She had washed her hair that morning. It stood out about her head in a wavy halo. The blue satin negligee, thin and sheer from many launderings, was wound about her slender body. Her slim legs were bare save for the orange Chinese slippers. A startling vision to be found here in this desert shack..... Steve Kemp would not have expressed it in that way to himself, but his breath came in a little faster and he wore a curious smile as he replied:

"Sure, I saw Brant coming from here. Passed him back there on the road."

"Then, why....?" Kemp had known that Brant was not at home, yet he had come here! Dale's brows drew together and she looked closely at the man.

Dale saw now what she had missed before. Kemp was quite drunk. And there was something else—there was a subtle menace in the man's eyes..... Battling her own fear through the world, Dale had glimpsed such menace many times before, but never more baldly than now. With a flutter of fright she found herself wishing that Brant had not taken the colts with him to the car. Major would protect her with his life.....

Aware of Dale's frightened silence, Kemp's smile broadened. He repeated: "I saw Brant..... That's why I'm here."

"I—I don't understand you!" The girl spoke sharply to drown the sinking of her heart.

The man sat down heavily in a chair and tossed his soaked hat to the table.

"Can you get me all right!" Kemp said largely. "You an' me, we've understood each other right from the start. The first time I laid eyes on you—when I drove Brant out that old dump, I thought—I thought that did you think?"

The angry pink had risen to Dale's cheeks now, and her eyes narrowed. "Mr. Kemp, and just what did you think?"

The man leaned forward and snatched at one of her hands.

"I thought it was a dirty shame I didn't see you before Kendall did! You an' me could get on swell, I can give you lots of things he can't. Kemp broke off as Dale snatched back her hand and put it behind her back. Her voice was smothered.

"Mr. Kemp, I'm sorry, but I must tell you that I don't like your manners and I must ask you to leave."

Kemp's smile narrowed and a stubborn line came about his mouth.

"Oh.....so you don't like me, huh? Going to get balky, are you? The man's tone grew heavily wheedling again. "Aw, now, cutie, what's the use of actin' like that? I'm not like those kids around here. I been around a lot, in cities an' all. I'm not like those hicks—I know what's what; an' honest you're the prettiest girl I ever saw."

Kemp made a second lunge for the girl, hot rage flashed over the passion visible in the man's eyes. Unconsciously she shrunk away.

Kemp saw the slight movement and he laughed. "That's better. Goin' to quit pretendin' an' be sensible! Pullin' this sweet innocence stuff—you that danced in a road show. I don't mind goin' slow—some girls are like that, but don't try to fool me. That makes me mad."

Kemp had placed a hand on the wall on either side of Dale and he grinned down with the same pleasure a cat feels in playing with a mouse. Pressed away as far as possible, Dale spoke earnestly, trying to control the frightened little shake of her voice:

Dale. Her hand caught him across the face in a smart slap, which echoed through the room.

The curtain dropped on Kemp's assumed good nature. He leaped to his feet, the red print of the girl's fingers showing on the brown skin.

"Say, listen, sister, that'll be about all for you! I told you I was-n't no bush, n' don't go pullin' that stuff on me. I'm sick of it! First met you, you been givin' me the come-on with your eyes."

"Why—you—you beast!" Dale backed against the wall, her hands outspread against it for support. It was a grey nightmare..... the fury of her voice:

"Mr. Kemp, I'm going to be very blunt with you. I don't know what you think about me, but you—but you're wrong. Truly, I never meant to—to lead you on. I've only meant to be friendly. Please let me go. I'm sorry I slapped you, but I was—I was frightened."

The man studied the imploring brown eyes, the pleading face; then he laughed and deliberately leered his mouth on the girl's own.

A demon of fright and anger then woke in Dale. She lunged under the man's arms, but he grasped her two wrists easily in one hand and with the other held her hard against him. The girl could not sometimes he fled in one direction, sometimes in another, so that he occupied more time than was necessary in making his journey. Otherwise, he and helpless. The five minutes were up, and Dorosky had come to demand Tarzan's answer. As he entered the tent, his plan of action was well formulated in his mind.

move in that painful embrace until she chose to release her, but she twisted her face desperately away, seeking to avoid his lips.

Dale's robe was torn in that silent struggle, and she cried out sharply as she felt his thick fingers sink in the flesh of her shoulder.

A desperate lunge and she tore loose, darting about the table. But the robe winding about her knees tripped her and as Kemp caught her again in his arms, Dale's shrill scream was lost in the shriek of the gale.

Anger had burned away any control Kemp might have had. The girl's resistance had maddened him. He chose to release her, but she twisted her face desperately away, seeking to avoid his lips.

"Certain' balky, are you!" the man got out between clenched teeth. "One of these girls that wants to fight, are you? Well, fight—but I'll take all the fight out of you!"

Kemp's mouth crushed on Dale's again and his spoke thickly. "I been crazy for you ever since I first seen you. Thinkin' about you—wonderin' how your hair'd feel against—my face—"

Stirling and District

STIRLING — The first regular meeting of St. Andrew's Guild under the direction of the newly appointed executive took place in the Sunday School rooms on Monday evening, under the auspices of the Missionary Division with Miss Isabel Morrow, B.A., vice-president as convener of the program committee.

Mr. Duncan Montgomery, president of the Guild, officiated as chairman throughout the evening. A solo by one of the juvenile members, Doris Jones, was much appreciated. The Scripture lesson was read by Mr. Ray Joby. Mrs. R. H. Williams then gave a piano solo. This was followed by a reading given by Miss DaVoe entitled "Giving". During the business part of the meeting which included the secretary's report of the last meeting as read by Miss Gay, the plans were started to arrange for an old time sleigh party for the members of the organization to be held in the near future. The matter was left in the hands of the executive

The address of the evening was given by Mr. Arthur Duncan who dealt in an interesting fashion with the question, "Have a Right to Preach In China while Canada is still Unchristian". In his opening remarks the speaker pointed out that the nations were Christian several possessed Christianity but were far from being Christian. Then he revealed a brazen paganism which makes the work of the foreign missionary very difficult. We are looked upon by the eastern countries as Christian because of the fine fabrics and shoes and coverings are credited to Christianity. We assume superiority to other races and fail to offer the hand of Christian fellowship to those who accept the invitation to become Canadians. Because they become clannish and start colonies wherein they associate with those who look down upon them. Within these colonies are schools which teach children not to set forth there is no God. We must create Christian institutions in order to counteract spreading propaganda. We must teach through systematic training that we have a responsibility to other races in the sight of God and by so doing do away with racial and race prejudice which hinders the progress of Christianity.

Two things are essential to the success of the church "Prayer" must be a "Missionary Church" must all do our part in the great work. Demand good literature and there is less in an effort to raise the thoughts of man to the higher things. Motion pictures produced in this country and banned because of immorality and decency. Look what is done in China and Japan and accepted there as portrayals of Christianity. Those in the east look upon the world war as the Christian; we must raise above ourselves to be living examples of Christianity at home, and thereby maintain workers all parts of the world to carry out the wish of our Great Leader.

The meeting was closed with the Mizpah Benediction after which Miss M. Anderson directed an interesting contest.

Personals

Mr. and Mrs. Fine Spry and Ross, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Linn and Miss Ruth Webb, attended a memorial service at St. Mark's Anglican Church, Belleville, on Sunday in memory of Mrs. John Eastman. Mr. and Mrs. James Hough of Deseronto also attended this service.

The friends of Mr. Chas. Sewer will be glad to learn that he is recovering splendidly following an attack of pneumonia and was able to be around the house seriously ill for some time.

The rain which fell during last week-end hours has created a great deal of work for the snow plough on the highways and Mr. Chas. Nicholson who is in charge of this branch of the highway reports the going quite hard for even the snow plough where the drifts are heavy. Sand is being used to fill the roads. They are managing to keep all roads open however, though the rain makes them dangerous to drive on.

Mr. Milton Sills has returned to Iroquois Falls, after attending the funeral of his mother, the late Mrs. Ettie M. Sills of West Huntingdon.

Marmora and District

Marmora, Feb. 5—An event of great interest to the residents of Marmora village and district occurred on Monday, January 3rd, when Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Bleecker celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. The esteem and respect in which Mr. and Mrs. Bleecker are held in Marmora was shown by the steady stream of visitors that called during the afternoon and evening to tender their congratulations. The gifts were received at the Bleecker home by Mr. and Mrs. Whitehead's mother, Mrs. Hooper of Montreal.

During the afternoon Marmora township council came in a body to pay their respects. In the evening a delegation of Marmora branch No. 237 Canadian Legion presented Mr. and Mrs. Bleecker with a table lamp. H. H. Pearce read an address on behalf of the Legion and Mrs. Bleecker replied in suitable terms. Marmora Women's Institute presented Mr. and Mrs. Bleecker with roses. In the course of the evening a delicious buffet luncheon was served to the guests by Mrs. R. R. Pearce, Mrs. Whitehead, Mrs. Hilda Thompson and Jean Gladney.

Mr. and Mrs. Bleecker have been prominent in village life for many years. Mr. Bleecker is a life long resident and is a direct descendant of John S. Bleecker an early United Empire Loyalist settler who made his home near Trenton. His father was the late A. S. Bleecker who conducted a general store in Marmora for many years. Mr. Bleecker is C.P.R. agent and also has an insurance business. For many years he has been active in the Methodist church in Belleville on Monday night when Peterboro defeated the Belleville team by a 4-3 overtime game, by a score 4-3 from the early days established by the Belleville team it looked like a sure victory and the supporters of the Belleville team were greatly disappointed.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mason and Mr. and Mrs. Perry Bronson and family were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. Bronson's sister, Mrs. Frank Lapp of Belleville.

Clarence Inherits

By LILLIAN STEWART

He met her at a house party. She was a quiet, wrinkle little thing, as big brown eyes and tendrils of ashy brown hair clustering over her forehead.

Clarence Wayne never doubted that, eventually, she would become Mrs. Wayne. During the following week he sent her five lovely notes and photograph, and settled himself to her home for the week-end.

Life in a Connecticut village had been quiet and serene for the son of a small job carpenter, that life would have been lonely.

Mrs. Carter, drinking tea with her mother, nodded knowingly when they came up the drive. "I knew soon he talking like that. He's cut the tissues she said. "My John looked at me that way and we were married within six months."

Her prophecy came true. They went to New York. It was an exclusive apartment building, selecting furniture to go with the beautiful pieces brought from her home, finding a maid who would work months in.

As she had been accustomed to frugality, Clarence's salary of fifty dollars a week expanded beneath her clever fingers.

Eight months later her mother died. The old home was sold for three thousand dollars. Clarence changed to a still more expensive place for luncheons and had several evenings a week to play poker at which Clarence usually lost. He poked a finger into the dimple on his chin and made good his losses.

He proposed a trip to Europe. She wrinkled her brows, figured on the best in steamship rates, and they went.

When they had been married two years Clarence told her that they was more broke than ever. But he did not bother to ask why she borrowed from the home from the library and passed the evening reading. Nor did he ask when she would wear born specialists.

The spinster across the hall noticed that fifteen minutes after the door closed upon her husband in the morning it reopened and closed upon the wife. She did not notice that it was 4:30, half an hour before she greeted him affectionately. This spinster occasionally met the janitor and his wife and was prompted to wonder and found other matters upon which to ponder.

At the end of six years Clarence's salary remained at fifty a week. But his wife's income was gone and was a regular patron of the manicurist and hair dresser. She had developed her for extravagance. She smiled and said she was pleased, even did she frequently lost at cards and when she paid and chided him he smiled and harbored curious thoughts.

Ten years passed, and Clarence, growing fat, still had his position with hair thinning at the top, grumbled at his salary and spent his evening away from home, except with his cronies.

Twelve, fifteen, twenty years, and Clarence felt lightly. His salary had been increased to sixty dollars a week and he had developed a paunch.

A change came over her during the twentieth summer. Color faded from her cheeks and her hair lost its gloss and lusterless. The doctor shook his head and left powders in the morning when the pain should prove severe.

Clarence buried her where the sun shone the hills beyond.

His clothing soon showed spots, his heels became run down, he lost heavily at the poker table, and his hand trying the necessary money into his palm. Finally he was compelled to vacate the apartment.

While her room was being disposed of a large letter arrived from behind the clock. It contained two bank books, Clarence had never kept a bank book. He opened one. The first deposit was two dollars made on the occasion of their marriage. Weekly entries for the next months mentioned her mother's death. Next came the entry for money received from the estate. The following pages showed that it all had been saved. Then came the last page. There were entries now. . . . Two hundred. . . . Three hundred. . . . Then the total opposite the last deposit. Ten thousand dollars!

The second account had been opened in another bank with a deposit of four hundred dollars, and there was a check for what seemed to him a fabulous sum.

"Mr. Wayne," said the banker, "your wife placed this account in our consulting attorney. Her fees totalled more than that. Can she assume it in her books."

Associates of Clarence's congratulated him upon receiving a bequest made him welcome at the gaming table.

Within a year he married a woman of doubtful reputation and they were shrugged.

Four months later he sat, a broken man, in the lobby of the building where his wife had laid up the treasure which had proved his moral death.

Mr. and Mrs. L. McAvoy of Madoc spent Sunday the 26th inst. with Mr. T. Shannon spent the week end in Toronto.

"Magnificent Obsession"

Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor Score in Lloyd C. Douglas Story

It is difficult to attempt a dispassionate review of "Magnificent Obsession" Universal's John M. Stahl production which opened a three days engagement at the Belle yesterday to large audiences with Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor in the starring roles. Rarely has the screen shown a more touching motion picture than this, filled as it is with heart-rendering drama and delightful comedy . . . a skilful blending of light and shade, revealing the story of the compelling power of a great love, interfered in a picture which will be remembered for years as an outstanding example of screen artistry.

The charming Miss Dunne plays the greatest role of her career, and her performance even excels those of "Cimarron" and "Theodora Goes Wild". During a part of the picture she is blind, and her experiences brought to the eyes of almost everyone in the audience. Taylor is revealed as a dramatic actor of exceptional ability and fully justifies Hollywood's announcement that this handsome young man is the most important screen discovery of the year. Betty Furness and Charles Butterworth are presented with stirring dramatic qualities. Others in the cast who do especially good work are Charles Butterworth, whose comedy is delightful; Betty Furness, Sara Haden, Gilbert Emery, Ralph Morgan, Sara De Colins, Henry Armetta and Arthur Treacher.

"Magnificent Obsession" is more appealing than "Back Street". More human and "real", more dramatic and romantic than "Imitation of Life" and is a romantic dramatic production such as one seldom sees and it will be repeated again tonight, Friday, Saturday and next evening.

"Rose of the Rancho" Next

The story of "Rose of the Rancho" — the beautiful, high spirited Spanish girl who led her people against the rapacious American land-grabbers in the first year of California's statehood—has thrilled motion picture and stage audiences alike for more than twenty years.

Now for the first time this dashing romance of old Monterey comes to the screen, as Paramount's the first original operetta-type score ever written for motion pictures, with charming Gladys Swarthout, brilliant star of the Metropolitan Opera, and John Boles balancing dramatic singing in the leading roles. "Rose of the Rancho" will be seen at the Belle beginning Sunday, with "Another Face", a high-powered underworld-packed drama, the story of a gangster who cracked the gates of Hollywood and prevailing how a plastic surgeon changed his face so his own mother didn't know him—but another face woman did. The children's talent show will commence Saturday afternoon at 2.15.

Special Winner Night

The award committee of the Belle Theatre Rhyme contest run by the Belleville Ontario on Wednesday, January 29th, for children, Sixteen years and younger, announce that the first prize for girls is award to Miss Phyllis Ward 130 West Moira Street, the first prize for boys is awarded to Master Grant Bird 20 Church Street. Each winner of the first prize winners will receive a free ticket which will admit for admission to the Belle Theatre for five successive Saturdays.

The following entries are worthy of honorable mention, Madeline Bennett, Point Anne, Ontario, Charles Lloyd R.R. No. 7, Belleville; Anita Cavanaugh, 80 Campbellton Road; Fay Bryant, 203 Bridge Avenue, Jine Donnoly, 209 1-2 Front street, Rose Scott, 194 Church St., Margaret Rawson, 38 Station Street, Mary McCoy, Charles Street; Leonard Knott, 7 Bridge Street, Louis Layer 209 1-2 Front Street; Marjorie Hamilton, 37 Station Street; Lorne Cabourne, 10 Ridley Ave; Jean Perry, 37 Front Street south; Roma Wright, 161 Church street; Jack Ward, 20 Baldwin Street.

Each of the honorable mention entries will receive one guest ticket for admission to the Belle Theatre on Saturday afternoon, February 8th to see the big double show, Gladys Swarthout and John Boles in the first big outdoor musical romance, "Rose of the Rancho" and Wallace Ford and Phyllis Brooks in the gripping adventure story "Another Face". All winners listed may obtain their guest tickets at the Belle Theatre ticket office any afternoon or evening.

AT THE CAPITOL

"Man of Iron"

Another Two Star Feature Program Week-end Showing

"Man of Iron" the first National comedy drama in which Barton MacLane, the screen's Public Enemy No. 1 hero, is the stellar role, is scheduled as the feature attraction at the Capitol theatre today until Saturday.

The story by Dawn Powell on which the picture is based, is filled with dynamic thrills, hilarious comedy and a novel romance.

Barton MacLane plays the role of an unlicored and unlettered steel worker who rises to the top of his executive position. He gets into no end of hot water by mixing with men and women of culture and his fearless as a country club and in the home of his wealthy employer in a long succession of riotously funny adventures, particularly his insistence on examining bathing suits.

Going "high hat," he loses the confidence of his man and is on his way to ruin when he finally makes a comeback in a smashing and surprising climax to the picture.

Dorothy Peterson plays the part of MacLane's wife, a sensible woman who does her best to help hold her husband down to a common sense attitude toward their new position.

The feminine menace in the picture is Sally Eilers, a junior actress in vain to vamp the new boss. Her letter to Irene About his Irish John Eldredge is the boss' assistant and secret enemy.

"Under Your Spell Surrender"

Tamara, singing star of the Broadway stage hit "Roberta" who makes her movie debut in "Under Your Spell Surrender", the Universal release coming today to the Capitol theatre acts her songs. She would rather sing than eat. And she would rather act than sing. In fact she considers her singing a part of acting. Although the beautiful Russian has scored all her success on the musical stage she intends to do serious dramatic work. She has worked out an entire philosophy of acting for herself.

Tamara is glad to be in the movies because she thinks they are the best medium of acting. Of course the stage an actor or actress is fortunate to get his part has run a long time. But this repetition of the same part for months is a waste of time as far as acting is concerned. Versatility is concerned. In the movies so many new features in demand to begin work on another role, interpreting a different character in a different setting. Now the public can compare with the movies for the first time the work of the same people.

Her movie debut in "Sweet Surrender" which was filmed in Astoria, New York City, not Hollywood, Tamara has the chance to gain acting versatility. Here role calls for her to play really five different characters from a school teacher to a dancer. She sings one song in the production, "I'm Happy I Could Cry". She sings it according to her theory that song is a part of drama. She talks and acts her songs making the sound of the words secondary action. So you can she do this that on a recent trip to Cuba she learned and sang a Spanish song. Cubans began to talk to her in Spanish although she cannot understand a word of that language. The way she acted her song made them think she knew almost every word she sang.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating breakfast and pop said, Well, Pete do you realize the coffee is proberly wont hert me if I chew it right.

Now Willyum you've had 2 cups filled to their brimming utmost, and said, and pop said, Now I'll bet I lost some of the first cup given me, and I said, I was thinking of something sila while I drank the coffee.

Do you ever stop to think of caffeine? ma said, and pop said, Do you mean caffeine nuisance, the Russia?

Wasn't Caffeene the grate coffee poisoning and you know it, ma said, and I said, well perhaps it's all for the best, as a matter of fact the coffee is pritty punk and I guess it's time to throw it out of yesterday's dishwater.

Willyum Henry, do you realize that if I made the coffee this morning with my own hands and that I have the reputation of being the most infallible coffee maker of my family? ma said. A public epidemic is the least that should be forthcoming after such a statement, she said, and 'pop said, Yes gods I'll say so, especially as Aunt Sara said the coffee reminds me a little of yesterday's dishwater, in that it resembles it in every way. Aunt Sara's coffee nurred back to consciousness every morning, he said.

Now that's the straw that broke the last camels back, ma said, I'll not drink another cup of this coffee before my very eyes and you'll drink it to the last drop of acting, ma said, and pop said, Well if you insist I suppose I have no choice.

And he drank another cupfull and said, Delicious nectar, and left for his office looking like somebody that felt better instead of worse.

LASH OUT AT COMMUNISM

Vienna, Feb. 6 (AP)—Southeastern Europe's nations banded out simultaneously against Communism today with a series of raids, carried out amid warnings of a "new Armageddon."

Hungary, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Austria all swung into the movement within the last twenty-four hours. A month ago it aroused against an increase of Soviet Russian influence in the Balkan states.

DETECTIVE TELLS OF STATEMENTS OF O'DONNELL

Question of Burrs Raised By Officer, He Tells Court

Toronto, Feb. 6—Harry O'Donnell told police that he was in the Third Arms Hotel with a girl named Li Noddles, of Walpole Avenue, until 11.30 or 11.35 o'clock on the night they think Taylor was murdered, Detective-Sergeant James McBrath testified in Assize Court yesterday.

The information was included in a statement which O'Donnell had made at police headquarters as evidence yesterday by Mr. Justice Jeffrey.

Miss Noodles' name appears on the list of witnesses to be called by the Crown, and presumably will testify, Frank Regan said last night.

O'Donnell, according to the statement, had worked until one o'clock on the afternoon of Nov. 4, and then gone to his mother's house for lunch. He had stayed there until shortly after two, when he had visited the Riverdale Maternity Hospital on Victor Avenue, where his wife had just had a baby. Leaving the hospital around supper o'clock, he accused had sold police that he had then gone to a poultry store on Yonge Street and from there to Stan's Maguire, where he had remained until around seven in the early evening.

Meets Miss Noodles

From the theatre, according to the accused's statement, O'Donnell had gone back to the hospital to see his wife and remained there until 8.30. Then he had gone to a gas station on Woodcrest Road and Gerard Street where he had been employed. Leaving there around 10 o'clock, he had proceeded to the Third Arms Hotel, where he had met Miss Noodles, a girl whom he had known before.

Leaving the hotel around 11.30 or 11.35 p.m., O'Donnell's statement continued, he had walked to a restaurant for beer the gas station. From there he said, he had told police he walked straight to his home on Hollywood Crescent.

Detective McBrath told the court yesterday that he had asked the accused if he had left the apartment he was being made, if he could account for the burrs that were on his clothing. O'Donnell had said that he must have got them in the vacant lot in the rear, and, since that was the only place where he had been, he had taken the accused almost 15 minutes to walk from the lot to his home, the statement said, and he had arrived there around midnight.

Blue, Nimble Nose

O'Donnell had told police at headquarters, the detective continued, that he had not been feeling very well after he had arrived at his home, and he thought he must have been because of the beer that he had drunk that night at the hotel.

"I asked him if it was not because of the mud, the blood, the burns and the blue hairs on his clothes," McBrath said, "but he said that he did not think so."

The detective told the court that, at the time, he had asked the accused if he had been in the ravine that night, but O'Donnell had said that he had not. Asked to account for the mud on his clothes, O'Donnell had said he had not seen any mud on his clothes.

"Did he say time explain the presence of the blue hair on his clothes?" asked Crown Prosecutor J. C. McIlraer.

"No, He did not."

The foreman of the jury, just as Mr. Justice Jeffrey was about to adjourn court last night, asked that evidence be given regarding the finding of a street car transfer in O'Donnell's clothing.

Transfer Is Exhibited

A Carlton street car transfer, issued at 4.40 p.m. on November 4, had been found by police in the accused's overcoat pocket in the Hollywood Crescent apartment, witness testified. The transfer in question was then entered as an exhibit.

Detective-Sergeant McBrath, who has been on the witness stand for the past two days of the murder trial, again took the box yesterday as the afternoon session opened. The large cardboard box, containing the clothing which O'Donnell allegedly wore on the night of the murder was then opened and the contents placed near witness. The Crown prosecutor reached down and picked up a large, black valise from which he took a green and white pyjama coat that the detective had taken from O'Donnell's apartment.

"Why did you take that?" he asked.

"I went back to the apartment on November 14," McBrath replied, "to get some baby's clothing, and I took that at the time."

The detective explained that the baby's clothing had been wanted for comparison with the blue baby shirt that had been found on the accused's clothing.

Baby Clothes Tested

Mr. McIlraer then produced three more cardboard boxes from which he drew out a baby's blue bonnet and a pair of little blue mittens. Portions of these exhibits, he explained had been cut off for examination by experts.

The jury was next shown a baby's bonnet and a baby's blanket, while Detective McBrath stated that he had turned all of the clothing over to Dr. I. H. Erb.

The detective gave evidence regarding his examination of O'Donnell at police headquarters around 11 o'clock on the night of Nov. 5.

"I asked the accused to come into one of the investigating rooms," witness said, "and Crew I asked him if he had any objections to letting me see his body."

"There were no threats or inducements of any kind?" asked the Crown.

"None whatever," McBrath continued, "O'Donnell took off his clothing in front of myself and P. C. Thompson. The only marks I saw on his body were scratches on his right hand. They were between the second and third fingers in the hollow of the joints. The part of the hand behind the knuckles was swollen between the third and fourth fingers."

O'Donnell's hand had later been photographed, the witness testified, in identifying a picture held up by the Crown as correctly representing the accused's hand at that time.

He said the injury on his hand had been caused by the gasoline pump at the station where he was employed.

Photographs were produced by the Crown showing different sections of the vacant lot where, according to the accused's statement, he had gone after leaving the Ulster Arms Hotel on the night of the murder.

"Did you inspect the vacant lot for burrs?" Mr. Mollmer asked.

"Yes," witness replied. "I found a burr spot on the north east corner of the lot where sea grass was growing. There were a number of burr pods lying on the ground there. Beside the wall of the building on the west side of the lot there were three or four green stalks of burrs."

"Were there any dry burrs on that?"

"No. There were green burrs."

Regan Discusses Shoes

Mr. Regan then took up cross-examination and placed on the witness stand the shoes of the deceased the two pair of shoes worn by the accused girl and by the accused on the night of the crime.

Witness was asked to hand on O'Donnell's shoes was picked up when he went down in the ravine?" defence questioned.

"I did not suggest anything," the detective replied.

"Have you any explanation as to how you found so much mud on the shoes of the deceased?" Mr. Regan continued, "and so little on the shoes of the girls?"

"The lady's shoes were outside all the time in the rain," witness said.

A torn and blood-stained girdle, with which the murdered girl had been tied on the night of the tragedy, was then held up before the jury by the Crown prosecutor, defence counsel firmly between his hands. Mr. Regan then held it up before the witness.

Double Girdle Torn

"I suggest that it would take almost maniacal strength to tear this article from the top to bottom," defence counsel. "I suggest that even you cannot tear this."

Mr. Regan then suggested to the court that, from the way the girl's clothing had been situated when they had been found in the ravine, someone had carried them to the edge of the ravine and thrown them over.

"I did not come to that conclusion," McBrath stated.

"Then what did you conclude?" defence asked.

"I concluded that the girl had been attacked at the top of the ravine where a struggle had taken place," witness replied, "and her clothing had been torn off and fell where I saw it."

Defence counsel then held up the brassiere which the murdered girl had worn, and asked the witness to pay special attention to the fact that one of the shoulder straps was missing.

"It looks as if it had been torn off," he remarked. "It had," McBrath replied.

"Was the shoulder strap missing when you found the brassiere?" "I believe it was."

"And has it been found yet?" "Not to my knowledge."

"Did you find the transfer which the girl was alleged to have had when she got off the street car that night?" "No."

Crown Prosecutor McIlraer then asked the witness to give his explanation of the struggle which had occurred between the murdered girl and her assailant.

The struggle had started at the top of the ravine, the detective said he believed, because the girl's umbrella and purse had been found near there. Lower down the ravine, very of a shoe, the finding of the scratches on the victim's body and the position of her clothes had led him to believe, McBrath said, that the body had been dragged down the slope.

CANADA DEFEATS LATVIA IN OLYMPIC HOCKEY

CANADA'S HOCKEY TEAM WINS EASILY OVER LATVIA 11-0

Just a Workout Is Report Received From Olympic Front

FARQUHARSON STARS.

Ice in Fine Condition And Snow Ceased Falling

Garnisch - Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 7 — Canada's hockey team was scarcely more than a workout Canada's hockey team was scarcely more than a workout tonight as it overwhelmed Latvia, entered its second straight triumph in the fourth Olympic winter games by defeating Latvia 11-0.

The match was the first enroll on today's program and the storm that marred yesterday's opening ceremonies and competition still raged when the teams skated out for their practice session. However, shortly after the game started the snow ceased falling and the sun broke through the clouds.

Coach Albert Fudas changed his Canadian lineup considerably for the game but as in yesterday's 8-1 victory over Poland the Dominion puckmen outclassed their opponents from the first to finish. During most of the game the defencemen had no alibis to offer as they moved up and joined in the attack against the harrassed Latvian goalkeeper.

It did not matter which forward line Coach Fudas sent on for it was his lead for the overwhelmed Latvians and only once scrubbed a scoring drive of the lusting team's goalkeeper Sidney Farquharson. The following detailed figures even before the second period was finished.

Canada's Scoring

Hugh Farquharson and Ralph St. Germain, the Dominion's contribution to the Maple Leaf team, were the only scoring guns of the one sided contests. The former shooting four counters past the bewildered Latvian goalkeeper Kalnin and the latter others. St. Germain registered three times and made his first effort a counter while pair, Dave Neville, another Montreal Amateur Athletic Association boy, was also prominent. They two hooks and an assist while Jimmy Haggarty, formerly of Port Arthur but now playing with the Montreal pair had two tallies and got credit for a pair of assists.

The Canadians shot to the front after a few minutes of the initial frame when St. Germain scored on a pass from Haggarty. The Montreal combination then repeated the trick four minutes later on an identical play and with Haggarty again assisting the pass. From the opening face off in the second frame Farquharson scored his first goal on Neville's pass and this St. Germain followed in short order on a solo effort following an identical rush less than four minutes later.

Haggarty wound up the middle session by tallying by raging a pass from St. Germain. Right from the face off of the third frame Farquharson started the scoring. Latvia's fast-footed and dashed through to score by himself. Then with Latvia unable to ring up a brace of goals before giving the Canadians the opening Canada's ninth more Farquharson played the Good Samaritan on three straight shots before Haggarty got the got help from St. Germain in notching his first counter, Farquharson wound up the scoring fest with a clever solo effort.

Game Then Yesterday.

The Canadians showed to better advantage than in their opening game when they played out on Lake Rzynesee in a beam sea, which interfered the ice with several inches of snow. After the first period today the ice was better of more but not good condition.

Most of the spectators there which were not many as the game was the first event on today's program were convinced Canada has a straight hold on the Olympic till which she has at every Olympic games since became an official part of the winter game schedule.

Improved Play.

The Maple Leaf horsemen seemed to improve as the game progressed and the scoring the last period residents of this winter resort marvelled at the Canadians' performance. Five man shinnied to and on the Latvian defence continually and never was there such a happy group of Canadian legates of Latvia who stopped in well-aimed shots in the last period alone. The Canadian line up:

3 Years Term With 3 Lashes Given Gibson

After four hours of deliberation the jury returned at 8.20 p.m. with a verdict of guilty against Charles Gibson of Belleville on the charge of attempted rape.

Gibson was sentenced to serve three years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary with three lashes, one at the time of entry and two before being discharged. The verdict was returned on the first charge, that of attempting to commit rape against Frances Wagar, nurse.

A plea for leniency was asked by the jury after the verdict has been received. Gibson had been indicted on two counts, attempted rape and assault occasioning actual bodily harm.

Gibson received the sentence with the same equanimity displayed during the three days of his trial. The Honorable Mr. Justice McEvoy in replying to the plea for leniency requested by the jury, declared he could not find any grounds and that leniency should be shown.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Montreal, Feb. 7 (CP)— If there is honor among thieves there are also good points of evil doers and humility.

Henri Tremblay appeared before Chief Judge Gustave Fortunat charged with a theft charge. "Any record?" the court enquired.

"Only a few convictions" Court clerk Jolicoeur replied. Tremblay's record covered seven years, all for theft, and he was sent away for a term of two years, making seven years in penitentiary.

Montreal, Feb. 7 (CP)—William Peterson was sorry he forgot to tell Police Chief Wilfrid Gosselin about a big fish story when he was taken to Winnipeg today. Hailed before the chief on a charge that Peterson told the judge he had "forgotten" to tell him.

"Oh," said the court, thunderously, "you're the man who was here two years in Winnipeg for theft."

"Gosh, that's right," Peterson cried. "I got fourteen months and five days in jail there."

Peterson drew sentence of one month.

Spartanburg, S.C., Feb. 7 (CP) —Circuit Judge J. Henry Johnson of Abbeville, fathered for three years a bill which would make it a felony to kill a dog, today ordered the owner of two dogs destroyed because they had killed a sheep.

Johnson ordered the dogs killed after he had heard testimony in the case of Mrs. Ida Bell Wallace, who sued for $50 damages after her sheep were killed by dogs owned by Mrs. Lula Mae Cann.

"If you pay the price of the hand to kill a dog I will call it a felony," the judge said. "Both dogs are a menace to society and the sooner they are killed the better off we will be."

Mrs. Wallace testified that she had lost 15 sheep in the last two years.

TWO INJURED IN FIRE

Detroit, Feb. 7 (AP)—A fire and explosion caused damage to a factory-products storage building at the corner of Dubois and Monroe and today injured at least two persons, one of them a fireman. The building, owned by Peter Nanna and Joe Kewley was unable to catch up with the speeding vehicle, but was able to get the number of the car.

The last bank robbery in this city was one year ago when the Royal Bank at Cape Avenue and Main Street was held up and $33 in cash taken.

F. P. Gilmore, teller, and J. Caiar, ledger-keeper, were the other employees of the bank present, who were in the bank.

Provincial Police Cellar

Police said that there had been nothing new in the way of developments beyond the fact that the license number handed them and reported to be that of a Ford sedan car had proved to be one for an Oldsmobile. They stated that had not been out of that district all day. Police added that the bandits, in addition to having made the bank staff and citizens lie on the floor, had also taken into the cellar prior to their departure.

Count of Covadonga

Is Critically Ill

Havana, Feb. 7. — (AP)—The Count of Covadonga, 32-year-old former heir to the Spanish throne who renounced his royal rights to marry a Cuban commoner, was critically ill today, a sufferer from the pneumonia complication to male members of his family.

The Count was reported near death last night. The Princess Jorge Caruano, administered extreme unction by Cardinal Manuel Arteaga, announced today a blood transfusion was proceeding successfully.

AMENDMENT TO GAS TAX MOOTED BY DEPARTMENT

All Distillates of Gasoline And By-products to be Taxed

INCREASE REVENUE

Provision For Rebate Made When Used For Commercial Purposes

Toronto, Feb. 7 (CP)—Highways Minister Thomas McQuesten today said he would present to the legislature an amendment to the present tax act which will provide for taxation on all distillers of gasoline and gasoline products. According to the minister, the Ontario treasury has been deprived of thousands of dollars of revenue by the action of gas bootleggers in taking more or less gasoline from the tax free tank and mixing them with gas on which the tax has been paid. Also in large volume of low grade gas was placed on sale with the six cent tax partly paid or not paid at all, and relatively small content of high grade gas.

The minister said the amendment to the act will be made to include all types of spirits such as coal oil, benzine and other by-products filtered from petroleum products. Provision for rebate will be made where the fuel is used for commercial purpose.

$1,200 LOOT IN HAMILTON HOLDUP

Number of Car Obtained but Apparently Not Right One

Hamilton, Feb. 7.—Using identical tactics employed in the holdup when the same branch was held up, the bandit who robbed the Royal Bank of Commerce, Locke and Herkimer Streets, Thursday afternoon of $1,200 in cash, escaped in a waiting car.

The license number, DP-548, is said to be a Kitchener issue. There were eight men in the car but while the pair were at work were observed behind the counter and made its way to the getaway

TWO GAMES IN SERIES PLAYED

Two games of hockey were played in the Intermediate League in the Belleville Arena last evening, both of which were won by visiting teams. Also head the O.H.D. subjects 4 to 3, while the St. Michael's mid-Intermediates defeated Picton by the score of 5 to 2. Bantam games scheduled to have been played on the Yacht Club's harbour rink were postponed owing to the low surface not having been available.

RESIDENTS GOUND TO KEEP WALKS CLEAR

City Hall officials are determined that sidewalks will be cleared for the use of pedestrians as quickly as circumstances permit today by Charles A. Mott, City Engineer, and Mayor Harry Hill. "Ratepayers have to pay for the walks so free for the asking" declared the Mayor, "and the money is used and the walks kept clear of snow. They are the property owners' money, and also the employees of the city clear the walks and the same will be charged up against the property owner". The City Engineer pointed out that by the by-law of 1920, that covers the responsibility of ratepayers to keep the walks in front of their walks and keep them clear of snow and ice. It is unnecessary to state that the by-law has been purchased, which will be sure to be with need and this will help cut the heavy ice off the walks.

SERIES ARRANGED IN "B" CLASS PLAYDOWNS

Working upon instructions from W. A. Merritt, secretary of the O. H. A., Mickie Thomas, of the Belleville Recreational Department, and Walter Gerow, manager of the Tecumseh Oilbirds, convened this morning and agreed upon the dates for the first round of the Intermediate O.H.A. play-downs in the "B" series. The first game will be played at Napanee on Feb. 14th, while the return game is slated for the following night at Belleville. The third game will be played at Napanee on the round.

"Oddities" Draws Large Audience

A large audience enjoyed the second evening of "Oddities of 1936" presented last night in the College-ville Auditorium by the Young Ladies of the Kinsmen Club. The songs, dancing, comedy numbers and the plot itself provided an excellent evening's entertainment.

CHILDREN BITTEN BY THE SAME DOG

Two brothers, the aged 19 and Monk Royal, aged eight, and Norman Royal, aged 3 Meyers street, were bitten by the same dog within a half hour today afternoon near their own home. Fortunately, however, no serious wounds were received, although medical attention was deemed necessary. Shortly before 4.30 p.m. Plainclothes Officer Fred heard a call in the Royal home, where they two children were crying in the throes of terror. A large black dog, they said, Stanley was bitten on the left leg, while Monk's left cheek displayed scratch-es, where he claimed the dog had clawed at him, while in the home the officer warned the owner of the dog to either dispose of the canine or keep it confined on their premises. Previous complaints against the same dog had been received by police, that department announced today.

Obituary

LATE MRS. LAURA BATEMAN

The funeral of Mrs. Laura Bateman, widow of James Bateman, took place Thursday afternoon from her late residence at the corner of Bridge and North Front Streets. The service in the home was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Semple, pastor of Bridge Street United Church, assisted by the Rev. Dr. F. N. Baker. Many friends were present at the service and there were many floral tributes.

OATH IS TAKEN OF ALLEGIANCE

The annual meeting of the Argyll Chapter, Imperial Order Daughters of the Empire was held in the Officers' Mess on the Armouries Wednesday, February 5th, 1936 with the Regent, Mrs. A. C. Geen, in the chair. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. Reports showed a very successful year, donations having been made to the Cancer Fund, Grenville Middle, the Scholarship perpetuated by the Belleville Collegiate Institute. Sewing was done throughout the year for the Red Cross society and the Victorian Order of Nurses. The families were provided with Christmas and Easter donations of food, clothing and fuel. Officers for the ensuing year were appointed as follows:

Regent—Mrs. A. C. Geen.
Vice-Regent—Mrs. J. B. Cribble.
Secretary—Mrs. H. F. Allord.
Treasurer—Mrs. D. Miller.
Standard Bearer—Mrs. J. Sword.

At the close of the meeting Col. W. N. Ponton, V.D., the Honorary Colonel of the Argyll Light Infantry, administered to the members the Oath of Allegiance to the new Sovereign, King Edward VIII. It was made a very pleasant function by historical and personal reminiscences appropriate to the occasion and the oath was administered in French of the unique status of Queen Victoria, presented to the Officers' Mess of the Regiment of Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, her own handiwork in bronze after the statue in Kensington Gardens.

A most interesting and inspiring address by Col. Ponton followed in which he spoke very feelingly of the late beloved Sovereign, King George V, as a man of outstanding ability and accomplishment. Reference was made to King Edward VIII in a very loyal and sympathetic way. The address was interspersed with quotations from the works of Rudyard Kipling and many other authors of note. During the course of the Colonel's remarks, many interesting subjects were touched upon, one of which concerned the bronze statue of Queen Victoria, now in the mear of the Parliament Buildings in the City. The original was modelled in Kensington Palace Gardens and in possession of the Argyll and Southerland Regiment in Scotland. In closing the interesting address of the members, the Regent expressed thanks and appreciation to Col. Ponton for his instructive talk.

Report of Grand Jury

To the Honourable Mr. Justice McEvoy,

Your Lordship: We, the Grand Jury for the County of Oxer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery of the County of Hastings, beg leave to report as follows:

We do hereby express our sincere sympathy to His Majesty King George V, believed all classes and creeds, and pledge our loyalty to his son and heir, King Edward VIII and pray for his success in discharge of his duties as Sovereign of the great British Empire that has been.

We desire to thank Chief Justice McEvoy, for the able and concise manner in which he placed the counts of duties before us as Grand Jurors. We also wish to thank also D. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown Attorney, Deputy Clerk of the Crown and his assistants for their attention in the discharge of our duties.

Upon visiting the County Gaol and a thorough inspection thereof, we beg to report finding same in a very creditable condition in any manner or measure, numbering 38 inmates, 36 males, no females, who all seemed healthy and comfortable under conditions existing. Also the institution surrounding in a very clean and orderly shape and with the exception of some minor French on management of this department of the county institution.

Ventilation of Court Chambers.

We recommend that a more efficient system of ventilation be provided in the Court Chambers.

We next visited the Children's Shelter and find that the number of inmates in this institution has been gradually reduced till there are at present seven children, all of which are male. We find the conditions here all that could be desired as regards cleanliness and efficiency of staff, maintaining the traditions of our County Institutions. We believe this work deserves the whole hearted support of the public financially and otherwise. We congratulate Miss Harris upon the management of the same.

Upon our visit to the County Home for the Aged, we were met by Mr. and Mrs. Sandercock, who with painstaking care conducted us throughout. We must say that this institution is a credit to the County, being in a very high state of comfort and cleanliness throughout. One thing we would recommend is a new method of electric refrigeration in place of the old system, which is badly in need of repair. We find the fire alarm system installed a short time ago measuring up to requirements of such institution.

Belle Far Refuge Favored.

We further recommend a solitude cells with a view to providing these aged people with adequate entertainment as well as religious services. There are at present fifty-eight male and thirty-seven female inmates.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

—Charles I. Wallers, Foreman.

D.D.G.M. VISITS MASONIC LODGE

Dr. E. A. Carleton, Stirling, Speaks on Application of Masonry

Entertaining many Masonic notables from Eastern Ontario, The Belleville Lodge No. 128, A. F. and A.M., G.R.C., welcomed to the Belleville Masonic Temple, Dr. E. A. Carleton, Stirling, D.D.G.M. of the Prince Edward district, during his official visit to the local lodge last night. Over 100 Masons were present to welcome both Dr. Carleton, the District Deputy and also V. Wor. Bro. Thos. Solmes, the District Secretary.

The official visitor, Dr. Carleton, was introduced by Bro. W. Bro. H. J. Clark, who referred to the District Deputy, first as one of his students, later as a teacher and more recently as a physician in the village of Stirling. The first degree was exemplified and the degree team complimented upon its visiting official. At the opening of the banquet in the auditorium a few minute silence was observed in respect to His Late Majesty, King George the Fifth, at the request of Wor. Bro. W. W. Embury, Master of the Belleville Lodge.

The toast to the Grand Lodge and the Grand Lodge officers was proposed by W. Bro. J. Noakes and responded to by Dr. Carleton, the District Deputy. In his address he remarks the D.D.G.M. intimated he would endeavour to have students here and developed his theme along some aspects of the initial degree in the order. Dr. Carleton in his address brought to the brethren a close personal application of the primary principles of Free Masonry and his address was greatly appreciated by those present.

During the banquet hour a musical program was provided consisting a trombone solo by Reg. Wardle and a fife solo by Harry Greenleaf, both being accompanied by Miss Hope Ivey, at the piano. The toast to the visitors was proposed by W. Bro. H. J. Clark and responded to by Very Worshipful Masters of lodges throughout Eastern Ontario and the city. Cornwall, Madoc, Stirling, Trenton and Brighton were the lodges represented. Before closing the District Deputy himself proposed a toast to The Belleville Lodge No. 128. He was roundly received. Wor. Bro. W. Embury occupied the chairman's seat in his usual and capable manner.

POLICE COURT

Cases of a minor nature only were heard in today's police court held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., all major cases being left over for Crown Attorney D. C. Donnan.

A local youth pleaded guilty, when charged with intoxication. "Can you pay the fine today?" asked His Worship. "Give me a couple of weeks and I will," replied the youth.

"Again you can have until Feb. 21st. Next case?" added the Magistrate.

A number of Highway Traffic cases were speedily disposed of, all being infractions of section 4 of the act that pertains to the displaying of lights after sundown. The majority of the cases found a plea of guilty being entered through either Patrolman Ernie De Dario or by themselves, both of whom laid the charges. The conventional one dollar fine was assessed in each case.

Frank Duby, 41 of this city, pleaded guilty to the theft of a lady's dress, a man's suit of clothes and a pair of boots, the property of Roger Thompson, the property of according to the evidence submitted by Chief Kidd. Duby had been hired to paint a house at 304 Catherine St., recently vacated by Mr. Thompson. In the house he found the released today, however.

wearing apparel which Mr. Thompson had left behind after recently moving, but for the purpose of having them cleaned. The accused stated he understood the occupants of the house had moved out and naturally drew the conclusion they no longer wanted the clothes left behind. His Worship accepted the accused man's plea of guilty and imposed a year's suspended sentence, providing restitution was made and also that the articles be returned. Costs, some $18.00, be paid within ten days.

Only four transients appeared at the police station in search of warm sleeping quarters last night, all were

TELLS OF NATIVES AND CUSTOMS IN LIBERIA, W. AFRICA
Mr. Hancox, Returned Missionary Gives an Interesting Description of Basse Tribe
At the missionary night service at the Regular Baptist Church on Thursday evening, Rev. E. Hancox, Mrs. H. Hancox and Miss Florence Stacey who have returned from Liberia, West Africa, took part and gave interesting accounts of the Foreign Mission service from which they have recently returned.
The following article prepared by Rev. Mr. Hancox tells of the work of the Canadian Regular Baptist Mission in Liberia:
There are many tribes of people occupying the territory known as Liberia. The largest of these is the Basse tribe. There has never been a census taken of the people. They are paid on the huts and these huts are counted, allowing for four and five to each hut the population may be safely be in the neighbourhood of 150,000.
They are a pure negroid race, developing physically, mentally and intensely distinct from neighbouring tribes. Their customs and tribal practices they are distinct from other tribes. The outstanding feature of their native life may be said to be with which doctor and the devil priest. The latter society is composed of males only, every male being a member of same. The women have a society that closely approximates the devil society. In the latter society the women are appointed to be the mouth piece for the devil. His word is their word and is so accepted by all the people. The devil priest has to make and decisions which he may give, are accepted as having supreme authority, even to the death of an individual against whom he may pass sentence. The latter takes place when an individual has broken society laws or transgressed native custom.
Towns among the Basse people vary greatly in size. Two houses constitutes a village in some instances while towns of from 100 to 200 houses may be clustered together. Around the city wall would be the average.
Roads through the country apart from the main road, to the coast, are mere winding trails, considering the scattered village, and the heavy rainfall, about 175 inches per year, and the humid heat, the vegetation grows rapidly. Paths little used are soon obliterated by the bush. Travelling is difficult frequently are kept clear by cutting the grass with the cutlass. Each village is responsible for keeping the paths clear all the way to their neighbouring towns.
Streams are numerous, but seldom are they bridged. And even when bridges have been built—of stick and poles—they are often observed to carry them away in the swollen floods.
Practically all travelling over these paths is done on foot. On reaching an unbridged stream, the while traveller is usually lifted over their back by a native of the tribe. If the depth of water necessitates it, they are carried on the broad shoulders of the native and transported to the other bank.
The mission work conducted by the Canadian Baptist Churches is carried on from centres, which are so about thirty miles apart, and includes about thirty villages. Each week, village work and a leper colony.
The school work is carried on along the boarding school plan, there being about 200 boys and girls scholars in each school. At New Yorkville and Camden there are boys and girls, while at Gesh Bar Zondo station, the children are housed in the home of the pupils are now in the fifth and sixth grades. They are eager and quick to learn and possess retentive memories, which assists them in their school work.
The children meet for morning and evening prayers, in addition before attending to the various duties of the day. Tuesday afternoon school period the first and foremost subject upon the learning to read receives a copy of the New Testament, which is in almost every case, their first privately owned book. It is a source to them of much satisfaction possession, and is a mark that "they have learned book." In the evening the children again meet for prayer and Bible teaching.
Village work is carried on in the dry season, varying from villages near at hand to those a day's distance. The dry season is the hottest season of the year, but the best period for visiting about from town to town, any appeals have been received from chiefs and townmasters for teachers and missionaries to settle in their districts. During the wet season the people plant their rice farms, and spend the entire day out in their farms, rather than in the town. Hence visits are made to them amidst their planting and reaping of the grain and all the activities connected with their farms. A welcome is afforded the missionary at all times whether to the farm or the town.
A Bible School course, designed to prepare native Christians for evangelistic work, has been in operation for two years, ten students being enrolled in this class. Each of these students spent the week out in active Christian service, either on the station, or in the villages, preaching the Gospel.

Frankford and District

Frankford—The annual Vestry meeting of Frankford Trinity Church was held in the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening, January 29th. Reports of the encouraging year from all the different branches of the church were given. A most creditable report was given by Mr. M. Sadler, the acting People's Warden and Treasurer.

The Rector, Rev. A. S. McConnell in his address expressed himself well pleased with the year's progress. He paid tribute to the Christian qualities of the late Rev. B. F. Byers and also the late Mr. E. J. Eastman who both have passed away during the past year.

The A.Y.P.A. Sunday School officers, organist, choir and the Ladies' Guild were complimented and thanked for their untiring and faithful services during the year. Mr. Albert Cosbey, Rector's Warden, also spoke of the splendid work done by all the organizations not forgetting the Sexton, Mr. Taylor.

Following is the result of the election of officers.

Rector's Warden—Albert Cosbey. People's Warden—Michael Sarlo.

Vestry Clerk—W. N. Simmons.

Sexton—Percy Taylor.

The meeting closed with prayer by the Rector after which refreshments were served by the ladies.

On Sunday evening, January 26, a memorial service for the late King George V was held in Trinity Church and the altar was draped in purple and the Union Jack. The Rector, A. S. McConnell presided and inspiring sermons touching on the life and characteristics of His late Majesty George V were made and given by the choir.

Holy Communion was celebrated in Trinity Church on Tuesday morning, January 28.

On Wednesday evening, January 29th the First Company of Girl Guides held a memorial service for His late Majesty King George V.

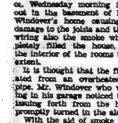
Mr. H. T. Miller is spending a few days in Hamilton.

Mr. Jas. A. Sickels attended the Kendall Insurance Company's convention held in Oshawa on Monday.

The January meeting of the Frankford United Church Women's Missionary Society was held at the home of Mrs. Walter Morrow. A large number of members and visitors were present. The opening exercises were presided over by the President Mrs. C. O. Bonisteel which were followed by the business session. The meeting was closed with the singing of "We have heard the joyful sound" followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. The Secretary Mrs. Bert Bush read the minutes of the December meeting. These were received and adopted. The treasurer's report was read. The amount was $194.38 to the Educational Treasurer during the year also a box of clothing value $27.15 was sent out vest for distribution.

Mrs. Walter Morrow took charge of the devotional exercises, opening by singing a hymn, followed by prayer by Mrs. Williamson. Mrs. Bert Bush read the Scripture Lesson, Acts, 2nd Chapter, 1st to 13th. The devotional leaflet "The Spirit of Racial Brotherhood" was taken by Mrs. Edmund Rose. Mrs. Bert Bush gave a reading. This was followed by singing a hymn. Mrs. Rose gave a talk on "The life of David Livingstone, Mrs. Gerald Johnson contributed a reading entitled "Africa" by Mrs. P. R. Rowland followed by a piano duet by Mrs. Johnson and Mrs. Morrow. A reading by Mrs. J. A. Parks, a Temperance reading by Mrs. Ross Richardson and prayer by Mrs. Geo. Sine were included on the program. A roll was called and collection taken. After singing a hymn the meeting closed with the Mizpah Benediction.

Cream was sung and the hostess and her assistants served a social lunch.



Curling in the high winds which swept over this section on Tuesday and Wednesday, numerous chimney fires were reported. At the Bush residence, Wednesday morning fire broke out in the basement of Mr. F. A. Windover's home causing much damage to the joists and the electric wiring also did smoke damage to completely filled the house, damaged the interior of the home to a great extent.

It is thought that the fire originated from an overheated furnace pipe. Mr. Windover who was working in his garage noticed the smoke issuing forth from the house and promptly turned in the alarm.

With the aid of smoke masks the firemen entered the house and soon extinguished the blaze with the aid of the chemical engine.

THOMASBURG

Thomasburg — Chatterls seems to be the order of Mr. Gay in this little community of late. On Friday night several young men gathered with a great variety of musical and noise making instruments and wended their way southward to the home of Mr. Lorne Carleton where they called the newlyweds Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carleton (nee Miss Evelyn Reid), after making a considerable amount of noise Harry presented the noisy party with a sum of money and they departed in quietness.

From their return to the village the serenaders went to the north end of Front Street and performed a serenade in front of one of the homes there, but just what this was in honor of is rather difficult to say. It may have been for the bride and groom to be or the bride and groom of fifty some odd years, or there is a possibility it was for the newlyweds of last October as they were also in this home on that particular evening. However the older group made themselves scarce and the perpetrators "got off out of that." The youths were soon out of sight.

On Saturday evening, February 1, friends and neighbors of this community gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carleton (nee Miss Evelyn Reid), to offer congratulations and present the newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Carleton (nee Miss Evelyn Reid), with a miscellaneous shower.

Rev. F. C. Beaver, rector of Rosin Anglican parish, called the gathering to order and asked the bride and groom to take chairs under the arch which had been tastefully arranged, and after congratulations and a short address by Rev. Mr. Beaver, he asked Mr. Russell Hospital, were Monday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Sherry spent Wednesday evening with Mr. and Mrs. John Geen at Fuller.

The regular monthly meeting of the Sunbeam Mission Band was held on Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Marshall of Halleway were Saturday evening guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Melburne Adams.

On Wednesday evening the I.O.O.F. Hall was the scene of a very enjoyable party under the auspices of the Stirling I.O.O.F. Lodge. Stirling orchestra furnished the dance music.

Stirling—The regular weekly meeting of St. Paul's Young People's Union was held in the church parlors on Monday evening with Rev. E. W. Rowland in charge of the opening exercises and devotional period. The meeting was opened with the Lord's Prayer service followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The Scripture lesson for the evening, which was taken from the 27th chapter of Proverbs verse 1 to 11, was read by Miss Pauline Jackman. During the business portion of the meeting. The attendance recording system, revealed about fifty members present.

Mr. Reg. Matheson, 1st vice-president was in charge of the remaining portion of the program, which was opened with a selection by the Young People's Orchestra under the leadership of Mr. Maurice Bell, those taking part were—Bill Vandervoort, Lloyd Rowland, Clarence West, Harold West, and Maurice Bell with Mr. G. L. Clute at the piano. Their first offering was a march "Aurora Parade" and later in the evening they gave another selection entitled "Evening Thoughts". The guest speaker for the evening was Rev. H. T. Hancock of Bayside United Church who delivered a fine address on "Africa". This was a very interesting address and the organization were grateful to Mr. Foley for the manner in which he dealt with the question. Mr. Foley is also well known as an author and is the son of Dr. Drummond and later in the program delighted the gathering as he offered several numbers including "Down Among Tempus' De Nice Leetle Canadiane" and "The Bell of Saint Michael". Rev. E. W. Rowland rose at the conclusion of the program to express the thanks to the speaker for the evening as Belleville's Medical Officer of Health. A hearty vote seconded motion and the audience signified their appreciation with long and hearty clapping. The final number on the program was a series of interesting games which were heartily entered into by all present. The meeting was brought to a close with the repeating of the Mizpah Benediction.

Mrs. J. R. Mills and Miss Marjorie Mills of Campbellford, were week-end guests at the home of Mrs. Nora Wescott and Mrs. Nina Morton.

Baker (salary) $100.00; H. C. Martin (insurance) $42.00; H. C. Martin, insurance agent.

On a motion by Thos. Cranston and D. Burkitt the auditors were instructed to have Mr. Leary's back six years in the municipal books and to have it ready by as possible by the Clerk, Treasurer and Collector. A committee of the following members were appointed to survey of the possibility of a poultry market to be held in Stirling sometime in the near future. W. C. West, W. J. Burkitt, Thos. Winslow, Thos. Cranston and Wm. Patterson.

A motion by Thos. Cranston and C. B. Rollins that the insurance on the theatre, the collectors bond and the public liability continue in the hands of H. C. Martin with the that the premiums be paid.—(Carried.)

A bylaw was passed authorizing the borrowing or sufficient funds to meet current expenses. Other business of lesser important business were discussed and the meeting adjourned.

Marmora.—Despite adverse weather conditions, a very successful social evening was held by the A.Y.P.A. in Deloro Town Hall on Tuesday evening. About fifty young people were present to enjoy the evening, for which music was supplied by Miss Kay Doyle. During the course of the evening a presentation was made to the newly married couple, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Baker, by Mrs. Fairley, president of the Marmora branch of the A.Y.P.A. Rural Dean A. B. Cantwell assisted at the young couple to the platform and William Bonter read an address which contained a Recipe for Cooking a Husband. He then presented them with an omelette. Mr. Mumby replied in appropriate terms and invited all present to drop in at their home. Dancing continued and delicious refreshments were served by the ladies of the A.Y.P.A.

The annual inaugural meeting of Marmora High School Board was held in the library Wednesday evening. R. A. Elliott was elected chairman for the coming year and T. E. Laycock was re-appointed secretary. Leonard was re-appointed secretary-treasurer. Two committees also were appointed.

Finance Committee—H. S. Haacke, chairman; H. W. Sabine and T. E. Laycock.

Property Committee — Vincent Chalmers, chairman; Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell, A. Burridge and Jos. Gowsell.

The seventh game of the eight in the Big 8 euchre tournament was held in the White Hall, Tuesday evening. Thirteen tables were played and the prizes were won by Mrs. Geo. Kerr and Thos. Neal Jr. Refreshments were served by the Ladies' Guild. The final contest which will be held next Tuesday will likely draw a large crowd as there is keen competition between the players for the highest score.

Mr. J. A. Meraw of Sovereign, Sask., visited friends in the village. Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Potts attended the funeral of the former's brother-in-law the late Mr. and Mrs. Elizabeth Wellman at Trenton on Monday.

Mrs. F. Gordon entertained a number of friends at her home on Stirling, Wednesday evening on the occasion of her birthday.

Messrs. D. Robertson, P. Seymour and L. Williams attended the County Orange Lodge meeting in Madoc on Tuesday.

BONARLAW

Bonarlaw—The January meeting of the Springbrook Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. Isaac McIlmoy, Bonarlaw on Wednesday afternoon of last week. The meeting was opened by the Vice-President with ten National Anthem and one minute's silence was observed for the late departed Sovereign, King George V.

The roll call "ways of using leftovers", was fairly well responded to by the members. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary, Mrs. W. J. Bailey. Miss Nellie Webb, convener of this meeting, then took charge of the program. After some community singing Mrs. J. P. Baker gave a paper on the motto, "In your best at all times and in all things". Mrs. W. J. Barlow gave a splendid paper on "How to make the best of what we've."

An apron parade was then put on. A number of ladies brought aprons and several exchanged patterns.

Mrs. (Rev.) Pixley gave an interesting talk on "Training future housekeepers" which was followed by a short discussion.

Mrs. Fred McKeown gave a reading and Miss Nellie Webb put on a pantry contest which proved to be very amusing.

The meeting closed with the Lord's Prayer after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess and a social half hour spent.

Despite the inclement weather a large number attended the social evening held in the club rooms of St. Paul's church on Tuesday evening of this week under the auspices of the Men's Club. Games were played, after which a splendid lunch was served. The President, Mr. M. Booker stood up in the pleasing assembly and seeing so many among under such unfavorable conditions was elected the meeting by asking all to join in The National Anthem.

MOIRA

MOIRA—Mr. Wm. Scott has been confined to his home for several weeks. At present his condition does not show much improvement.

Mr. and Mrs. K. Hall and Mrs. A. Hall spent Sunday afternoon at the home of Mr. Anthony Hardy, Mrs. Bailey is remaining for a few days.

REPORTING ANIMAL ACCIDENTS

Evidently in every country there is the hit-dog-and-run driver who fortunately is one of only a very small class.

It is interesting to the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in New York State that it is backing a bill to require every motorist who runs down a dog to report the accident to the owner or the police. New York Times states that motorists seem more considerate of dogs than there used to be, probably because so many of them own dogs.

If that is the reason for fewer casualties to animals then may whatever powers there be hasten the day when every person has a dog or other pet.

One newspaperman writing on this subject says that the sound of brakes on country roads in the effort to prevent accident to some animal which is not wise enough to keep out of danger of traffic accident, is not rare though these sounds and efforts to prevent injury are often accompanied by profanity. The Times says "The chances are perhaps even, in rural communities at any rate, that if a man runs over your dog, he will have the common decency to stop and tell you about it. Of course it may be the dog's fault, not his. Or it may technically at least be the owner's fault, in Connecticut if a dog is on his master's property, he is presumed to be going about his own proper business, but if he trespasses on some one else's property, or explores the highways or byways beyond his master's landmarks, he does so at his own risk."

But most persons would feel that even such a law should not provide a man with a reference for running down a dog or a harmless animal which gets in the way of a car. For after all it is a case of the dumb animal which deserves the protection. The A.S.P.C.A. believes that the Devany Bill before State Legislature at Albany will not impose any hardship on motorists, but will check the slaughter and careless driver responsible for the unreasonably large number of animals killed or maimed yearly on the highways of the state.

Accidental striking of dogs is bad enough but this may be excused if the driver is using ordinary caution but there are crimes against dumb life. Such are exemplified in the acts of the man who will deliberately swerve his car from its course to strike a harmless dog, which wanders on the roadway or hesitates to cross after it has once started. An occasional case of this kind has been heard of not far from here, and it is particularly such cases as should be reached.

The driver who would deliberately go out of his way to crush out of a poor animal, even if it be a waif dog or cat, the life, which is the only thing it possesses, cannot be a humane character. There is something wrong with the moral and mental make-up when he can joy in making animals to suffer. There is here as elsewhere the just careless type, who might be hampered were there such a law in Ontario.

Of course the driver who is not at fault does not or at least should not hesitate to explain the accident to the owner if he can find him or to the police if an animal is run down.

What to be said of the man or youth who runs down an animal and leaves it to drag out a few last moments in terrible agony and quivering of a crushed body would test the power of language appropriately to declare.

Much is said for the dog and he deserves every good thing that is said of him and very little of which is said against him. But the poor cat does not fare so well. One large crime against the animal kingdom is that of cruelty to cats. How many waif and wandering cats there are, how owners try to dismiss their responsibility by kicking the animals out on the streets to face winter or to hunt for a new home. One who has harbored a cat ought to be made responsible to see that it is cared for or at least taken care of in a way which will not permit it to suffer. Because cats eat many birds is of course no excuse for wanton cruelty shown to felines.

Some advice to children not to be cruel to cats is really necessary.

PASSENGER PIGEONS

Here was a symphony of wings,
An aerial river of birds across the sky in thunderous floods
Of slate-blue feathers, a host of violet throats
Splitting the sky with one unerring thrust.

Here were red-feet of pigeons spilling
Like blood through the trees, breaking the forest down
In their decisive roosting wild with guttural cooing.
Here in this weight of wings were folded death and dust.

HITCH YOUR WAGON TO A STAR, keep your chin up, aim high—you may not achieve your full objective but you will have made substantial progress. To stand still is to slide backward—hence progressive and thinking citizens of Belleville are taking the long view of a more beautiful Belleville at the end of the next twenty-five years, more or less. They propose that it may be made so by the use especially the water fronts, to ascertain just what can be done toward beautifying the city, and having a comprehensive plan for progressive improvement in the future, originating in the Chamber of Commerce, keeps pace with the progressive spirit of the 1936 City Council which can be depended upon to co-operate in every possible way with progressive movements, consistent of course with financial ability.

HUEY'S WIFE WILL CARRY ON

HUEY LONG IS DEAD BUT HIS SOUL GOES MARCHING ON. Even death can not extinguish such an everlasting flame as his, such exuberance, optimism and ruthless determination is. The one of the brightest stars in the limelight of public life. A bullet stopped Huey P. Long, one-time governor of Louisiana, United States Senator, with designs on the presidency, and a platform paved with promissory dollars for every voter—minimum $5,000, and no one permitted to amass and retain a fortune of over five million dollars (just about the size of Huey's own fortune acquired mostly, through politics). Huey died but his wife keeps marching on, having accepted nomination as candidate to fill the expired senatorial term of her husband at Washington.

A great monument will be erected to the memory of Governor and Senator Long on the grounds of the State Capitol at Baton Rouge where Huey lies buried. The monument will partake of the nature of a broken column, large and imposing, and within it will burn an eternal flame, arranged with natural gas to shine forever—or until the memory of Huey Long has become only a faint recollection of something which flashed across the path of the sun for a brief moment then disappeared in the darkness reserved for latter day pro bets who promise much but perform little.

Heroic size statues of a farmer, a workman, a nurse, and a mother leading her child to school are to guard the two entrances to the heart of the broken cylinder.

On one-half of the cylinder will be engraved a list of Senator Long's achievements, on the other half his plans and dreams cut short by death.

The first election since the death of Senator Long resulted in a decisive victory for candidates of the Long organization—so the Long tradition will continue a little longer, at least.

From this distance it looks as if Louisiana were a cock-pit where the various political machines do vicious battle. Huey Long happened to be the best organizer and most magnetic leader and he won the leadership, and what a leader—the sky was the limit for him in promising his supporters rich reward in the here but not the hereafter. Huey, in person, has gone ahead into the hereafter to see just what it may contain for Huey— where the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.

Royal Welch Fusiliers

To the Editor of The Ontario Intelligencer:
Dear Sir,

A couple of weeks ago an item appeared in Scott's Scrapbook about the Royal Welch Fusiliers wearing black tabs on the backs of the collars of their tunics. This might further interest some readers to know the reason for this and I might begin by stating that in the first place this regiment has official authority to wear the tabs with a G not an s.

A century and more ago when it was the custom for British soldiers to wear pigtails a battalion of the Royal Welch was stationed in the Far East. An army order declared the wearing of queues but for some reason the Royal Welch did not receive the order and retained the pigtail at the end of their period of service still wearing their pigtails they were made the butt of much chaffing. The King hearing of the incident decided to commemorate it by issuing permission to the regiment that it was ever to black tabs at the back of the tunic collar and they still wear them today. It may be also of interest to note that the regimental mascot is a white goat which accompanies the regiment everywhere, even to church service. King Coel, for the states in his book, Rose Hat in No Man's Land—that the Royal Welch appear to have some to savory a reputation among certain sections of the people because on occasion he quotes a bishop preaching a sermon on the topic "Motherless Children daughters at home; the Royal Welch are in town." It is perhaps superfluous to say that the regiment is not composed exclusively of Welshmen.

An item in yesterday's Scrapbook stated that more men have been killed in the United States by motor cars than the natives of that land in all its wars. It is to be regretted that the American Civil War cost the lives of nearly a million men as may be verified in the Britannica. Possibly the statement was been said by the automobile than in all the country's foreign wars but if so no doubt by say so because the item as it stands is inaccurate and misleading. The one battle of the American Civil War alone 26,000 men were shot down in ninety minutes.

Respectfully yours,
H. A. Price.

The city council has made a grant of $75.00 to the Belleville Poultry Association. For the past few years this association has held an exhibit in Belleville and the records show that in every respect the show has been a great success. The first exhibit was in the year 1913 when 450 birds were exhibited and $164.70 paid in prizes. The expenses were $216.68 for coops and $20.00 for judges. In 1914 750 birds were exhibited and $284.00 paid in prizes; expenses $25.80 for judges and $170.00 for coops. In 1915 800 birds exhibited and $282.30 paid in prizes, expenses $33.75 paid for judges and $21.15 for coops. In 1915 the exhibit was the third largest poultry show in Ontario, there being 1700 birds exhibited; expenses, $82.50 for judges and $138.00 for coops. The sum of $561.00 was paid out in prizes.

Captain Jack Hayes of this city sang at the concert given last night by the officers of the 40th. Northumberland Regiment at Cobourg in the basketball room of armouries. The Cobourg World in referring to the entertainment says: "Captain J. D. Hayes sang two fine selections, including the Old Plaf" and "Good Night," and was warmly applauded. He is the possessor of a deep bass voice, full and of beautiful timbre."

Col. W. N. Ponton, D.D.G.M., of the Masonic order paid an official visit last evening to Wellington Lodge, Prince Edward County. A number of Belleville Masons accompanied him and the party was royally entertained after the meeting of the lodge.

The local kids got off to a fair start last night by defeating Cobourg 8 to 6 in the first home and home games ordered by the O.H.A. and played here. The story of the game in brief is that in the first half of the game the teams were very evenly matched, but in the second half the Cobourg team faded badly. The following composed the Belleville team: Phillips, Pepper, Connolly, Allen, Spangenberg, Lobsinger, Weller. It may be said fairly without boasting that Belleville has the best junior team in this district whether they win the group championship or not. And they are all juniors, with none of them having their whiskers shaved off in order to make 'em look young.

Mr. Walter Alford writes to the Intelligencer as follows: "As it is the duty of every man to do what he can now to relieve the distress through the flood, and I see very little done up to this time, I take this opportunity to say that if the city council will give me instructions to hire, say 20 men and some teams, I believe I can relieve the trouble to a very great extent. I do not ask any remuneration for myself; all I want is to see something done to give some relief."

The flood is still with us. On Pinnacle Street from the Market School south on the east side of the street the houses are flooded and the occupants forced to move out. Mr. Charles Wilkins had to move his daughter, who is ill, to more comfortable quarters as the water was up to his door step. Water was in Mr. Geo. D. Dickson's yard a foot deep, also about the residence of Mr. J. F. Way. The grocery store on the corner of Dundas and Pinnacle streets is abandoned, the water being a foot deep upon the store floor.

Little Benny's Note Book

My started to open her mail while we was eating breakfist, saying, Here's a very intriguing notice from Cain and Blaine. 39 dollar bain dress in 10 knot or dozer suits down to 18 fifty and so on and so 4th. My, if I ony thawt I'd could believe half their magnificent statements I'd be down there is a flash like Jack Robinson, but some of these shops will say anything just to get you down there in the exposed position. Now if they'd ony send these notices in handwriting instead of typewriting. I know enough about the science of graphology to get a good idear of their character and the honesty of their statements, but naturally you cant tell anything about a person from their typewritten ma said.

Of course you can, pop said. Personly I'm very intristed in the study of typewriting or the reading of carxster from typewriting. Let me see that letter, I'll tell you a few things that may serprise you, he said.

And he quick reached and took her on the frunt place the index on the ribbon is quite used up or nearly, with prevents the word from standing 4th in a clear manner, indicating the banner is not quite above board in its dealings. In the 2nd place the person could assmue make quite a indentation in the paper. In other words them people are a most grubbers and will dig the past centout of you if they get the Hoss arspeced. That means they're lite, careless and just as little as possible for what they get out of you. You'd better keep away, pop said.

Now Willyum I know a bargain when I see it Sez he. Let me have the letter. I'll add about it in typewriting or otherwise, and anyway yours just tawring around, ma said, and pop said, Dont say I didnt warn you.

I wont say anything more on the subject, ma said.

Meening she would just go.

FEATURES OF THRONE SPEECH

Ottawa, Feb. 7.—Following are outstanding features of the senatorial program forecast in the Speech from the Throne read today at the opening of Parliament:

Reorganization of the Bank of Canada to give the government a predominant interest in its ownership.

Railway legislation amendments to "afford a greater measure of government authority and responsibility to parliament" in operation of the Canadian National System.

Radio broadcasting in Canada is to be subject to inquiry by a special Commission of the House of Commons.

Repeal of legislation giving extraordinary powers to the government with respect to expenditures and taxation.

A new inquiry into representations respecting "monopolistic control" of the importation and distribution of anthracite.

Efforts to be made to "substitute stability for uncertainty in administration of the customs laws."

Closing of relief camps maintained for single, homeless unemployed men as soon as conditions permit.

Creation, with all the provisions necessary, of a National Commission on Unemployment and Relief, and appointment of a representative advisory body.

Parliament to be asked to approve of a Canada-United States trade agreement, the creation of the Dominion Securities Corporation, and the reorganization of government departments.

The Throne Speech

Ottawa, Feb. 7. (CP)—Government ownership of the Bank of Canada, provision for "a greater measure of national control" over the Canadian National Railways, a Royal Commission to investigate broadcasting and further inquiry into the importation and distribution of artificial silk were forecast in the speech from the Throne read at the opening of parliament yesterday.

It was the first occasion Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, had presided at the opening of a Dominion parliament. It was also the first session of a new parliament.

Tribute was paid to his late Majesty King George V and his speech extended sympathy and condolences to Queen Mary and the Royal family, with renewed sentiments of loyalty and devotion to the new Sovereign.

Alliance to League

The legislative program forecast in the speech was brief. Salient feature was the intention of Canada to the League of Nations and confirmation of that alliance and the approval of the people of Canada in a vote.

Parliament would be asked with the approval of all its members, to make provision for creation of a "National Council" to deal with unemployment and relief problems. Preference was to be given the more than 100 camps at as early a date was expanding employment possibilities.

In connection with the recent appointment of a royal commission to investigate the textile industry following the closing of the plant in Sherbrooke, the speech observed industries should "recognize their obligations to labor in every manner possible in continuing and providing employment, and that labor and consumers have a right to have their voice heard in the formation of policy in control of industrial policy."

Institute Inquiry

Where these ends cannot be effected through voluntary co-operation of all parties the speech minister says are of the opinion that there are the strongest of reasons for legislation.

With a view to safeguarding the interests of consumers a full inquiry will be instituted into representations which contend that the operations of monopolistic control of the importation and distribution of artificial silk.

In order to determine the question of transfer of the Canadian Patents Branch to the Supreme Court of Canada of a number of measures providing for such transfer will be introduced.

I am happy to be able to inform you that a trade agreement between Canada and the United States of America was concluded on Armistice Day, 1935, and that the trade relations between the two had seriously affected the trade of both countries during the latter years of the old year.

"The Government of United States trade agreement will be submitted for your approval. You will also be asked to approve of the action taken which made normal trade relations between Canada and Japan have been restored.

U.S.-Canada Treaty Praised.

My ministers believe that the Canada-United States agreement will undoubtedly prove a great improvement in Canada's international economic relations, and that the principles embodied in this agreement, extended and developed from time to time by examination, will contribute to the restoration of the world toward economic nationalism, which has been undermining standards of living of all countries, including those of the United States, and which has been increasing the burden of armaments, and is a constant menace to the peace of the world.

"You will be pleased to learn that the policy of the Canadian Wheat Board of selling wheat at competitive prices is bringing satisfactory results.

A conference between the Dominion government and the government of the province of Ontario was held at Ottawa during the month of November. Representatives have since carried on consideration of the more important questions involved.

Among matters arising out of the conference, which will be submitted for your consideration, will be a proposal for amending the British North America Act, 1867, in order to provide for certain financial arrangements between the Dominion and the Provinces.

Rectors Control.

A committee of Dominion and Provincial Ministers, which was appointed by the Dominion-Provincial Conference, is engaged in the consideration of the form of legislation necessary effecting constitutional amendments.

It is proposed to submit to Parliament its control over taxation and other matters which it is measured which have deprived members of the House of Commons of this control, and which have prevented it from the executive with unwarranted arbitrary powers.

Every effort will be made to substitute co-operation for conflict in the administration of customs laws.

The control of credit, and the issue of currency, and the control of the affairs of direct concern to every citizen, it is intended, at the present session, to ask parliament to make provision for the ownership and control of the Bank of Canada, as may be necessary to give to the Government of Canada such interest in the ownership as well as effective control of the bank.

Trade Radio Commission.

You will be asked to consider amendments to existing legislation relating to the Canadian National Railways, which will serve to afford a greater measure of governmental control and supervision of the railways.

It is proposed to make the present position of radio broadcasting in Canada the subject of inquiry by a special committee of the House of Commons.

Steps have already been taken with a view to the reorganization and consolidation of government services, which it is believed will further increase efficiency and result in much needed economies. These will be brought into effect by legislative measures to which your attention will be invited.

A reduction from twenty-one to sixteen has been made in the number of the members of the Senate.

A bill to provide for the creation of a Department of Labor, to be presented for your consideration.

The public accounts of the last fiscal year and the estimates for the coming year will be submitted for your consideration.

Honorable Members of the Senate Members of the House of Commons:

In inviting your careful consideration, I refer to important matters which will engage your attention, I pray that Divine Providence may guide and bless your deliberations.

COUNSEL ADDRESS JURY

the information I could have gotten it from the Chief Constable," maintained Counsel Gerhard.

Witness, referring to a bulky register he carried in his hand gave the details of his investigations and told of interviewing Bruyea.

"Bruyea didn't seem to have much to say," declared the constable witness.

Records Produced.

"What have you got there?" questioned Mr. Payne taking up the register and examining it. The witness produced records the first witness interviewed was Frances Wagar, Counsel Gerhard stated.

Mr. Dorman took the witness for examination.

"Did Mr. Bruyea tell you that he was engaged to marry Frances Wagar?"

"I believe that was what he told me," replied Witness.

"That's all, my Lord, for the Crown," declared prosecuting counsel.

Constable Evans Testifies.

Constable William Evans of the local force, next witness, testified he was on duty on Aug. 29 last. He had been patrolling his beat at about 11:30 p.m. when he met the police call. He received orders to take the car to Number 10 Pitt Victoria avenue. When he arrived there he met Morgan Jarvis and Constable Hall to assist him with the stretcher.

Mrs. Dr. Lawson.

"Then I met Dr. Lawson and Constable Hall coming out," he stated. He told me the girl had fractured her skull. They told me how that had happened. He said, "Oh, high heels again." He told me, too, the girl had gotten a bad beating.

"We put the patient on the stretcher and took her to the hospital.

"When I got back to the police station I met Constable Hall.

"Wait," interjected counsel.

"I entered the record of the ambulance call in the book," he added.

Saw Accused Next Night.

Witness declared he knew accused and saw him the night after, declared he had a conversation. He didn't know what he was being told by Mr. Payne. "I was told to get the 'pedigree sheet' at the police station."

Crown Attorney Dorman through questioning brought out the statement that the witness was in possession of a criminal case had been given to Mr. Payne.

"Do you recall Dr. Leavens discussing with you the nature of the injuries received by the girl?" enquired the Crown.

"I don't remember much talk about it."

"Will you say Dr. Leavens didn't say to you at 9:15 that the fracture didn't," maintained witness.

"Do you recall Dr. Leavens telling you that the girl had a fractured skull?"

"Not of the kind that would be made by a fall from high heels," answered Witness.

"He never said anything of the sort," affirmed witness.

That concludes the defence," stated Counsel Gerhard for Mr. Payne.

Court was called at three o'clock.

Payne's Charge To the Jury.

In his opening address to the jury, defendant counsel pointed out the charge of attempted assignment of Frances Wagar and the second count of assault occasioning bodily harm.

Each one of you must come to a decision on these two counts and agree. You will have to agree. You are the sole and absolute judges of the facts. You have been sworn and arrived at by the evidence and acted upon the evidence. The liberty of the subject is in your hands," said Mr. Payne. "The onus of proof in criminal cases rests with the prosecution. This must be established without a doubt.

"Accused," continued counsel, "knew Miss Wagar for a year; they were friends. They had been and were known to have consumed intoxicating liquor on occasions. A man who knew how to drink and did drink. A steady employee of a local plant for six years; a man of gentlemanly habits."

Some Incidents.

Counsel summed up incidents of the night in question. "When they consumed liquor that night they did not drink to excess sufficient that might ensue. We have them in the apartment, the men and the women in the living room. Frances Wagar she was pressed to take the liquor, but she had no hesitation in taking it because she said she was feeling queer at the time."

We find at about seven that evening Ray in the apartment of Miss Wagar and commencing liquor. They had one drink, and if she had more, witness didn't remember.

"When they went up to the upstairs apartment Miss Wagar said more liquor was brought up, but that she didn't drink it. Apparently they were in Miss Wagar's apartment from seven until shortly a quarter after nine that evening. What were they doing during that time? Certainly they were drinking, and I ask you' gentlemen to believe that also."

"The men said about 9:15 they were going to the hotel for a drink and get back a blanket. They told her they would be late, but she said she'd be waiting. Then they go down street and have a round of drinks. Then they return to the flat, the apartment. What happened? They went in and down, and she called him when the rest were. Then she said she asked him if he was looking for his fifty dollars. Payment, she waltzed toward him, he jumped up, grabbed her, commenced choking her, threw her on the floor, put his knee on her chest, and struck her with the bed. Later she found him on the bed indecently exposed. She said he was cruel and terrible, yet there was not a thing disarranged in the room, except a small mat. There is not a single witness who said there was any indication of a struggle, and one who said Miss Wagar's hair was disarranged.

Reckless Accused's Story.

"I ask you to believe that no struggle occurred either on the floor or in the apartment. You have heard the story of Miss Wagar. What is the story of the accused? He says that he was in the apartment with Miss Wagar, he put his arm around her, that they slipped and fell to the floor.

"He said she said, 'Help, Marge, I've broken my leg.' She didn't give that cry. But she did say when he came down, 'Get your hands off.' Later she said 'he broke my leg'.

Mrs. Thompson has told you on the witness stand that she heard cries of my leg, but didn't touch me'. Miss Wagar has told you that by the very expression, 'he attempted to rape me'. What words were uttered by the accused except those? Attempted is word for what was said. Both Miss Wagar and Mrs. Thompson were in her clothing, as far as one could see, when she was found. She was in good form. If there had been any struggle as she says, any man who wished to rape a woman would have let clothes stand in his way at that time.

Defendant counsel pointed to a number of circumstances which he claimed had been made by Dr. Leavens, "high heels again," when he asked how the girl had been hurt. He said, "Oh, high heels again." He told me, too, the girl had gotten a bad beating.

"We put the patient on the stretcher and took her to the hospital.

"When I got back to the police station I met Constable Hall.

"Wait," interjected counsel.

"I entered the record of the ambulance call in the book," he added.

"He didn't," maintained witness.

A number from the Island attended the dance at Sprucedale Park on Friday evening, and all report a good time.

There was no church service on the Island, Sunday owing to the heavy condition of the roads.

TAMWORTH W. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Association of Tamworth Church was held in the church parlors Thursday, February 6th. The President, Mrs. H. Hall, presided.

The meeting opened by singing hymn 20, "O Worship the King," followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. The Scripture lesson, Psalm 103, was read by Mrs. Hall after which she gave a short prayer.

Reports were given by the various committees and the minutes of January was read and adopted. Plans were discussed regarding the programs of different groups for the coming year. Mrs. Gerow announced the World's Day of Prayer to be on February 28th in the Tabernacle Church and made a appeal for all to come as the program would only last one hour.

Despite the extreme weather the meeting was well attended and was concluded by singing hymn 236 and repeating the Minpah in unison.

TESTS ARE MADE OF BLUE HAIRS IN RAVINE CASE

Evidence Given That Human Blood Stains Found on Accused's Clothes

HAIRS COMPARED

Piece of Concrete, Says Doctor, Likely Used to Cause Death

Toronto, Feb. 7.—A microscopic comparison of the long blue hairs which had been torn from a piece yarn from which Ruth Taylor's sweater had been knitted—hairs which "stuck out" all over the garment worn by the girl the night she was murdered—revealed no substantial difference from blue hairs found clinging to Harry O'Donnell's clothing, Dr. T. B. Hyndman, pathologist, testified yesterday as O'Donnell's trial for the ravine slaying had its continuation.

The hairs which he examined were different from the bulk of the material of which the dead girl's sweater had been made, Dr. Hyndman explained, for the body of it was a wool, he said.

Then a comparison of fibres taken from an infant's blue bootee, mittens, bonnet and blanket, showed that the material was "entirely different" from the hairs of Ruth Taylor's sweater, the pathologist continued.

Dr. Erb told the court that further examination had revealed that human blood stains" on the trousers which O'Donnell had pulled up and been wearing on the night the crime was committed.

Magnifying 400 Times

Tense silence fell over the crowded court room and O'Donnell nervously clutched the sides of the prisoner's box as the jury carefully compared 19 photographs of the hairs with each other.

The first ten photographs held up for the jury by Crown Prosecutor J. C. McRuer were shown to contrasts hair taken from the murdered girl's sweater and magnified 400 times. Immediately below these photographs, McRuer placed nine more photographs, also showing magnified 400 times, a separate hair "found on Hamilton's clothing."

"From your microscopic observation was there any noticeable difference between the hairs found on the sweater and those found on the accused's clothes?" the Crown asked.

"None whatsoever," Dr. Hyndman replied.

Tested Series of Fibres

The Crown then produced photographs of a series of fibres which had been taken from a baby's blue clothing found in the accused's home by Detective Sergeant Greenwood. There were four of these photographs and the Crown Attorney showed wool fibre taken from the material out of which O'Donnell's clothing had been made. All of these photographs had been magnified 100 times. An additional photograph of a "fuff" of blue hair taken from a clothes brush and magnified 400 times was also shown to the jury.

"Doctor, I got through examining the sweater from Ruth Taylor's body", Dr. Erb testified, "my hands were covered with the long blue hairs of which the sweater had been made. I remember rubbing my hands back and forth until they had got the stuff off." The hairs, he said, were the kind that would stick very readily to a damp woollen article.

Prisoner's Clothes Examined

The witness told the court that he had also carefully examined the trousers of O'Donnell's clothing and could find nothing comparable with the long blue hairs that had been found sticking to the clothing.

A careful examination of the rest of O'Donnell's clothing revealed no mud and burrs on the socks, "peculiarly grouped around the ankle," Dr. Erb continued, as Mr. and Mrs. Taylor had been found on the necktie. The trousers were muddy and wet, and a part of a leaf had been found stuck to the mud on the sole of the left shoe. The mud, witness said, had been preserved and delivered to Professor Joslyn Rogers, provincial analyst.

His post-mortem examination of the girl's body had commenced, Dr. Erb stated, that Ruth Taylor had previously been strangled.

"There was a large bruise immediately below the left eye," he said, "and over the left cheekbone there were a number of small lacerations. Another bruise had been found around the left side of the mouth and the inside of both upper and lower lips was cut. There was also a lacerated wound inside the right nostril and a bruise on the right side of the chin."

Many Wounds on Head

His examination of the body had also revealed a group of wounds in the region of the forehead and on the back part of the head, Dr. Erb continued. In the region where the hair had been matted down were some additional wounds. The skull had been fractured and severe injuries done to the girl's brain.

"The injuries to the brain could have been caused by the same blow that fractured the skull," the doctor continued.

He described numerous other minor bruises and lacerations on various parts of the girl's body.

"They were the sort of a nature that only occur while the individual is alive," Dr. Erb testified. "The injuries to the face could have been caused by a fist, in my opinion."

Crown Attorney McRuer suggested that, if the bruises to the face had been caused by a fist, some slight injury might have been received by the assailant's hand.

"It might," witness replied.

Break Lying Down

The severe blow that fractured the victim's head was delivered when the girl was lying down, the doctor believed. The Crown then exhibited a heavy piece of concrete which had previously been found by police.

"Did you make an examination of this to ascertain if there were blood stains on it?" asked Mr. McRuer.

"I did" Dr. Erb replied, "and I found human blood stains on that piece of concrete."

"Could the blows on the head have been made with this?" the Crown asked, and Dr. Erb replied that serious wounds to have been made with that piece of concrete.

Dr. Erb, in reply to further questioning by the Crown, stated that a four inch fracture on the temporal side of how long the girl had been dead before the body had been entirely frozen. Dr. Hyndman, who placed it at 16 hours although the girl's body was found 24 hours after a body after death had to be taken into consideration.

There was anything else regarding the girl's body that may have a bearing on the case, Mr. McRuer asked.

Signs of "Come-Fish"

From his observations, the doctor replied, there were signs of "some person's fingers" on the upper part of the body. This might have been caused by squeezing to the side, he believed, but it might also have been a factor contributing to it.

"Would that occur before or after death?" he asked.

Dr. Erb then told the court how he had taken all of Ruth Taylor's clothing to the Toronto General and the Sick Children's Hospital, where he had dried it out and examined it. He also told of receiving the clothing worn on the night of the crime by Harry O'Donnell, which he had also carefully examined.

Dr. Erb's testimony was then unwrapped from its cellophane covering and produced before the court. Little Ruth Taylor's clothes lay piled on various spots of the court to illustrate the doctor's evidence.

That overcoat was quite damp," Dr. Erb testified, "Even the lining of it was dampish." He identified as the skirt part of the garment, a pile of coat and the lining of the garment as well. There were also fine particles of sand on the garment, he said.

"What do you do with them?" Mr. McRuer asked.

"The hairs on the overcoat were mounted on a glass slide and then covered with another glass was put on top of this."

Then the examination of the overcoat, Dr. Erb added, had revealed human blood on the right sleeve.

The waistcoat which O'Donnell had been wearing on examination to be damp, as were the accused's trousers. Dr. Erb told the court that the trousers had been "particularly damp" from the knees down.

Many Threads Examined

"There was a piece of yarn," he continued, "below the knee and in front. Mud in the form of splashes was on the trousers, on the cuffs and, in the region of the knees. A fine form of mud might be called a smudge as distinct from a splash. On looking at the trousers, I found that the stains around the knees could be called smudges. The trousers were having come through the ground."

As the jury, at this point, examined the trousers, Dr. Erb continued that the mud was "different from the mud that was" when first he had examined the garment. Some sand, he added, had been found on the garment, he added.

Covered With Tags

The trousers, as exhibited in court, were covered with tags from top to bottom with blue and brown tags and long streams of white thread. Witness explained to the jury that each of the blue tags denoted the spot where a hair had been found each of the brown tags meant that the remnant of a burr had been on that part of the garment; and the entire area where mud had been found were enclosed in the irregular white thread lines.

Had on Hat Also

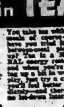
Human blood stains had also been discovered on the trousers which O'Donnell had told police he was wearing on the night of the crime, Dr. Erb testified.

The felt hat which the accused had worn was the next garment to be produced. It was carefully examined by the members of the jury, Dr. Erb stated.

"That hat was quite damp and had a spattered appearance," Dr. Erb continued. "There were also four holes in the felt. Little splashes that looked like mud were found on the hat, although they were not of the consistency. There was a stain on the underarm of the right lining, from which a piece had been removed for examination."

The hat had also been examined for blood, witness said, and although "the preliminary tests had been positive, yet he was not able to say definitely that the stains on the brim had been caused by blood.

"Did you examine the hair in the shoes which O'Donnell had worn?" Mr. McRuer asked.



"I did," witness replied "but found nothing to which I attached any significance."

Margaret Schell, who lives with her mother in a section of the Grosvenor Apartments, apartment was located, told the court that the accused's hat and coat were once cleaned up the apartment on the Saturday before the crime. O'Donnell, she said, had not slept in his apartment either on the Saturday or Sunday before the crime, but was home on Monday night.

"Sweet Surrender" "Man of Iron"

Smart Two-Feature Program With Tunes, Laughs and Thrills

"Sweet Surrender", musical show opened at the Capital theatre last night and proved to be a tuneful delight and a treat for the eyes. It brings out three newcomers who are destined to go a long way in pictures. Two of these are the stars, Tamara (and is she lovely) and Frank Parker, the radio tenor. The third is Helen Lynd, whose daffy antics in this picture are a delight.

Radio fans who have listened entranced to the golden tones and strains of Frank Parker as they drifted out of the loud speaker will be delighted to know that he looks as well as he sings. He has two songs in "Sweet Surrender", Tamara, the girl who made "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes" a success, does not sing but when she sang it in the star role of "Roberta" on the Broadway stage she made a hit. Watching this sleek Russian beauty as she goes through her paces in a pretty trying role makes one wonder why we haven't seen more of her before this. She can act, she has an exquisite lyric soprano voice she displays and manages to look lovely even when disguished behind spectacles as part of the picture.

We liked the Sara Strauss Dancers on the program as a big added attraction and the audience did too. It's classical stepping jazzed up and it's done with plenty of pep and while the Misdon choristers sing, Sagman and Sax band are grand.

Prominent in the proceedings is a number than Jack Dempsey former heavyweight champ, Tex Maddox Madison Square Garden and when he was knocking them dead with the ring plays in the role of himself in his New York restaurant. Another gorgeous scene is the fully lighted production show in which dozens of cute girls parade in last fall and winter styles featuring some of the grand salons of the Grand S. S. & S. Normandie.

Chas. Sulzer has written some charming music for "Sweet Surrender", Russell Mack has done a great job of direction in this production, Joseph Walker's photography and Russ Brown are excellent.

Barton MacLane Scores in "Man of Iron"

Barton MacLane, whose work in "O Mein Papa", "Dr. Socrates" and "Bullets or Ballots" has scored No. 1 bad taste, has at last been given an opportunity to show his versatility as well as his talent for characterization, in the heroic role of Jim Bannard in "Man of Iron", which was shown at the Capitol theatre yesterday for the first time locally.

MacLane has done creditable work in films as in "The Trial of Mary Dugan", "Subway Express", "Counsellor at Law" and other pictures he went to Hollywood where he remained to make a series of heavy parts. He did so well in them, however, that he was eventually selected for the starring role in "Man of Iron".

MacLane is no matinee idol in this picture. He is a hard hitting, two fisted citizen who will not be downed by an executive position. But he goes high hat and tries to break into high society when he is unfitted. This give MacLane a chance to display his versatility as he is as good a comedian as a villain.

He plays the part with all sercousness and a perfect "dead pan", which is amusing. The rest of the actor would be portrayed, for he has a number of parts that he must be makes. All this makes for plenty comedy and thrilling action, and with all of his acting is not clowning. There is shrilling action and plenty as well as pathos and romance, and MacLane proves his ability to "hoof" when he does a won in an exceedingly brief screen career.

Pretty ones Dorothy Peterson plays her age. Although a young woman, she has mostly appeared in mother roles. In "Man of Iron" she is the bride of MacLane, and a sensible one who tries to keep his feet on the ground.

Mary Astor plays the part of a brunette menace, a supercilious secretary to Bannard, who complicates things when she tries to bring about the ruin of her boss. She does an excellent job.

REDNERSVILLE W.I.

The January meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Barragh with 24 present and the husbands and sons were present also, making a large attendance. The meeting was opened in the usual way, the borrowed articles were returned by most of. It was decided to finish the quilting and that it should be quilted for the spring work came on.

The topic for the meeting was "Historic Homes" and many very fine incidents were given. Mrs. Barragh's paper was very much proved most interesting. Included was a lovely old grandfather's clock standing stately in its place by the arch, all wooden works. A quilt over 100 years old, pieced and quilted when 105 years and she lived to celebrate Fifth year, was shown as well as lovely old china, furniture, break into the possession of many incidents of pioneer days in the county and their own family.

Mrs. Barragh gave a splendid paper on Current Events. The making of a hat at the conclusion of five minutes, 5 pins, was won by Mr. Ross Bonter. Mrs. Ralph Redner gave a vote of thanks to the host and hostess for their kind hospitality. It was seconded by Mrs. Ralph Redner.

Big Hit of Stage And Screen Heads Two-Feature Program

From a play that had its first showing on Broadway back in 1913 comes the fame of the film one of the most brilliant outdoor musical romances yet seen on the screen, ——"Rose of the Rancho", which comes to the Belle Saturday with Gladys Swarthout, youthful star of the Metropolitan Opera, making her film debut opposite John Boles.

"Rose of the Rancho" enjoyed huge successes both as a legitimate production and in the silent picture version. It was first produced for the screen way back in 1914 by Cecil B. DeMille. But this version.... as the saying takes place out-of doors, Broadway and Hollywood emerge with a swaggering vanity, and glorious singing voice are only equalled by her dramatic abilities, incidentally, proves herself an adept horsewoman. And her "sombrero dance" during the great fiesta at Monterey is a joy to behold. In other words, if you haven't gathered as much by this time, Miss Swarthout is all intents and purposes is two degrees Fahrenheit higher than hot. A new romance comes into her life in the person of John Boles, and into California as well as spent by the Federal Government.

Credit must be given Boles for his admirable performance opposite the "baby" star of the Metropolitan Opera, but he needs no pleadits from this direction. Since his great success in "Back Street", Boles has risen steadily in popular favor until today he is in the front rank of screen lovers and leading men.

"Rose of the Rancho" introduces two young men to the screen in the persons of William Howard famous Broadway funster and Herb Williams.

"Another Face" Thrilling

"Another Face" the second added feature on the same program is a fast-running, thrilling picture of modern crime, starred by lavish comedy, and played to the hilt by a highly talented cast.

Brian Donlevy as a New York gangster, characterizes the role with a vengeance. A plastic surgeon melts his face into a handsome mask to camouflage his identity, and after a swaggering vanity, he migrates to Hollywood and crashes the films, rather than meet the police and identify.

The story is swept into thrilling action and novel comedy when a nurse, who has escaped to Hollywood to "be near the films", falls prey to the hair-brained publicity director, Frank Morgan, who has a flair for sniffing out a story that will appeal to the fans. Miss Nurse is given a build-up that would make Garbo look like a has-been, and the fun is fast and furious from then on.

Sharon Lynn is the nurse, Glenda Farrell is the lady reporter who is assigned to the case, and Lyle Talbot is the hero who finally gets the girl.

HAIRS ON BONNET STUDIED AT TRIAL

under cross-examination by defence counsel Mr. Hagarty, Jr., said he had meals, bandits, precipitin, horse hair and sparrow tests to determine if they were blood.

Various Tests.

He had not gone particularly, he said, for the age of the blood. Only the hemolitin and precipitin tests had been carried out before Dr. Orr's preliminary hearing. The other tests were undertaken "primarily with stains on the hat", which could not be definitely established as human blood.

The doctor was asked if it was not "straight" he had not tested all stains on the trousers for blood by the time of the preliminary hearing. All but one had been tested.

"It's not strange at all," the doctor retorted. "I had a great deal of work to do."

Mr. Hagan was checked by Mr. Justice Hoid Jeffrey when he tried to get the witness's way he had not told the preliminary hearing all his tests had not been completed at the time. The prisoner's "completely honest," His Lordship declared.

Reading again from preliminary hearing evidence, Mr. Hagan quoted the pathologist as saying he had found a "striking similarity" between the "stains on Gardiner's clothes and the stenographer's blood."

Age of Stains.

The earlier evidence, Mr. Hagan brought out, had Dr. Rich saying the benedin and precipitin tests were the only ones that could be carried out with the material at hand. Now, the lawyer added, could the other tests have been carried out in view of this statement?

More material had been found, the expert answered. No large amount could be found, but enough. He picked up O'Donnell's pants and showed where pieces had been cut out for tests.

The lawyer dwelt at length on the fact that Dr. Rich had missed a small stain on the trouser leg at first examination. It "probably did not exist," the witness said. The stain, he said, later proved to be human blood.

It was not possible, the witness declared in answer to a question, to determine the age of stains with any degree of accuracy.

"Do you think the spectroscopic test is used to determine age of blood?"

"It does in certain cases."

"Would it in this case?"

"I did not use it for that."

"Please answer my question."

"I'm not sure that it would."

His added he did not feel the test would have been accurate in this instance.

Two Blood Drops

Then was found on the coat-lapel of blood on O'Donnell's clothing, the doctor continued. Person with a cut on his hand, placing it on parts of the clothing, would have blood found on O'Donnell's could have caused the marks, with the possible exception of a smudge on the collar. The doctor could not say about the pocket, he testified.

Stains on the overcoat and suitcoat sleeves would not be more than a drop in each case. There would be "only a few" on the leg and front of the pants.

"One or two drops on the pocket?" he was asked.

"A few."

"On the trousers in front, there would be a drop or two," the expert continued.

Asked about an injury to O'Donnell's right hand, found when he was examined, the doctor said it was "possible but very unlikely" it had been suffered on a jump at the garage. He had not investigated O'Donnell worked.

Hand Injury

The projector on the pump that O'Donnell said caused the injury was "hardly sharp enough to turn up the skin" if it had been broken off O'Donnell's hand. He had to draw his hand back over the projector with force, the doctor said, to cause double scratch and this scratched the flesh.

Dr. Orr was asked by defence counsel if he appreciated the importance of the fact that Dr. Rich had and replied he did.

"Do you undertake all possible tests?

"I suppose I could find 'no structural difference' in the hairs."

"Do you feel that needs qualification?"

"Well, maple leaves will differ, but they are structurally alike."

"And rabbit's hair, whether on the back of the head or the scrotum of the girl's sweater, is still rabbit's hair?"

"That's true," he said, then added that those particular rabbit hairs had a split.

Comparison of Hairs

A finger-nail scraping from the O'Donnell home had a tassel of blue rabbit hair "of a sort," the doctor said, but there was not much longer and of a different shade of blue than the others, though structurally alike.

Hairs found on the dog matched these microscopically, he testified, but he was "quite sure" he could distinguish between them. Hairs on the girl's sweater and O'Donnell's clothes:

"Am I fair in suggesting," asked Mr. Hagan, "that of the [illegible] his you took of the hairs in O'Donnell's clothes and the girl's sweater, you brought to court those that compared most favorably?"

"Yes."

To another question, Dr. Rich answered there was little rabbit hair on the baby's mixture.

"It didn't occur to me to take photographs of them," he said.

No rabbit hair had been found, he said, in the pockets of those clothes taken from the home of O'Donnell's parents.

Length of Hairs

There was likewise no rabbit hair on three baby bootees found in O'Donnell apartment, said Dr. Rich, reaching for a booklet and pointing out a sentence.

"Here's one I think," he said, holding it up for the jury. "It says nothing to say that this is a rabbit hair. But it is two or two and a half inches long." Laughter.

He believed it was not a part of the clothing of the baby dog.

"Can you say there is no rabbit hair in O'Donnell's home?" asked Mr. Hagan, picking up the baby's bloc wool blanket.

It could find none on it, he answered Dr. Rich said it was "quite possible" hairs were from the dog.

Then if O'Donnell handled these articles, some of them might stick to his hands and be transferred to his clothing?

"It's possible."

When the hairs got on the overcoat, the doctor said, he thought it was open.

"Are you prepared to swear that the 204 rabbit hairs found on O'Donnell clothing came from the clothing of the deceased girl?"

"No," answered Dr. Rich without hesitation.

Human Hairs Shorter

"No significance whatever," said Dr. Rich in a later question, was attached to human hairs found on O'Donnell's clothing. "They are much shorter than the girl's.

On clothing taken from the home of O'Donnell's parents, the doctor again told the court he could see no rabbit hairs.

"Did you discover anything in the material in the O'Donnell's halls?" asked defence counsel.

"Nothing to which I attached any significance."

He was asked if he had expected to find anything "important" under the nails, and replied, "I did it because I was asked to."

In re-direct examination, Dr. Rich repeated he could find no "essential difference" in the hairs on O'Donnell's clothing and the girl's sweater.

Questioned further, the pathologist said the hairs on the baby's clothes bore "some similarity" to the others but did not "meet all requirements." Both were two different shades. The blanket was not the loom which rabbit hairs might be expected to be found.

He was questioned again about O'Donnell's hands. He said there were scratches, he repeated, could not be made with a hammer if struck on the hand pump lever. He did not think it possible the broken nails or lack of the hand could have caused it all all.

The bloodstain on O'Donnell's pocket, Dr. Rich held, could not have resulted from contaminated hands being placed in the pocket. The stain came from the outside and had it come from the inside the blood shown by photographs on O'Donnell's hand would not have caused it, he said. Nor was it likely the hand injury had left the blood marks inside the front of the trousers.

Prof. Joslyn Rogers, provincial analyst, was next called.

Examination of the contents of the girl's stomach, he said Prof. Rogers, showed "everything normal."

His task of analyzing the stains in Smith's sweater and found they had certain definite color reactions in the treatment, he said, of blood. Hairs on O'Donnell's clothing also produced similar color reaction on the same areas of the hairs from the sweater.

Microscopic examination gave the same result.

"You could find no difference microscopically or chemically?" asked Crown Counsel J. McGhee.

"No difference."

"You exhausted all methods?"

"Yes."

Says Hair Coloring Differs

Prof. Rogers then said he examined the baby clothing in the O'Donnell apartment and found "no stains on it." He also gave the same reaction after exhausting all tests.

Examination of hairs from the baby shawl and the baby bonnet showed they were not the same, he said, having coloring in the hairs on O'Donnell's clothing.

Prof. Rogers testified he would say the hairs on the clothing did not come from the bonnet. The hairs on the bootees also were "not at all" like those on O'Donnell's clothing. Examiner held true of the baby blanket and the three articles taken from the home of O'Donnell's parents.

Examination of teeth taken from O'Donnell's trousers and shoes, Prof. Rogers said, showed it was "nearly sure" containing organic matter.

CANADA'S HOCKEY TEAM WINS EASILY were so badly outplayed they looked like the crudest of beginners although it was not so much their inability that made them look bad as it was the brilliance of the defending champions.

Coach Fudge gave Arthur "Jackie" Cook a rest in the third period, the limber up by allowing him to guard the Canadian goal. Fortunately, it was not unusually cold as Nadi did not suffer although he had a little fun with Cook, standing in front of his net a good deal of the time to keep warm. The Latvians hoisted one puck as Nadi in the first period, but it was no harder than that in the last two chapters.

The line-ups:

Canada — Goal, Nash; defence, Milton and Murray; centre, Pargeter; wings, Neville and St. Germain; subs, Haggarty, Thompson and Deacon.

Latvia—Goal, Lapsinis; defence, Jurgens and Vedejs; centre, Auslands; wings, Dekrs and Pagis; subs, Petersis, Petrowski and Blukis.

Officials—M. Lefleur, Paris, and Lalor, Hungary.

SECRETARY OF CONCLAVE DIES

Rome, Feb. 7 (AP)—Luigi, Cardinal Sincero, Secretary of the Rome Consistorial Congregation.

Cardinal Sincero, 66 years old, preserved consciousness until the end. He was stricken by paralysis a few days ago.

Pope Pius sent a special benediction.

Secretary of the congregation of the Council, Cardinal Sincero was appointed by Pope Pius XI, March 30, 1935, to succeed Cardinal Gasparri as president of the commission for codification of Orienal Canon Law.

He was created a Cardinal in 1929.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 7.—Montreal produce markets yesterday were steady to firmer. Slightly higher prices prevailed on fresh eggs arriving in the city, due to the extreme cold and snow-blocked country roads. The butter market had a steady to firmer tone. Cheese, potatoes and poultry were unchanged. Receipts for the week were posted at the Board of Trade as 826 cases of eggs, 91 boxes of butter.

On the egg market graded shipping stock arriving at cartlots or 1.c.l. lots were one cent per dozen firmer, being 26c for A-large, 24c for A-medium and 22c for A-pullets.

Butter market was generally quoted steady to firmer at 22¾c to 23¾c per lb. for No. 1 in cartlots or 1.c.l. lots, with occasional quotations at 23c.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Feb. 7.—(CP)—Steadiness ruled the grain markets on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today and wheat prices near mid-session were 1-8 cent higher to unchanged. The May future was at 96 1-8, July at 96 3-8 and October at 97 1-4.

Fractional advances at Liverpool aided in the local firmness. Cables reported exports of 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were reported. The Chicago, Feb. 7.—(CP)— Cable advice to the department of Agriculture today said Argentine conditions today said Argentine conditions today said United Kingdom markets yesterday.

Quotations: Butter — New Zealand 93 shillings sixpence to 96 shillings sixpence per cwt. (21.26 to 21.93 Can. dollars) — Australian 95 shillings per cwt. (21.25 cents per lb.)

HOGS

Toronto, Feb. 7.—(CP)— Bacon hog prices ruled unchanged to lower at the reporting market points today. Kitchener reported no hog prices were available, as to compare with yesterday's mark of $8.35; Barrie was the only point to rise, dropping 10 cents in prices. Chatham, London, Hull, and Brantford showed unchanged levels. Prices: Chatham, $8.25; London, $8.25; Hull, $8.50; Brantford, $8.65; Barrie, no.40.

U.S. Scores Three Goals in Minute Defeating Switzerland

Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 7 (AP)—America's Olympic hockey team scored its second victory in as many days by upsetting Switzerland, 4-1, today in a brilliant game.

The victory was achieved by a sensational attack late in the second period when all three goals were scored within a minute and a half.

The Americans, in the final session, completely outplayed the outnumbered Swiss from the ice. Only the grand work of Albert Kreiker, Swiss goalie, kept the score within bounds.

Czechoslovakia whipped Belgium in another hockey tussle, 6-0.

The line-ups:

United States—Goal, Moone; defence, Garrison and Shaughnessy; centre, Carr; wings, Smith and Howe; subs, Spain, Riddle, Bessone.

Switzerland—Goal, Kunzler; defence, Bibbler and Schmidli; centre, Hans Cattini; wings, Torriani and Perdrisat, Cattini; subs, Riedi, Herbert Keuker, Karl Keuker.

Officials — Weinberger, Austria, and Lefebvre, France.

The summary:

First period—No scoring; no penalties.

Second period — 1. U.S., Spain (Stubbs), 13:05; 2, U.S., Ross (Garrison), 13:50; 3, U.S., Garrison, 14:00; no further penalties.

Third period—No score; no penalties.

THEATRE BURNS

Amherst, N.S., Feb. 7.—(CP)—Fire razed through the Empress Theatre and four adjoining buildings here today, causing a loss of $70,000. After hours of battling, firemen had the blaze under control, but not before flames had eaten into the Windsor block, one of the largest apartment and business blocks in town.

Butter Prices Improve On Toronto Marke

Toronto Feb. 7—The decline of the past few weeks in local butter prices was checked yesterday, and in more active trading prices closed at about par with Wednesday's final quotations, with a firm undertone to the market.

The trade has been steadily shading butter prices for several weeks in an effort to entice buyers in the maritime provinces to the south. Ontario solids prices are down approximately 4 1-2c from the season's high level, and there appeared some interest in proceedings yesterday, said a wholesaler, that make some reports of a further decline this morning at 21 1-2, with afternoon trading at 22c. However, the broker stated at the close that they had got 22c for butter in the afternoon.

An aftermath of previous easy days was in evidence, he said, for other decline yesterday morning, quotations closing at a second 1c reaction for the week's date. Noi churning cream yesterday was quoted down to 22c, for shipping points.

Egg prices were a little firmer and 1c gains were noted in prices for several top grades. A good demand was in evidence for eggs. Ontario country roads are still holding up fairly well due to a minimum, leading to create a bullish undertone to the market.

Stanley Cup Stock of Leafs Crashes to New Low by Loss Of Horner, Clancy by Injuries

Both Defencemen May be Out For Remainder of Season

'AMERKS TAKE LEAFS

Detroit Red Wings Go to Top Among Group by Beating Hawks

By A. E. FULFORD

Canadian Press Staff Writer

Toronto's Stanley Cup stock crashed to a new low today as the Maple Leafs faced the loss of Red Horner and King Clancy, colorful defencemen, for an indefinite period—possibly the remaining six weeks of the season.

Injuries the two suffered last night in a clash with Americans at New York removed them from the National Hockey League picture as far as they seemed to be recovering from a month-long slump. Their absence, even if they are out of the game for only a short time, will greatly lower the Leafs' chances of finishing on top in the Canadian division. If their injuries keep them off the ice for the rest of the schedule Toronto may find their sufferers substantial strength to carry them into the playoffs at all.

Injury Not Serious

The injury to Clancy, spark-plug of many Leaf attacks and a great inspirational player, is not as serious as the bone fracture of his collarbone suffered by Horner. Both may shorten the veteran's playing days but the latter's loss is a game at Toronto last Saturday night when he was forced to leave during the first period.

Johnny Sorrell's goal midway through the second period gave Detroit Red Wings a 1-0 victory over Black Hawks in Chicago and the leadership of the American division. Black Hawks and Leafs battled with the Chicagoans until last night.

Beaten Out of Collar

Boston Bruins climbed out of one collar position and shoved Canadiens into another when they won from the Montreal Canadiens 4-3 at Montreal. The win put Bruins a point ahead of New York Rangers in the American section and left Canadiens trailing Chicago by the same margin in the Canadian.

American cause triumph in the pinches and richly deserved their win from the Torontonians. Twice in the first period, again in the middle session, Red Dutton's team took the Leafs' measure and established a goal advantage.

In the third Lionel Hapgy Day was on the penalty bench and Americans were playing four forwards and defencemen Earl Seibert and Ivy Conacher and drove in on Goalkeeper Ed Wares lonely duty.

Ted Graham, Boston defenceman, scored the winning goal at Montreal, scoring two of their goals. Both on passes from Peggy O'Neill. Canadiens tried hard in the third period, Graham beat them with his final tally midway through the period.

Red Beattie opened the scoring for Boston in the first and after Polly Dromin and Johnny Gagnon and Hathaway and Graham tied it up in final period. Babe Seibert got the only goal of the third frame and Jack McGill banged home the Canadien tally in the third.

Executive Prepares For Defence of Actions

Ottawa, Feb. 7 (CP)—Nine members of the Ottawa Roughriders Football Club, including President George P. Perley and Mayor Stanley Lewis, today prepared to defend themselves against expulsion from the Athletic Association of Canada, already ordered by President W. A. Fry.

Perley issued a brief statement early today after an executive meeting, saying the association would produce all evidence in its possession in an effort to clear itself of charges that the now-famous Roy Berry-Bobo Brimsek incident was "framed."

The A.A.U. of C. claims Bobo Brimsek, Boston Bruins goalkeeper, was induced by Eddie Shore, famous Bruins' owner, to sign a professional contract with the Eddies, Boston A.H.L. team, and thereby lose his amateur standing.

Perley said those at the executive meeting examined the question thoroughly and reached the opinion that Berry who played for the Roughriders was in fact Berry.

They recalled, he said, Berry registered as the Y.M.C.A. here in that name and received mail addressed to Berry as well as telegrams and mother expressing hope he would not get hurt during the season.

By RAY COLLETT

Target though he is, standing a little over five and a half feet high, Tommy Cook, Chicago Black Hawk centre sports about the longest stick in the N.H.L. And he knows how to use it, too, when he is carrying the puck around a pair of stalwart defencemen, bent on making him into a hockey-player sandwich.

Cook has another noticeable trait. He depends less on speed than most other crack centres. Though no slow mediator artist, Tommy doesn't streak along with a speed like Morenz, but depends upon peculiar halting style of movement which makes him very hard to "nail". Sometimes when he is moving up the ice, he disconcerts the opposition by practically halting as he reaches the blue line. Then while the defence casts around for his next move, Tommy slides slow but accurate passes through to his wings.

His odd twist which shifts the puck only a few feet at a time and that halting stride, has baffled many a coach, opponent, and King Clancy, who has met them all, figures he is one of the toughest to hit.

Tom learned much of his hockey lore with Dick Irvin and Duke Keats in the days those players ambled and taught him plenty. He is a Fort William boy and joined Chicago in 1929, bringed his fast but trusty blade into play when the Black Hawks' present coach centres tackle. He still is rated among the cleverest pivots on skates.

FOURTH WIN FOR TWEED SCHOOL

Defeat Strong Marmora Squad by Score of 3-1

Tweed, Feb. 7. — Tweed High School scored its fourth win as against no losses in the Interscholastic League by defeating the strong Marmora aggregation by a score of 3 to 1 on Tuesday night. The win practically qualifies them to meet Belleville C. I. in the first round of the play-downs. They have but two games left to play, one each against Madoc and Stirling in which they should have little difficulty in registering victories. The first period was unproductive of goals but both goal keepers were kept busy. Laffman scored with a shifting drive early in the second period. Leal getting an assist on the play. Cronkwright banged in the second a short time later on Long's pass. Laffman also notched the final counter early in the third period. Shannon tallied for the visitors in the final frame but they were unable to increase their total. The referees handed out seven penalties, five going to the locals. Leal, Laffman and Sayers were best for Tweed while Gray, Shannon and Kouri were the pick of the visitors.

Referees—T. N. Beatty, Tweed and P. Cousins.

Line-ups:

Tweed — Goal, Sayers; defence, Leal and Laffman; centre, Long; wings, Cronkwright and Trumpour; subs, Boyce, Trumpour, Courneya and Arber.

Marmora — Goal, Gray; defence, C. O'Neill and N. O'Neill; centre, Burridge; wings, Kouri and Shannon; subs, Leonard, Reynolds, Loveless and McCall.

W. HUNTINGDON IN FIRST PLACE

Defeat Foxboro, While Glen Ross Takes Bethel in Other Fixture

STIRLING, February 7.—(Special)—Entered in the Centre Hockey League gained momentum on Tuesday night, when the last year's champions improved their chances of a play-off berth when they scored their first victory of the season with a win over the speedy Bethel crew by a score of 4-3. West Huntingdon moved into first place when they defeated Foxboro by 4 to 2 in a real thriller.

First Game

In the first half of the double bill Bethel and Glen Ross gave a real short display of thrilling hockey with both teams at full strength for the first time this season. There was no alibis from the Bethel crew as they took a trimming from the tall timbers, and by virtue of their well earned victory Glen Ross still has a very good chance to make the play-offs. Every all hands on deck with exception of Brown the boys from the Riverside played up to their form of last year and looked like real champions. They must win their next game to stay in there and feel that they have shaken the Jinx and will go the limit now. They meet Foxboro next Tuesday night at Glen Ross, which of the two will be out of the running. Let's hope Glen Ross look fire straight to win the championship can they do it again—? Armstrong, Ackers and MacDonald were the goal getters for Glen Ross. Miller, Simmons, Wright and Canse scored for Bethel. It was a close gain with the winning goal being scored in the last half minute of play.

Lineups—Bethel—Goal, Rickey; defence, Culhane and Granston; Simms attack; wing, Lapiteile and R. Dickey. Alternate Miller, E. Dickey, Calvert.

Glen Ross — Hagerman, goal; Armstrong and A. Fraser defence; Hagerman centre; G. Fraser and H. Brooks, wings. Alternates Scott, Price and McDonald.

Referees—Ackers and Wallace, of Stirling.

Second Game

West Huntingdon displayed a world of class in the second game that is worthy of a league leading team in this throughout the game Mott, J. McGowan and Rodgers and Wright held the fast skating Foxboro team in check and scored several outstanding pays. Armstrong and Lee played their usual bang up game, but they were closely watched by the boys in black and white. Johnston and Aylworth got the counters for Foxboro, while Mott, Rodgers and West Huntingdon and Rodgers got the other four, the last few minutes of play it was real hockey. West Huntingdon eased up when they got two good goals up and others tried hard but the best they could do was to tie it 4-4.

Line-ups—Foxboro, Seeley, goal;

OLD COUNTRY SOCCER

BOB GURNEY, leading goal scorer for Sunderland last year, scoring thirty goals in forty games, which is a nice record. Plays a consistent game in the league last year from line, and has had much to do this year with the present position of the Sunderland team. Along with Patsy Gallacher is the kid of Roker Park fame. Packs a shot in both feet, and can play any position on the front line.

Otterley and Ketchenon defence; Lee, centre; Johnston and Kokcsan on the wings. Alternates—Dunn brothers.

West Huntingdon— Series, goal; McGowan brothers defence; Mott, centre; Rodgers and Wright wings; Alternates— Reid, Cook.

Referees—Ackers and Wallace, of Stirling.

FIRST GAME FOR DEACON SQUAD

All Players Under 18 And Have Shown Remarkable Progress

Carrying on where the Deacon Juniors left off last year in their efforts to wrest a Provincial Basketball Championship, ten up-and-coming exponents of the cage game will make their first public appearance at the B.C.I. gym tonight in a scheduled basketball game with Napance Juveniles. The local Juvenile team is again sponsored by the Deacon Shirt Company, and the flashy yellow and royal blue uniforms will again make their appearance.

In spite of the fact that the majority of the Deacon squad is playing its second year of basketball, the progress shown by the youthful players has been remarkable. The team presents a fast-breaking attack which is featured by short passing. Every player carries a penetrating scoring threat, and is equally strong alternates make the team one of the most powerful O.A.B.A. entries in its class, which has ever represented Belleville. On the forward lines, the Deacons have Gord. Edwards, Jack Dickens, John Ronskey, Jimmy Mitchell, with Ralph McCabe and George Mason alternating at centre. On the defence, George Kilner, Jack Power, Edgar Muir, Russ. Collins and Murray Clare throw up a strong enough combination plays had them well against opposing sharpshooters.

A game between an all-star girls' team versus the B.C.I. Junior boys' team will precede the O.A.B. A. fixture.

Winnipeg, Feb. 7 (CP)— Three Ontario rinks were still in the running for the Canada Packers shield in Manitoba's 48th annual bonspiel today but Eastern Ontario had only one competitor left in the Hiram McKinley Bay events.

Gordon Campbell of Hamilton, Canadian champion, clashes with Tom Reddie of Scotland, and Bob Campbell of Toronto meets the fiery four of Charlie Gamble for the Canada Packers event today. C. L. Campbell of Kenora meets the Hames four from Glenboro, Man., in the same event.

Bob Campbell of Toronto is the last surviving Ontario rink in the Hudson's Bay events. He met a Manitoba four, skipped by E. E. Pepper of Oakville, today.

In the Shea's event yesterday, the Ontario rinks fared well and remained in the running with such veterans as Roy Pritchard of Killarney, Jack Prentice of Kenora, ace of the Granite Club. Among them is the Rothendill ring from Toronto.

Johnny Sorrell, Detroit, scored the only goal in Red Wings' game with Chicago.

Normie Smith, Detroit, kicked out 44 Hawks shots to earn his fifth shutout of the season.

WHITTALL CANS EASY WINNERS OVER PROJECT

Score 19-0 Victory, The Largest Score in Loop to Date

AIRMEN DOWNED

Carrying Place Carried Too Much Speed For Flyers

Trenton, Feb. 7 (Special)—In the first game of the Trenton and District Hockey League matches played here at the arena Wednesday night, Whittall Cans swamped the lowly Project team by the score of 19 to 0. In the first period Whittalls scored five goals and held the Project team under close submission throughout the stanza. Miller opened the scoring with a shot taking a pass from Kidd. Kidd tallied the second on a pass from Chambers. Kidd scored a short right back and sank the third Whittall goal on a long shooting. Cain was credited for the fifth and sixth. The first which he scored was on a pass from Miller and the second on a lone rush.

The period ended with the Whittall forwards driving the rubber on Goalie Scott in the Project net from all angles. Jack Power then scored against the Project in the second period on a long drive. A well organized smooth combination plays had them completely baffled. Kidd scored Whittall's seventh goal on a shot from the blue line and Dadswell tallied the eighth on a pass from LaMorre. The siege let up for about twenty minutes but the next long before Whittalls enlarged their total. Miller scored on a beautiful pass from Kidd. The period closed with Cain scoring Whittalls eleventh goal of the game.

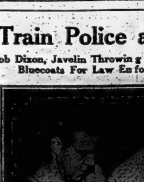
The third period was a repetition of the preceding two and in this period Whittalls scored seven. The first was registered by Kidd on a pass from Chambers. Although a Kerr was in the penalty box for charging a Project player it did not seem to change the game a bit, for Kidd mounted the Whittall total up to fourteen after going through the Project team alone. LaMorre scored the fifteenth on a pass from Miller and Kerr rushed up the ice alone to score the sixteenth. Kidd scored the seventeenth and eighteenth. Dadswell on a pass from LaMorre, and Kidd on a pass from Chambers. Chambers climaxed the game by scoring the nineteenth and last goal. Final score, Whittall Cans 19, Project 0.

Line-ups:

Whittall Cans—Goal, Frey; defence, Cain and Dadswell; centre, Kidd; wings, Miller and Chambers; subs, Power and LaMorre.

Project 26—Goal, Scott; defence, Guilvault and Currie; centre, Hill; wings, Hamilton and Graham; subs, Yorke and Lott.

Referee—Hall.



Carrying Place Wins.

In the second game of the evening between Carrying Place and R.C.A.F. there was as much difference between the scores as there was in position, as there is in day and night but the Airmen were not the well organized Carrying Place team fight their way to a victory over the Airmen. Before the Airmen got a chance to organize the Carrying Place team had scored two goals in the R.C.A.F. net. The first coming about when the ball was hit to start the game when Rosenplot shot from the left side of the net. Davis scored the second Carrying Place goal on a close in shot. About two minutes later the R.C.A.F. line of Laing, Baker and Wingate put the Airmen on the scoring score on one of the smoothest plays of the season. Baker received credit for scoring and Laing the assist. Soon after the Carrying Place team received a penalty for tripping and while he was off the Airmen certainly made things pop around the Carrying Place net. As the period ended Harrison of the R.C.A.F. was put off for charging.

The Carrying Place line of Davis, Johnson and Rosenplot was outstanding during the second and third periods and very often three of the four Carrying Place goals scored during the period. Johnson scored the opening Carrying Place goal by taking a neat pass-out from the side of the net by Rosenplot. Vanderveoort scored the fourth on Anderson's rebound. While Bohan of Carrying Place was in the cooler for chopping, Davis scored their fifth after he had gone through Kinsey, the plot let go a terrific shot from the blue line to score the Carrying Place sixth and last goal of the period. As the period ended Reid of the Airmen got into an argument with referee Chambers and as a result he was sent to the penalty box. It appears as though the Airmen could not take it in the last period and played a dirty game throughout. Baseball again went down on the scoring sheet when Johnson scored Carrying Place's seventh goal of the game and Rosenplot's did also as he scored Carrying Place's eighth and last counter of the night. While Bohan and Forty of Carrying Place were cooling off, Manners slipped through and tallied R.C.A.F.'s second and last goal of the game. From then on till the end the play roughened up and penalties were dealt out to Vancouver, Feb. 5— Vancouver policemen must keep in condition, especially the rookies who receive a thorough campaign of training before they are sent out on the street. The gymnasium, presided over by Instructor Walter R. Goss and his assistant Bob Dixon, empire javelin champion and premier 1936 Olympic star, provides that condition in healthy sizes.

Fan Jiu-Jitsu

Physical education is just being introduced to the Vancouver police force as a scientific part of their training. It will become increasingly important as finances and time permits. Eventually it is expected that courses in boxing, wrestling, jiu-jitsu and gymnastics will become part of every police-man's compulsory training.

Jiu-jitsu, a Japanese word has been made. The rookies are mustered and put through three weeks' preliminary training. A more advanced course is given regular members of the force.

The post-graduate courses specialises in modern police methods of apprehending troublesome criminals, charming them and making them "come along". And that's where certain of the grips get their name —"Come along" holds.

Want Trained Men

Drill Instructor Walt Goss described one of these, adopted from Japanese wrestling. When properly applied, the merest touch will break the subject's wrist and render him helpless.

The ultimate object is to make every member of the police force a polished athletic and gymnast. Standard equipment in the top-flicer gym now includes parallel bars, rings, horse, springboard, barbells and weights, pulley, weights punching bags and wrestling equipment.

Rosenplot of Carrying Place and Beck of R.C.A.F. exchanged a few blows but little damage was done as the players and referees parted them. Beck who still had a chip on his shoulder from the jangiement that he and Referee Chambers had in the game tried to take it out by shooting the puck at him but as he made a very poor attempt he missed. Referee Chambers took 19 in good part and did not issue a penalty. The game ended with the

"SPIDER" MAYLOCK AL GORDON

AUTO RACERS SKIDDING TO THEIR DOOM. — Two more black smark was added to the grim total of fatalities in auto racing when Al. Gordon, 34-year-old race driver, and his mechanic, "Spider" Maylock, were killed on a Los Angeles track after their car had left the course on the third turn of the grand prix and crashed down a 30-foot embankment before the horrified gaze of 15,000 persons. This remarkable photograph shows the car just as it hit the guard rail in a cloud of dust and spun back-wards to destruction. Gordon and his mechanic can be seen huddled together in the car. Gordon was instantly killed and Maylock died from injuries hours later.

Brain Concussion Suffered By Red Horner When Crashed To Ice by Dutton of Amerks

Examine Leaf Player Today For Possible Fracture

CHECK CLAIMED LEGAL

Eight Stitches to Close Gaping Wound on Head

New York, Feb. 7.—(CP)—Doctors planned to unwind the bandages from Reginald "Red" Horner's scarlet top today and determine with an X-ray full extent of the injuries he suffered when crashed to the ice last night in the Toronto-New York Americans hockey battle.

The hardy Maple Leaf defenceman was known to have sustained a brain concussion when Lorne "Gus" Dutton of the New Yorkers dropped him with a stiff check. It was believed to be slight but there was also the possibility of a skull fracture and an almost dull-like life of Irvin Bailey, another Leaf star, in 1933.

Attendants at the Polyclinic Hospital and assistant-manager Frank Sallis of the Toronto club, were optimistic over Horner's chances of being able to return to duty in a few days.

Telephone His Wife

Big Red was under observation for 15 minutes after his head crashed to the ice with a thud heard throughout the Madison Square Garden. But he had regained his full senses on reaching the hospital and telephoned his wife from there that there is no cause for alarm.

The fray split came as Horner engineered a three man thrust on the Toronto defence net. Charlie Wentworth fielded Red's shot, but Bum Bell swept in for the rebound. As Horner closed in, the burly Dutton checked him with such steam the Toronto rearguard was knocked off his feet.

Some writers in the press-box reported Dutton hooked his stick about Horner's neck. Sallis was of the opinion that it "undoubtedly was an accident." He pointed out Dutton was not penalized. Referee Bill Stewart, who handled the game viewed the check as legal.

Eight Stitches Taken

Horner was carried to a dressing room and Dr. Henry Cleary of the Americans staff closed a gaping gash on the back of the player's head. The diamond was then taken across to another, of three inches, running vertically. Eight stitches were taken, then Red was hurried across the street to the hospital.

Other members of the Leaf club had to sip into street clothes to catch a train for Toronto. The Americans play there Saturday night. Sally remained behind to see the injured player received every attention.

The latest accident to strike the ice sport in some ways paralleled that which ended the brilliant playing career of "Ace" Bailey. On all sides, however, apparently well-founded optimism was repressed, that the consequences would be worlds apart.

Bailey Incident Recalled

The "Ace" was knocked down by Eddie Shore in a Toronto-Boston game during December, 1933. He struck the ice with such force the skull fractured. Delicate trepanning operations saved his life after many anxious weeks, but he was never again returning to skates. He came back as a coach, however, and is now handling the Toronto rearguard squad.

Horner was the first to reach Bailey's side the night he was injured. Some argued Shore dropped the Toronto player accidentally. others held it was glaringly intentional. Big Red didn't stay long to type them. Instead he lashed out with fists that knocked Shore cold. The star Boston defenceman paid his debt during the uncertain days that struggled by. Shore drew a stitch or potentially broken down arm and it was some time before he was able to get back into harness.

Believe Decade Will Pass 'Ere Maritime Hockey Can Regain Allan Cup Calibre

Clean Sweep of Imports Leaves Homebrew Teams With Mere Shadow of For mer Greatness—Moncton Likely Winners

By W. J. Foley

Central Press Canadian Correspondent

Halifax Feb. 7.—Maritime sports men will live with only bitter memories of the golden deeds of the Moncton Hawks and the Halifax Wolverines for at least a decade.

For it will take at least ten years to build another Allan Cup winner in these provinces-by-the-sea, winners of the historic hockey silverware for three years running, with mighty machines in which important players formed the important cogs.

An exhaustive survey of the maritimes brings to light the fact that the day of the hockey tourist here is definitely at an end. There will always just how strong they were. Only three of the members of this well-knit team failed to tread the professional plains, most more than one has definitely "made good", in the words of sport. Wolverines have two players in the minors, Ken Runions and Owen Lennox, the former with Detroit's Olympics and the latter with London Tecumseths while Bill Cowley is a team member in 1936, is finding success with the Boston Bruins.

Incidentally was the best player the Wolves had in eight years of top-flight hockey? Not Cowley, Bobby Kerr, Bobby Hall and proved a play-maker par excellence. In a record of 35 goals, 30 assists in a well-knit four-team league will stand the years in time to come when "Big Time" hockey is now a thing of the past.

The small fry will challenge this spring for the Allan cup but hopes of victory are pitched high. There isn't a team in the provinces capable of giving either the Hawks or Wolves a run for their money. Even Allan cuppers were in form. Moncton Mayor, rounded and managed by Buddy James a New Brunswick boy who made good with the Hawks, has left with the mari-time title and move into Quebec for the opening round of Allan cup competition, but the Maroons and Hawks are in the upper bracket as ability is concerned that hockey followers shake their heads and murmur: "Our best is none too good."

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Sweeney Schriner of New York Americans is setting a scoring pace no other National Hockey League player has since Howie Morenz. Last night he scored the winning goal and an assist as New York Americans trod and shot out in front of the Big Seven again.

His two points gave him a total of 28 for more than Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers, who tied Schriner at 26 Tuesday, Bill Thoms of Toronto Maroons, who held third place alone with a goal against America. Paul Thompson of Boston Bruins is the only other Big Seven member to increase his total, adding an assist.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

This evening the local "Redmen" will make their appearance in Oshawa versus the "Cherries" in a game that decidedly will wind up the schedule in Group No. 1. Both Thomas' charges are going up to the Motor Town fully confident they can accomplish what Peterborough failed to do, namely trim the Cornwall in their own back yard. Regardless as to the result of tonight's tussle, however, the "Redmen" will return home on into the intermediate "B" play-downs starting next week while Oshawa will doubtlessly represent the east in the "A" series.

Manager Eddie Thomas expects to meet the fast Napanee Gibbards in the first round of the intermediate "B" play-downs and opened negotiations with the O.H.A. secretary Slipper Wall Gerow relative to respective dates for next week. Skipper Thomas would like to arrange the home and home series for Tuesday and Thursday of next week. The local arena is engaged for Wednesday night of next week, so it will have to be Tuesday and Thursday or Thursday and Friday. We have to go into another week if outside ice can't be arrived at amicably. The matter is being discussed over the telephone today.

In order to make the V.O.N. carnival and charity hockey game a success, Belleville must get a big interest of all citizens behind the project. Chief Ridley's Cornwall hockey team will be called upon to meet a hockey team composed of Belleville players and the local police, service clubs, namely the Rotarians, Kinsmen, Kiwanians, Y's Men and Clubs. Other city notables have been asked to join the enterprise and assist in boosting the project. Arrangements to have both the policeskaters and the amalgamated service club team appear in nasty costumes is also on the books. Of course the players may be all decked out in nice clean sweaters, stockings and pants, but that will in no way assist some of them in standing on their own shanks. At any rate there is to be a program presented sufficiently long to interest all classes and ages.

Our Peterborough contemporary who makes cracks when he's sure he's safe about the alleged amateur foreign fields, has not informed his gigantic field of readers some really interesting news from along the banks of the Otonabee. Although we got this bit of news from the fans turning out to wrestling matches in Belleville these days" cautiously queried Mr. Harris. After being informed that the grappling business was on the decline locally, Mr. Harris hurled another question at us. "Do you think your fans would pay fifty cents to see such men as Little Bearer, Rocky McDougall, Bibber McCoy and men of the highest calibre in the wrestling game appear here weekly?" We did not answer Mr. Harris at that time, but promised to personally contact as many wrestling fans as possible on the subject. What do you think?

After Umpire Dolly Stark announced he was a hold-out from the amateur staff of the National League for 1936, President Ford Frick immediately replaced him with a Texas League umpire, all of which goes to show that as much devotion as Bill Klem bestows Stark is alleged to have received $4,000 for the 1933 season in the National League, which does not include any small stipend less than six months' work; and as Tim Hurst once said, "You can't beat them boys, for three innings and still win a game."

Down around Kingston there is some talk of a new baseball park being built in conjunction with the placing of a pro. ball team in the Limestone City.

Tonight's sport picture turns to the R.C.I. gym where two class games are on the card, one being an experimental nature when a team of girls, the first ever to take the floor, will meet the pyramid-day junior hoop squad of the R.C.I. The game will be played under boys' rules. The feature game of the evening, however, is a regular scheduled Napanee versus the Deseron A.C. squad in the senile section of the O.A.B.A. Coach Pete Smith's Albert street boys journey to Picton for a Bay of Quinte interscholastic cage struggle while a triple header of industrial League hockey is being played at the arena as well.

While enroute to Ottawa recently, George Harris, secretary of the Queenbury A. C. and Jack Corcoran's tight hand man, dropped in on us for a short visit. "How are the fans turning out to wrestling matches in Belleville these days?" cautiously queried Mr. Harris. After being informed that the grappling business was on the decline locally, Mr. Harris hurled another question at us. JOE MANGAN UPSETS CUNNINGHAM IN WANNAMAKER MILE—The finish of the famous Wanamaker mile in the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden, New York is pictured. Joe Mangan, former Cornwall track star, who now represents the colors of the W.T.A.C., smashed the strides by defeating Glenn Cunningham, the Kansas star and raised world's fastest miler, who was third. Not since 1933 has the former Cornwall lad been defeated in a mile race, and the last time Gene Venzke turned the trick. This time Venzke also showed his heels to Glenn, finishing in second place honors. The finishers—LEFT to RIGHT—and their times were: Joe Mangan, first 4.11; Gene Venzke, second, 4.11.1; and Glenn Cunningham, third, 4.11.2.

MAYHEM OR MADNESS WHEN BLINDFOLDED WRESTLERS TANGLE—Spectators howled themselves hoarse with excitement as five blindfolded wrestlers and a referee were thrown in a ring at Lake Worth, Fla., and told to go to it. There were no holds barred and may the best man win. The participants were getting blows from all sides. They would drop to the mat, arise and continue the fight until they were exhausted hors de combat. The referee came in for his share of the pummeling until the winner was decided. Some of the men are shown in the above picture.

SKIING

(By Herman Bautzman, author of 'Learn to Ski')

Among all major sports there is hardly one that has gained such a nation and world-wide popularity as a comparatively short time as skiing. In years gone by, but a very few people engaged in some out-of-door sports during the wintertime. Now, the stadiums and the icy fields over skiing makes wintertime a much beloved and appreciated season for the many million people in all parts of the world. Quite contrary to the opinion of non-skiers that one can only engage in this sport in mountainous regions, we find ski clubs and ski enthusiasts almost anywhere, providing there is a few inches of snow in the ground wintertime.

These facts naturally make one curious to know the reasons for the free adoption and evergrowing number of followers this sport has. One of the reasons is that skiing makes the so often dreaded winter season a very agreeable part of the year, during which much happiness and health can be had and the moving in the cold clean winter air does wonders with well-being.

Another reason is that the motions in skiing are so completely natural and harmonize so perfectly with the instinctive movements of our body, that it is very easy to learn and no great strength or outstanding muscle power is necessary for the proper execution of the skiing motions.

Because, first of all, skiing is meant to be a recreation and a health builder, begin our practice with which men and women are trying to be masters and measure their skill in inspiring competitions.

After mentioning the word recreation—the next question would be who can go out and find recreation through skiing. The answer, anyone who feels young and has a love of nature. To see how right this answer is, all one has to do is to look at the people who are already engaged in skiing. To see many a silver-white head of hair among all the brown, red and blond, and to hear that many skiers are carrying over half a century on their shoulders must make us realize that there is something fascinating and very grand about this winter sport.

The previous words will perhaps help to convince some non-skier to think seriously of taking up skiing.

Quite realizing that one can become a good skier without outside affiliation, it is very advisable for a beginner to obtain membership in a ski club. The advice and the pleasure one gets out of the society of one's fellow-members engaged in this joyful sport are of ample value to reimburse you for the usually very small membership fee. The fact that skiing has interested so many people from all different positions of life and which are in fine comradely spirit enjoying themselves in this sport, has inspired our Canadian Ski Club to hold their membership fees so low that everyone can join a club.

The next object would be the purchase of the ski-equipment. An absolute novice acts wisely in taking the advice of a somewhat ski-experienced friend. Definitely, it may be said that the size of the pocket book is determinate of the quality. A beginner should buy with a view to the substantial rather than the expensive. The fact that there is a foreign label on a pair of skis does not make them any easier to learn on. Proof of this can easily be seen in some of our Canadian ski-grounds. For instance, Bloomfield, Ontario. To see some of the children there ski on a pair of crudely homemade skis in masterly style shows that almost anything can be done with the good spirit behind it. To go into the different details of ski equipment purchases, would need considerable space, therefore my advice is to buy a good inexpensive book on skiing which generally has a detailed explanation of the ski-equipment. One also finds explanations as to the care of the ski equipment in a ski book.

Briefly, it will be stated that the right length of skis is one on which you can enclose the point on the upright standing with your hand when the arm is stretched above the head, and do not choose skis too narrow. Two and three-quarters to three and one-quarter inches are the suitable dimensions. Poles must be made out of good stong lonkin and should be long enough to reach up to your arm pits. Take good care to buy a pair of strongly made bindings. Shoes for ski-wear should be large enough to be comfortable with room for a pair of socks made from water-proof wool. Wear clothing that is made from a closely woven material which does not permit the snow to stick on it.

We begin our practice lesson with a talk on how to fall right. Anybody learning to ski will take a few tumbles. Taking them in the wrong way they might spell quite a bit of the fun one should get out of skiing. Therefore, remember this, the safest way to fall is not to let your self be thrown, but sit down in the snow voluntarily. This is best done by going in a very low crouch position and letting oneself fall sideways-backwards in the snow. Remember falling onto the skis is not very pleasant, therefore, the advice to fall sideways. Do not overlook the advise to go into a low crouch as in so doing you lessen the force of the fall. Into this chapter belongs the suggestion to take the hands out of the straps on the poles when skiing on wooded trails. The snow disks of the poles might easily be caught in roots and branches, and if your hands are in those straps a painful accident may occur to your arm or wrist.

Skiing on the Level

A very understandable desire of the average novice is as soon as he has skis on for the first time, to pick out a good ski-hill, get some way or other on top of it and start shooting down. This practice ends in 99 out of 100 cases in a head-long plunge snow-wards, and has discouraged many beginners. If one's desire is to become an efficient skier he must realize that the learning of the simplest motions is, in skiing, just as important as in everything else in life. Therefore, let us begin with skiing on the level.

In skiing on the level, our limbs move in the motions they go through while walking, meaning when the right ski is brought forward, the left pole-holding arm moves also forward. The pole is forcefully put into the snow opposite the binding of this forward foot, the weight of the body is always shifted onto the forward foot, and the heel of this pressed onto the ski. If now a back-pull movement is applied to the forward ski, then you are in motion. When the speed of this motion is noticeably slackened, then your left foot is brought forward, and your right arm doing the poling and so on. Mind, do not lift your skis off the snow but rather let your skiing on the level be a continuous gliding motion. The essence of this lesson is, in skiing on the level, weight is, in skiing on the forward foot, heel well down on the ski, and your poling arms moving in the same rhythm as they do while walking

THE TALMADGE SISTERS RE-UNITED

Many years before the advent of the talkies, when the cinema industry was just getting out of its swaddling clothes, three sisters from Brooklyn were projected with sensational suddenness to the top ranks of the film roster. They were pert and vivacious Constance Talmadge, languorous and beautiful Norma Talmadge, and attractive Natalie Talmadge. Their ways parted, and for the past twelve years they have never been able to get together until now, although they always corresponded. They had twelve years of news to impart to each other as they held this reunion at Palm Beach. LEFT TO RIGHT, are Natalie Talmadge, the former Mrs. Buster Keaton; Mrs. Townsend Netcher (Connie Talmadge), of Chicago, and Mrs. George Jessel (Norma Talmadge) of Hollywood.

WORLD'S ONLY BICYCLE RIDING CANARY

Looking for all the world like a six-day bicycle rider on the sixth day, this two-year-old canary, "Buddy", is called "the only bicycle-riding canary in the world". The bird was photographed on a mechanized bicycle, having been trained to this stunt by his master, Emanuel Myers of New York City.

KING WINTER LETS LOOSE BROADSIDE ON ONTARIO

Blizzard, sleet, snow, rain, gales—all the forces of King Winter have been let loose on Eastern Canada, paralyzing traffic, cutting whole communities off from the outside world. The cold wave, following on the heels of a short, sudden thaw, has sent thermometers tumbling well below the zero mark. Lake Ontario, lashed to a fury by a 60-mile-an-hour gale, is shown here crashing over the breakwater at Toronto, turning the roadway into a sheet of ice.

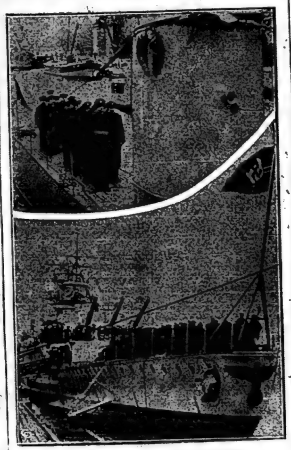
STRIKE MAY FORCE NEW YORKERS TO WALK

New Yorkers might be proud of this scene showing the towering buildings of Manhattan, world's greatest metropolis. But if the operators of elevators actually go on strike, tall buildings will be a curse to all who work in them. Smith's Empire State structure, top in the world's tallest building. All floor workers will have to walk 102 flights of stairs to get to the top.



IS THIS KING CAROL'S MASSEUR?—Is this man "a representative of Armenia?" Is he "a representative of Transylvania?" Or is he a Mr. Stoebes, an Austrian masseur, who, called to prepare King Carol of Roumania for the long funeral march, was caught in King George's funeral procession and marched in his working clothes with the brilliantly-garbed dignitaries of the Roumanian monarch's entourage? Anyhow, this is a photo, via R.C.A. radio from London, of the central figure in the amusing story which has neither been denied nor affirmed by the embarrassed Roumanian legation, who, however, point to what might be a medal on his coat.

GERMANY RE-BUILDING HER NAVY

Announcement from Berlin reveals that Germany is planning to build her navy up to the fullest strength allowed them under treaty recently agreed upon with Britain. The treaty violates Versailles, giving Germany a fleet about 35 per cent. as strong as Britain's, and an air force of equal size. Above pictures show two recent launchings, top, a new submarine at Kiel; below the last of Germany's pocket battleships just launched at Wilhelmshaven. It is the 18,000-ton cruiser, "Admiral Graf Spee".

HUGE SAN FRANCISCO BRIDGE NEARING COMPLETION—Heretofore suspension bridge spans have been constructed from the towers, with the use of traveller cranes. Engineers directing the building of the 4½-mile San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge are putting the spans of that structure together from the middle. Nine sections of steel deck were raised to the steel wire cables and hung there from suspender ropes looped over the two main cables, to put together the 940 feet of deck shown in the lower picture. It is an innovation in bridge building. At top, a striking view of the bridge showing the east approach. It will provide a six-lane highway for motor cars and tracks for inter-urban cars between the bay city and Oakland. This section of the bridge is almost completed.

Dale Plays The Game

BY

Ann Forester

"Help—Oh, help—Oh, help!" Dale screamed as Brant pushed the bowl of the wind. Oh, God, please send someone here.....Brant.....Brant.....That terrible grasp on her waist was such she couldn't breathe..... she was going to faint—Oh, no! no; she mustn't faint! If she could only get some air.....Brant....God, send Brant.....

A sharp bang, a swirl of wind and rain swept into the room, sending a paste crashing to the floor. Wrenching Kemp around in surprise, making him drop his arms suddenly.....

Dale staggered back against the wall, sucking in air in a painful gulp. The room rocked in her dizzy case, but she could see—over there by the open door, rain driving about him.....Brant.....

CHAPTER IX.
—THE FIGHT—

There was a tense moment when all the trio held the tableau. Brant's eyes were blazing. His face was twisted into an expression which made Dale gasp.

As though that slight sound broke the spell, Brant leaped for the other man. He knew in that moment Brant's was the advantage of surprise. But Kemp, unscathed by the stunt Kemp rallied. He thrust the girl out of his way and guarded. It was a clinch fight, both men saving their breath for the effort of holding their ground.

Kemp was the stronger; Brant's illness had pulled him down. It was only his cunning and agility which, at first, made him the aggressor. Soon he was hard pressed to fix back his own. Time after time he got a hand up to the other's throat, only to have Kemp tear it down.

The two men's strained breathing filled the room between the fierce gusts of wind. Once they swayed back and hung over a table. Brant was forced back until he felt his spine must surely snap under the strain. Kemp was the aggressor now. Brant's guard was broken. He felt the other man's hands clawing up—fumbling for his throat.

Pressed against the wall, out of sight of Dale, brooding figures, mad gave a start, protesting, cry, as through that grave him courage, Brant recovered himself with a terrific lunge and once more the jockeying figures swayed bright.

Both men were gasping now. A chair went down with a crash. Kemp was slowly, surely, forcing Brant's head back with his elbow.

Brant's groping fingers found the other's throat. He dug his fingers in the flesh, gasping at the wiry pulse with his thumbs. God! Was the man made of steel? Back.....Back.....He was forced to give a step to avoid that unbearable pain in his spine. Kemp was his strength—he thought in pants. Why couldn't he hold his own?

Brant ordered his fingers to tear Kemp, to grip him until in sheer fatigue the man must quit. But his cramped muscles could not obey.

As Kemp dashed his head against the other's searching fingers, Brant had a flash of Dale. Pressed against the wall..... scared dark eyes in a chalky face..... What would become of her if he were killed? Kemp was such a mad man now who would stop at nothing.....

With concentrated effort Brant tore his head loose from Kemp's clutch and shouted hoarsely at the girl:

"Get out! The car.... to the Wattles....."

Kemp's grip at his throat again. Kemp's face livid with passion..... his bared teeth clenched in a horrid smile..... Back.....Back.....

Don't lose footing. Kemp would kill him if he ever got him to the floor. He must give a step—the man was breaking his neck. Something warm and slimy in his eye. Brant eased his head to free his sight of blood. Blood from the barked knuckles on his hand, for it was oily slippery and kept him from getting a good grip.

Brant clinched with Kemp, striving to swing him around to see if Dale had obeyed. She was gone.....The weak relief of that made him relax his guard. Back..... hurtling back with Kemp, over, him.....Something caught him in the back of the knee, crumpling his legs under him, pitching him back so suddenly that Kemp stumbled and nearly went with him.

A flash of something white flapping in his face. A shrill scream of mingled fright and triumph.

"Brant! Help me!"

The sharpness of the cry pierced the dark haziness creeping over Brant. He rubbed the blood from his eyes and stared.

Kemp—lashing like a mad man in the folds of the table cloth which Dale was flung over his head and arms. The girl—a swirl of flying hair and gleaming eyes and teeth—was hanging to the table cloth and, like a wildcat, switched violently from side to side as the blinded man struggled to free his arms.

It was not Marquis-of-Queensberry, it was a fiendish Brant heaved himself up from the fallen chair over which he had stumbled and went to Dale's aid. The cloth was stout cotton. It pinned Kemp's arms to his sides as effectively as a straight jacket. Kemp's feet were now his only weapon.

With a mighty effort Brant twisted the body aside and tied them. He heard a hysterical giggle from the girl and recognized the danger sign.

"Stop that!" he yelled.

Dale caught her breath in a little sob lost in Kemp's muffled swearing.

A last vicious blow and Brant had him blinded prisoner across the room, and out the open door, battering him into the welter of rain and wind.

The table cloth was soaked in a moment, making it harder than ever for the floundering man to untie the knot and escape. But the rain did more. It cooled Kemp's head, putting out the fires of drink and rage. The grey reality dawned on his muddled consciousness. Resentful—blaspheming, Kemp finally slung the wet cloth to the ground and, miserably aware that the struggle was over, from the window climbed in his car and slammed in the gears.

Inside the house, Dale's threatened hysteria came in a storm of sobs. Shaking herself at first, clutching him convulsively, holding him so tightly that the storm of her sobs shook them both. Brant was still panting. His wiped eyes were over his eye to free it from blood, but the other held the girl in a firm grip.

Both man and woman were shaken to their deepest natures, jolted out of the ridiculous molds of convention into which they had blindly fitted. A sense of primitive outrage had been lit in the heart of the man, and the light of battle had not died out of his eyes. He was a cave man defending his mate. Another had invaded his home. Another had threatened his woman.....A fierce sense of possession surged in him. Brant spoke thickly, his lips twisted from his teeth.

"No," said Dorsky. "I have come to give you your last chance. You know the location of the treasure vaults of Opar, and can lead us to them. Agree to this when Comrade Zverf returns, and you will not be harmed. Refuse and you die."

He drew a long, slender stiletto from the sheath at his belt. "If you refuse to answer me, I shall accept that as evidence that you have not accepted my proposition." The man maintained his stony silence. The Russian held the thin blade low before his eyes.

"Think well," he said, "for I shall pierce your heart with this, and leave it there until the blood has ceased to flow. Then I shall close the wound and tell the police that you died from that accidental gunshot. You will not be avenged; you will have died uselessly."

"I wish I'd killed him—the rotten cur!"

Dale's voice rose hysterically from his chest. "I called you! I called you—and I looked up and there you were....."

"I came back—the man explained automatically. "There was a cloud burst up Dry Creek—it washed out the bridge. I couldn't go to town, so I came back."

"Oh, if you hadn't!" Dale buried her face hard against Brant's chest again. "If you hadn't!"

The shrill terror of the girl's thought caught Brant's attention. "Hush, darling. It's all right now."

Neither knew how it happened. Dale's face, wet with tears, was crushed against Brant's own blood smeared one. Her arms crept about his neck to pull his lips down on her own.

Steve Kemp was forgotten. Forgotten the storm rocking the little shack and dashing at the windows with futile fury. Forgotten the whole grey world. Dale and Brant were wrapped in a celestial flame which blinded them to all save the glory of each other.

"Oh, I love you..... I love you..... I love you....."

"The girl said it over and over as an ecstatic chant. Brant said nothing, but his eyes were burning as they plunged into her own, and Dale felt her whole soul going up to meet the sweet fire of his kiss.

CHAPTER 27.
THE SHADOW OF THE FUTURE

After the storm, a change, sweet and strange, went over the desert. The faintest hint of green flushed the purple of the hills. The air was soft and moist, like a kiss on the face. Over night the desert flowers burst into bloom. Red and blue and glorious golden yellow they bobbed and danced frowzery and hollow, filling the eye with color and motion. The desert was transformed; the barren land had found water.

In the same manner a sweet and mysterious change had gone over Dale. Each day now was flushed with hope and tinged with tenderness. She had a sense of warm protection. Life had depth which Dale had never read in it before. Her starved and meager existence had burst into glorious bloom. She loved and she was beloved. The desert was transformed; the barren land had found water.

The intensity of her own love for Brant secretly astonished Dale. When she remembered Phil and her feelings toward him, she felt a little touch-of self scorn: That love which she had known for Phil! Her lip curled. It had been tonaltinee—prodigality, perhaps—the romantic yearnings of an immature girl. Certainly it was not this true and steadfast ardor which she knew for Brant. Why, compared to the brooding, tender love she now knew, the sentiment she had felt for Phil Clifford was merely the shadow cast by her own longings.

When Dale had discovered that Phil was disloyal, she had been bitter—resentful—but if ever she discovered Brant to be disloyal—Dale's heart gave a sick lurch—why she would be crushed! She would not want to live! But he wasn't! she said to herself with solemn joy. He was true! He was true! He was dearer—truer than anything on earth! And he was her own—

The little wooden shack was glorified by love; the desert was a garden. What had been deadly monotony became calm—contentment. Dale went about her work with a song on her lips. Watching her blithely working about the house, Brant found it hard to believe she was the sullen-eyed girl he had found working in Sandy's lunch room.

FATHER CRITICAL

Horribly Burned Trying to Save Children From Inferno

London, Ont., February 8 (CP)—Search was started today among the ruins of William Carpenter's small brick farmhouse in London Township for the bodies of four of his children, who lost their lives, when fire caused by an explosion of gasoline demolished their home last night.

Their mother, who gave birth to her eighth child, a boy, yesterday in a private home here, has not yet been told of the tragedy.

The dead are: Walter, aged 14; Rena, 12; Jack, 7; Marion, 3½ years.

Carpenter, in the house on the fifth concession, about two miles east of Byron, was within the time of the explosion, suffered burns about his face, hands, arms and head and was cut about the hands and arms. He was brought to St. Joseph's Hospital here in a snowplough as the roads in zero weather, his condition is considered critical.

Gasoline Explodes

The fire was caused when Jack, who along with the other two older children, was preparing to go skating, walked indoors with a chilled pail of gasoline which he had used to clean skates.

As he passed on the floor, the can crashed under the sudden heat and the gasoline shot in upward showers on the kitchen stove, then downward the red-hot wood stove.

The father escaped with burns as he forced open a sash. He made one sweep with the blanket and there was a sudden explosion, followed by a burst of flame.

Knocked against the back door from the force of the explosion, Carpenter made a grab for the girl Marion. His grasp on Mrs. Hall's dress and he fell out the door which had opened under the weight of both.

Unable to re-enter the raging inferno through the door, Carpenter turned around to a window, smashing it with his fist, he reached in, in a frantic effort to clutch one of the children, but none was within arms' length.

Realizing the futility of his efforts to save the children by himself, his clothes a mass of flames, the father rushed to the home of Jack Ferguson, about 300 yards away, where he collapsed.

Smothered Flames

Ferguson and his son smothered the flames on Carpenter's clothes and then hurried back to the blazing structure, belching smoke and flames from every window.

Ferguson's London salesman, entered the frame lean-to and crawled on his hands and knees to the kitchen but there a wall of fire turned him back.

By the time he got back in the open, Carpenter had returned and a neighbor had gathered, but they were helpless to aid. First men to reach the scene pumped the well dry as they used pails to throw water on the house.

Cyril Hallan, a neighbor youth, put a ladder to two of the upstairs windows in an effort to reach the baby but the flames ignited the wood and he was compelled to withdraw it.

It was only a matter of minutes until the house collapsed through into the basement and only four walls were left upright. Part of a small stand was the only thing recognizable in the mass of flames and smoke.

Later, when the flames started to subside, a body, apparently that of one of the older children, could be seen a few feet inside the front door, all a spot where the foot of the stairs had been. It appeared as though the child had tried to get upstairs in the baby.

Coroner H. A. Henderson and a Provincial Police officer visited the scene last night, but as the fire was still smouldering, decided to leave it and will re-visit the site today.

Another son, Granville, was at the home of his grandmother, Mrs. Sadie Cooper, about a mile away on a visit.

FLAMES START MASS FLIGHT

Cristobal, C.Z., Feb. 8.—Thirty-two United States navy airplanes took off from Coco Solo on a great mass flight yesterday in the strategic Caribbean theatre. 1,200 miles to the southwest in the Pacific Ocean.

Many Employees Found 'Daffy'

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP)—Dr. Robert McGlothin, psychologist, declared deaffiness today as at a high level in the offices and factories of the United States. Dr. McGlothin estimated 30 to 50 of every 100 employees are "mentally deficient" from "mild mental aberrations." At least that number employed and examined, he said in a paper prepared for the American Psychological Association's convention, held down into white-collared ranks from the bottom rungs of industry.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Kansas City, Feb. 8 (CP)—Police have about decided the seven game hen't a gamble—it's a racket.

The game works like this: A hen lays seven eggs. Into each of 12 holes have been drilled. If he guesses any hole but No. 7 you win. But he always chooses No. 7.

Police business interested. They learned the racket and closed it down the way. And he hens have been forgetting, the hole was filled with cement.

Wichita, Kan., Feb. 8 (CP)—C. E. King, Kingman, Kan., manager of a petroleum Company for $1,488, took the witness stand in his own behalf in his testimony with this prayer:

"Dear Jesus, help me this time!"

He was acquitted by a jury.

Hartford, N.C., Feb. 8 (CP)—Given no help by doctors, Mrs. Sallie Bullock, of Perquimans county, performed a tracheotomy on herself, Mrs. Bullock, 70, lay in the Northwest Hospital, put her hand on her throat, made a slit with a pocket knife, then with a pencil made a hole in the slit, and placed it on the foot of all passenger. The hoses appeared, on the foot of Dan Hall, 10.

Kenilworth, N.J., Feb. 8 (AP)—The Board of Education voted to dismiss Mrs. Ethel Pierson, teacher in Harding School, on charges of mistreating two girl pupils by slapping their faces and pulling their ears as punishment for talking and refusing to recite. Testimony that still liked their teacher, and one girl testified she helped Mrs. Pierce paste the tape over her mouth.

Baltimore, Md., (CP)—When fire broke out in a 5-story movie theatre here, patrons were more concerned with getting their money back than in seeing flames at work. Police had to force the crowd of 1,000 customers away from the door so firemen could get to the blaze. Then they let them in. The cashier was pushed through a china door and refused to talk.

Norfolk, Va., (CP)—Tell about cold weather! Beulah Benjamin, an old timer, says away back in '23 it was pretty cold too. "It said the Weaver shot a Buffalo that had a hide so thick the bullet bounced off it and he was sparing five buffalo coats," he said.

$315,000 Slugs Cheat Company

New York, Feb. 8 (CP)—Display of $1 bills in the window of an honest man could eliminate a lot of New York counterfeiting, Secret Service Chief Frank J. Wilson declared today in the findings of the New York Times. Wilson said that the counterfeit of two alleged manufacturers of metal slugs which, when inserted in vending machines for soft drinks, cigars and cigarets in subways, docks and elsewhere, netted the gang a "money value loss" of $315,000 in nickels.

The use of the "nickel" slugs cost the subway concessionaires no loss, Wilson said, according to information furnished by officials.

King Edward Tells Senator How He "Got Even" With Photographers

Ottawa, Feb. 8 (CP)—Rt. Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Government leader in the Senate, told the Senate chamber how King Edward as Prince of Wales "got even" with newspapers for publishing pictures of him thrown by horses.

The Senator described a meeting with the Prince in 1927 and a discussion of horse racing in which the Prince said he had not many falls than the average rider, but "those photographers had him in the papers all the time."

SHOT THRU BRAIN YOUNG BOY LIVES AFTER OPERATION

Bullet Splits in Two Traverses Both Length And Depth of Brain

NOW NORMAL

No Mental Disturbance Remains by Reason of Unusual Accident

DINNSPAIL, Alta., Feb. 8.—(CP)—Complete recovery of Frank Ashley Oughton, 16-year-old Raven, Alta., boy after a bullet had passed through the centre of his brain was announced today by Dr. C. F. Dorcy of Innisfail who attended the injured boy.

The bullet tore into Elmer's head behind the ear, passed the brain and lodged in two at the skull and stopped at the surface of the brain. Particles of the bullet, thrown by centrifugal force, spread an inch forward from the point of contact.

The lad, shot accidentally December 23rd at Raven by his brother Hershel, who was cleaning a rifle, is now in hospital. All the mental functions appear normal," said Dr. Dorcy.

The remarkable part of the case is that a bullet travelling practically the whole length and depth of the brain should cause so little disturbance of the delicate mechanism of the skull.

The lad made rapid recovery after Dr. Dorcy and Dr. H. Marsden, of the provincial Hospital staff, Innisfail, performed operation performed a trepanning operation January 11 to relieve the intracranial pressure and also with the hope of being able to remove the bullet but it had penetrated through to the other side of the skull in this area.

Young Oughton is too young by law to allow removal without causing other complications, Dr. Dorcy explained. The decompression by removal of an area of bone and allowing the pressure to escape from the brain previously occupied by the remaining blood clot relieved the intracranial headaches and the partial blindness.

THE LAST FAREWELL—King Edward VIII (arrow) is seen as he sprinkled some earth upon the casket of his father, George V, after it had been lowered into the floor of St. George's chapel at Windsor castle, England, burial place of British kings. The Queen Mother is shown in foreground facing the burial crypt.

GIBSON SILENT WHEN SENTENCED

No Comment Made by Counsel as to Possible Appeal

In sentencing Charles Gibson to three years, in the penitentiary and to three lashes on conviction by the jury of attempted rape, his Honor Judge McIlwraith Friday afternoon at the assize at Belleville said he would take cognizance of the jury's plea for leniency and that it was a very painful duty to pass sentence.

"Mr. Donman", His Lordship said, as he looked in the direction of the Crown Attorney.

"My Lord, I move the sentence of the court," replied Crown Attorney Donman.

"Gibson, stand up," said His Lordship.

"Have you anything to say why the sentence of the court should not be passed upon you?" asked His Lordship.

Mr. C. A. Payne, K.C., defendant counsel, in speaking for the accused requested the court to take into consideration the circumstances in the case.

"The accused until found guilty of this offence had an excellent unblemished reputation. I ask you to consider this when you pass sentence."

Mr. Justice McEvoy in delivering judgment said:—"You have had a very fair trial. The jury has recommended mercy. Think, however, of that poor girl". The Court pointed out that anyone convicted of attempted rape is liable to a period of seven years' imprisonment.

"You will be confined to Kingston Penitentiary for three years and receive three lashes, one at the time of entry and two others upon discharge."

Mr. Payne, defence counsel, had no comments to make whether there would be an appeal or not.

The prisoner was immediately led by the cell where he has been confined for the past five months awaiting trial.

He was described today by Mr. O. French as a model inmate during the period of remand while awaiting trial.

CHARLES CURTIS DIES SUDDENLY

Former Vice President of United States Suffers Heart Attack

Washington, Feb. 8 (AP)—Charles Curtis, former Vice President and long-time Senator from Kansas, died today of a heart attack was the cause.

Dr. George H. Calver, physician, announced the death of the former President.

"Honorable Charles Curtis, former Vice President of the United States of America, died of a heart attack at 6:45 this morning."

Elected in 1928

Curtis was elected to the House of Representatives continuously until 1907. In that year he was elected to the United States senate with the exception of a period from 1912 to 1915 when he was defeated, until his election as Vice President in 1928.

Since expiration of his term as Vice President, Curtis has practised law in the Capital.

He made his home with his sister, Mrs. Permelia Everett Gann. He was a widower.

COTTON BALES DAMAGED

Welland, Ont., Feb. 8—(CP)—Fire early today in the wool-packing room of the Welland Harness Company, Empire Cotton Mills, caused unestimated damages to cotton bales.

Firemen believed to have originated from a machine spark, was discovered by employees of the cotton mill and the Welland fire department. A lengthy task is ahead of the fire fighters as each smouldering bale has to be pulled out by hand with water.

Fifteen Ounce Baby Born in Cab

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 8.—Fifteen-ounce Nancy Lee Yost fazed last night physicians described a "crucial period".

The smallest infant on record here, born prematurely Sunday, took food through a rubber tube "life line", in place of the previously used medicine dropper.

Her feeding was increased from 30 to 45 drops an hour of mother's milk injected directly into the stomach through the tube.

Jaundice and rapid evaporation of moisture from the tiny body were reported by Georgy Wood, hospital superintendent, to be the principal threats to the spark of life.

MEMBER SAYS HE HEARD PROMISE

Makes Statement, That Premier Offered Dividend

Edmonton, Feb. 8 (CP)— Alberta's Legislature was well underway today with 18 bills listed for consideration and the first clash on Social Credit principles registered.

W. R. Howson, Liberal leader, in adjourning the throne speech debate yesterday, declared the government had no intention of carrying out promises of the promised $25 bank dividend to citizens either at the present session or the next session.

The government should resign if it fails to carry out its promises. When Social Credit members demanded Mr. Howson name members who did not believe the dividend would be paid, Mr. Howson named H. C. Hadan, Mr. Nanto-Clarkshon. Mr. Haslan was not in the house.

"I would like to see him get up in his place and pledge himself to a basic dividend of $25 a month," I would like to see every minister stand up and give that pledge. Not that promise was made time and time again by the premier of this province," said Mr. Howson.

Denial Made

J. H. Unwin, (S. Edton—"It was never promised by anybody."

W. J. Lanjsey, S. C. Peace River —"Did you ever hear anyone promise this adults would be given $25 a month?"

Mr. Howson—"Many, many times. I heard the premier say it and that it could and would be done. The premier promised the people and accepted. Standing in the most sacred place in the world, that is the throne, in the eloquent way his eyes heavenward and his hand raised, made the promise.

"The premier told the workingmen he would get an honest return for his labor. But I am distressed to hear that the Premier would now abandon the cause on the Calgary Albertan, the government would not be appealed to by the fair wage and fair hours per week law."

CHANGE CHARGE TO ONE OF MURDER

Alleged to Have Wounded Police Constable in Holdup

Winnipeg, Feb. 8—(CP)—Four hours after the death of Constable Charles Gillis whom he is alleged to have fatally wounded during an attempted hold-up last Jan. 24, 22-year-old Ian Bryan was arraigned on a charge of murder in police court today. He was remanded until Feb. 13 when he also will face charges of robbery.

The murder charge was laid personally by Chief Constable George Smith and supplanted a previous charge of attempted murder preferred at the time of his arrest.

Bryan's request into the fatal shooting of the constable will open Saturday.

FATHER DECIDED CHILD BORN TO BE MUSIC GENIUS

Chose Wife in Deliberate Attempt to Produce Prodigy

FATHER'S STORY

Ruth Slenczynski, 11, Hears Story of Father's Decision

Chicago, Feb. 8 (AP)—Ruth Slenczynski, 11 years old, hailed on both sides of the Atlantic as a wonder child at the piano, today heard her father describe her as a deliberate attempt to produce a musical genius.

After the Polish-born father, Joseph Slenczynski, violinist, returned to his adopted America, from which world war wounded, he said he realized his own active musical career was ended.

He deliberately determined, he said in Partial defense, to have a child who should "carry on" under his teaching. The qualifications he sought in a prospective mother included:

Qualifications of Wife

1. She should be sturdy and healthy that the child might have strong hands, wrists, lungs and heart. Physical stability would be essential to have charge of the child's education.

2. She had to be a non-career woman, content with home and children.

4. And she had to be a good cook.

He said he found this combination in Miss Rena Kanokogi, daughter of Polish descent, who became Mrs. Joseph Slenczynski. Ruth, hailed for Slenczynski's mother, was born in Sacramento, Calif.

CANOE CLUBHOUSE BURNED IN FIRE

100 Canoes, Skiffs, Dinghies War Canoes and Racing Shells Lost

Toronto, Feb. 8.—(CP)—Hazi end residents of Toronto Island were awakened early this morning by fire which destroyed the Balmy Beach Canoe Club's wooden frame clubhouse on the east shore of Lake Ontario burned last night with about 100 canoes, skiffs, dinghies, war canoes and racing shells. Many valuable trophies, including the Ashbridge Bay Cup, were destroyed.

Firemen in Uptown stations answered an alarm at 4.45 a.m. to fight a loft building fire for two hours in the block bounded by Bathurst, Front, Fort and Adelaide Streets. The two upper floors of the building, which was used before the flames were extinguished. A golf club shop, an engraving plant and an ink manufacturer's premises were heavily damaged. The total loss was $150,000.

The Goodyear Bowling Trophy, the $500-donated Senior Tandem Championship Cup, the Ellis Trophy for the city War Canoe Championship are among the trophies lost in the Canoe Club fire.

Goalie Scores Winning Goal

Nelson, B.C., Feb. 8 (CP)— Jackie Hanson, goalie, scored the winning goal last night when the Nelson Maple Leafs defeated Rossland Miners 4-3 in a West Kootenay exhibition hockey league game. Bleeding a decision over the South Slocan Stars to get the ice. Kendall waited one minute and thirty seconds before he could get the puck without them and Hutton scored to end the game.

Courage Leaves Eskimo as Plane Arrives to Take Him to Hospital

Edmonton, Feb. 8.—(CP)— Story of a fear-maddened Eskimo youth who fought with all his primitive skill and sere engineer to make good his escape from the clutches of the law in Canadian Airways, Limited flight here today.

The youth brought to Edmonton Municipal Hospital suffering from a big toe partially frozen and a severe case of fright.

Pilot Archie McMullen and Air Engineer Frank Kelly dragged him into the cabin of the machine before the engine stopped. As the throttle was opened for a take-off he decided to leave in a hurry. With airman grabbed him but even with the assistance of Jack Likert, Barrens guide trapper, he fought away from their grasp and, jumping out of the door, bopped like a frightened deer across the snow, his hip injury momentarily forgotten in his terror.

So the airplane flew south without the "patient."

Lillian Noddles Tells Of Casually Meeting O'Donnell in Tavern

Swears She Last Saw Accused Shortly After Eleven O'Clock

'JUST SPOKE TO HIM'

Scientific Experts Testify as to Rabbit Hairs And Leaves

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—C. W. Ewing, textile expert, was recalled to the witness box today for re-examination on evidence, he gave for the Crown yesterday at Harry O'Donnell's trial for the murder of Ruth Taylor.

The specialist had testified he could discern no difference in rabbits hairs found on O'Donnell's clothing after his arrest and material in a sweater worn by the 30-year-old girl at the time she was killed in an east end ravine last Nov. 4.

Difference in Rabbit Hairs.

Mr. Ewing repeated today hairs from baby things taken from O'Donnell's home differed from the others. They were Angora Rabbit hair; the animals taken from O'Donnell's clothes and the sweater were Belgian rabbit.

Constable A 7-year-old filling station attendant, heard the expert's testimony with his head cocked in repose. He watched calmly from the prisoner's box, leaning back in his corner with his legs crossed.

Prosecutor J. C. McRuer, K.C., examining Mr. Ewing, introduced a sketch showing Angora and Belgian rabbit hairs.

Afternoon Transfer.

William Evans, Inspector of Tests with Toronto Transportation Commission, was called next to testify regarding a tram transfer found in O'Donnell's pocket the day of his arrest. It was for a westerly trip on a Carlton car at 6.05 p.m. Now it is identified in a brief statement on the witness box.

The Carlton line, he explained, went past Gerrard street where the ravine is located. The girl's death did not occur until at least seven hours after the time punched out on the transfer, Mr. Evans said. This indicated it has no vital bearing on the case.

Movements of Trams.

Frank Regan, K.C., defence counsel said he would like to question Mr. Evans regarding the movement of trams around the ravine the night of Nov. 4. The inspector was instructed to get the information.

Two cars within a minute reach the ravine at times, the inspector said, but they would not be there at the same time.

Mr. Regan suggested the hall was dark. You could see quite distinctly," the girl testified, "but I wouldn't say it was brilliantly lighted."

As a casual acquaintance of O-Donnell's, the girl said, she had "not particularly noticed" his appearance.

"I said to O'Donnell, 'I hear you're a daddy.'

"He said 'yes,' and then I asked about his wife and baby."

Leaf On Shoe.

Prof. Thomson, head of the Department of Botany at University of Toronto, went into the witness box after the girl. He was asked about part of a leaf found on O'Donnell's shoe.

It was from a white oak, he testified.

Another leaf, taken from the coat of O'Donnell's trousers, was from a red maple, the professor said.

He was given an envelope containing material from the O'Donnell home for examination. It held, he said, part of a grass leaf, parts of a burr, and burrs, a twig of grass.

Material from the kitchen and bedroom included parts of glass, burrs, a twig of grass, part of a white pine needle and other plant matter.

Species of Leaves in Ravine

Examination of the ravine, Prof. Thomson testified, showed: red maple, white oak and white pine grew there. He identified leaves showing the trees.

The botanist added he had examined along the street by the entrance to the ravine. He had found none in the wood lot near his questioning station, where O'Donnell said he had been the night of the murder. Prof. Thomson said he could find no leaves there.

But in the grass of the centre of the ravine, he said, he found two white oak leaves. In a little ravine near the bridge, he added, he saw what he thought was a white oak.

Wind and Leaves

Cross-examined, Prof. Thomson declared he could not say whether leaves found in the ravine could be covered with fallen leaves the night of the murder. It was a calm, the prevalent wind, he testified.

But he wouldn't be surprised, he added "to see a few leaves on the walk before the ravine."

Mr. Regan, defence counsel Regan asked, "someone with muddy boots walked through the ravine, you wouldn't be surprised if he picked leaves up?"

"No, I wouldn't," he answered.

There was a red maple, Prof. Thomson said, in the street where O'Donnell lived, and one would pass it in front of the defendant's beverage room. Prof. Thomson did not recall seeing any fruit on the tree on the sidewalk. It would not say, though, that there were no fruit there was on the ground.

'TB' Survey at Collegiate Will Open in Few Days

Letter and Consent Form Sent to Homes of Students

CONSENT REQUIRED

Full Co-operation Expected to Make Test a Success

Students of the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational School carried to their homes late Friday afternoon copies of a letter addressed to their parents or guardians announcing that the arrangements were practically completed for the "TB" survey of students under the auspices of the Board of Education in co-operation with the Provincial Department of Health. Parents are asked to sign a consent form expressing their willingness that the scholars should take the test. No scholar will be examined unless the consent form in his or her case is signed and returned.

One doctor will have charge of the work. Dr. C. G. Brearley who is stationed in the city with the provincial "T.B." clinic will carry on the work with the collegiate students.

The letter reads:

"Dear parent or guardian: "The Board of Education has made arrangements through the Department of Health, Division of Tuberculosis Prevention, Toronto, to examine all the students in the Collegiate Institute and Vocational School. The examination will be entirely without cost to the parents as the expense of the examination and X-ray will be borne by the Department of Health and the local Board of Education.

"Your attention is drawn to the fact that although the incidence of tuberculosis has decreased in the general population of Ontario in the half of what it was twenty-five years ago, it has been found that the decrease has taken place in the age group 15 to 25 years of age, and especially in the case of girls and young women. Because of this fact, special attention should be given to the examination and observation of individuals coming within this age group.

"In connection with the proposed Tuberculosis Survey of High School students in Belleville, it is planned that:

"1. Every student will be given a tuberculin test.

"2. A X-ray film of the lungs will be taken on all those who give a positive reaction to the tuberculin test.

"3. Those, whose X-ray films show shadows, beyond normal limits, will be given a complete physical examination of the lungs.

"It should be appreciated by the parents and students that the tuberculin test is in no way dangerous. Tuberculin contains no living organisms. The test consists of a very small amount (one drop) of tuberculin being injected into the skin of the forearm.

"The test is read within thirty-six to forty-eight hours. If no redness appears, the reaction is considered to be negative, and it may be interpreted that the individual has never taken into his body tubercle bacilli, the germs that cause tuberculosis. In other words, the individual has not been exposed to this disease.

"If a redness does appear, the reaction is said to be positive, and means only that the individual has taken tubercle bacilli into his body at some time. It must not be inferred that a person giving a positive reaction has necessarily ever had, or ever will have, tuberculosis disease.

"If a student is found to have any serious chest condition, notification will be sent to the parents, and a complete medical report forwarded to the family physician.

"Tuberculosis is curable if diagnosed early and the Board is definitely of the opinion that you owe your child the opportunity to be included in this survey.

"Kindly note that no child will be examined unless the enclosed consent form is signed and returned.

"G. F. Ostrom, Chairman, Belleville Board of Education.

"F. C. MacLaurin, Principal, Collegiate Institute and V. S."

Correct Form

The correct form reads:

"I authorize Dr. G. G. Brearley of the Division of Tuberculosis Prevention or any other physician of the Ontario Department of Health to do a tuberculin test on ..... (name of student) ..... who is my ..... (state relationship) ..... and if necessary to take an X-ray and do a physical examination of the lungs.

"Date .....
"Signed .....
"Address .....

"It is necessary to return this form as soon as possible."

The late Mr. Hogan, who was in his 72nd. year, was born at Carrollton, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Hogan. Nearly all his life was passed in Belleville, he being engaged in the carriage business for many years and by those whom he served in a business way and by many personal friends he was most highly esteemed. In religion he was a faithful member of St. Michael's church.

Surviving to mourn his loss are three sons, John J. Hogan of Smith's Falls; Mr. Frederick J. Hogan, Thurso, Province of Quebec; Mr. William W. Hogan, Port Alfred Quebec; two daughters, Miss Helen J. Hogan, at home, and Mrs. Donald Beaton, Belleville.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

RELIEF MATTERS ARE DISCUSSED

Special instructions to clerks of the local Central relief office to conform with their new activities in a more vigor as applied to investigations of applicants were received by them today following a special meeting of city council called by Mayor Hill for yesterday afternoon.

The meeting, which was well attended was called for the sole purpose of a complete discussion of the relief question in this city from all angles.

"We learned a lot from that discussion" explained Mayor Hill this morning, who also commended the work of Alderman Laurie Lewis, Chairman of the Welfare committee for his activity since assuming this office.

Special mention was also made of Miss E. Lynch, supervisor of the relief office by the Mayor.

"Miss Lynch is one of the most efficient and capable supervisors we could have employed. She has complete control of the situation and has been able to save this city a lot of money since she has taken over the office," declared the Mayor.

According to Mayor Hill, who received his information from W.H. Ireland ex-M.P.P. Trenton, Belleville at the present time has eighteen fewer families receiving relief than the town of Trenton.

Co-operation Essential

A member of the Board of Education told a reporter that it is essential that parents practically unanimously agree to the examination to make the undertaking a success.

"This is a real opportunity for there is no cost to the scholars, parents or guardians, the cost being borne by the Board in co-operation with the Department of Health," he said.

"It should also like to point out that there may be a number of scholars who show incipient signs or indications of this kind. It might be that in the ordinary course of events a child might not know of this and so the trouble might progress for two years and develop into the disease.

"Success depends upon the full co-operation of parents and guardians. In the school there are some who should not and if even a few do not submit to the test, they are making the result of the test less effective for the rest.

"This is the first time anything of this kind has been attempted in a secondary school in Ontario," he added, "and the Department of Health as well as the Belleville Board is anxious that it be a success."

WEATHER

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—The weather has been fair in most districts of Eastern Canada with considerably below normal temperature and it has been very cold throughout the west with little snow in southern Manitoba and Saskatchewan but temperature is now moderating in Alberta, a moderate depression centred in Iowa, is moving northeastward while high pressure covers the greater part of the northwest States. Pressure is high over Ontario and Atlantic districts with low areas south of the Grand Banks and off the Labrador coast.

Lake Superior—Easterly to northeasterly gales, partly cloudy and cold; probably followed by some local snow.

Manitoba—Fresh and Rainy River—Mostly fair and cold.

Lake Manitoba—Northerly winds; partly cloudy and cold; local snowflurries.

Saskatchewan—Mostly fair and decidedly cold, followed by moderating temperature on Sunday.

Alberta—Fair and decidedly cold, followed by slowly moderating temperature.

Michael Donovan Injured in Fall

Michael J. Donovan, 319 Charles Street, was injured at the Trenton Memorial Hospital yesterday when he fell a distance of 34 feet through a shaft to the basement and only escaped death, when his fall was broken by striking a plank. He sustained a broken rib, a slight concussion of the brain and several scalp wounds. He was attended at the scene of the accident by Dr. Hamilton of Trenton and then removed to his home, where he is under the care of Dr. G. S. Crook.

Mr. Donovan with others were painting the ceiling in the lower or upper story of one of the buildings. There were no stairs erected and the tub was being hauled up through an opening. Some way Mr. Donovan slipped and fell to the basement, a distance of 34 feet.

H. HERRINGTON HELD FOR THEFT

Henry Herrington, 56-year-old Mazo resident, was arrested at his home yesterday by Provincial Constable Alex. Tuck and Provincial Constable Gosling. Herrington was later brought to Belleville and lodged in the police cells until this morning, when he was taken before Magistrate R. J. Hunter, K.C. and officially charged. His case was enlarged until Monday.

Herrington is charged with the theft of six chickens allegedly taken from the chicken coop of Mr. Mc-Callery, Madoc Township.

Following continued complaints from the Belleville Arena officials relative to book skates and other articles wearing apparel being stolen, Plainclothes Const. Izard escorted a 13-year-old Belleville youth to the police station for questioning yesterday afternoon. The lad readily admitted the theft of a pair of boots and skates and turned over the articles to the police, they stated today. The matter is being further investigated, when the youth will appear at the police court this afternoon. Police promise drastic measures if this practice of stealing from the Arena premises is not discontinued immediately.

Dr. Farley Irvine, 299 William street, reported the loss of a fine Persian cat to the authorities. The cat had been poisoned last night, he said. It was the second valuable Persian cat, the property of Mr. Irvine, that had been poisoned within a year, he assured the authorities. Action in the matter was promised, as it is a serious offence to leave poison lying about, police revealed today.

A general decline in the number of transients to appear nightly at the police station in quest of a night's lodging has been noted in Belleville during the recent continued cold snap. Only four signed the register last night, while seven is the largest number on any one night to seek shelter at the police station for the past week.

ABNORMAL BIRTH GIVEN TO BABY

Delicate Operation Performed to Remove Child Developed in Fallopian

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP) — "Both doing well," doctors reported today of a 33-year-old mother and the baby she gave birth to in the Fallopian tube instead of in the womb. Dr. W. R. Talley and Dr. Jessie Gray performed a delicate operation six days ago to remove the child from the abdominal cavity, outside the womb. Both mother and child will live, their physicians declared.

Born six weeks late, the baby weighed 11 pounds 1 ounce at birth and was normal except for a slight but not dangerous, malformation of the skull.

Dr. Talley considered it "truly remarkable" that both should survive such abnormal conditions as these. He did not name the woman, who had three other children.

Her husband gave her a blood transfusion after the critical hour she spent on the operating table.

Usually, it was explained, death of the baby and often of the mother ensues when the baby is developed in the fallopian tube instead of in the womb itself. The child growing in the period of gestation causes internal ruptures with fatal hemorrhages.

In the present case the child developed normally in the abdominal cavity and no injury to the mother's vital organs surrounding it. There was sufficient blood in the abdominal cavity to nourish the baby.

PRICE OF POTATOES UP TO $1.40 PER BAG

Prices in All Lines For Most Part Remained Unchanged

Bright sunshine and crisp air resulted in a larger attendance of both buyers and traders on the Saturday morning market today. Prices for the most part remained unchanged, although offerings on poultry, cereals and inside market were plentiful.

Potatoes, scarce in quantity, were offered at the usual price of from $1.25 to $1.40 the 70-pound bag. Staple vegetables, including carrots, onions and parsnips were being quoted at the same price as last week, the peck measure. Cabbage at from 5 to 10c found ready sale. Turnips were held at 25 cents the peck.

Although local export dealers had expected a reduction in the price of that commodity this week owing to the feeble market conditions at stationary in price, selling at from 23 to 25c for "extra" and from 21 to 23c for pullets". Butter again commanded the same price, 30c the pound in most instances although a few buyers continued to offer a 2-pound roll at 56c. Secondary was plentiful, selling at 10c the quart measure.

Little change in livestock prices or the grain market was noted by local dealers.

CANADIANS DOWN AUSTRIA 5-2 IN OLYMPIC SERIES

Win Third Straight But Game Hardest of Series So Far

MONTREALERS TO FORE

Four Counters in Initial Frame And Then Winners Ease up

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 8 (CP Cable)—Canada's fast and white garbed team today scored its third straight victory in the fourth winter Olympic hockey series by defeating Austria 5-2.

The Austrians furnished the stiffest opposition the Canadian defending champions have encountered so far in the classic series.

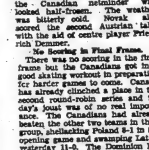
With power Bill Thomson of Port Arthur starting the fireworks with a sparkling goal on Alec Sinclair's assist the Canucks scored four counters into the Austrian goal in the opening game. Thereafter, however, the opposing defence tightened and the Dominion gunners were held to one goal during the balance of the contest.

Players from Montreal who have been outstanding in Canada's matches came to the fore again today. Hermann Murray, right defenceman and star of Montreal Victorias, slashed the puck past goal-keeper Weiss twice after speedy Thomson had scored. Walter "Pud" Kitchen of Toronto Dukes, Murray's defence partner, aided in the Montreal's first goal but the second followed a clever individual thrust. Kenny Farmer of Montreal Victorias ended the opening period sniping by scoring unassisted.

Canadians Ease Up

After the first frame outburst, which showed the Canadians in fine fettle and capable of doing just about as they pleased when the situation warranted, the Maple Leaf hockeymen eased up and their checkchecking and defensive play became very loose. The Canadians attacked with five men in the second chapter and stayed so much in Austrian territory Kitty Moore veteran Port Colborne goalkeeper, looked very lonesome waiting in his cage for something to happen.

After finishing smooth Port Arthur combo had snapped in Canada's fifth goal at 7.15 of the middle session but the Austrians put up a game fight and, when wing-man Gosar broke away from the Canadian power play and beat the Canadian defence, Thomson looked half-frozen. The weather was bitterly cold. Novak scored the second Austrian tally with the aid of centre player Friedrich Domanski.



No Scoring in Final Frame.

There was no scoring in the final frame but the Canadians got in a good skating workout in preparation for Saturday's contest. Canada has already clinched a place in the second round-robin series and today's joust was of no real importance. The Canadians had already beaten the other two teams in their group, shellacking Poland 8-1 in the opening game and smearing Latvia yesterday 11-0. The Dominion has never lost a game in the Olympic competition.

There was only one penalty in today's match, defenceman Rudolf Vojta of Austria earning that for tripping in the second period. The match was refereed by Paul Loicq of Belgium, president of the International Hockey Association.

Some two hundred fans braved the cold to witness the clash which was the third of the day. In the two previous engagements England defeated Japan 5-0 and Poland bested Latvia under a 5-2 score.

"Three Kids and a Queen"

May Robson and Henry Armetta Star in Fast-Moving Film

The kidnapping of the richest woman in the world furnishes an exciting part of "Three Kids and a Queen," the fast-moving Universal comedy-drama which opens an engagement at the Capitol Theatre on Monday with May Robson in the starring role.

Miss Robson, playing the most delightfully humorous part in her screen career, is seen as this eccentric, crabbed old maid, whose avaricious relatives in an attempt to share her money, have inspired a hearing in her sanity. Rendered unconscious in a runaway accident, Miss Robson is taken by Henry Armetta's three adopted sons to the basement floor where they live with the Italian and his daughter, and in the front room which is Armetta's barber shop.

Convalescing and growing to like her new surroundings, the wealthy old lady refuses to leave, and she and her pampered dog are at length established as duly accepted members of the household. The newspaper sensation over her supposed kidnapping, however, keeps the entire family in a continual flurry of fear, and the situation becomes deadly serious when her presence is discovered by gangsters and she is actually kidnapped. How the mystery is finally solved and how the comic Miss Baxter ester on the laughter period of her life, bring to a climax a screen story filled with delicious humor, tense drama, and affecting human touches.

"Three Kids and a Queen" was directed by Edward Ludwig, and Miss Robson's supporting cast includes, in addition to Armetta, many popular screen players such as Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, William Ingraham, Billy Mauch, Herman Bing, Hedda Hopper, Laurence Grant and John Milian.

Free

Beginning Monday and Tuesday, matinee and evening the Capitol Theatre will give away free to lady patrons genuine "Hostess Ovenware." It is specially treated and is guaranteed not to crack or discolor. Come Monday or Tuesday and receive your large pie baker.

AT THE BELLE

"Rose of the Rancho"

Gladys Swarthout and John Boles in Romance of Old West; "Another Face" Thrilling

We have had Lawrence Tibbett, Lily Pons, Mary Ellis, and Nino Martini as recruits from the Metropolitan Opera to motion pictures, and now comes the motion picture debut of Gladys Swarthout, who may be seen and heard (and heard, and heard and heard!) in the screen version of "Rose of the Rancho" at the Belle today and Monday, matinee daily.

To Miss Swarthout; all honor for a noble beginning on the screen. And to Messrs Ralph Balsinger and Leo Robin: aahs! Your music could not possibly have been more suited to its purpose.

John Boles is co-starred with Miss Swarthout in her motion picture debut and this (so makes for a happy combination. Boles, with his rugged, yet suave, handsomeness, and his own claim to distinction as a singer, is the perfect match for Miss Swarthout. Even in the event the latter diva didn't always be outshone by Boles, we're sure that we always, work out for the best in the end, with hero and heroine living happily ever after on cue, you would know in this picture that Miss Swarthout and Boles belong to turn a deft phrase, to each other. John Boles, who is as handsome to look at as she is lovely to hear, is supported by a splendid cast including Leo Bolos are Charles Bickford, Grace Bradley, H. B. Warner and a lovely comedy team, Jack Howard and Herb Williams, both prominent for years on Broadway and in vaudeville, takes one of the lighter moments in the films and these boys perform such a high degree of finess that their future as a motion picture team is above doubt.

"Another Face" Gripping

"Another Face," the second feature attraction on the same program draws upon the vivid imagination of Ben Hecht, without ending in tradition, from capture of a notorious gang leader, almost ending in tragedy, and a one man police force all by himself, his fiancee, and an entire film production crew is an interesting if not overdone a sensational publicity stunt from the capture of a nortious killer who is discovered to be an important part in a picture being a handsome fiancee, and a sensational surgery from the ugly tell-tale visage.

Wallace Ford is splendid as the bewildered gangster who is nearly blending comedy with action and romance.

Phyllis Brooks, warmly attractive, turns in a first-rate performance. A comparative screen tyro she easily matches in pace and ability the more seasoned troupers with whom she is surrounded.

Brian Donlevy, recently seen in "Barbary Coast" as Knuckles is superb. His gangster-turned-actor role affords a comedy touch of sinister tenseness, mingled with no end of laughs.

Allan Dinehart stands out as a studio executive, as do Molly Lamont as the ingenue and Addison Richards as Paul Stanton.

Charles Cabanne has directed to get the full entertainment value out of story, scoring particularly with his unrelenting flow of fresh comedy and unexpected action thrills.

"Rose of the Rancho" starts daily at 2.40 and 8.20 P.M. "Another Face" starts daily at 3.45, 7.25, 9.50. Performances start daily at 2.30, 7.15 the last complete show starts at 8.30 P.M.

Feed Flock of Ducks In Detroit River

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 8.—(CP)—A flock of about 100 wild ducks starving in a patch of open water in the middle of Detroit River received grain today after a visit from Inspector Charles O'Brien of the Ontario Humane Society. The inspector, accompanied by a resident of the waterfront, walked across the ice to the ducks and fed them.

CARRYING PLACE

Carrying Place —Sweeping over this wind-infested community with a force not seen here in many a year a more than fifty mile an hour gale howled and shrieked over the steel-armoured fields all day Tuesday and Wednesday, only diminishing in force late on Thursday. The gale began its blow from a quarter which is not usually productive of big blows, southeast, but late in the afternoon of Tuesday shifted to southwest, gaining constantly in strength. By mid-afternoon it had reached unheard of proportions. Doors were slammed and violently shut glass broke from them, Loose shingles were whirled from aging roof tops. One householder sadly saw two white skeips of roofing paper leave his roof and go soaring crazily across the fields. Swinging signs at the local store and garage swung so violently that they threatened to fall. As in every other community chimney fires made the day hazardous for those who burn wood. The Dave Hendrick's house was the first to report such a blaze and there, fortunately, the conflagration did no harm. Later the La Tours home was in considerable danger of destruction by fire when both chimney and pipes blazed fiercely for an hour. Willing hands wrapped old carpets and clothes soaked in water about the pipes and cooled them past the danger point.

The greatest excitement of the day came at four o'clock when the school children were dismissed. Although the wind had been blowing with such force as to shake the building most of the pupils had no idea what to expect until they stepped outside. Almost at once hats were snatched from heads and sent whirling away through the air or sliding along the glassy frosted snow surface far out of reach. Pursuit was almost useless but willing helpers stood by to grab headgear as they went by. Some school children made as many as six attempts to get from the school to the road, a distance of fifty or sixty feet crawling most of the way on hands and knees. Dinner pails went bouncing and sailing. One observer remarked that there would probably be few at school next day as apparently there was not a boy or girl who had hat and mitts—pail left after the blow. Mr. A. A. Dymond coming from Carscallen with his car to rescue children from that community was blown off the road and arrived an hour late. Yet, apart from a few bumps and bruises, a scare or two, a great deal of commotion and some loss of dignity, there are no serious after-effects of the "big blow" to be observed.

School attendance has indeed been limited for the past few days. Glassy ice surfaces of the roads coupled with biting frosty weather have made the matter of walking a mile or more a most unpopular pastime. Yesterday and Thursday days passed with not enough pupils in the room together to make more than one good class. On Thursday the total attendance of the two rooms was nine which, as compared with the registered fifty, is nearly a record low.

Rev. Franklin Clarke was in Guelph Sir. March 4 this morning by as he attended the funeral of a friend. Mrs. Clarke remained at his home here on Wednesday. Incidentally Mr. Clarke is commencing on a fine government-tested thermometer, one which registers the lowest temperatures recorded during each night. Needless to say Mrs. Clarke and the children are asked to answer many a query as day follows day with record readings to hand.

Carrying Place's standard bearers in the hockey league have stepped out handsomely on Wednesday and Thursday nights when they tallied eight goals against the A.C.O.A.'s while their opponents were getting two. It was the first game of the second half of the schedule and the locals, who, by the way, are local in name only, for there is not a man on the 5-0 loss suffered when they met the first time. The Flyers have many supporters on hand and turned out a fast team; but once the locals got going it was plain to the evident superiority shown by the boys in blue. Dudley Davis, Dunk and Rosenplot who tallied two goals in the first two minutes of play, are only three of the team who did not show up quite so well, but for the most part played effective and winning hockey; and nothing but the brilliant saves of Joe Gould in the C.O.A.F. nets saved an additional half dozen goals. On several occasions players were right in on him but he came out in splendid fashion to smother the shots. For the locals the first line played a fast, steady game while Brown, Ford, Pearson and Anderson also performed well. In spite of the two referees on duty at the blue lines an outbreak of ill temper marred the game on more than one occasion. However no blows were struck although more than one player showed marks of skates and sticks after the battle was over. These two teams will not meet again unless in the finals. The locals play two games next week, Monday and Wednesday, meeting Smithfield and Roslin.

Rev. Franklin Clarke assisted Rev. Arthur Strother at the memorial service held in the Anglican church Sunday last in commemoration of His late Majesty, King George V.

Mr. Stephen McGuigge and family have taken up residence on the Titus property formerly owned by John Spaulding and more recently occupied by N. Pulford. Mr. McGuigge has come to this community from Sidney Township.

THE HILLS

A little path—and around the hills
Beloved in childhood days,
Hills and more hills and hills beyond
Like giant waves;
And in between, the valleys deep and green
With rivulets purling on to swell
The waters of the sea.

At early dawn the sun burst forth in splendor
Over eastern heights,
And all day long shed light and warmth
To farthest nook,
And twilight now, after a blaze of glory,
Sees the hills well-bathed in dewdrops,
Sink to peaceful sleep.

All through life's day we climb hill after hill,
Some smooth, some very rough,
And oft as one is done another.

On hilltops catch a vision of His plan;
And thus the heart is never tried
More than it well can bear.

LEAP YEAR

SOME PECULIARITIES OF 1936, not common to other years, were noted in a recent contribution to this column. Another contribution from a reader of this column on the same subject reads:

"In your column of 4th inst. someone contributed the statement that February has five Saturdays only once in several hundred years. I beg to differ with that statement. True this "combination" does not occur very often, but has taken place four times during my lifetime, including the present year. I entered this life in 1862. There were five Saturdays in February in 1890, 1918, and 1924, and there will be 1896, 1908, and 1936, but will not occur again 'till the year 1964, 28 years hence, and we hope many living today may be here to see that date. The above knowledge has been derived from a reliable source and we want to pass it on to any who might be interested."

CALIFORNIA HAS BEEN INVITING PEOPLE OF ALL CREEDS and sections to come to California, bask in the sunshine and forget their troubles (including debts, it is presumed). Now California has put-the following strategic points on the border to prevent people coming into the state unless they have enough money to keep them in comfort. Hoboes, gay cats, bundle stiffs and all types of vagabonds including just plain tramps, are barred in the Land of Fruit and Sunshine, there being standing room only in the "Hit the Grit, Bums, we don't want you here." Someone is always taking the joy out of life—first Ireland and now the tramps union will order the members to return to work then there will be more competition for the few jobs open, and more trouble to complain about.

KIPLING SAID THAT HE ALWAYS TRIED TO WRITE DIFFERENTLY FROM ANYONE ELSE, that he dove into diction-aries and pored over books of synonyms and proverbs, and all that kind of thing, fishing for strange and powerful words to make his writings different. He succeeded to such an extent that he could write poems in England, sell them in the United States, freshly hatched with cable charges extra. Just imagine anyone paying tolls on poetry. The New York papers were glad to pay tolls on Kipling's poems to secure first or simultaneous publication. And what a lot of poetry goes begging for a buyer these days, most of it just a collection of words strung together with more or less rhythm. Poems that live and breathe and tell a story will always find immortality in printers' ink.

SPEAKING ABOUT HANDSLEIGHS? do you remember hooking onto that cutter way back when Hector was a pup—your rope stuck and you just had to go along until the driver of the cutter decided to stop and make a call somewhere, perhaps many miles from home—or so it seemed? Not so long ago—day before yesterday, or somefin.

Mike: "Yes, it wouldn't take many to make a dozen."

Parliament Hill Hears

By WILFRID EGGLESTON

Greetings! Here we are again, with a House full of new members, and our little black book bulging with new names and addresses. . . . And I mustn't forget the nineteen new senators who made their bow to the Red Chamber. In fact, I'll lead off the session with 'Bob' Lowell's retort to the policeman.

'Bob' of course is the irrepressible Gallery correspondent now representing from, as Illinois in Florida. From those immemorial the press gallery boys have parried their cans in a space marked 'Senate Only,' in the right of the Centre Block. The regular policemen know this and all is well. But last summer the old guard was all shipped west to take care of the Regina riots, or something, and newcomers took their places. 'Bob' was challenged every time he drove up with his car; and he got a bit nettled about it.

Finally, one warm morning, he was leaving his car beside the conspicuous sign: SENATE ONLY, when a 'Mountie' stopped him again. Looking very hard at Bob, and at the sign, he said:

"Do you work in the Senate?"

"Don't be silly," Bob retorted. "Nobody works in the Senate."

Did you know that John Horne Blackmore, 34 year old Social leader in the federal house is a distant relative of R. D. Blackmore, who wrote LORNA DOONE . . . his father came from Devon, and so did his mother . . . And that gives him something in common with M. J. Coldwell, the C.C.F. leader from Saskatchewan and with Hon. H. H. Stevens, both of them with Devonshire backgrounds . . . Blackmore was born in Idaho but his parents pioneered to southwestern Alberta when he was only two years old and he has never been outside his province since, until he came down to Ottawa . . . His strong classically moulded face, warm handshake, walks with a bit of a limp because of an accident in childhood . . . rides like a cowboy . . . sings . . . is a member of the Church of Latter Day Saints . . . is a graduate of Alberta University in history and literature . . . has nine children . . . is a firm believer in democracy and the mission and value of the newspapers . . . is a free trader, but thinks that free trade, like patriotism, is not enough . . . has courage and something of a childlike faith . . . will be interesting to watch as he confronts the tradition, the cynicism, the red tape and the challenge of Ottawa.

I love the yarn (absolutely true) about the eminent civil servant and his bright son who was at college.

The boy came back for the holidays and entered into serious conversation with his father along some such lines as these:

"You know, Dad, you ought to let yourself get in a-rut. You must keep up with things. Read the best books on your line of business. For instance, I've no doubt you'd be tremendously assisted if you were to go through one of the texts we're studying now."

"Yes," replied his father mildly. "What was the name of it?"

The boy gave the answer.

"Interesting," commented his father. "Who wrote it?"

As a matter of fact, I did," said the son, "I hadn't paid much attention. It's someone with the same name as ourselves."

"Yes," agreed the father. "As a matter of fact, I wrote it myself!"

An amusing exchange took place on Parliament Hill one afternoon between a Frenchman and an Italian who were working on some repairs and who fell into a tremendous argument as to who discovered Canada.

It was John and Sebastian Cabot, the Italian affirmed, born in Italy.

Rot! the Frenchman would have none of it. Everybody knew who discovered Canada. It was Cartier. A Frenchman, Jacques Cartier. That fellow over there carried the stone. See, CARTIER . . . the Frenchman gesticulating wildly in the direction of the frock-coated figure of Sir George Etienne Cartier, the fearless and energetic associate of Sir John A. MacDonald.

One of the anecdotes circulated during the by-election of Assiniboia only this year was an attempt—by a critic—to explain the nature of 'Social Credit.'

A Saskatchewan farmer, he said, went into a store, and ordered a can of beans.

The storekeeper had just laid it down on the counter when the farmer said: 'Sorry, I've changed my mind; I want a can of tomatoes.'

The storekeeper obliged, and again the farmer said: 'Do you mind if I change this again for ten cents worth of cheese?'

'Not at all,' said the storekeeper, and before having been wrapped up, the farmer started out of the store with it.

'Here, called the storekeeper, 'you haven't paid me for that cheese.'

'I gave you back the tomatoes,' said the farmer.

'But you didn't pay for the tomatoes.'

'I gave you back the can of beans.'

'But you didn't pay for the beans.'

'Why should I? I didn't take them,' triumphed the farmer, leaving the store with his cheese.

When he was prime minister R. B. Bennett's car license used to be 3311 over and over again, it became A100. Perhaps when party matters get more prosperous he will be able to strike off the two ciphers!

What's wrong with the B.N.A. Act? "Perhaps one reason why our B.N.A. Act is not known to young people in Canada as the constitution of the United States, for example, is known to every school child in that country, is that it is a dry, legal, routine instrument, designed for an immediate purpose, not like some other constitutions, a flaming and rhetorical declaration of fundamental principles and well-rounded political philosophy."—From Dr. O. D. Skelton's presentation before the special committee on the B.N.A. Act last session.

Canadian Production of Lincoln-Zephyr Starts

PRODUCTION of V-12 Lincoln-Zephyr motor cars at the Windsor plant of Ford of Canada has started. Car is the newest picture Walter P. Chrysler, president of the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Limited, sees the first Lincoln-Zephyr produced in Canada come off the final assembly line. The lower photograph shows bodies going through the body trim line. The car is of modified bridge-type design, a new method of construction giving great strength with light weight. Advanced streamlining, 122 inches wheelbase, 133 inches springbase, and an economical 12-cylinder 110 horsepower motor are other features.

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 8th. 1886.

The flood is subsiding somewhat, but conditions are still bad. The pumps are constantly breathe more freely; the water has dropped so steadily that they are reassured. Families that were flooded are again free of water and the street is far south as Dundas Street is in use. The ice and water, however, on Front Street, from the Commercial House to the wharf must be fully five feet deep and over, according to level. It would be no easy task to find a more desolate appearing place than that part of the city lying south of Wharf Street. Most families still occupy their premises where they have rooms upstairs, but they are practically prisoners. The Commercial House dining room is filled with water up to the windows; the tables are under water and only the tops of the chairs show up above the ice and water. The police have no boats but have to market to reach the cells as the water is now within a step in front of the office. On the west side of the river the situation is somewhat improved, the water having gone down about eight inches, there sufficiently to allow persons on foot to cross by way of the lower bridge.

Austrians Weak Around the Nets Opines Pudas

By ALBERT PUDAS
(Coach of Canada's Olympic Hockey Garnisch-Partenkirchen, Germany Feb. 8 (CP-Cable)—Austria gave us the stiffest battle we have had to date andif it had not been for several fine saves by our goaltender Dinty Moore, the score would have been closer.

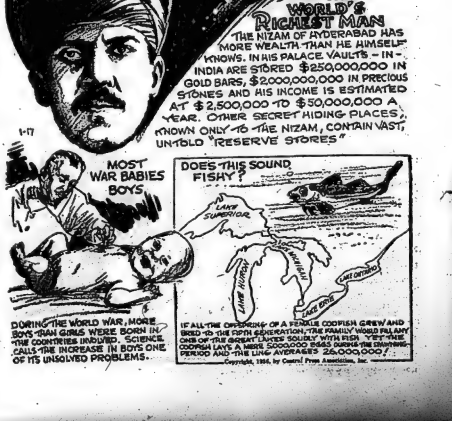
It was very cold here today but we got a break as our game was the third on the program and did not start until 10.30 a.m. Yesterday we played at nine o'clock in the morning. While the boys do not mind these early games they do find it a little strange going so early in the day after competing at night back home.

The Austrians, as I had predicted yesterday, proved stronger in every phase of the game than the teams we have met so far. They are a fast skating bunch of packchasers and their only weakness lies in their lack of finish around the cage. Also a little timidity by an experienced hockeyist on how to trick opposing defence would round out into a formidable combination.

FROZEN BODY IS FOUND BY ROAD

Cripple Dumped in Snow When Cutter Struck a Stump

Fenelon, Ont., Feb. 8.—(CP)—The frozen body of Peter Gaschelle, 77ny Township farmer, was found by the side of a road near here today.



He left for home after a visit at relations at the height of Wednesday's storm and took the wrong road. The horse turned in a winter road running through the fields, when the cutter struck a stump and overturned. The horse broke loose and reached the barn during the night.

Two brothers with whom he lived found the horse, trailing the broken harness. The body was discovered by Arthur Maurice, who saw the overturned cutter.

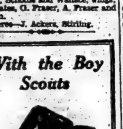
Quesnelle, who suffered from a lame leg, was found but a short distance from the cutter. There will be no inquest.

Quesnelle, 34, was unmarried. His parents, Mr and Mrs. Antoine Quesnelle, live in Fenelon.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK

Stirling and District

Stirling—Nearly 200 guests gathered in the Community Hall on Wednesday evening for a Turkey dinner given by the members of St. John's Men's Association. A large number of friends of the congregation from outside places were present to share in the sumptuous repast and to enjoy the splendid entertainment which had been specially arranged by the following committee: Messrs. Ernest Hicks, convener; Frank Abbotts, R. Dalland and Rev. A. R. McConnell. The programme was ably carried forward in the most enjoyable fashion with each of the numbers being received with appreciation by the guests. The chairman, Mr. Palmer Farrell was the next member which was followed by a very clever reading by Mr. R. Maher of Rose Corners. Mrs. R. F. Ellis then offered a two very pleasing soprano solos. Mrs. Alger, accompanied her at the piano. Rev. R. W. Rowland was the next speaker and in addition to bringing a cordial greeting from the congregation of St. Paul's delivered a message that was both fitting and helpful to all present. Rev. Palmer Farrell then contributed two splendid tenor solos. Greetings were also extended by Rev. C. Beech of the Bayside Circuit of the United Church, Rev. W. G. West recently appointed Warden of Hastings County, Mr. T. W. Bobier, president of the Stirling Community Welfare Orch. Several prominent members of the congregation responded briefly just before the program was completed. Among these Mr. Bobier was very Dr. R. A. Carleton, Vice president of the Association, Mr. H. J. Morrow and Mr. R. Dalland, President. This was one of the most successful events in the history of the Association. Much credit is due those who had any active part in the promotion.



Saturday's fast skating hockey team turned in a 6 to 3 victory over the Marmora sextette before the small crowd of the season. With other functions of social interest on at the same time and the weather down below zero only the very loyal fans braved the cold to turn out and give the boys a hand as they displayed some very interesting combination work and some clever stick handling. Marmora were present in the opening of the game and finally broke away to get the first tally when Bleecker scored a pretty one from Shannon. From this point Stirling put on the pressure and Ingram scored on a shot from outside the defence and repeated the performance a few minutes later to put the local boys in the lead. Shannon, Hewitt and Stewart each got one for the visitors with Smith figuring in two scores for Stirling which gave them a scoring bee for the local squad batting in four of the six goals registered. Referees were divided between Wallace and Robinson. An enjoyable feature of the game from the Stirling viewpoint was the fine performance of Bill Glover. Morton who appeared to fill the vacancy created by the absence of Mole. Morton turned in a great game until he was injured in the last few minutes of play, although he has played in goal for the team before this year this was his first appearance on the forward line and from his showing it won't be his last. Final score, Stirling 6, Marmora 3

Marmora—Gallery, goal; defence, Smith and Burns; Shannon, centre; wings, Tu both and Stewart; alternates, Shannon, Campion, Johnston and Leonard.

Stirling—Goal, goal; Ingram and Tulloch defence; Robinson, centre; Bleecker and Wallace, wings. Alternates, G. Fraser, A. Fraser and Morton.

Referee—J. Ackers, Stirling.

With the Boy Scouts

A Scout is a friend to animals — Sth Scout Law.

We were pleased to see the 4th Belleville troop under Scoutmaster Morley Anderson turn out in uniform as the Memorial Service for his late Majesty, King George. We are of the opinion that Scouts should show themselves and their activities more to the public. If they do this, it is quite probable that a greater interest in Scouting will be aroused in Belleville.

Toronto is the Dominion's largest scouting centre with 3,000 Scouts and leaders, a net increase during 1935 of 1,000.

The Tale of a Neckerchief. A certain Scoutmaster sent his neckerchief to be washed. It was returned beautifully clean and new. Unfortunately the name tape with the laundry it was listed and charged, he referred to the laundry's bill. The bill read: "Washing, 10c; Name tape and Feeders."

Ottawa Senior Police Head Scouts Scouts. "The Boy Scout programme is a splendid training for boys. They are taught obedience, truthfulness, to do a good turn at any time, and many other things required; construction instead of destruction," declared Chief Foy when a youth who has had Scout training was appointed to the vacant Superintendent's Chief of Police.

An Extra Job for Santa's Reindeer. Old Jack Nick's reindeer this Christmas had approximately 100,000 calls to make, upon kiddies in all parts of the Dominion, thanks to the Boy Scouts. The gifts were produced by a coast-to-coast chain of toy-making and toy-repair workshops, organized by Prince Robert. While the main distribution was among children in urban centres, many thousand gifts went to fisherman's families along the Nova Scotia coast, to families in the coal fields, east and west, and to prairie homesteaders. Many additions to individual family parcels mailed from centres shops, large bulk shipments of reconditioned playthings from Ottawa to help the Scouts in Moosejaw, Regina and Saskatoon and their City Council in their districts. It was the Scouts' 12th annual "the Christmas good turn."

Message of Loyalty Sent King Edward Sympathy to Bereaved

Ottawa, Feb. 8.— (CP)—Messages of devotion, loyalty and sympathy from the parliament of Canada today are being prepared for transmission to King Edward and Queen Mary from both houses of parliament devoted yesterday exclusively to passing addresses to the King and Queen. To both they expressed sympathy in their loss through the death of King George V and to the new King conveyed assurance of loyalty.

In the House of Commons the addresses were moved by Prime Minister Mackenzie King and seconded by Conservative Leader Bennett.

"There never was a better king," said the Prime Minister, referring to the King and Mr. Bennett agreed fully with his remarks. He added a few new addenda to the late monarch's character from personal contacts during the celebration of His Majesty's Silver Jubilee last May.

"I am only an ordinary man, but I have done my best," King George told Mr. Bennett, when expressing surprise at the demonstrations of affection which had come from all parts of the Empire.

Those words, said Mr. Bennett, were a clue to the simplicity of the man's outlook upon life and the hold he had upon the sentiments of his people.

Unity Strengthened

The greatest task of the late King's contributions to his time was the strengthening of the unity of the Empire, said Mr. Mackenzie King. His wide travels before he ascended the throne, his contacts with soldiers from all parts of the Empire during the Great War, his Canadianism, all his tastes and interests and his recent radio speeches to the Empire had been the means of accomplishing this result.

Speaking in the French Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, joined in the tributes and expressed sentiments of French-Canadians.

J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, added his word of praise for the late King and two new members making their first maiden speeches, completed the discussion. These were Mrs. George Black, Independent Conservative for Yukon and J. S. Blackmore of Lethbridge, Social Credit leader.

On Monday the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne begins. Arthur Slaght, new Liberal member for Parry Sound, and Hon. Thomas Crerar, veteran full new Liberal member from Montreal, will move and second the address. Mr. Bennett will speak next and will be followed by Mr. King.

RURAL DEAN CHAPTER HAS SPRING MEETING

The regular spring meeting of the Chapter of Prince Edward Deanery was held Thursday, February 6, in St. John's Mission, beginning with Holy Communion in St. John's Chapel on Herchimer Avenue. The Rev. Canon Smith, officiating.

After service the members adjourned to the Mission House where the members were entertained by Mrs. Hall at dinner. After lunch the chapter was called to order by the Dean, Rev. Mr. Winter of Picton, who opened the meeting with prayer. The minutes of the last meeting were read by Secretary Treasurer Rev. L. L. Green and confirmed.

Notwithstanding the dangerous roads every parish excepting Carrying Place was represented.

The regular business was taken up including many matters of routine work and very well discussed by the members. Rev. Mr. Lewis who has moved to the city received notice of meeting and was welcomed by the Rural Dean.

After a pleasant and profitable session the Chapter was closed to meet next spring in Christ Church Deanery, Picton.

Before leaving all were given afternoon tea. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Hall for their gracious hospitality. The Secretary of this meeting was the same person as appointed by Archbishop Lewis as Secretary of the first Deanery Chapter fifty years ago.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Lovis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Scarcely a person exists who does not or has not, at one time or another, harboured some kind of obsession.

An obsession may be defined as an act which the person realizes is irrational, but to which he must comply in order to obtain temporary peace of mind.

Strictly speaking however, obsessions also may be thoughts only, which do not prompt action. That is, a disagreeable thought may pop into the mind again and again, despite the efforts of the individual to keep it out. This may be called the obsession of thought.

Perhaps you recall how, as a boy or girl, you got into the habit of touching all the gate posts as you passed them, or made it a point not to step on any of the cracks in the pavement. Children certainly develop a variety of charming tricks like that. Sooner or later they pass.

Adults, too, may be obsessed in similar ways and all I may say, within the range of the normal. Persons find it incumbent upon them to add up the numbers of every automobile license plate they happen to see. Others feel a strong impulse to touch electric light bulbs or thermometers in the ceiling, etc., etc.

These really tormenting obsessions, however—those which are part and parcel of a neurosis or functional illness—are the compulsion obsessions. People who have a compulsion obsession are almost helpless to the lucky ones not eminently gifted, but the mental suffering which they often endure may amount to agony.

Here is a woman who has no peace unless she washes her hands a dozen times before she opens a door.

Again, a young girl is harassed by what she considers filthy sex thoughts. Her reason tells her that she cannot stop dwelling upon these thoughts.

Strictly with obsessions receive, as a rule, but little sympathy. The ideas which harass them seem so nonsensical that one jumps to the conclusion that they could be controlled by an act of the will. But such is far from the case. Patients like these are ill. Indeed, they try hard, and often over a period of years.

The trouble, you see, lies in the unconscious mind, and consequently no conscious act can remedy it. They may succeed for a while in their fight or a day or a week-perhaps. But sooner or later the obsessing thoughts return, despite everything. Sufferers from obsessions need not despair, however. There are certain psychological methods of the investigation and cure of obsessions, no matter what kind or how long they have held sway.

Dr. Bisch, a psychiatrist, a medical man who has made a specialty of mind disturbances, will be consulted. Sometimes he can give fairly prompt relief. Some times it takes many months to bring about a cure.

Dr. Bisch will be emphasized in that help is available for those who would seek it out.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Milk is the most perfect food. There is an astonishingly large number of people who say they cannot digest it. Usually, however, is not indigestible. The trouble is that these people have an unfavorable mental attitude—for milk. Which cause the indigestion? Modifying cream, milk, either by adding lime water or some other favoring extract, usually overcomes this difficulty.

ARRESTED AFTER AMBUSH

MUSIC

The following bits of news will no doubt interest the Canadian Concert goers of this city.

The "Musical Events" column of the Saturday Night for February first there appeared this article.

Following up its policy of presenting a program of genuine Canadian way of singe know, the Imperial Theatre this week presents Canadian Gems and its singers. It is not often, I think, that an audience has the opportunity at a picture theatre of hearing the work of the artist of the front rank, even for so brief an appearance—three days only. One could have wished for considerably more. For what a delightful programme was that in The three songs were perfection, no less, and his accompanist the choice of three singers were excellent. His accompanist, Mr. Alec McCormick, son of Mr. E. McCormick of Belleville) is my interest to know, is a talented young man; if not actually born here at least musically nurtured in the city. With the exception of the violinist—who played some scandas or other quite unworthy—the rest of the acts on the show does not seem to fall properly within the category of music in any kind it was good enough, and the orchestra played well and looked very "natty in their red coats."

We notice that—

Mrs. Hamilton and Reginald Godden are now on their two-piano concert tour in the Maritime Provinces, this week.

Also that—

Adolph Wardroff, popular young Russian-Canadian baritone, gave a return engagement concert in Owen Sound recently under the auspices of the Kinsmen Club to an audience of more than 1000 music lovers, despite six-foot snow drifts. Mr. Wardroff, known in a wide circle as "Bill" Wardroff, is a son of Mrs. Gartley in Owen Sound last November for (Canadian Concert Management (Globe).

Frances James, who this past week delighted music lovers with her fine recital is appearing next week with the Toronto Symphony Choir as soprano soloist in Beethoven's Mass Solemnis.

Fashion Flashes

POINTING AWAY down South we see the lighter shades in demand for evening wear. A lovely model is done in of gunny silver and turquoise blue lame. The grey V in back, the neckline in front and the cuffs of the tight, long sleeves are banded with turquoise bead borders.

DON'T GRUMBLE if it is raining when you start out. There may be that lovely evening party. For even if you wear a scarf or a turban, you can match it and set it off by wearing party boots made of white rubber with plenty of white fur. These come in various heel sizes.

ALWAYS NICE is the all-black sleek-looking suit. A suit of smooth black woolen with a black wool coat has a deep yoke and high collar of black Alaskan seal. There are inset cuffs of the seal, and scalloped buttons.

THE SIMPLEST FROCK will be dressed up if you break it to some nice costume jewelry. Chunky chains of gold mesh are used to give a new look to the necklines. Renaissance buckles with matching jewelled buckles are used to relieve by a plain but still good black frock.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Lass of Twenty Gets Brings a Date to Fascinating

When a girl writes to me that she's 18 years old and not popular but that people call her pretty and although her parents provide her with good clothes and a good home she never makes a date — the solution is not far to see.

Sometimes she succeeds in rounding up a boy once or twice, but he never comes back for another date. In despair, her mother gives her a party and invites all the young people, but they don't seem to have a good time. They're compelled to the same sort of chill which emanates from the young hostess. And they drift away as soon as they can decently.

Then comes the crux of the confession. As one of them wrote me this morning: "I'm awfully blue nearly all of the time. It makes me so restless that I can't settle down to anything. I'm 18 years old and have never been popular. Girls who are less homely than I am (for everyone says I'm pretty, and my parents are very generous about clothes) don't have a good time.

"I think the reason must be that I'm terribly bashful—self-conscious and don't dance very well."

The latter partial confession is for two pages. And then comes the unbelievable announcement from a girl who has never been able to go to Honolulu and munch the lepra as the locals seem to do in it with boys and girls of her own age.

Well, of course, is sheer morbidity. She doesn't really want to nurse lepers any more than she wants to jump into a lion's den, Daniel. She's got a grouch on life because she is unpopular, and she wishes to dramatize a gesture of revolt.

But those in charge of a leper colony would not care to accept the proffered service. They have a fatally young lady of eighteen—with absolutely no equipment for the job — any more than the boys and girls of her own set find her companionable.

In a certain pigeon-hole of my desk, there are a lot of letters all married, in blue pencil, "Nix". They're all from young people, and there seems to be no particular reason why they should be unhappy. They're young, have nice homes, good appearances and at least a high school education. So maybe a little job might be the right medicine for these young people who enjoy feeling sad.

All said and done, isn't being blue continually a species of self-indulgence? And do you happen to read Thomas Moore's couplet, which ends with: "I'll bask the luxury of woe"?

Woe is apparently a highly popular flavor with a good many people young and old. It's meat and drink to them, and they're generous to a snack at odd hours.

It's so much easier to curl up in a comfortable chair and brood on the malice of Fate than shake yourself out of the bit of pleasant indulgence and do something active. Even if it does go to a brisk walk, put your breast drawn back, your order or try some other thing decent to a person who is less fortunate.

If you want to be really popular, cultivate the ability to add a little cheerfulness to life. Use the barometer of a room rise when certain people enter it. They may not be handsome, rich or influential, but when they come into a room, the atmosphere changes for the party begins.

Such people are good sports, and it luck has slammed the door on their faces temporarily, they don't sit on your time telling you about it.

To be popular, learn how to be cheerful.

MAIL WEDDING GIRL

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Tell me, please, if I, or the bride's small wedding outfit my maid of girl who is to act as a flower girl at a large wedding?

Mother.

You are the one who should outfit your daughter for the wedding at which she is to act as flower girl. The bride will tell you what she wishes, as to your daughter's costume, and you pay for these details. This is the custom.

P.

You are right. When the bride and groom chose their attendants they should choose them because they are close friends and because they wish to have them attend them at their wedding. It makes no difference whether or not they are married. The wife of a man who is asked by the groom to be an attendant should not feel that she should be asked by the bride to be an attendant. Likewise, the husband of a woman who is asked by the bride to be an attendant should not expect to be asked by the groom to be the best man or an usher.

WEDDING COSTUME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a widow in my thirties and am engaged to be married. Should you wear your engagement ring with your other rings or should you omit your late husband's rings and wear only your engagement ring? We plan to be married in early spring. Would a dressy afternoon wear suit be suitable, one with two coats? We intend just being married quietly in church and a few members of our immediate families present, and then we plan a trip. Will swagger suits be still fashionable this Spring or should a woman would a dress and coat be better? Would a fur be all right worn with a swagger suit? Please give me an early answer as I want all my plans completed early.

A Daily Reader.

It would be better taste for you to omit your late husband's rings, wearing only your engagement ring. Of course, for the actual ceremony you would not even wear your engagement ring. Yes, you can wear a swagger suit. It would be ideal for travelling and early spring fashions include suits that swagger suits will be more popular than ever, either with full length or three quarter length coat over suit coat. The cotton would be smarter without the fur.

Overwrought Nerves

The bane of many women

Many women are slaves to their nerves, the thousands of cares and worries which they are subject to sweep day undermine and break down the nervous system, the result is irritability, headaches, tired feelings.

Everything seems to go wrong at times and finally there comes the collapse of the nerves with extreme weakness and discouragement. These spells of hysteria and weeping and despair are likely to become more frequent when there is something done about it. There is no opening their napkins, the person who is to say the blessing must be kept waiting.

Bridegroom's Attendants

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My sister claims that the best man and ushers attending a wedding must be single men, and I am of the opinion that it makes no difference whether or not they are married. Please advise which is correct.

P.

You are right. When the bride and groom chose their attendants they should choose them because they are close friends and because they wish to have them attend them at their wedding. It makes no difference whether or not they are married. The wife of a man who is asked by the groom to be an attendant should not feel that she should be asked by the bride to be an attendant. Likewise, the husband of a woman who is asked by the bride to be an attendant should not expect to be asked by the groom to be the best man or an usher.

CHECK ROOM

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When entertaining a number of ladies at luncheon and bridge in a private dining room at one of the clubs, just what is done, or how it is done, with regard to the ladies' guests' coats and hats?

2. When the hostess meets the guests in the ladies' parlor, does she have their wraps checked in the cloak room which adjoins the ladies' parlor, or do the hostess and guests carry their wraps with them to the private room?

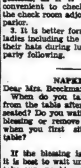
3. Do the hostess remove her hat and should the guests remove theirs also? Or are hats worn by during the luncheon and card party?

May.

1. Usually, just outside such rooms is a room for the checking of coats and, if there is not, the wraps may be checked in the coat-room provided with the main dining-room.

2. This depends, as I said in the first answer, in the arrangements in hotels. It sounds, from your questions, as if you would be conveniently to check the wraps in the coat-room adjoining the ladies' parlor.

3. It is better form for all of the ladies including the hostess, to wear their hats during luncheon and the party following.



NAPKINS

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

When do you take the napkin from the table after you have been seated? Do you wait until after the blessing or remove it to your lap when you first sit down at the table?

Dot.

If the blessing is given at once, it is best to wait until afterward to take our napkin from the table. Often when guests are too busy

UNDER THE MOON down South, pleated chiffons are getting a whirl. Pale pink chiffon is used for a devastating frock which has the bodice held by crossed bands of pink and blue chiffon roses, each rose centered with a tiny rhinestone.

DEEP AND DARK are the long, romantic, full capes of black velvet seen about town on dress nights. One lovely model sets off its inky black by a band of white velvet gardenias that falls like a hood in back.

HAD MONSTER TAPE WORM

This is my little girl's picture taken about a month after being relieved of a 15-foot tapeworm by Mulvey's tapeworm remedy. She had been under medical care for months and was treated for bronchitis. Finally it was discovered she had tapeworm. After one dose of Mulvey's famous tapeworm remedy she was relieved of the tapeworm and head and all. I cannot speak too highly of this remedy. I believe that is very grateful—Mrs. M. L. B. Rockville St., Toronto, Ont. Note: Thousands of people have these monsters and do not realize it. Write to our address below for free information. Many worms are common or large worms and for this trouble we recommend Mulvey's.

MULVEY'S TAPEWORM REMEDY

This remedy is a splendid medicine for those who suffer from worms, who are not sure of the common worms such as pin worms, seatworms, stomach troubles, nervousness, loss of appetite, and common ailments of babies, and growing children. When children are cross, fretful, restless and have disturbed sleep, Mulvey's Tapeworm Remedy will relieve them. You will be more than pleased with the results. SEND FOR FREE BOOKLET ON TAPEWORM and MULVEY'S REMEDY or will order it for you. Price $2.00 per bottle, postpaid.

The story of a woman whose ambitions from childhood was to exchange her brilliant career in a country home for a life in the centre of the Bohemians and grime of a large city is told in "Forty Years at Hull House," by Jane Addams, who overcame with pity for the lives spent in squalor and need, established Hull House in the heart of the world. Miss Addams, while on a visit to Europe with the close of her college career, resolved to share her life with the foreign born of the factories and tenements. In 1889, with her friend, Ellen Gates Starr, she rented a house on Halsted street. The doors were thrown open to the people in the neighborhood, to the sick and the oppressed. The story of Hull House is full of the miraculous development. The remarkable women gathering around her musicians gave fine concerts, the Public Library opened a branch in the old house. Thirteen buildings in all grew to form the unit which is Hull House. The autobiography of the woman whose sense of human needs and human goodness is unassuming and wise. Walter Lippman speaks for America when he says that he owes her his debt last year. "There is something else, which is not in the books, and that is her countenance, yea audible in her writings, and the special element in her influence. Jane Addams possesses a genius for condescension, she had infinite sympathy for common people without despising any of those that are uncommon. That is finally why those who know her best known her say that she was not only good but great."

Mary Ross, co-author of "100,000 Guinea Pigs," has written a book entitled "Doctors Disagree," which deals in his book "Eat, Drink and Be Merry" with the question of "Diet" to which demand for profit has driven manufacturers, advertisers, and publicists. Many products are named and food fads are exposed in this book. Miss Ross suffers from the delusion that "There are many other things about which she decides to disagree which are extremely unlikely to be significantly improved by the intervention of the chemists, the production engineers and the advertising men."

"Pearls and men" is the story of pearls. "Pearls are the tears of the oyster," Louis Kornitzer has been all his life a student of pearls, from his childhood days boyhood when he could grade pearls before he knew his letters. Pearls, like men, he says, have distinctive personality. "Pearls are to be found in all parts of the world, in all ages of people and places. The book abounds with interesting facts both about pearls and men in the out-of-the-way places of the earth.

Charles W. Bell, KC., has reprocced the stories of a number of famous Canadian murder cases in his book "Who Said Murder?" The murder cases are the Penland case, The Dr. Pratt case, and others. These records of Canadian trials will prove as exciting as a novel, and in many cases, more terrible.

Mortgage Money

While there's many different kinds of handicappers than you can shake a quarter pole at, Loony Bird was a rather famous one of them Loony's system was to take all the other ways of figuring and scramble them into hash. The result was that nobody knew what it took him so long to dope 'em out that by the time he was done the race was usually over. And the result players he always picked the kids what got the odds—and she had come in.

Last year we ran at Oaktown Park; Beaver Bertie, Harry the Pinhead, Mudder McHoot and me. We ate, as usual, trying to win ourselves some cherries and while we didn't cop no barrel of them, we are doing very well indeed. That is the first time we run across little Loony Lou who, though he is a stranger to us, gives us a big friendly and buys the drinks till he finds out that we had our own system. Then he comes up and confesses that he is looking for a sucker and asks the right one. Loony would we know where to find one.

Well, I think to myself, I knows three clocks who couldn't find their way out of a insane asylum, but seeing as how they are close friends of mine I don't mention their names. And from the way Mudder Mcloot, Harry the Pinhead, and Beaver Bertie are looking at me, I have a suspicion that maybe they are thinking the same thing.

The next time we see Loony Lou he has got a new pal; a nice looking young kid who ought to be back home in knickers and short dress, still holding on " his ma's apron strings. The first chance we get we send word to Loony Lou and he tips the kid off that Loony is going to make a book on races. But the kid is so hopped up already with Loony's system he don't think he won't listen. So seeing as how it ain't none of our business we don't say no more, but watch Loony take the boy's money with his own. Which is why.

Then when it's too late, the kid wakes up and he goes all to pieces. It looks like he would have to go home to his folks and get a new start. He's breezed by and dragged it.

"I come down here with five thousand smackers," he cries, "and now I ain't got enough to double money sox. I can go back home and pay off the mortgage on the farm. But I'm afraid to spend it all out of me, and now we won't have no home."

"What we going to do with him?" says Harry the Pinhead.

"If we turn him loose," says Harry the Pinhead, "he will sure get in with Loony."

So we takes the kid over to the hotel, gives him a hot bath and a new outfit of clothes, and puts the sheets to cool off. Then we have a talk in my stall to decide what to do.

"I never thought," I says, "that anybody would fall for Loony's old system in these days. Why his system is so crazy that even a horse player with a brain would peg at it."

Loony Lou uses alphabetical letters to designate the horses in his book," numerology, all the weather reports in the newspaper and the color of the mug what is going to lose the race.

"It's no use talking about that now," says Beezer Bertie. "The trouble is we got to figure what to do with this kid before he starts cutting his throat. Loony Lou into little pieces."

"Well," Harry the Pinhead suggests, "let's buy his railroad ticket back home and that he gets safely on the choo-choo."

"Not a chance there," puts in Mudder McHoot. "I happens to know that for him but he says he ain't got the guts to go home and get the dough for the mortgage."

"This begins to look to me like it's going to be a case of cheese," I say. "How much did the kid owe on the farm?" I asked off that shack in the hills?"

"I'm O.K. said Mudder.

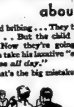
"Then a lot of money in any language," I agree. And I'm about to say more when Mudder takes off his hat and scratches his head.

"Shell out, you mugs," he says, "and keep shelling till I holler when."

And that is how the kid went home to live happily ever after with his folks.

We don't see Loony Lou again till this season at Tropical Park, where he's trying to get around the gate to the clubhouse when we run into a bunch of urwtles and turkeys and he's the guy on the turf is Loony Lou and looks like he has been in a accident. We are just about to go in there and break it up with a few well placed look and we see that the guy on Loony Lou's back is Jack Arkansas and so help me if he ain't yelling about the same mortgage on the farm.

What mistake is this young couple about to make?



They tried bribing . . . They tried canting . . . But the child still refuses. Now they're going to make him take his laxative "even if it takes all day."

And that's the big mistake.

Doctors say that the nervous strain a child undergoes when forced to take a nasty-tasting laxative can throw his entire system out of order. Mothers of mothers have learned an easy way to avoid this hazard. They give a laxative all children love to take . . . Castoria.

Do you know that Castoria is made especially for children? It has no harsh, purging drugs that some adult laxatives contain. It won't "crash" its way through a child's delicate system.

Castoria is a safe laxative that gently stimulates the muscles in the lower bowel. It helps the system throw off the waste. And it does its job thoroughly.

Never use any laxative but Castoria for your baby. If you have several children, we suggest you buy the Family Size Bottle. It lasts longer—is more economical.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

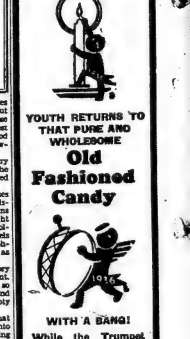
It is not the blood that bathes all the tissues of the body, but the lymph. Blood is too thick to ooze through the walls of the tiniest blood vessels, but lymph is thinner than blood and this part is a pale, straw-colored liquid called lymph.

The function of lymph is to carry nourishment derived from the blood to various products formed there.

Although lymph really passes through blood vessels and skin distributes itself everywhere in organs and tissues, it does not do a thought that it does so without being collected afterward by a set of vessels of its own. Here is a lymphatic system of vessels, the same as there is an arterial system.

The lymphatic vessels are very delicate, minute and transparent. Lymph nodes are everywhere, so to speak, units to form larger and larger vessels until finally empty themselves into the veins.

It is necessary, of course, that lymphatic vessels empty into veins, for the lymph, after bathing the tissues, is loaded with waste products which must be carried by the veins to the lungs to be eliminated and so purified.



When lymph accumulates in the lymphatic vessels, as it will, we have the familiar condition of oedema or "dropsy." In these cases the lymph, because of its excessive amount, increases the pressure and often swells the tissues.

In connection with lymph one must mention the "lymph nodes". Non-medical individuals, and often doctors themselves, refer to these lymph nodes as lymph glands, or simply as glands. As a matter of fact, however, they are not glands inasmuch as they do not secrete or manufacture any fluid.

Lymph nodes have two highly important functions. First they act as filters for the lymph which flows to and through the node. Secondly, they manufacture the so-called lymphocytes or white blood cells, which have been so aptly described as the "policemen of the blood."

Were it not for lymph nodes, we would probably be overcome and die long before our time. They are the safety valves of the body. They arrest the spread of the spread of infection, germs and their poisons.

We are all familiar with the swelling of these so called "glands" at side of the neck, when we have a decayed tooth or when the tonsils are diseased. What really happens is that the lymph vessels which supply the mouth are carrying the poisonous products from the mouth to these nodes. Their enlargement indicates that they are having a hard chemical and sirnutural fight to neutralize or destroy the infection.

PREMIER HEPBURN WILL BE ABSENT ON OPENING DAY

Ontario's Parliament to Commence Deliberations on Tuesday

Toronto, Feb. 8.—(CP)— Postponed from January 21, owing to the death of King George, the second session of Ontario's 11th Legislature will open next Tuesday in an atmosphere of mourning.

From a throne draped in black and purple in tribute to the late King, Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce will read the speech from the Throne forecasting government legislation. Meanwhile the floor of the Chamber will be only the members.

The traditional formal opening, which saw brilliantly-gowned ladies replace the legislators has been cancelled. Ladies may be present when the Governor gallery but no invitations for the function have been issued.

First item on the Legislative program, the Provincial Income Tax Bill will not be introduced today, Premier Hepburn has indicated the Government's determination to have the Bill on the statute books as quickly as possible.

Mr. Hepburn expects to be absent for the opening since he must testify on the Canadian trial of Henry Walker in London, Provincial Secretary Harry Nixon will be Acting Premier.

Marshall Absent

Another member of the cabinet, Hon. Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, will be absent too. He has taken his wife to England because a specialist has prescribed an ocean voyage for her health. Mr. Marshall will return later in the session.

Apart from the Income Tax Bill, which will confer upon Cabinet the right to impose income levies, the Government has given little indication of projected legislation. It is reported at Queen's Park, however, the Government plans a measure to give Separate Schools a share of Corporation Taxes.

Power promises to figure prominently in the session. The Opposition fought stubbornly against legislation passed last session for municipalities to buy Power contracts. Any new agreements will be watched closely for evidence of approval the Premier has stated.

Agreement Reached

The Hydro Commission confirmed reports that negotiations between the Gatineau Power Company about a new agreement, Gatineau Power and the four companies whose contracts were cancelled the Cabinet was reported yesterday to have empowered the Commission to consummate the deal.

The Government, consisting of 87 Liberals, three Liberal-Progressives and one Independent, who contested the 1934 election with Liberal support, will be opposed by 17 members of George S. Henry, former Premier, leads the 11-member Conservative opposition and Mr. Mitchell, there is one member from the United Farmers of Ontario and one from the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, to make up the 90-member House.

A. St. Clair Gordon, Kent West, will move the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne. He is seconded by T. Harry Marcellus, Nipissing. This is planned for the afternoon session. T. Henry will likely start debate on the reply the following day.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS CLOSE

Toronto, Feb. 8.—(CP)—Interest was concentrated in Abitibi common, Brazilian and International Nickel on the industrial market of Toronto Exchange today where trading moved forward while the rest of the market lagged. Abitibi prices advanced sharply and sold as high as $1.35 since the first of the year. Brazilian rose to Bolton Wanderers 13 3-4 to close with a net gain of 1-4. International Nickel at 34 3-4 was up 5-8. Falconbridge and C.P.R. were steady to slightly lower.

Base metals and International Pete sold off 1-8 to 1-4 while British American firmed about the same amount. Distillers Seagrams losing nearly a point and Industrial Alcohol A almost a point. Banks were steady to slightly lower.

Gains were recorded for Eastern Steel, United Steel and Steel Co. Fanny Farmer sold at 16 and the building issues worked lower by narrow fractions.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto Feb. 8 (CP)—Traders busied themselves with the penny stocks in today's short session of Toronto Mining Market, pending a return of strength to the more expensive groups.

Wright Hargreaves sold up a few cents, Dome added 1-4 and Little Long Lac lost 5. Noranda changed 1-4 and Teck-Hughes 1-4. Kirkland Basin weakened a few.

Central Patricia was down to 1.36 from 1.38 and Macassa was down the same amount and other losers of 1 to 1 were Reno, McKenzie-Sutherland and Sylvanite. Castle River followed small gain, Premier and Hollinger remained steady.

WALL STREET CLOSE

New York, Feb. 8 (AP)—Air-craffs led a late mild rally in today's brief stock market session. Various rubbers, oils and specialties also improved. Gains were mostly fractional at the stock close. Transfers approximated 1,300,000 shares.

Among Canadian stocks, McIntyre improved moderately while a fairly broad list showed small gains. Shares of International Nickel, Distillers Corp.-Seagrams, Ethan Walker and Canadian Pacific. Government Bonds and Municipal issues held unchanged at 100 3-16 cents.

Among the better acting shares at the finish were Douglas, United Aircraft, Du Pont, Commercial Solvents, Goodrich, Coca-Cola, United Stores "A", Anaconda Copper, Shell and Oil of California and Delaware and Hudson. An advance of some 12 points was recorded by Homestake Mining.

MAYOR RECEIVES ANONYMOUS LETTERS

Anonymous letters are still being received at the office of the Mayor, "letters, which in most cases are of a scurrilous character," and which relative to local civic problems and which are welcomed by the police, pointed out Mayor Hill this morning.

"I appreciate these letters from the citizens and I only wish they would sign their names just as a matter of good faith. Most of them are very good. Unfortunately, however, I can't act on the suggestions contained because of their anonymity. This office is always open to suggestions and I appreciate the opportunity or being able to hold discussions with any one right here. Any letter will be considered confidentially and names will not be revealed. The letters turned over to proper names attached will also be held confidential by me," added the Mayor.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Feb. 8.—Local butter and eggs markets were stronger here yesterday. Fresh eggs arriving in the city in lots of 1-car load to 1 car load higher than on Thursday. Prices of eggs to the retail trade were held unchanged at the low issues of the week. The butter market was firmly higher, but increased demand from small distributors was noted, and there were lighter offerings as speculative holders who apparently were waiting for the Dominion report of butter stocks, due on Monday. Prolonged cold weather, both here and in the West, cited by some as another contributing factor. Cheese, produced and sold yesterday, moved. Receipts for the day were posted at the Board of Trade at 379 cases of eggs, 75 boxes of butter and no cheese. Light receipts of eggs, and a better demand accounted for the advancing prices.

The market was generally quoted 23-23 1-4c per lb. For No1 in cartons or 1-1. lots, compared with 23 1-4c and 23 1-2c paid on the floor on Thursday.

On the egg market graded shipments in cartons or 1-1. lots were 27c for, A. large, 26c for A-medium and 23c for A-pullets.

Minor Recession in Wholesale Price

A minor recession was shown in wholesale prices, the index number plus from 78.1 to 78.7, Wheat led coarse grains, with the exception of rye, were lower on the Winnipeg Grain exchange, Barley No. 3 C.W. declined about 1 cent, and closed at 37 cents to 34.8 cents. Wheat No. 1 Manitoba Northern, averaged about one cent higher against 84.7 cents. On the New York exchange, wheat declined about one cent while the other principal non-ferrous metals, including copper, lead, zinc and silver were unchanged. The Canadian index of non-ferrous metals rose from 120.6 to 120.7. Increases in cattle and zinc proved of more importance than declines in copper, lead and silver.

STOCKS ADVANCE

The feature of the week was the advance in common stock prices, the index daily average rising from 117.8 120.7. Industrials were strong, the index being 144.4 against 139.3. Each of the industrial groups showed gains, the sharpest gain being reported in the advance. The gain in the index of power and utilities was from 97.6 to 97.8, and that of banks from 67.1 to 68.3.

Hospital Atmosphere in Each Rink Advocated by Conny Smythe of Toronto

Player's Protection if at Anything Injured in Game

PUT ROOM IN GARDENS

Horner And Kelly Not Likely to Play Against America

(By A. E. Fulford)

(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

When hockey was an infant industry at Madison Square Gardens Tex Rickard parked ambulances outside in happens naive New Yorkers with the game's enduring possibilities and now Conny Smythe intends moving the hospital atmosphere right in beside the ice surfaces.

Just see for Ballyhoo, The Toronto Maple Leaf manager believes that for the players' protection each hockey rink in the National League should install a hospital room with all facilities for the care of injured players.

Smythe watched Red Horner, injured Leaf defenceman, being helped in a dressing room at Madison Square Gardens Thursday night, and was impressed with the lack of proper facilities available for the surgeon. The extent of Horner's injuries could not be determined until he was moved to hospital and an examination made there.

Probably Blood Poisoning

The Leaf manager is still worrying whether blood poisoning will result from a deep gash received in pitching and his hospital-room-for-each-rink idea. Every rink, he says, will be equipped immediately in Toronto's Maple Leaf Gardens and Smythe will demand at the next meeting of the N.H.L. Governors that other clubs provide the same facilities.

Physicians are always available in N.H.L. games, of course, but the latest work in construction assures their patient stretched out on a rubbing table, the lighting equally brilliant and their surgical outfit little more than they carry. Smythe would banish all that. Everything would be spotless white in the hospital rooms he suggests. Equipment for anything less than a major operation would be installed including spotless uniforms for the physicians.

They may even have a stretcher to carry players from the ice and hurry them to the dressing room without a prayer of thanks that they haven't been hit with a pop bottle. I'm glad to hear that will be patched up if they are hurt badly enough," he said.

Hospitals and doctors are very much in Smythe's mind as his Leafs prepare to meet New York Americans tonight at Toronto. Horner is out of the game definitely and Pep Kelly will be absent from the lineup because of Frank Clancy and Harvey Jackson, both injured in recent games, may play but probably won't see much action.

Need Bill Hook

Bill Hoil, out for two games with a head injury, will be back, however, and Smythe has not called reinforcements from the Leafs' farm, Syracuse. Happy Day has offered to play his position on the defence and Charlie Conacher, who played there for the full route, may be moved back also.

The Toronto contest is half of tonight's N.H.L. bill, Chambers and Marcons meeting at Montreal in the other contest. Maroons and Leafs are tied for the runner-up division lead and Americans lead Canadiens by a point.

After their Toronto game Red Dutton's team move on to Chicago for a Saturday contest with Black Hawks who could retain the American division lead by winning. Boston and Rangers will fight it out Sunday night at New York to decide who will occupy the cellar. Circling Lead Lester Patrick's team by only a point.

HAPPENINGS AT OLYMPIC GAMES

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb.8—(AP)—Donna Fox of New York, the second Olympic bobsled victim was injured today in a spill during practice on the Olympic bob run.

Fox, a Bronx undertaker by profession, was thrown to the ice but a hospital examination indicated his injuries were not serious. Doctors said he would be able to participate in the Olympics.

The Olympic bob-sledding competition, originally slated to start today, had to be postponed indefinitely yesterday because of the poor condition of the run.

At least a dozen contestants previously had been hurt in crack-up coming practice.

DEACONS SWAMP NAPANEE 72-2

Juvenile Entry From City Has Smart Bunch of Boys

Showing too much class, speed and the smooth result of splendid coaching, the Deacon A. C. juveniles won their initial home game in the R. O. B. B. A. when they swamped the Napanee Grads by the score of 72 to 2 on the Collegiate gymnasium floor last night. The locals proved far too superior for their rivals and no one checked out nor stopped and ran up their count. The Napanee squad failed to click on a single field basket, they getting their two points on successful foul shots by VanLieven as the Deacons checked most sturdily all night. Practically every member of the Deacon juvenile squad scored as some time during the one-sided contest.

Previous to the regular juvenile B.C.G.A.A.A. game, a team of B.C.I. girls played the present-day B.C.I. boys' basketball team under boys' rules and fashion and the latter were rivals to the tune of 26 to 24. Both games saw plenty of close, fast basketball, however.

Coach Cook's regular starting team proved his best squad both defensively and offensively with Kiles and McIlwraith leading in the scoring with 14 points each. Dickens counted for Grills while Mitchell and McCabe accounted for eight each. VanLieven's two successful foul tosses gave Napanee their only points. VanLieven, Culhane, Riley and Dean looked the best for Coach Egan's Napanee squad. The game was refereed and handled by Tobe of Belleville.

Girls Show Speed.

A large gallery, the largest of the season, was on hand when the Collegiate "Grads" girls team trotted out for their first game. Before and after the maroon and white team was augmented by a few Collegiate girls. The fourth girls opened the play with plenty of speed and showed splendid style and ability in working under the boys' rules. At the half way mark the Collegiate girls were leading by a 10-9 score of 12 to 6 and looked far the better. Coach Clarke injected some of his seniors into the game at the second half and pulled ahead of the Napanee girls by a wide margin, playing spirit to come back and finish the game on the long end of the with two speedy baskets in the last minute of play. Annie Crujl and Marion Macleod led the locals in the scoring with 19 points each. M. Macleod, Eddie Scott and Harry Oliver. In addition to hockey he starred at school as a track and field man, football and baseball player. Now he is also a high class golfer.

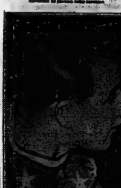
INDUSTRIAL HOCKEY



Three games of hockey were played in the local Industrial Hockey League at the Arena last night, Only one game resulted, being slated to emerge winners. The St. Andrew's Church Men's club defeated the Belleville-Sargent "kock-mates" by the score of 7-3 as they took three convenient markers against the weakened "kock-makers". The bankers' team, Men's Y.M.C.A. played a 3-3 tie, while "Corby's and the Corbyettes" battled to a two all draw in the opening fixture of Jack Willson's circuit.

BY RAY COLLETT

Dave "Sweeney" Schriner, the 1935 rookie sensation with New York Americans and still placed among the most dangerous forwards in the N.H.L., was passed up a few years ago because he was thought "dumb." Art Ross, Boston's manager, personally scouted the Caldwell, Sask., product and reported: Actually Schriner looks dumb—except to an opposing goalie. Perhaps it's his somewhat expressionless appearance, for he certainly has presented he has hockey brains aplenty.

Summertime he plays baseball. Coach Red Dutton, into baseball management, handled a pro baseball team made up of hockey players, Schriner was among them. He faced "Chucker" Beverly, crack hurler of the Colored Giants in Calgary, one day. "Chucker" had invented Dutton's purblets down in order for eight innings. Two men were out in the ninth and the pitching ace had a no-hit, no-hit game in the bag when Sweeney came to bat. The count was three and two; the colored pitcher threw in a low, inside curve. Schriner lammed it out of the park for a home-run to abruptly shatter the Beverly dream.

The star-spangled ace got his nickname from school days when coaches pronounce his German surname. He had as his youthful idols, Eddie Shore, Aurel Joliat and Harry Oliver. In addition to hockey he starred at school as a track and field man, football and baseball player. Now he is also a high class golfer.

JACKIE HESTALL, one of the best captains that ever fell into the Fishermen's net. Plays at inside forward for Grimsby Town and is noted for his brilliant play-making capabilities more than for his scoring ability. His perky build enables him hard to stop, he has a remarkable turn of speed and his defensive work is rated the tops by the Grimsby crowd with whom he is a great favorite. Hestall is captain of the Grimsby "iron men", played a game last year without break and scored five goals.

Second Man on Bob-Sled Has A Real Place

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Feb. 6 (AP)—Alan Washbond of Keene Valley, N.Y., who looks out warily from behind spectacles, doesn't answer any description of the perfect athlete but he's probably the greatest bobber in the world.

He weighs 225 pounds dressed for action. His weight is distributed over only five feet nine inches and he's probably the slowest man on his feet ever to win the American and Olympic emblem. However, he's the gentleman who is very likely to bring victory to Jennie Bickford in the two-man bob-sled championship.

Washbond and his pushbutt companion, Ivan Brown, another Keene Valley product, were the only Olympic trials and the North American "dual" competition at Lake Placid, N.Y., last year. They won the American championship two years ago and hold the two man record of 1.5.34 for the hazardous Mt. Von Hoevenberg course at Lake Placid.

Regarded As Passenger.

Ordinarily it's the valorous driver of a bob sled who counts in the practically all of the cheers. His contribution in victory is regarded as a passenger duty for a ride.

The purpose of this yarn from a village so cold that icicles form on moving objects is to get the record straight. Far from being cheap baggage, the second man, if he knows his business, means the difference between first place and sixth place.

Washbond, who carries most of his weight around the hips, is the greatest bobber of them all and has proven in actual tests he can make the difference between two and three seconds in the time it takes the sled to reach the bottom of the course.

Brown, the driver of the team who earns his living as a guide in the Adirondack mountains when he isn't driving a bob-sled, is the first to insist upon Washbond's greatness—not in sise but in ability—in his line.

"When he throws those pounds on that sled I can feel it jump like a goat," said Brown. "Sometimes it's all I can do to hold it on the course when he bobs on the straight-away."

NIAGARA FALLS VILLANS SECOND IN THEIR GROUPS

Earn Right For Playoffs by Winning Last Night

SAILORS ARE OUT

Fort Colborne's Ship Sunk By Oakville

Niagara Falls and Oakville Villans groomed for the playoffs today in their respective groups of the senior Ontario Hockey Association.

The Falls team grabbed second place in the Niagara district, their 10-3 win over Hamilton Pats at the Falls last night in their last scheduled game. They fight it out with Kitchener for section honors.

Villans conquered Fort Colborne Sailors to Davy Jones' locker at Toronto last night by a 5-4 count. The Oakville team edged into third place in the eastern section behind the Toronto Argonauts and Toronto Dukes. Their one remaining scheduled game is against the Sailors at Fort Colborne next Friday.

It is fated Niagara Falls Castors if they lost to Hamilton, so they went to work in earnest, clocking four goals in the first period, three in the second while Pats counted twice, and two more in the third. Sam Phillips scored three goals to one Calabrese's maximum, but Shaw and Steele each counted twice. Hunter, McCracken and Deragh got the others. Mahon, Pats' goalie, had fifteen goals, one unassisted and one Calabrese's goal.

Swapped Punches.

Saral Jack Dalrymple centre, and defenceman "Red" Reynolds of Fort Colborne swapped punches at Toronto after Reynolds tripped the fiery Villani pivot man. Allan drew five minutes for the penalty but for throwing the first fist and Reynolds got but two minutes.

The Sailors scored their goal in the first period inside the five-minute mark when Runstedler set up assist by R. Morrison. Allan tied it up unassisted. On the first of two scoring points. In the second period he repeated assisted by Tweedsmuir and Campbell for two Villans goals and scored again unassisted. Bosson's goal on the assist from Dalrymple early in the third made it 5-1 for Oakville and ended the scoring.

TECS HUMBLED BY OLYMPICS

Detroit Again Pace-Setters in Their Section

(By the Canadian Press)

Detroit Olympics were again pace-setters of the International Hockey League as Jack Hughes and his men moved further into front in the standings tonight as a result of last night's exchanges to take a pair. advantage over Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets, who were beaten.

Paced by Carl Liscombe, the Olympics stepped into London and humbled the Tecs, 5-3 in an exciting tussle. "Tip" Foster proved the hero man of the contest, when he scored the two goals in the second period in the penalty box. Once he had completed his term of the officials and drew a misconduct penalty. Liscombe and Foster—"Tip" dumped Ellis "Rabbit" McInnis.

Windsor Bull Dogs continued their struggle to reach second place by trouncing Rangers as they pleased a home-town crowd by 7-2 decision. Four of the Dogs' total had a big night with the winners, collecting three of their goals. The Bulldogs' Ken Doan and Jim Fowler gave them new hope when they scored their fifth win with less than a minute or play remaining.

Young Paul Gauthier, former Winnipeg Junior, loaned to Pittsburgh Yellow Jackets by Montreal Canadiens, was the star of the game as his mates took a 4-3 overtime decision from Rochester Cardinals. The battle of the cellar occupants pleased 3,500 Pittsburgh fans.

Conrad Bourcier, another youngster sent down to the Irish by Canadiens, was hero of the contest, bagging the winning goal after five minutes in the extra period in a game with his brother Jean and Billy Hudson.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

The Belleville "Redmen" concluded their schedule in the O.H.A. last night by bowing to the Oshawa "Cherries" 11 to 8. The game meant nothing to the locals, but they gave the boxscorers a merry battle in a free-scoring game. Incidentally the home-town victory gives the Cherries the group honors and eliminates the Petersboro' squad for the season. Following last night's game the "Redmen" now revert back to the intermediate O.H.A. "D" ranks and continue into the provincial playdowns. The "Redmen" commence their drive for honors in the intermediate O.H.A. "D" ranks when they play Napanee on Tuesday night, with the return game slated for Belleville on Thursday evening. Goals will count on the round. The Napanee aggregate won Group No. 1 in the "B" series of the O.H.A. and the right to meet Belleville in the first round playoffs.

Bay of Quinte League hockey will lead forth at the Arena on Monday night, when the local Trade Hotel "Sailors" entertain the Picton entry. "Duke" Smith's charges meet the fast fixture to be seen with the league-leading Napanee squad. Belleville Yacht Club Flyers, who previously this season, a wide-open torrid struggle that included three extra-period contests with a victory did the players enter into the contest.

How many hockey fans remember the old days when the Kingston Frontenacs, Queens, Peterboro' and R. M. C. were in the "big six group" along with Belleville about 15 or 18 years ago? Those were the days of real hockey games and competition, that kept the fans in a frenzy. What we are really getting at is do you remember "Red" McKivor, Jimmie Morris and "Red" McDowall, well, today in Belleville we have a brother of McDowall playing every week at the Arena. He is no less a personage than "Red" McDowall's junior centre player for the Albert College sextette in the Belleville Intermediate O.H.A. At that "Red" ahlfs exactly as his brother did and does not look any too much unlike "Red" McDowall of old, when in action on Wednesday night.

Congratulations are in order for "Buster" Whitton, who today is the proud father of a bouncing baby boy. Whitton, a C. capers downed the Napanee "Grads" 72 to 2 in a regular league game in the O. B. B. A. last eve. The local outfit, coached by Art Cole and Cook Paul, showed no much class and were the better from the barrier to the finish. The visitors proved woefully weak around the basket, while the locals clicked with speed practically all night. The Deacon floored a smooth-passing, speedy and well-balanced squad that completely mounted the score. In a certain-to-be exhibition fixture, a team of girls, all ex-students of the B.C.I. defeated the B.C.I. boys' team 26 to 24 in a game that proved most interesting. The girls showed up not unlike the boys when it came to boys' rules and also demonstrated they could tangle with the best of 'em. As a matter of fact one of the boys was heard remark after the game—"Them dames play too darn rough for us; why they think nothing of charging a fuller into submission. Me on that game."

Sam Corry, manager of the Tweed Junior O.H.A. squad, called us today to state his charges had been drawn in the first round of the Junior O.H.A. play-downs against the Kingston Juniors. They play in Kingston on Wednesday and back in Tweed next Friday. Sammy's lads will have to be faster than to imagine they are, to beat the Kingstonians.

Press dispatches recently have carried controversies relative to certain Canadian hockey players now playing in England and with the English Olympic team in Germany. One name especially has been much absent, that of Arthur Child. Although it is not generally known about town, Art started his puck-stopping career in Belleville, where as a small boy he played on the rinks and ponds. Art's father brought his family from England following the war and took up residence in Belleville, being employed by the Rathbun Wood-ware Company. Later the Childs family moved to Woodstock, where Art completed his hockey education before returning home to England recently.

Following last week's Junior O.H.A. defeat, Eddie Thomas notified the O.H.A. he did not intend completing the portion of the schedule in the local group, the Kingston "Red Indians" already having won the group honors. In the intermediate "B" series of the O.H.A. the Campbellford Maroons and the local "Redmen" may yet tangle, the Maroons being well out in front of the group and headed towards the title, we hear.

Looking ahead we find three nights of hockey at the Arena next week. Monday the Bay of Quinte League, Wednesday one another of those thrilling double-headers in the Senior Interscholastic loop when the Albert College squad will battle it out for the group honors and then there's the O.H.A. playdown of Napanee at Belleville on Thursday. We also hear that the Napanee squad for the V.O.N. ice carnival and charity game are busy at work on their cakes, while the policemen's hockey squad is holding practices when behind closed doors with Bill Evans, Percy Thompson, Harold Taylor and "Pick" Arnold practicing body-checking each other in earnest. We also hear that the curlers of this game

Last evening, Pete Beach's Albert College senior interscholastic basketball team journeyed over to Picton for a scheduled caps game in the Senior Interscholastic series and returned home victors by the score of a 37 to 31 score.

Jim Londos Back To Wrestling Wars

Detroit, Feb. 8—(AP)—Jim Londos came back to the wrestling wars last night and in an exhibition as colorful as any he ever spoke in the five years he ruled the mat as heavyweight title claimant, took only 13 minutes to down Jim Stroble, now, 280 pound Indian, in a special match on a card that also saw Ali Baba weighed 205.

Despite a year of inactivity, which followed his loss of the title to Danno O'Mahoney, Londos appeared in the best condition of his career. Stronghow with a body bare he used in many matches.

Buffalo Ankerite

Buffalo Ankerite Gold Mine has drifted over 1900 lineal ft. of ore along the north structure on the 975-foot level. Overall sloping width would be at least 5 feet and overall grade would probably be close to 28 or 29 oz. per ton, after allowing for dilution. The 725-ft. level is just as good an ore source as the 975 with much greater overall sloping width. The depth outlook is excellent. Several fine drill intersections below the 975-ft. level indicate big widths of high grade. The greenstone host rock area, bounded by serpentine, appears to be getting more favorable for ore deposition with depth. Buffalo Ankerite's north ore structure is revealing itself as one of the important and concentration areas of gold ores in Porcupine.

Pyrmaster.

The Northern Miner reviews the the experience of the past year's situation at Paymaster, as follows:—Paymaster is milling 375 tons daily now, and the management plans to be up to 500 tons before summer. Further increases beyond this are possible, in fact likely, depending upon ore results enjoyed in new areas to be attacked. The 500 tons will come out of existing areas. Grade is averaging $8, the feed being a mixture of ore from various sources and running from low grade up to half ounce material. The increase in grade is hoped for between now and summer. The shaft vein at present is No. 3. Actually this is a vein series composed of two veins, one lodging from diamond drilling, perhaps four veins. New vein indications are usually high grade; they may be offshoots for No. 3 No. 3 vein proper has 1,300 feet in length of ore in two lenses, running about four-tenths of an ounce across 6 feet and a half feet width on the average. This is an important length of ore even for the Porcupine camp. Earlier operators had only about half this length. One of the big things the new people have accomplished was the proving that enough by large ore measures lay between the older workings in this ore system. Apparently this doubling up will be had most of the way from surface down to the lowest present depth.

McKenzie Red Lake.

Diamond drilling from the 450-foot level at McKenzie Red Lake Gold Mines, preparatory to sinking the winze, has intersected the shear zone encountering free gold in the core. Fifty per cent of the total feed is still coming from underground development faces. The winze to open two new levels below the 450-foot horizon should be underway this week, it is reported.

"In the first place we do not look for any imminent advance in the price of gold. And in connection with cost-to-date gold inflation, we have the experience of the past few years has shown more clearly than ever that the price of gold is only a slight factor in governing quotations for metal commodities. Consequently, for the time being, this type of inflation, can be 'ignored.' We are likely to remain so, within the early future—an undue flood of fresh money from the printing presses.

"The inflation which is generally expected is a credit inflation. We have large banking reserves which could support a credit expansion by many additions than that of 1929."

A report from New York has it that President Roosevelt's announcement that it may be possible to issued as much as a billion dollars potential demand on the Treasury for currency purposes, with his recommendation for repeal of three crop control acts, has served to allay to some extent the talk of inflation. Some observers, however, are not so sure. It may only be another "breathing spell". And, in any case the executive has to deal with a congress that seems definitely committed to inflationary policies and with a powerful silver bloc. In this connection, it is suggested that the present outflow of gold ties up with an inflation policy.

The Gold Stocks and Inflation

The better situated of the gold stocks continues to offer what is perhaps the most satisfactory hedge against currency inflation and further devaluation of the dollar. And the bulk of these have the added attraction of generous and comparatively secure yields. Devaluation as surveyed in the United States was essential to recovery and stimulant and the general improvement has already carried to a point at which the wisdom of a further advance in gold would be questioned in even the more enthusiastic of devaluation circles. Thus, those committed to the gold shares should centre their attention mainly on the spread between production costs and the $35 price, probable dividend payments and yield, and the extent of proved ore reserves.

United Grain Growers

United Grain Growers, Ltd., is a co-operative organization which handles grain, deals in farm supplies and performs other services for farmers. Owns and operates a terminal elevator at Port Arthur, Ont., with a capacity of 3,500,000 bushels and operates a terminal elevator with capacity of 2,000,000 bushels which is leased from the Vancouver Harbour Commission. The company also operates 448 country elevators and has 81 annex es, 393 coal sheds, 221 supply warehouses and 247 agents' cottages. The majority of the company's operation are carried on through wholly-owned subsidiaries.

An annual dividend of 6% a share has been paid on the common st each of the 3 years. Earnings were nothing in 1931, $1.71 a share in 1934, and 98 cents in 1935. The light grain crop in areas served by the company may mean small storage charges in the current year, and transfer of wheat from western elevators into eastern storage may affect the company's earnings adversely. There does not appear to be a prospect of any remarkable improvement in earnings, but dividend policy on the common shares will not be determined until after the close of the company's fiscal year on July 31, 1937. The usefulness of the company's securities will depend on large crop years. The size of the crop in areas served by the company, and upon wheat movements later this year, which cannot be foreseen yet.

Newmarket Shares Are Highly Regarded in London

The listing of the common stock of Newmarket Mines Limited on the London Stock Exchange is an important event in the history of this company. Influential English people are well versed on the affairs of Noranda and it is confidently expected that the shares will have a large following.

The Gold Stocks.

Writing on the subject of "investments" in the current issue of "Canadian Business", one writer has the following to say on the gold stocks:

The rapid advances in the senior and junior gold stocks can be traced to two obvious influences:

(1) The realization—or expectation—of favourable ore developments with the attendant boost of eventual (or more profitable) production; and

(2) The anticipation of an increase in the price of gold.

The first factor is too dependent upon conditions at individual properties to enable a sweeping comment to be made. The second factor is analyzed briefly as follows:

The passage of the Soldiers' Bonus Bill in the United States is now indicated. In whatever manner the bonus is raised, the effect will be inflationary. To this imminent inflation measure must be added the vague threat of the Frasier-Lemke farm mortgage bill, the Townsend demands, and other attempts to run the printing presses.

Such developments as these have caused the American dollar to depreciate in the world markets where most economists believe it has been undervalued. For the United States government to depreciate the dollar even further by refusing the price of gold would seem to fulfil no useful purpose.

With a 16-billion dollar gold supply, the American printing press could produce a sufficient number of dollars to finance most of the fantastic schemes which have been proposed and still maintain an adequate gold coverage for its currency. While such a paper inflation is unlikely, it would not require an increase in the American price of gold.

Furthermore, the United States recovery plan is dependent upon orthodox financing through the sale of government bonds. To so frighten the average bond investor by raising the price of gold at this juncture would destroy one of the administration's chief recovery props even though the bond market itself might be supported.

Finally, an increase in the American price of gold would attract more unwanted gold to the country, and the resultant rise in the stock market might intensify the movement.

At the moment, the British and the French currency control boards seem to have secured stabilization between the two currencies. Even in the event of a depreciation of the franc, one cannot foresee the action of London but as the pound sterling is now a world (currency, England would not allow it to depreciate (by raising the price of gold) without the most careful consideration.

While an increase in the price of gold may come without warning, an outside view of the inner workings of the various currency stabilization boards does not suggest such an advance which would affect Canadian mines.

However, gold stocks will always be bought (as long as the gold standard remains) by those who seek a haven from the economic blizzard, and by those who seek wealth in the gyrations of the stocks of promising but undeveloped properties.

January Paper Trade.

With inventory-taking in full swing in the paper consuming trade, it will be among the last distributing and paper mills, business in paper circles in Ontario is quiet, although on the whole the first month of the new year proved satisfactory as compared with the same month a year ago. A distinctly optimistic feeling prevails throughout the trade based largely on a good wind-up of last year's business, which, for the most part was entirely satisfactory.

January is always a quiet month in the paper trade and this past month proved no exception to the rule but the total sales exceeded those of January last year. Less effect has been felt in respect to the seasonal lull in sales this year and it is likely that the busy season will be on another this year earlier.

There is quite a fair demand for all classes of paper—particularly so in specialty quiet month and the mills report encouraging signs of enlarged requisitions. Coated stock is moving better than it was before the end of the old year and the prospects for that class of paper are said to be good.

Canadian Pacific Railway.

The annual financial statement of The Canadian Pacific Railway is always perused very carefully by the investing public and business men in all large lands of the world on account of the wide range of interests and one of its important subsidiaries, Canadian Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company in which it now owns 326,000 shares and was carried on the balance sheet at $8,412,500.

When the next report is published the Street understands that the holdings in Smelters will be placed at cost, around $55 a share, making the total value of $17,930,000, an increase of roughly ten millions over that previously reported. The market valuation of these shares at the time of writing is approximately $78,404,500.

H. O'DONNELL MAY TAKE STAND IN OWN DEFENCE

But More Policemen And Scientists Will First Testify

BLUE HAIRS TESTED

Toronto, Feb. 8 (CP)—With help from the scientist's laboratory, the Crown pushed slowly on today with its case against Harry O'Donnell, 23-year-old filling station attendant accused of murdering attractive Ruth Taylor after ravishing her last November.

End of the "ravish murder" trial's first week saw O'Donnell promised to take the witness stand in his own defence after hearing scientific experts swear hairs found on his clothing could not be distinguished from material in a sweater worn by the slain typist the night of her death.

' More Fallen To Testify.

But before the unemotional prisoner puts his story before the jury, there is more prosecution evidence to come. More policemen are to testify and more scientific experts will be heard besides the three who held the court's attention all day yesterday.

The three—Dr. T. H. Rea, pathologist; Prof. Joslyn Rogers, provincial pathologist, and C. W. Ewing, textile expert—swore they could find no difference in Belgian rabbit hairs from the girl's blue sweater and the type of hairs taken from O'Donnell's clothes Nov. 6, two days after the girl was killed in a lonely east end ravine.

Scientists Unanimous.

The scientists were unanimous also in testifying the hairs on O'Donnell's bloodstained clothes could not have come from baby things found in his home or from blue woollen articles taken from his parents' home. These were markedly different, they held.

Dr. Rea told the jury the blood on O'Donnell's trousers, topcoat and shirt cuff was human, though he could not determine its classification. He expressed the opinion some of the stains could not have been caused through being smudged by an injured hand which O'Donnell claimed to have hurt in a gasoline pump.

Furthermore, he testified, it was not likely O'Donnell had injured his hand in the pump. Two scratches might "possibly but not probably" have been caused by the pump but it was not possible a bruise on the back of the hand could have been so caused.

Rabbit Hairs Described.

C. W. Ewing, consulting chemist specializing in textiles, was called to the stand following Professor Joslyn Rogers. He testified that the material in Ruth Taylor's sweater was a mixture of wool and what was known in the trade as Belgian rabbit hair, about 75 per cent. wool and 25 per cent. rabbit. The wool fibres were short and rather pointed. The coarser rabbit hairs, found in the sweater, he said.

"What happens when that is rubbed against any coarse cloth?" asked Mr. McRuer.

"There is a tendency for a large number of hairs to be deposited on the cloth."

"Why does the rabbit hair do that and not the wool?"

"It is the character of those yarns. The rabbit hair comes to the surface. It is difficult to spin because so much of the rabbit hair is lost; it has to be done very carefully."

"Did you examine the hairs taken from the blue woollen clothing?" he. 25 or 30 slides were submitted to me by Dr. Rea and Professor Rogers. I found the hairs, except one single fibre, to be Belgian rabbit hairs." A microscopic examination showed the fibres in each to be the same, "as two rabbit leaves are the same," he explained.

Same Dyes Used.

Chemical tests, he said, showed that the hairs had been "dyed with the same coloring matter".

"You've had years of experience in dye dyes?" "Yes, 13 years."

Pointing to a slide containing a bit of material taken from the accused's clothing, Mr. Ewing said the microscope revealed that it contained reddish hair and wool of dark and light color as the sweater. Chemical tests produced the same reactions as the wool in the sweater.

"I was able to discern any difference chemically or microscopically. To all intents and purposes they are the same," swore the witness.

He went on to explain that the "beard or guard hairs" in the rabbit fur, the longer ones, varied in size, but in different places in the same hair; they might vary from four to eight or nine to eight or nine rows, varying the effect from a smooth surface to a flat ribbon of fibre.

The blue baby bootees which had been taken from the O'Donnell flat had not contained the same kind of hairs as those in the sweater or on the clothing of the accused, witness testified. Under the microscope, chemically and chemically different, "because of the dye stuff." They were also finer than the Belgian rabbit hair, longer than the Belgian rabbit hair.

Blue Blanket Tested.

A blue baby's blanket was also pronounced "dissimilar" to the other fibres, under similar tests.

Under questioning from Mr. Regan, Mr. Ewing stated that he graduated from the University of Toronto in 1922 and was connected with Service Laboratories, Limited, general manufacturing chemists, and in a private consulting capacity.

He said he was not a member of the Canadian Institute of Chemistry, although he was a member of that most of the recognized chemists belonged. He let his membership drop some years ago.

"When did you begin making tests on these fibres?" After consulting a notebook witness said, "About Dec. 11."

"Since then you have made tests from time to time?" "Yes. The last one was on Feb. 1."

"Were the tests on Feb. 1 in conjunction with Professor Rogers, or was he present?" "Yes, I think he was."

"It was then the chemical tests were made in connection with these fibres?" "No, a great many were done previously."

DECORATE ARENA FOR THE CARNIVAL

Gerald Vance, Convener of Committee Makes Real Plans

When the committee in charge of the Y.O.N. ice carnival and charity hockey match, between the petter team and the local service clubs' squad, met at the Belleville Arena last night, arrangements to adequately decorate the . rena to assure a carnival air were made. The building will present a kaleidoscope seldom witnessed in Belleville, as flags, bunting and revolving lights will add to the color and glamor of the night. The decorating is under the direction of Gerald Vance and the Arena attendants.

The committee announced, that the date for the monster Y.O.N. carnival had been definitely set. The various committees in charge are functioning nicely and in accordance with each other. Tickets will go on sale early next week and at very popular prices and within the reach of all citizens. Besides the widely advertised hockey game between the policemen of the community versus an amalgamation team composed of players from the four service clubs. Ice races for schools throughout the city and a girls draw carnival with splendid prizes for the various events appearing in the best costumes and most original. Clown and trick skating will also be featured, but the opening of the carnival, a half hour's entertainment by the members of the Quinte Skating Club, in itself will present a most worth while and a pleasing appearance.

The Quinte Skating Club members have gained fame skating as a solo, a quartette, doubles and singles and are providing nightly for the occasion. One gala night of classic wholesome entertainment is being planned for the Y.O.N. charity ice carnival.

WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon, Feb. 7.—There seems to be sufficient fear in the statement that if the old bear sees his shadow on the 2nd day of February there will be another six weeks of winter, that Sunday last was extremely rough, but no doubt there will be some balmy days, ere long.

Messrs. Geo. S. Post, Samuel Donnan and Arthur Wilson attended Central Hastings L.O.L. county meeting held at Madoc on Tuesday. Two sessions were held.

Mr. William Wallace is in Toronto for a few days this week on a business trip.

Mr. Peter McInroy is confined to his home for the past week suffering a severe cold.

Mrs. M. A. Adams is quite ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. R. Wilson.

Miss Hilda Haggarty is spending a few days with friends in Tweed, Varcy, of Toronto.

Mr. Elvin Carr was a Saturday evening guest of Mr. Lorne Wilson of Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Burtis and Miss Bessie Mollinger of Fuller were Thursday callers of Mr. and Mrs. William Fischlit.

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Montgomery of Belleville, took tea on Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. R. Pitman.

An extra large crowd attended the holiday supper held in Mr. Melville Donnan's home on Thursday evening.

Mr. Clayton Hewill and Miss A. Bourne of Queen's Park, Toronto, Margaret and Mr. George Tulloch of Stirling were week end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Hewill.

Mr. Samuel Donnan received a painful cut on the hand on Thursday of last week. While operating his lifter carrier a belt broke and the knife slid down suddenly; four stitches were required to close the wound.

Mr. and Mrs. Melville Donnan and family were week end visiting guests of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Carr.

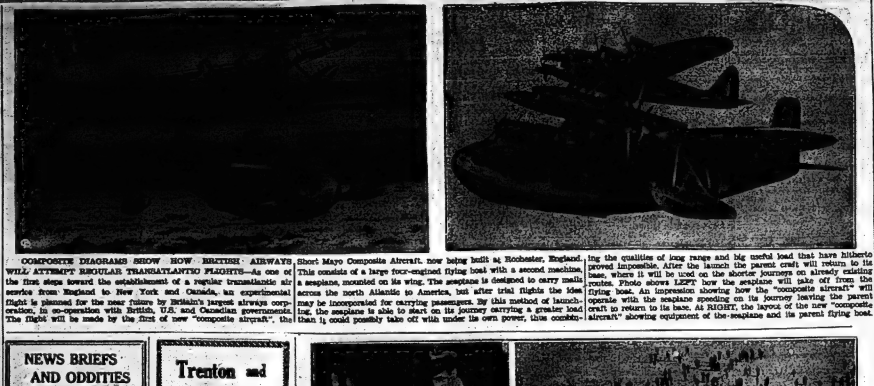
Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Asa in Kingston Monday receiving medical treatment for her eyes.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Hammond visited with Mr. and Mrs. James Lake on Tuesday.

Mr. Foster Wilson spent Tuesday evening with Miss Mary McCoy.

Mr. E. T. Sales is spending a few days with her daughter Mrs. Clarence Mack.

Mr. Charles Morgan spent the week end with his parents at Trenton.



Rev. and Mrs. F. A. Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Wilson and Marjorie were Wednesday evening guests of Mr. and Mrs. Sandy McCurdy.

Mrs. Lorne Brough and Mrs. William Tuttle of Zion's Hill visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Post on Wednesday.

Mrs. Mae Hagerman of Carmel is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. William Hammond.

The Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Andrew's and United Church, are busy preparing plans for a West Huntingdon Old Boys' Reunion some time during the coming summer.

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS
KNOWN THE WORLD OVER

COMPOSITE DIAGRAMS SHOW HOW BRITISH AIRWAYS WILL ATTEMPT REGULAR TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHTS—As one of the first steps toward the establishment of a commercial air service from England to New York and Canada, an experimental flight is planned for the near future by Britain's largest airways corporation, it was announced from Britain, U.S. and Canada. The flight will be made by the first of new "composite aircraft", the Short Mayo Composite Aircraft, now being built at Rochester, England. This consists of a large four-engined flying boat with a second machine, the Scapinia, mounted on its wing. The seaplane is designed to carry mails across the north Atlantic to America, but after trial flights the idea may be incorporated for carrying passengers. By this method of launching, the seaplane is able to start on its journey carrying a greater load than it could possibly take off with under its own power, thus combining the qualities of long range and big useful load that have hitherto proved impossible. After the launch the parent craft will return to its base, where it will be used on the shorter journeys on already existing routes. Photos shows LEFT: how the seaplane will take off from the flying boat. An impression showing how the "composite aircraft" will operate with the seaplane speeding on its journey leaving the parent craft to return to its base. At RIGHT, the layout of the new "composite aircraft" showing equipment of the seaplane and its parent flying boat.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Florence, Ariz., Feb. 7 (CP)—The Florence high school basketball team captured three scalps who had escaped over the State Penitentiary wall yesterday.

Three of the boys rescued Harry Jarrett, murderer serving a life sentence, under a hail of fire. Four others pursued Bill Lyon and Floyd Smith, convicted burglars, into the desert. Lyon and Smith were rounded up when they saw prison guards approaching.

Shamokin, Iowa, Feb. 7 (CP)—Directors of the Consolidated Schools of nearby Beaverdale shook off the head plates on 13 year old Darwin Hanawalt's chest, and declared the youngster free from classic until he removed his wheezing protectors.

The latter, Charles F. Hanawalt, appealed to District Judge F. C. Davidson. The court agreed with the directors, saying: "Darwin's chest looks healthier, but they also wreck good hardwood floors."

Evansville, Ind., Feb. 7 (CP)—Mrs. Ada Hedgpet, who asked Nellie Taylor Ross, governor of Wyoming, to send her husband to Heaven or Hades, has received a letter from the governor's secretary.

"Mrs. Ross has asked me to say that Mrs. Hedgpet's request is a matter for the state penitentiary authorities," the letter said. Mrs. Hedgpet escaped by pretending insanity, then still was convicted by a firing squad.

Fresno, Calif., Feb. 7 (CP)—Dan and an escaped the guns and Tommy machine guns and still of M.

But irate couples approached police Lieutenant E. T. Wallace and hauled him the boys to their automobile, locked in their garage.

"We are having an argument and want you to keep the car here until we settle it," they said.

Wallace still had the keys today.

Atlanta, Ga., Feb. 7 (CP)—Let the Dobros Cotton didn't want to be into her school spoon late.

So the teacher-bride-to-be decided down a long grade.

Result: she got her first car as automobile driven by Dr. John B. Mason of Tyrone.

Also: slight-year-old girl died.

NO RELIEF APPLICATIONS

Barnia, Ont., Feb. 7 (CP)—The neighboring village of Wyoming today announced it had not applied for unemployment relief this winter.

APPOINTMENT CONFIRMED

Toronto, Feb. 7 (CP)—Germain F. Newton, K.C., counsel for the Hepburn Public Inquiry, has been confirmed in the position of Crown Attorney at London, it was announced at Queen's Park today. Mr. Newton has been acting in that capacity for nearly two years.

$30,000 FLOUR MILL BLAZE

Greenwood, Ont., Feb. 7 (CP)—Fire of unknown origin today destroyed the flour mill of T. L. Green a few miles north of Whitby with damage estimated at $30,000.

The flames spread so rapidly firemen were unable toget the blaze under control and concentrated on keeping adjacent buildings from catching fire.

Trenton and District

Trenton, Feb. 7.— (Special) — The second social evening of the Victorian Order Association was held last night in the Town Hall when the annual election took place. The following were elected — President, K. Cronin; 1st Vice-President, L. Foster; 2nd Vice-President —Mrs. N. Kidd; 3rd Vice President— Mrs. W. B. Powers; Secretary— Miss L. Cumming; Treasurer— Mrs. S. Mackenzie; Supply Convener—W. P. Lamore; Publicity Convener— Dewar; Car Convener—W. P. LaMore; Rink Convener— Miss Haslam. The secretary's report was greatly lagging and showed the association a making definite progress and in a good financial condition. The financial report showed current assets available for 1936—$134.78. In addition to this an account has been set up for car depreciation. Out of 227 mentality cases in Trenton in 1935, one hundred and eleven were attended by Miss Haslam and there were no maternity cases. This good record was due to the pre-natal work of the V.O.N. There were a total of 4,036 visits made by the nurse during the past year. The Board of Governors elected for 1936 were—Mrs. W. H. Ireland, Mrs. W. W. Lingham, R. MacKenzie and Mr. E. Gough.

Police Court

The local man whose case of drunkenness was remanded till the sixth appeared and was found guilty. He will receive his sentence on February 13th.

Seven local men paid a fine of one dollar for driving cars with-out sufficient lighting contrary to Section 9 of the Highway Traffic Act.

After holding the Robert Weddell Hockey Cup in Belleville since the last four years College St. Public School had taken away from them today by the Dufferin Street Public School team. The game was a thriller from start to finish, enthusiastic school children, who almost filled the Arena, were on their feet cheering. Sparks was the standout for the winners, who scored three of the five goals. B. Conger and Anderson scored the other two. The game was marred by the slugging of Sheppard and Bill Wallace still had the keys today. College Street was struck in the jaw, with the puck which was shot by Sheppard, who is a member of Dufferin. The impact stunned the latter and he was carried off the ice by the third period. The most interesting part of the game to watch was the goal tending of Gerald Anderson, year-old M. Anderson of Dufferin filling for his regular goalie, who was warded by a shutout. The final score was Dufferin 5, College St., 0. Line-up —Dufferin St. Goal, M. Anderson; defence, J. Black and L. Spence; centre, S. Behan and G. Inglis; Centre, G. Anderson; Allertes—J. Clapp, A. Levy, A. Allison, R. Orser, J. Howard, W. Houston, J. Babcock.

Five Points for Scientists as Key to Survival of Democracy

New York, Feb. 7 (AP)—Adoption of scientific methods which the public must learn through newspapers was suggested as the key to survival of democracy in a discussion of well known scientists, educationists, industrial executives and medical men reported to the American Institute by Howard W. Blakeslee, Associated Press science editor.

The institute, one of the oldest scientific organizations in the United States, awarded its gold medal to Dr. John Merriman, president of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, and fellowships to Dr. Harrison Hale, biologist; Arthur Adams, engineering Chemistry, and Blakeslee.

Blakeslee said: "There are five science stories which I would like to write, if the facts were developed by scientists.

"One—an accurate count of the number of unemployed in the United States.

"Two—a scientific study of the best methods of national defence.

"Three—a study showing against whom there is real likelihood for us to defend ourselves and why.

"Four—plain arithmetical investigation of foreign trade in terms of gains and losses to each class of citizens.

"Fifth—the results of using scientific methods in crime detection and prevention."

10 Stars Named In Film Honors

Hollywood, Feb. 8.—(AP)—Clark Gable, Charles Laughton, Victor McLaglen and Franchot Tone were nominated for the best actor's performance for the eighth annual awards of merit of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences.

Actresses nominated were Elizabeth Bergner, Claudette Colbert, Bette Davis, Katharine Hepburn, Miriam Hopkins and Merle Oberon.

Screening performances and productions released during 1935, the nominations will be voted upon by the academy membership during the coming month, the final winners to be announced at the annual academy banquet March 5.

Pictures nominated for the "best production" were Alice Adams, Broadway Melody of 1936, Captain Blood, David Copperfield, The Informer, Les Miserables, Lives of a Bengal Lancer, Midsummer Night's Dream, Mutiny on the Bounty, Naughty Marietta, Ruggles of Red Gap and Top Hat.

Three directors were nominated for the award of merit John Ford for The Informer; Henry Hathaway for Lives of a Bengal Lancer, and Frank Lloyd for Mutiny on the Bounty.

Gable, Laughton and Tone were nominated for their work in Mutiny on the Bounty, the first time in the history of the academy that one picture has placed three actors in nomination. McLaglen was nominated for his work in The Informer.

The actresses were nominated as follows Miss Bergner, Escape Me Never, an English-made picture; Miss Colbert in Private Worlds; Miss Davis in Dangerous; Miss Hepburn in Alice Adams; Miss Hopkins in Becky Sharp and Miss Oberon in The Dark Angel.

Miss Colbert and Gable won the merit awards for performers last year in the picture It Happened One Night.

FOXBORO

Foxboro—The real winter weather for ice last month has necessitated lots of snow shovelling.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parks and James of Hay Bay, spent Sunday at Mr. J. G. Sills.

Miss Marion Daniels entertained a number of young people at her home on Friday evening.

Mrs. N. Daniels and Mrs. Campbell spent a day with Mrs. Clare Fralick.

The joint meeting of the Ladies' Association and W.M.S. was held on Thursday at the home of Mrs. S. C. Gay with a good attendance.

Mrs. W. Gaylord spent Thursday at Mrs. S. C. Gay's.

Mrs. E. P. Yorke of Gilead, spent Thursday with Mrs. W. Hodgen.

Colds are quite prevalent in the village.

Mr. Wes. Crawford and young son and Mr. Alex. Crawford of Tyendinaga spent Thursday at the home of their sister, Mrs. E. Morgan.

Mrs. W. Coulter spent a day recently with Mrs. A. Embury.

Gladys Yorke and friend were Sunday evening guests at Mr. W. Hodgen's.

ENJOYABLE PARTY

The social evening held in St. John's Parish House at the historic old Carrying Place on last Friday evening was a nice success both socially and financially and went quite a way toward meeting their objective, wiring the hall, under-taken by the ladies of Redmanville and St. John's, Carrying Place. Among the entertainers were — Mrs. Darrah who had highest score for the ladies, with Mr. Gordon Waterhouse for the men. Mr. Jack Church had No. 60 lucky draw and got the prize.

The feature dances were most a-musical and Miss Hall was given a fancy crepe paper hat and the ladies' prize, a dainty lace collar fastened to their right wrist lent a dash of color to the spacious hall and gave a most festive air.

Miss Bernice Arbuckle of Belleville, delighted the audience with a very humorous reading. Miss Arbuckle's reading was highly appreciated, as she is always most kind in helping with the church work. Lunch was served by the young people committees and their helpers.

And so it is that all his newspaper again and stayed there.

Little Benny's Note Book

Pop was reeding the paper in his private chair, saying to me, Ry golies anybody could make one of them political speeches. I could get up rite now without even clearing my throat and ratle off as many rubber stamps and mixed metta-fors as any of these fellows, he said.

I'm sure you could, Willyum, I've always thawt you'd make a wonderful politician if not an outrite statesman, I said, and pop said, Thanks for your touching faith in me.

G. pop, make a speech. I said, and pop said, I dont hear any cries of No no, so I dont think I will.

Wich ha started io, saying, Lend me your ears, G father calleted me. If put my shoulders to them, and with my hand on the plow I'll rock the ship of state like a bird on the wing and set it safely down in the sunlit pastures of farflung national honor and evergreen private enterprise from the snow capped rivers of equatorial wales to the boiicemles aires senga of ruthless despotism nurtured by the rosy fingered shackles of neither nor until the inevitable tide of outraged womanhood rises in an avenging storm of reckoning and sets in the immemorial East to open the downtrodden eyes of the dusky our ancesters and the unspoken reproaches of the citizens of the future and remind me of a little story.

Willyum that sounds perfectly marvellous, ma said. I'm sure we dedenery people are used to such oratory it would sound like a wonderful sex. a beautiful sex after attending from a perched desert like a bois de boulogne, or the Bay of Fundy. You win, my deer, I resign and concede the election.

And so it was that his newspaper again and stayed there.

Governmental Debt Constitutes Problem

Toronto, Feb. 8.—(CP)—Present burden of Governmental debt throughout Canada "constitutes a problem the remedies for which must be so severe I cannot help wondering if a democracy such as ours can produce a government with sufficient courage to face it," R. P. Jellett of Montreal told the Canadian Chamber of Commerce here today.

Mr. Jellett was one of several speakers who addressed the organization's 10th annual conference on public finance. Others were Sir Henry L. Drayton of Toronto, a former Minister of Finance; J. F. G. Cox, president of the Winnipeg Board of Trade, and C. Fountain Elliott, Toronto Economist.

Late King Felt Keen Sympathy As MacDonald Was Without Seat

London, Feb. 7 (CP-Havas)—The keen sympathy of the late King George for Ramsay MacDonald after the defeat of the former Prime Minister in the general elections was revealed last night by Lord Snowden.

Speaking at the Royal Caledonian Schools, he said the late King was distressed when Mr. MacDonald found himself without a parliamentary seat following last November's general election.

"At the luncheon opening, he said he was informed the King sent for Ramsay MacDonald and said:

"I think this all wrong that you, who have been Prime Minister for so long, merely because you have no seat either in the House of Lords or the House of Commons, should not be present, at the state opening of parliament, and accordingly I invite you to attend me as Lord President to and behind me when I read my address."

"That was characteristic of King George at his best," the speaker added.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

The man never wearied of watching her. The spring of her step—the quick smile that curved her mouth—above all, the warm, sweet lights which lit her eyes when she met his glance. What a miracle it was that he had found her, the man marvelled. There must be such a thing as destiny which guides a man through all the tangle of his doubts and mistakes to the fulfillment of a dream. How else could he have found in such strange manner the one girl in the world who filled the need in his life, the girl who gave instead of taking, and who had pewed the sweet cure for his heart sickness?

Shining yellow hair and honest brown eyes—how Brant loved them. But how much more he cherished the memory of her patience and spirit. What a space dealing little devil she was! he thought warmly. God, make him worthy of a girl like this.....

Six months passed, a time of quiet peace, which Dale came to look back on from later bitter days, and name to herself the Golden Age.

Brant planted a small vegetable patch near his house and piped water from the well to irrigate it. The shack was brightened by a coat of green paint, and crisp scrim curtains hung in the small windows.

Cozy breakfasts with the early sun slanting in to lie across the simple table....twilight when they sat on the wooden steps watching the country swim in varying shades of mauve. Best of all—desert nights—a black sky hung with low, bright stars. Or rain dashing against the windows, making the house a cosy island of light in a sea of black chaos.

The desert shack was home. It was that ideal to which Dale had been yearning all of her life, starved by the dismal boarding houses—the sterile four walls of hotels. The clothes and Sandy were all the friends the Kendalls had time for, and money was becoming very much of a problem. But even this shadow did not darken their contentment long. Brant secured a position with the office force of one of the oil companies.

"I don't start for a month, until Tremaine returns from the east," Brant explained to Dale one twilight. "After that we'll be able to move to town. We'll get one of the new cottages they're building on Grand Avenue. Won't running water and electricity seem like a miracle after this! And I'll get an electric stove for you. No more cooking your face along with the dinner, sweetheart!"

Dale's eyes had gone far out on the greying horizon as Brant spoke, and she answered slowly: "I'm awfully glad of your work. We had to do something. But—Brant, please don't laugh at me—but I'll be sorry to leave this desert. It's—it's home, it's my first home. It's where we found each other, dear."

"Sentimental little nut!" the man leered tenderly. But he pulled the girl into his arms and looked down with tender eyes. "Afraid to have me in town, dear? You needn't be—"

"Oh, no!" the yellow head shook vigorously. "It isn't that. But Coil City can never be—near—its like this. It" Dale added, with a touch of her old humor: "Perhaps I've turned into a desert rat, like that old prospector we saw going by with his pack mule last week. But really, I love the silence and the sage and the heat—all the things about it that I thought I hated....."

Brant laughed and kissed his wife's earnest face.

Dale might have spared her regrets. She was never to know the next-door cottage on Grand Avenue, with the running water and the electric stove.

Two days later, as Dale was reaching for the last freshly washed plate on its shelf after lunch, she saw a machine come bowling along the road. Brant was in the shed, tinkering with their own ancient car, which had turned balky. He did not hear the other automobile stop, before the door, as Dale went out on the step and the two men who were in it.

She recognized one as Pickering, the lawyer who handled Brant's affairs in Coil City. The other was a stranger, a shrewd, dark faced man who bore the unmistakable mark of the city, despite his sunburned clothes.

For some reason which she could not identify to herself, Dale's heart began to pound as she saw Pickering's heavy body lumbering toward her. She had always disliked him. Today she hated him. Hated his fat smile, his oily greeting.....

"Morning, Mrs. Kendall. Mr. Kendall around? We came out to see him on business—Oh, there he is! Don't trouble yourself—we'll go over and talk to him."

The other man had not said a word, but Dale in the bright air of black eyes as they went over toward Brant. Something wrong.... something wrong..... Oh, there was a danger threatening!

CHAPTER 28.

STARTLING NEWS

Dale went hurriedly into the kitchen, where she could watch the three men through the window.

Pickering and the stranger had reached Brant. He was looking up in surprise..... he was raising. Pickering introduced the stranger, who started talking earnestly.

Even at this distance Dale could see a sudden change sweep across Brant's face. He looked—shocked. What could make him look like that? Not the new job—that was sure. If Brant had that he would start looking for another. No, this was something else. Something terrible. Although he was standing motionless, letting the others do the talking, Dale knew that he was shaken to its depths.

The stranger finally reached into his wallet and drew out a letter, which he handed to Brant. Brant took it, but he did not open it. He walked back to their machine with the man and watched them drive away, dust rising in a cloud in their wake.

Then Brant walked to the side of the house which afforded meager shade and read the letter. When he finally entered the house he met Dale's eyes and nodded gravely as though she had asked a question.

"Yes..... that was an attorney from back home. He took me my father had died....."

With a soft, little sound of sympathy Dale flew to his side and Brant stroked her hair as he went on:

"Dad and I quarrelled, of course. We never could seem to hit it off after I grew up. Too much alike, perhaps. And he was always so busy I never saw much of him. But a thing like that jolts a fellow. Poor old Dad....."

Brant drew a long breath. "I guess he must have changed a little toward me in the end. He left me my share of the estate. Half to my mother, of course. The rest divided between Helen and myself. Three is my kid sister—"

"Oh....Brant!" Dale's voice was a little dismayed whisper. Property means..... Brant's wealth already thrusting between them.....

The man was speaking, still in a dazed voice. "Dad must have sent me to come back home and manage things. That's what attorney brought me a letter from mother. She's begging me to come—"

Dale's voice was a wail this time. "You won't go!"

The man looked at her with reflective eyes. "I'm afraid it's a case of have to, sweetheart. Things are in a critical state. One of Dad's most trusted advisors got off with a slice of cash. Mother writes that she's on the verge of a breakdown. It's liable to go pretty hard with her estate if I don't take a hand."

"You mean—live back there?" Dale got out through stiff lips.

"For a while, dear. Just until I can get things running smoothly again."

"They know about me?"

"Of course. Pickering had to get in touch when we were married—about my grandmother's will, you know." Brant's face reddened a little and he drew the girl close for a moment as though to shut out the memory of those bitter days. "After all, darling, we have to look at it clearly. In a way—to be practical—this is a windfall for me. You won't have to slave and pinch the way you do—"

"I love it! I don't mind!" Dale cried passionately.

"Good little scout. I know you don't," Brant said warmly. "But don't you suppose I want to give you pretty things and make you comfortable? No, old lady, I'm going to see that you have all the comforts and little frills that you should have."

Dale choked back the protests which rose in her throat. After all what could she say? What valid objection could she offer? That she was afraid of Brant's family? Afraid of the alienating influence of his family? That was childish—worse, it was hateful. She couldn't hope to keep a man of Brant's intelligence and force on the desert forever. No, her hands were tied. She would have to play the game with him.....

"I told Cressy, that's this eastern lawyer, that I'd be busy packing—that we'd run into town and have dinner with him tonight and talk things over."

Like that—in half an hour, in the breathless space of time which might have been consumed by one of the bright, friendly visits or a letter or call from Sandy, their destinies were changed.

She should be glad, Dale told herself as she went about the house mechanically, doing the things which should rejoice for Brant. He would be back among his own kind, back in the life for which his education and talents had fitted him. Of course she was glad, Dale persisted to herself. She was silly to take it this way. Hadn't she and Brant weathered more storms and worse storms than could ever arise in the future? She would play the game. She would make him proud of her.

Dale was nervous all the long hour of meeting the attorney tonight. She was the vanguard of "They." Of all those people she would meet in the east.....

How tanned she was. Dale thought discontentedly as she creamed her face before the mirror. That was the hot desert wind. And tonight she wanted to look her very best..... She would put on her cherished best dress—a rose colored taffeta which she had never worn down here in the desert town.

Dale crossed to the improvised closet and lifted it from behind the curtain. Following Honey Wattles' warning about guarding it from dust and insects, Dale had pinned it into a large envelope made of newspapers.

Lucky she had taken Honey's advice, Dale thought as she blew the fine white dust from the papers, when the sand-storms came nothing escaped.

The light-struck newspapers, brown and brittle, rattled to the floor. Dale's heart gave a proud little leap at the sight of the dress, so fresh and colourful. Brant would be proud of her.....

Dale slipped it over her head and bent to shake out the hem of the full skirt. A dry splitting sound startled her upright and her eyes sought her own reflected gaze. She cautiously raised her arm. There again! And look—there under the arm-pit—the dress splitting.....

The girl tightly brushed the skirt and wherever the silk had hung in a fold it gently parted. Appearing as fresh as the day it was bought, it was rotted clear through; dried out by the heat, it was literally falling to ribbons as a mummy's rose crumbles on being exposed to daylight.....

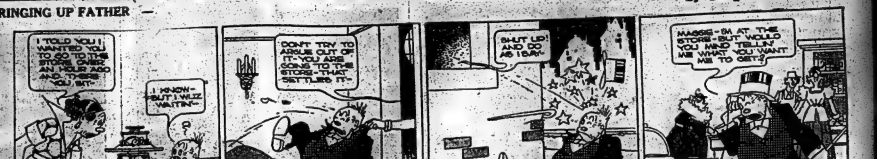
When Dale took the dress off her face was sober and her eyes frightened. The superstition which had permeated her stage life was nothing about young Mrs. Kendall to call to suggest—even remotely—her power to see misfortune in the happening. Her cherished dress so carefully preserved, falling to shreds..... Coming at this time, hard on the attorney's visit and their changed condition, it was like an evil omen.....

CHAPTER 29.

DALE SAYS GOOD-BYE

Mr. and Mrs. Brant Stuart Kendall last in the overland train going east. Riding in the private drawing room, surrounded by books, flowers, expensive baskets of fruit, hamried by attentive porters, there was nothing about young Mrs. Kendall to call to suggest—even remotely—desert shacks and sand-storms. Perhaps she was rather deeply latched—a bronze effect particularly striking with her silvery hair made into the mage of a golden nymph—but it was such a tan as could have been attained at Palm Grits, at Pinehurst or Deauville.

Still less was there anything about her which suggested the weary girl who had barnstormed small towns and danced at night clubs. No, Mrs. Brant Kendall had not even a boring acquaintance with Dale Evans, the dancer, save in her own frightened mind.



Dale was frightened. She had lived so long with hard luck that she distrusted this sudden prosperity which had come her way. The change was too abrupt. There was no borderland in which to prepare for the new condition of things. A brief week after the appearance of the eastern attorney had seen Brant and herself on the train—rushing into anew environment.

Sitting here now at the train window, her chin propped on her hand while she watched the monotonous miles of middle west prairie reel by, Dale reminisced over the last few weeks.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

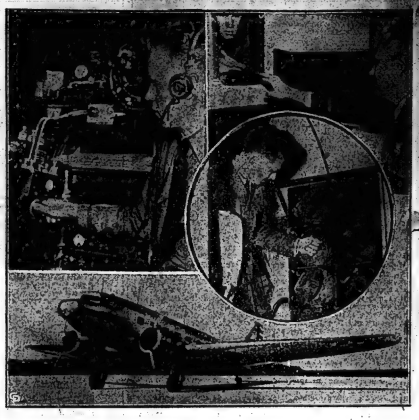
Dorsky's dagger was very near Tarzan's face now, and of a sudden, like a wild beast, he raised his body and his jaws closed like a steel trap upon the wrist of the Russian. With a scream of pain Dorsky drew back. The dagger dropped from his nerveless fingers.

The same instant Tarzan swung his legs around the fellow's feet and as Dorsky rolled over on his back, he dragged Tarzan on top of him. The ape-man knew from the snapping of Dorsky's wrist bones between his teeth that the man's right hand was useless, so he released it.

Then to the Russian's horror, the ape-man sought his jugular vein, as from his throat there rumbled the growl of a beast at bay.

Dorsky tried to reach the revolver at his right hip with his left hand; but he could not rid himself of Tarzan's body.

He heard his men running toward the tent, shouting among themselves; and then he heard screams.



The next instant the tent vanished from above them, and Dorsky saw a huge bull elephant towering above him and his savage antagonist.

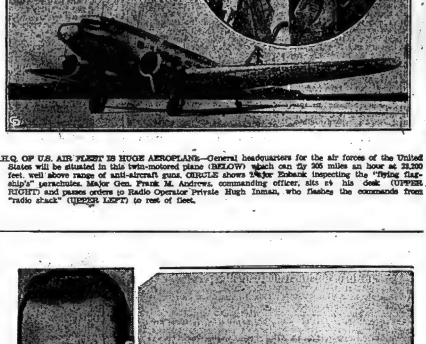
CLAWED BY TIGRESS, MARES COMEBACK—Months ago during an Arizona circus performance, Nellie, ninety Bengal tigress, in a sudden fury, attacked her trainer, Mabel Stark, veteran lion tamer of the big top. Miss Stark spent many weeks in a hospital bed as a result of the clawing biting attack. But here she is as she enjoyed the supreme thrill of facing and mastering the giant cat, at the circus winter quarter. Onlookers sighed in relief as Nellie, after a few sharp commands from her trainer, obediently climbed upon a pedestal.

G.H.Q. OF U.S. AIR FLEET IS HUGE AEROPLANE—General headquarters for the air forces of the United States will be situated in this twin-motored plane (BELOW) which can fly 205 miles an hour at 22,200 feet, well above range of anti-aircraft guns. CIRCLE shows Major Zinbank inspecting the "flying flagship's" parachutes. Major Gen. Frank M. Andrews, commanding officer, sits at his desk (UPPER RIGHT) and passes orders to Radio Operator Private Hugh Inman, who flashes the commands from "radio shack" (UPPER LEFT) to rest of fleet.

FRISCH AND GREENBERG RECEIVE AWARDS — Frankie Frisch (LEFT), manager and second baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Hank Greenberg, slugging first baseman of the Detroit Tigers, both formerly of the Bronx, New York, shown with the trophies presented them by the Baseball Writers' Association at their annual dinner. Frisch was given the trophy for his outstanding service over a long period of time. Greenberg got his trophy as the most valuable player of the 1933 season.

BASEBALL'S IMMORTAL— Tyrus Raymond Cobb, for 24 years a baseball celebrity, now is baseball's immortal of immortals, being awarded the No. 1 place in the newly-created baseball hall of fame. Cobb, who now lives in San Francisco, was named first by 222 baseball writers out of 226 voting in a nation-wide poll. Babe Ruth, Honus Wagner, Christy Mathewson and Walter Johnson were the others named.



IS AN ESKIMO AN INDIAN?One of the tasks of the supreme court of Canada in their investigation into the British North America Act, is to decide once and for all, whether Eskimos are Indians. The decision is an important one, since the 60-year-old act places Indians within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Dominion. There is no mention made of Eskimos.

According to ethnologists, the general theory is both are descendants away back of the same tribe, the Cro-Magnons was derived from in Africa; one link moved into Europe and became absorbed by Central European races, and the other made its way over a long period of years to Asia, thence to Siberia, across Bering Strait to the western world and down the Pacific coast. The Eskimo reached the North American continent about 8,000 or 6,000 years ago, but were protected for an indefinite period by the Indian, ethnologists hold.

In practical terms, the right before the court will be whether the Dominion or Quebec governments should bear the cost of $30,000 annually to feed 7,150 starving Eskimos on the Quebec fringe of Hudson strait. At the moment the federal authorities are footing the bill.

Fishing and a limited amount of white fox are all that remain of this former great game area to provide a livelihood for these Eskimo. The Eskimo population as ascertained by the last decennial census of Canada as of June 1, 1931, totals 5,959.

The layout above shows, TOP, an Eskimo mother and child, and BELOW, an Indian mother and child.

THRILL CLIMBER DIED IN TAKING THIS PICTURE—Delmar Fadden, INSET, Seattle, Wash., "thrill" climber, died after taking this picture atop Mount Rainie. The photo evidently was taken as the youthful mountain climber passed at the 13,000-foot level on his ascent of the peak—the first to do it. Fadden met his death on the way down, apparently falling and freezing to death, according to mountaineers who brought down his body.

GERMAN CHAMPION SPEEDS IN TRAINING—If there is any advantage in competing over your home-ground—in this case, snow—it will go during the Olympic skiing meets to Roman Woerndle, German champion. He is shown just about to make a turn on a steep slope on the hills around Garmisch-Partenkirchen.

SNOW QUEEN—Chosen queen of Michigan's winter sports, Miss Shirley Squier of Harbords Springs, flashes a smile as she poses with some of her trappings just before assuming office. A striking blonde, Miss Squier won the right to rule the Michigan snows over eight other beauties.

14th Anniversary as Pope is Celebrated

(By Charles H. Guptill)

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Vatican City, Feb. 3.— (AP) — Pope Pius XI, dedicating His Pontificate to Peace, observed the 14th anniversary of his election to the throne of St. Peter Thursday amid alarms of war.

The 76-year-old Pontiff passed the day in comparative quiet. He devoted most of it to reading the hundreds of messages of congratulation, which came to him from virtually all the world.

Otherwise, in accordance with his practice of avoiding every unnecessary strain, he took no special notice of the occasion.

The Observatore Romano, however, asserted the Pope had already spoken and acted in "great threat" against civilization—an editorial interpreted by informed sources as an answer to any possible reproach that the Pontiff has not stopped the Italo-Ethiopian war.

BECAUSE U. S. "DEUCEDLY DANGEROUS" DUKE STOPS PHOTOGRAPHERS—According to dispatches from New York, his grace the Duke of Marlborough refused to permit photographs to be taken of his children on his arrival in New York, because of his fear of gangsters and kidnapers. He is quoted as saying that the United States was "a deucedly dangerous country." The above photo, showing the Duke and Duchess and three of their four children, Lady Caroline, Lady Sarah and the Marquis of Blandford was taken last year when they visited New York. The Duke succeeded to the 300-year-old title in 1892.

PARK TO BE ESTABLISHED ABOUT DIONNE HOSPITAL

Judge Refuses Motion To Take Case from Jury; Wrench Figures at Trial

Rust Marks, But No Blood Stains Found on Wrench In Review

TOOLS EXAMINED

Toronto, Feb. 10. —(CP)— Soon after the discovery of the initials "OD" on a wrench found at the scene of Smith Taylor's death, the jury trying Harry O'Donnell for the murder of the lumber dealer was told today, tools bearing this mark were found at the filling station where O'Donnell worked.

Detective Sergeant Harold Waterhouse, of the Toronto police, on the stand for the second time at O'Donnell's trial, now in its fifth day, told of finding the tools in a box with a die for stamping the letter "D". The box, he told the jury bore the initials "OHD".

Discovery of Initials

The detective revealed also for the first time that, though the 30-year-old Miss Taylor died on November 4, and the 1 8-8-pound wrench was found a few days later, it was not until Jan. 19 the initials were discovered by himself, Dr. E. S. Franklin, Toronto analyst, and the Attorney-General's Department, had noticed them in November but did not recall today having told of his find to the jury.

The doctor, called as a Crown witness, declared he believed the wrench would bear the initials of the wounds on Smith Taylor's skull. But according to defence testimony, there were not the girl's fatal injuries.

Blood Made on Wrench

No bloodstains were found on the wrench in a pathological examination for them, Dr. Franklin testified.

Nor did it yield fingerprints, the expert believing the wrench's surface had been "smeared" by fingerprints.

In cross-examination at the hands of defence counsel Frank Regan, K.C., he refused to say whether the wrench's abstraction showed it had not been in active use for some time. Much of the metal was rust covered, however, he told the court.

Rust Marks Found

Earlier, Mr. Regan had made an unsuccessful attempt to have the case taken from the hands of the jury that has been hearing it since Monday. Mr. Justice Jeffrey ruled out temporarily, he made formal application for removal of the case, declaring O'Donnell's position might have been "prejudiced" by the production before the newspapers containing stories on the case.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey overruled the plea after brief argument, declaring Crown had established "prima facie" case against O'Donnell.

Mr. Regan's motion, Prosecutor J. C. McRuer, K.C., took the wrench and showed the initials to the jury under a magnifying glass. Each juror examined them intently for several minutes, then the newspaper in question. Mr. Justice Jeffrey took the exhibit and peered at the wrench through it.

Initials Examined

Dr. Franklin said besides the "OD" on one side of the wrench, there was a "D" on the other side. The tool had not been stamped in recently as might be found at his November examination.

He was asked why he had not reported the initials in earlier testimony. He first received it Nov. 9. At that time he had nothing to do but to decide where and by whom the examination was to be made. Also, he had been busy on other cases, until Nov. 17.

FINANCIAL SET-UP OF PROVINCE TO BE CHANGED—NIXON

Inaccuracy Fazes Gov't. If Deficits Continue to Grow Yearly

CHECK DEBT

Financial Changes Will Give New "Picture" of Handling Funds

Toronto, Feb. 10 (CP)—Premier Hepburn has hinted strongly that the forthcoming session of the Ontario Legislature will announce extensive changes in the handling of the province's financial machinery, Acting Premier Nixon said today.

Mr. Nixon made the disclosure after stating that Premier E. Bertaud of Toronto, head of the Ontario Bureau of Municipal Research, was "absolutely right" in his recent statement Ontario's mounting debt was inaccurate.

"If large deficits are added to the provincial debt, we are bound to be insolvency as sure as fate," said Mr. Nixon.

The financial changes to be announced by the Premier will give a "new picture" of Ontario finances, he continued. "It will be as pleasing to Mr. Bertaud as it is to the government. I think when he reads Premier's budget speech he will realize that Mr. Drew is in a big way in reducing expenditure."

EXTORTION TRIAL STARTS AT LONDON

Premier Hepburn Star Witness at Trial of Henry Walker

London, Ont., Feb. 10.—(CP)—With the Crown lasting a last minute subpoenas for a surprise witness from Toronto, the stage was all to-day for the trial of Henry M. Walker of St. Thomas, accused of attempted extortion.

As the trial was about to open the Crown announced the witness was brought back to jail here in preparation for his trial two weeks ago.

With the additional witness from Toronto, whose name was not divulged, the Crown will have 20 witnesses testify against the middle aged St. Thomas man.

The subpoenas for the surprise witness were issued by Chief Justice Supreme Court only this morning by Crown Attorney Gordon Conant, Provincial police.

Charles W. Bell, K. C., Hamilton, who on hand as chief of defence counsel, aided by Norman R. Neely, Crown Attorney, Middlesex, is prosecuting.

Walker was originally prosecuted on six counts but the crown has dropped that in which Glen Hamilton, Aylmer township was the complainant.

POLICE CASE RECONSIDERED

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP) — The Police Commission here today decided to reconsider the dismissal of Constable Ernest Kennedy dismissed because they did not like his face. A special meeting of the Board will be held tomorrow to interview Kennedy again. The decision to reopen the case came after a delegation from the City Council and the Police Department.

Lioness Runs Loose in Theatre Leaving Injured, Frightened Patrons

Baltimore, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Ruthie Taylor, 5-year-old trainer, was hurt after an opening night, turn-out performance.

Ruthie is a lioness. Her first performance in Baltimore—some say it is the first in America—is at the Hippodrome Theatre last night. In her act Ruthie, a slightly injured boy, a hysterical woman and nearly 2,000 frightened theatre patrons.

For Ruthie, instead of going on the stage, bounded from her cage through the door, through a door and into the aisle. Her second bound carried her into the laps of four boys in the fourth row.

The boys brought at first she was by the dog, Howard Pumphrey, 11, found out Ruthie really was a lion, one of the animals that suddenly leaving Pumphrey with a shovel knee. He was treated at a hospital and sent home.

Hatton Far Now Trial Lost

Harry O'Donnell, still icy cool after a week of trial for his life, came into court today for the opening of the second week of his trial for the ravine murder of attractive Ruth Taylor last November 4.

Smiling slightly, the 36-year-old defendant, confronted in low tones by Frank Regan, K.C., defence counsel, as court opened. He was dressed in a dark suit, blue tie and white shoes to necktie, and carefully groomed.

At soon as court opened, Mr. Regan made an unexpected move for a retrial. After which the jurors be sent out of the courtroom at his request, he said:

"I wish to move formally that this case be taken from the jury on the ground that evidence introduced by Crown Counsel Saturday, with respect to newspaper stories, may prejudice the interests of my client. Those stories are highly inaccurate and revelant. And furthermore, the admission of newspaper headlines in evidence has been now admitted."

Mr. Justice Nicoll Jeffrey interrupted.

Headlines Not Read.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey declines in question, over a story of the finding of a mechanic's wrench near the scene of the murder. He said the jury was found last Nov. 5 had been warned not to be influenced by what they read in the papers.

"I have not read to the jury," Mr. Justice Jeffrey declared. In any event, His Lordship asserted, Mr. Regan himself brought in the first attempted introduction of the Toronto newspaper February 5 by requesting "secrecy" on the part of the jurors with regard to the wrench.

He would not allow the defence lawyer's motion and the jury came back to the court room at 10:30 a.m. Mr. Justice Jeffrey declined to comment on the Attorney-General's department.

Read Marks Seen.

Dr. Franklin, first witness examining the wrench which bears the initial "OD" cut into the steel. Police found it hidden in the box in the ravine where Miss Taylor's body was found, a few days after the skull crushed in.

There were rust marks on the wrench, Dr. Franklin said, indicating exposure. He did not think the wrench had been used recently.

He did not recall whether he had seen the letter "D" when he first received the wrench.

Read Report of Dr. Wrench.

"I examined it for bloodstains," he said, "but I could not find any."

Dr. Franklin said further: "I observed the 'O' and the 'D' or perhaps it was the 'D' and the 'O' on separate sides of the wrench. I did not see any part of a 'P.'"

Dr. Franklin's witness, Prosecutor J. C. McRuer, K.C., took the wrench and showed the initials to the jury under a magnifying glass. Each juror examined them intently for several minutes, then the newspaper in question. Mr. Justice Jeffrey took the exhibit and peered at the wrench through it.

Cops' Salacious Book Hunt Is Called Off in Toronto

Toronto, Feb. 10 (CP)—Toronto's policemen won't act as censors of lending libraries after all, it developed today.

Mayor Jackfrids announced abandoning of his plan to have police constables peruse circulating libraries for salacious books. He said Chief Constable Draper and Police Lee, member of the Police Board, are now working out a plan by which the morality branch of the police check up the libraries.

Saturday the mayor said every policeman would be armed with a list of banned books and would be set to browse around in lending libraries in search of salacious books. He proposed more avoucher-constable criticism from the literary authorities but the mayor would not say today the changes in plans were based about by his opposition.

"Chief Draper agrees it would be best to have the information of banned books come from the Library Board, handed to the morality staff for action," the mayor said. "Such police action will be based on information we find in the morality staff for action."

O'DONNELL JURY MAY SIT NIGHTS

Possibility of Longer Hours Unless Case Speeded up

Toronto, Feb. 10 (By Can. Press) —Night sessions of Harry O'Donnell's trial for the murder of Ruth Taylor may be held this week, Crown Counsel J. C. McRuer, K.C., indicated today.

"We'll need them if we don't get along much faster," he said.

Detective Waterhouse was shown the wrench which he said he first saw Jan. 10.

He added an 'O' on the wrench, he said, "Scraping with a pin, I found the letter 'D'."

He told of reporting the find to other officers, up to then unaware of the initials. They included a spanner, socket wrench and other tools.

Produced in court, the tools were shown the jurors and examined by them closely under a magnifying glass. They were entered as the Crown's next exhibits.

While they were being scanned, O'Connell smiled faintly at intervals.

Mr. McRuer produced what he called "a die with a 'D' on it." The witness identified it.

On the box in which the tools and die were found, Crown Counsel pointed out the initials "OHD".

The officers described the letter-ing as "D, small D, with an H between."

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Hamilton, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP)—Mr. and Mrs. Frank Smith and their best cat Ted, don't mind the cold weather a bit. The Ottawa couple and their pet have camped out all winter in their motor-trailer home and at present are stopping in Hamilton. Ted, a six-year-old tabby, has been thought of hibernating, as most brutes do.

Chicago, Feb. 10 (CP)—John P. Wenderoth, Jr., Assistant United States Weather Observer, told the weather bureau here that he was unexcited: "It may rise to zero by afternoon." Boston, February 10 (AP)—Seven youths, marooned on ice floes drifting in Cape Cod Bay since noon Sunday, were rescued by Coast Guardsmen shortly after 2:15 hours after they had been cast adrift, when ice broke from the shore about 1 o'clock today.

The rescue was accomplished by means of a small boat, which Coastguardsmen pushed over the rough floating ice to the youths after the patrol boat Marrick Lane had failed in efforts to reach them. The seven youths were in two groups a mile apart. The quarter-mile threshold of ice floes was drifting seaward, while they were out watching spell, when the night and fog descended. Ice cakes were separated into groups of five and two.

All seven were rushed back to the Harriet Lane.

Some of the youths, according to reports reaching Army Headquarters here, was suffering from frozen feet, but none of immediate hospital treatment.

Dismisses Charge of Theft Against Wife

Ottawa, Feb. 10 (CP)—Magistrate Glen E. Smith today dismissed the charge of theft brought by F. J. Quinn, Ottawa, against Mrs. Quinn, against his wife.

In delivering judgment Magistrate Smith said ownership of household goods and an automobile after a divorce action was instituted by his wife of taking, was not definitely established by the plaintiff.

The option the automobile was given to Mrs. Nolan by her husband.

Many Complaints Against 'Buck' Law

Toronto, Feb. 10 (CP)—Complaints have been received by members of the Legislature and the Ontario Department of Game and Fisheries respecting the new law which prohibits the shooting of female deer of any age, acting Minister Nixon said today.

There had been considerable controversy over the legislation passed last session, Mr. Nixon said, and the matter would be threshed out by the Game and Fish Committee.

COBOURG YOUTH FOUND INJURED NEAR TRENTON

J. A. Munro Dies Later in Belleville General Hospital

Bus Driver Picks up And Reports Accident to Police

Joseph Alexander Munro, aged 30 years, whose address was given as the New Royal Hotel, Cobourg, died at 11.15 Sunday morning in the Belleville General Hospital from injuries received when struck by an unidentified driver.

He resided at 200 Centre St., Oshawa, operator of the Toronto-Kingston bus, found the victim lying unconscious on highway No. 2, in the area which includes the land occupied by the hospital, the home of the guinea, and the Dionne farm home where the children were born.

The quintuplets' father said his first knowledge of the planned expropriation came last week when a sheriff's officer called on him with a writ of expropriation.

Sixty 200 Feet Deep

To add to the land on which the hospital, built with subscriptions from all parts of the world, now stands, a strip 200 feet deep on the south side of the road running east from Highway No. 2 to the Dionne farm, is to be added.

Dionne said his father, Oliver Dionne, who holds a small mortgage on Oliva's farm, and Alex. Legros, owner of land adjoining the Dionne farm and proprietor of a souvenir stand in front of the hospital, also had been served.

The plot on which the hospital stands is the original parcel of Dionne's farm. Under an agreement dated August 1, 1934, the board of guardians of the babies was granted permission to erect a hospital on the land.

Father's Plans Upset

"There was no need at all for expropriating land on the south side of the road," Dionne said today. "Plans had been made for the coming summer were upset by the expropriation notice, he said.

He had not been told whether he would be permitted to move his house in which the children were born. Chicago interests offered him $10,000 for it, and he had planned to sell the old wooden building.

The land taken from the Dionne family for 25 years. Oliver Dionne settled it then and erected the house in which the five babies were born. A barn from there and has lived in the building all his life.

Hot Dog Stand Blamed

Toronto, Feb. 10 (CP)—A souvenir stand on the Dafoe Memorial that the Dionne quintuplets first saw the light of day, and which the Ontario government, in behalf of the province, is now expropriation proceedings for acquiring the land with a 200-foot frontage from the owner, Alex. Legros, Corbell Croil, chief guardian, said today.

Mr. Croil said he received similar frontage on the opposite lying land on which the road from the Dionne home is being acquired from Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, for expropriation proceedings, Mr. Croil said.

Land Had to Be Bought

In each case Judge T. F. Battle of Sault Ste. Marie, K.C., will fix the land and will be paid for by the guardians.

PAPA DIONNE ROUSED

Land Has Been in Dionne Family For 35 Years

Callander, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP) — Oliva Dionne said today the Ontario Government has expropriated seven and a half acres of his land for a park, making an attempt to negotiate with him for its purchase. The father of the famous quintuplets made plans immediately to contest the government's reported action.

Dionne said he understood the government plans a public park in the area which includes the land occupied by the hospital, the home of the guinea, and the Dionne farm home where the children were born.

The quints' father said his first knowledge of the planned expropriation came last week when a sheriff's officer called on him with a writ of expropriation.

Callander 'Fish Bowl' Assailed, Scientist Would Prefer Obscurity

New York, Feb. 10.—(CP)—The Dionne quintuplets should be reared "their illuminated fish bowl at Callander" for the obscurity of separate homes and ways says Dr. Alfred Adler, noted Viennese psychologist, if they are to develop into useful members of human society.

Treating the five little sisters of Northern Ontario from the psychological respect, Dr. writes in the Cosmopolitan Magazine, that the most significant years of the development of the individual. He suggests they should be dressed in different colors, given different toys and even different food.

"They should find playmates outside," he adds. "They should have frequent contacts with their brothers and sister sisters and all little girls as possible should be made aware about the fact they are quintuplets. Every manifestation of their peculiar-cent indivisibility should be encouraged. This may be enough for the present. The future requires more drastic changes."

Psychologically, Dr. Alder writes, the quintuplets have their family is not an asset. He recalls the parents may visit the quints every day but their privileges are restricted.

Montreal, Feb. 10 (CP)—Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, asked today for his comment on the statement of Dr. Alfred Adler the Dionne quintuplets should live separate lives, said its "ridiculous" and that he had in fact published an article on the subject.

Dr. Dafoe said the psychologist, who wrote that they for the magazine Cosmopolitan, visited the quintuplets' hospital home late last summer. He said he thought the babies except at the usual veranda hours, and would not permit close observation. Dr. Dafoe declined to comment further.

ROSS GARRETT GIVEN 2 YEARS

Found Guilty of Six Counts of Breaking, Entering and Theft

Samuel Roy Chambers, alias Ross Garrett, of Hamilton, a 20-year-old youth, was sentenced to serve two years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary after being found guilty on six counts of breaking, entering and theft, committed in Kingston and Belleville. Chambers was given two years on the first count, with the sentences on the remaining five to run concurrently with that of the first by Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., in today's local police court. Chambers pleaded guilty to the charges, but refused to give evidence on his own behalf and was found guilty after all. He was only represented.

Numerous charges faced the accused when 18 old and diamond rings, two clocks, three gold watches and considerable cash, totalling in value, found in Chambers' hotel room, were identified by the respondents as being their property.

Mrs. Walter Assaltine, 37 Grove St., testified on finding Chambers, alias Garrett, in her home on the afternoon of last May 24. She told me he unlocked the rear door with a key given to him by Mr. Irvine, who she reported to have left for an out-of-town race," stated Mrs. Assaltine. She ordered him from this address, however. A charge of breaking, entering and theft was laid in this incident. Charges of breaking, entering and theft were laid by Mr. Irvine, 18 Ann St., on May 26; by Mrs. Ida Bowerman, 146 W. Moira St., Mrs. Guy White, Martin Street, all in Belleville; by Mrs. Clair St., and Mrs. Rollins, Moira St. When confronted by Mrs. White, who owns a home at Front of Yonge, in her back kitchen, Chambers remarked: "I'm sorry, I thought you—"

Chambers denied all charges and repeatedly asked "how can you identify these articles?" Crown Attorney H. G. Chevrier, K.C., in charge of the prosecution established identity of each article mentioned in the respective stolen articles as they were produced in the court.

Chief Hall, who arrested the accused as he was about to sell some gold gold to a Kingston jewelry dealer, and Plainclothes Officer Fred Hall, were the main witnesses called in the matter of testifying that the stolen goods were found in Chambers' room. Chambers pleaded to the falsely register in a hotel" also charge. He said: "I did not give my parents to know of my whereabouts if I got into trouble." At this point Chief Hall produced a long list of previous records of Chambers, who had been convicted on several thefts before. With the exception of one small ring, all of the goods was identified by the respondents produced to the rightful owners. Electric clocks, a Waltham watch, gold rings, gold soap, gold watches, gold rings and three rolls of pennies, gold rings stolen from Earl Hickey, contained in the bulk of the goods taken.

At the conclusion of the lengthy evidence submitted, Mr. Donnan pleaded for a term one for a penitentiary sentence.

"There are serious charges and you could be given a penitentiary sentence for 14 years. Apparently your previous sentences have not been a lesson to you, so the sentence of the court is that you must serve two years in the Portsmouth Penitentiary on the first charge, of which you have been found guilty, and a two year sentence on each subsequent charge to run concurrently with that of the previous charge," said His Worship.

POLICE BLOTTER

A gum slot machine, stolen from the premises of Ralph Wannamaker, Front St. late Friday evening, was recovered by local police, abandoned behind a large tree on Great St. James St., late Saturday afternoon. The machine was damaged practically beyond repair. The matter was later investigated by Provincial Constable Fred Izard, who apprehended five teen aged boys in the possession of gum taken from the machine. When taken to the police station the questioning on Saturday, however, the youthful lads stated the machine was broken and the cash contents had been removed when they found it abandoned on Great St. James St. early Saturday afternoon. All they procured out of the machine were 30 packages of gum, the majority of which was recovered. Charges against the persons removed the machine from Wessel's property, broke it open and removed the cash box are abandoned the damaged slot machine.

An odd theft occurred happened on Front St. on Saturday afternoon when a large portion of snow, that had gathered on the roof of a Front St. building crashed to the street below, striking the rear door of George Roblin, R.R. No. 1, Bellville, which was parked at the curb. P. C. Arnold was detailed to investigated. Fortunately no person was in the vehicle at the time of the owner of the building amicably agreed to pay for the repair to the automobile

Only ten transients were afforded with sleeping quarters at the police station over the week end, of which the smallest number of the year appeared on Saturday night. Two transients sharing the sleeping quarters with an inebriate.

Six Plays Will be Offered In Second School Festival

Three Will be Presented Each Evening For Two Evenings

On Saturday afternoon representatives of various schools which will take part in the Secondary School Drama Festival this month met to make final arrangements for the program at the home of Miss Dora F. Merry, Ann Street.

Six schools will take part in the two day festival and the committee has been most fortunate in securing as adjudicator, Mr. Sherriffs Bennett of Toronto. Mr. Bennett who is the dramatic director of the well known Toronto group "The Masquers" is well known in this district for his splendid work in the first regional festival of the Dominion Drama competition at Kingston.

Those attending the meeting on Saturday included Mrs. H. C. Pile, Leslie Taylor and Clifford Barrett of Napanee Collegiate Institute; Miss Farley and Miss Annie Teague of Trenton High School; Miss Nellie Marsden, representing the Albert Players, and Miss Merry, Miss McLaren, Douglas Hevey and Maddow Baird of the Young Theatre Plans. Time of presentation, arrangements for rehearsals and properties were methodically planned out and all is in readiness for the performances on February 18th and 21st.

The plays for the first evening will be "Pride in Spain" to be presented by Picton High School under the direction of Mrs. Schroeder; "Interlude" by Marriott Edgar and Lyman Field, presented by Napanee Collegiate Institute, under Mrs. H. C. Pile and "Tails Up" by Cyril Roberts presented by the Young Theatres directed by Mrs. Nellie Merry. On Friday evening the plays will be "The Goblin" by Harold Brighouse presented by Trenton High School, under Miss Mr. Allan J. McIlwjohn; "Brothers in Arms" by Merrill Denison presented by Bellville Collegiate, directed by Mr. G. Chis and "The Great Dark" by Dan. L. Rubicam presented by the Albert Players directed by Miss Nellie B. Tufts.

A reception will be held at the conclusion of the plays each evening at Shadow Lawn, when the named convener of the entertainment committee.

There is special interest in the production of "Tails Up" by the Young Thespians and the Albert Players will be entered in the Eastern Ontario Drama League at Kingston the following week.

The present Conference was one of the most successful that has ever been held in this district and congratulations are due to the local Boys' Work Board.

Obituary

DAVID K. MURDOFF

Word has been received in Bellville announcing the death of David K. Murdoff at Edmonton, Alberta, on Saturday, February 8th, and the forwarding of his body to Belleville for interment.

The late Mr. Murdoff was born in the 3rd concession of Sidney Township, about fifty years ago, his parents being Mrs. Murdoff (now Mrs. Frances Henry) and the late David Murdoff. His early life was spent in this district and later he resided at Napanee and Toronto. Some years ago he went to Western Canada and for a considerable time he was engaged as a trading post manager for the Hudson Bay Company in the territory far north of Edmonton. Ill health caused him to retire from this position and his illness was of long standing.

Surviving him are his mother, Mrs. Frances Henry of Toronto, who was with him at his passing; one sister, Mrs. Homer Bunnell (Gertrude) of Bellville and Mrs. Winnipeg.

The late Luther Townsend, 13 Holloway Street, Bellerville, is a first cousin of the late Mr. Murdoff.

Interment will be made. Funeral service here will be made later.

ZION'S HILL MISSION BAND

On Friday, February 7th, 1936, Mission Band met with Miss Ruth Maple Leaf School House under the auspices of Zion's Hill and Mrs. Orrie Searles. The worship service was conducted by Miss Searles, opening with a hymn followed by prayer by the leader. Given Ray read the Scripture lesson. Verna Tummon, the president, took charge. A hymn sung, followed by roll call, beginning with the letter "F". The minutes read by Shirley Ray were adopted. Books for an autograph quilt were dispensed with as a means of raising money. At this time the visiting lady, Mrs. Bunnett, gave a very helpful talk, as well as inspiring talk, concerning the beliefs of African people. Mrs. Bunnett's talk as well as the letter "F" for Fiji given by Mrs. Orrie Searles.

The watch lower was arranged in Fiji by Valentine Ray. The collection was taken and a hymn was sung. The meeting was closed with prayer by Jack Ray.

MRS. EMMA MARTYN

The death occurred at Mission Oak, on Saturday, January 8th., of Mrs. Emma Martyn, widow of the late Alexander Martyn, 70th year.

The late Mr. and Mrs. Martyn were for many years highly esteemed residents of Sidney Township some years ago.

Funeral of Mrs. Martyn will be held at Frankford on Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 11th, interment at Wallbridge.

LATE WILLIAM J. HOGAN

This Monday morning the funeral of William James Hogan took place from his late residence, 70 Bridge Front Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem High Mass was celebrated by the Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G. Many friends of the late Mr. Hogan and of his family were present in the church.

Interment was made in St. James' cemetery, the committal service being taken by the Rev. Father Baker.

The bearers were Messrs. George Wooden, Thos. Harris, O. E. French, A. Conachus, J. Mulligan and B. J. Black.

WILFRED CRETNEY NIGHT WATCHMAN IS FOUND DEAD

Body Found Shortly Before Midnight Hanging at Corbyville

IN CHEMICAL BDG.

Well Known Ameliasburg Young Man's Death is Shock

Wilfred Cretney, 37, of 155 Church Street, and son of Mr. and Mrs. James Cretney of Ameliasburg township, Prince Edward County, was found hanging from a rafter in the Chemical Building of the Canadian Explosives plant at Corbyville shortly before midnight on Sunday by Alex Sandercock in the course on duty to relieve the deceased as a night watchman.

The alarm of this tragic occurrence was given by Sandercock and his last report made at 11:45 p.m. when the body was found. Deceased were notified and W. H. McBrien, Provincial Constable, investigated the circumstances. Dr. Ross Wallbridge, who considered an inquest necessary.

"Toddy" Crept Up On Marcoux In His Fight To Win Health

Cartoonist From Hospital Bed Learned To Draw; New Strip Planned

A hospital bed seems a strange place in which to prepare for a career as a cartoonist. Yet, George Marcoux, returning from the World War, shellshocked and broken, and who were injured, spent almost three years there, and there he got more time to become interested in hospital, practicing to be a cartoonist.

"Toddy"

When he was finally released, he found that he had acquired many strange and often unbuilded ideas, such as a dread of high places, that made it difficult for him to adjust himself to the ordinary workaday world. So he began to consult a doctor for his troubling fears, and worked for months on a tall bridge that was being built over one of our large rivers.

Now, if he feels a recurrence of his phobia-fear, he takes himself to a tall building, goes as far up as he can and stays there until he has himself in hand again. Just another fighter who has fought daily the war back to most of us is now just another chapter in history.

The condition of Marcoux's health made it necessary for him to spend much time in the open air. A great love of children and a very keen understanding of their problems, led him to draw, leg for his own amusement a gallery of children. Children that he saw daily, children that he saw for only a moment, children that he loved, and children that he pitied. Each of his daily walks netted him three or four additional sketches for his collection.

At this time went on, the characteristics of all these children blended into one that seemed to typify childhood, and a child he came more real to him everyday. At last he realized that he had conceived a character that would live and become real to everyone. He called this real American boy, "Toddy."

"Toddy" is now in strip form and will make its first appearance in October 29, by the McNaught Syndicate. He is a real boy, sometimes naughty, sometimes a little pathetic but always human and always interesting.

Marcoux's cartoons will be unusually proud of the latest addition to its comic strip family and we predict a hit for Toddy and, extraordinary success.

"Toddy" is now in comic strip form and is introduced to Ontario Intelligencer readers on these pages three of this issue. He will be found to be a real boy sometimes naughty, sometimes a little pathetic but always human and always interesting.

POLICE COURT

A local resident pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication at the police court here Monday. A police report, held before His Worship, Magistrate J. J. Bumby, K.C. The customary fine of ten dollars and costs was paid. When arrested by Provincial Constable Izard that night the accused man was found in possession of a bottle of rubbing gin. It was disclosed during the proceedings.

A non-support case that has been in the local courts for some months past, again remanded adjourned. "Apparently these people cannot get together, suggest the husband either pay for his wife's keep or go back to her," stated His Worship on the 17th of Feb. and settle it once and for all." stated His Worship in handing down his decision.

Two Highway Traffic Act cases were prosecuted, one being a reckless driving charge that was adjourned while another charge of driving without due care for driving without the proper headlights, after sunset.

HEAPS REQUESTS ALL DOCUMENTS ON OIL EMBARGO

House May Hear Details of Sanctions Move at Geneva

DEBATE SPEECH

Considerable Mass of Business Placed on Order Paper

Ottawa, Feb. 10 (CP) — The House of Commons today will resume debate on the reply to the Speech from the Throne with the prospect that its major-party critic, Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Conservative leader Bennett, will consume all the six hours of its working day.

Mr. Bennett will start the debate after the address has been moved by Arthur Roebuck (Lib.—Toronto) and seconded by Sarto Fournier (Lib.—Maisonneuve-Rosemont.) It was considered certain the Conservative chieftain would move an amendment and the possibility existed that the two rivals might still be talking when the bell rang at 11 o'clock tonight.

Nearly a considerable mass of business has been placed on the order paper but the throne speech reply will have precedence until it is ended. Topping the list of other business is a motion by the Prime Minister calling for approval of the Canada-United States reciprocity agreed early in the life of the new administration and concluded after hasty negotiations between the Roosevelt government and that of Mr. Bennett.

A. A. Heaps, Winnipeg North, Labor member, has given notice he will ask for copies of all communications between Canada and other governments and between the government and Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian representative at the League of Nations, regarding the Italo-Ethiopian war.

Hour of Oil Sanctions

Notice of the question was believed to indicate the House would hear more of the oil sanction proposal before then. Word of the agreement they brought from Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Minister of Justice, during Mr. Mackenzie King's absence, while they were not officially disclosed, is known.

However, there was the possibility the government might withhold publication of these documents not in the public interest and that the request would be voted down.

The question of Orientals and Doukhobors will be dealt with in a resolution sponsored by Angus Mackinnon (C.C.F., Vancouver East) asking for exclusion from this country of all persons who, because of race or religious beliefs, may not enjoy full rights and privileges of citizenship.

Notice in the Speech from the Throne that the government will launch legislation for the control of the Bank of Canada has been supplemented by a notice that Mr. J. Coldwell (C.C.F. Rosetown-Biggar) will move for nationalization not only of the Central Bank but of all chartered banks as well.

MISS CORNELL TO PLAY SAINT JOAN

Realizes an Ambition She Has Had For 13 Years

DETROIT, Feb. 10, —(AP)— Catharine Cornell will realize an ambition she has cherished for 12 years, when her production of George Bernard Shaw's "Saint Joan" has its premiere here Wednesday night.

The New York Theatre Guild invited her to play the title role at the Drama's World Premiere in 1923 but a conflict for the first of a long series of productions with Guthrie McClintic prevented her from accepting.

Miss Cornell's production of "Saint Joan" will spend the latter half of the week here and then proceed to Cleveland, Buffalo and Pittsburgh before its opening in New York, March 2. McClintic, the director who became the actress' husband staged the Shaw opus.

Arthur Bryon who left the stage three years ago for the cinema, returns to the latter with Miss Cornell in the role of the Inquisitor. He appears in only one scene—the "Joan's trial—but in it he performs the unusual task in the theatre of delivering a speech, which required fifteen minutes.

RELENTLESS NIAGARA ICE CRUSHES DOCKS AND HOUSE—Relentlessly and without regard to property, King Winter piles up slow-moving ice in the Niagara river that crushes everything in its path as though it were matchboards. Steamer docks, houses and cottages are seen here caught in the breakup of the ice floes. Residents are fearful as what damage will be done when a warm spell loosens winter's hold and the tremendous ice-jam breaks.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Feb. 10.—A large crowd of members and friends of the Stirling Women's Institute gathered in the community hall on Thursday, Feb. 6, to enjoy the splendid program arranged by the program committee and a fine evening at cards.

During the business part of the meeting, which was conducted by the president of the organization, Mrs. J. Rodgers, satisfactory reports were set forth by the secretaries of the various organizations. The matter of securing a number of chairs to be used in the Community Hall was discussed and the following committee appointed to meet with the council of the village and offer cooperation in the matter, Mrs. Mc-Gee and Mrs. Wilson. Early in the meeting a two minute period of silence was observed in memory of the late Madame Wright, Deputy Reeve W. G. West, recently appointed Warden of Hastings County was the first speaker of the evening. In his remarks he congratulated the ladies on the splendid work of the past and on behalf of the village council wished his success for the fine co-operation given by the organization during the past year. Mr. C. F. Wall also gave a few interesting remarks of congratulations. Mr. J. R. O'Donnell, secretary of the Stirling Agricultural Society, also spoke. He was one of the Women Institutes at the last Stirling Fair was greatly appreciated by the society who hoped that plans to take part in the forthcoming fair were being considered. The next number on the program was a ladies' chorus, Mrs. Nora Wescott, Mrs. R. A. Patterson, Mrs. Perry Bronson, Mrs. Stanley Rick, Mrs. Lawrence Munns and Miss McFat. They offered a popular song. Mrs. R. H. Williams played the accompaniment.

The next number was one of unusual interest in which the audience was divided into two groups for an open debate, "Resolved that the word 'obey' should be included in the marriage ceremony." The affirmative was very ably defended by a group of talented speakers under the leadership of Mr. R. H. Hulin with many forceful and amusing arguments being set forth by the various speakers. The negative side of the question was upheld by a fine group of orators under the leadership of Miss Fenwick. Mrs. Wright, Messrs. J. R. O'Donnell and E. Munns officiated as judges and found themselves faced with a tremendous task in selecting a winner. After a lengthy consideration they returned the report that it was a draw.

The next number was a male chorus composed of R. A. Patterson, Carl Potter, Ellis Bedley, Stanley Dermilty, Ernest Cain and Art Duncan. Their first offering was a negro spiritual. A real treat of music was taken in a geography contest which was directed by Mrs. R. A. Patterson.

During the time of the program card tables were set up and a very dainty lunch was served by the ladies in charge of that particular work. The remaining part of the evening was spent in euchre with the following ladies and gentlemen securing the first and second prizes offered for the high scores of the evening. The lucky door prize, a two-pound box of candy, was won by Mr. Carl Potter, and in cards the first prize for the ladies went to Mrs. Rick with a score of 43 points, Mrs. T. Gould was second with 38 and Mrs. A. Gordonier received the consolation prize. For the gentlemen Mr. Matheson received first with a total of 51 points, Mr. J. R. O'Donnell and Arthur Duncan were tied for second with 46 points with the latter winning the draw. Mr. Percy Bronson received the consolation prize for cards.

It was a most enjoyable evening for all who were able to be present and the program committee and other committees in charge of the entertainment are to be congratulated for the manner in which everything was carried through. A motion of thanks to all taking part and to the preceding committees was moved by Mrs. J. R. O'Donnell and seconded by Mrs. Wright.

Personals.

Mrs. Ray Armstrong, Marchmont Apts., Belleville, spent the week-end as the guest of her niece, Miss Jean Morton.

Mr. John Munro of Queen's University, Kingston, spent the week-end at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Munns.

The local Boy Scouts are very busily engaged these days making final arrangements for their big ice carnival. Their work in this particular line has given them a reputation to live up to and not a detail is being overlooked in the effort to surpass former achievements. An interesting program of races will include district public school championship, district high school championship, Scout championship and Cub championship. After school each day the lively candidates can be seen burning up the ice in preparation for the big event on Wednesday night when all those interested in this great movement will be on hand to give the boys a boost.

Mr. William Arbuckle of Belleville was a guest at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Lyvibond.

Obituary

EDWARD H. BATE
(Brighton)

Edward H. Bate, a well known and highly esteemed resident of Brighton, Ont., for many years, died at his late residence in that village on Friday, February 7th, in his 67th year.

Mrs. Edmund Carleon went to Stirling Friday evening to spend the week-end.

7 MAROONED ON ICE FLOE FOUND

Plane Pilot Sights Objects Huddled Together on Ice

(Copyrighted 1935 by the Associated Press)

Aboard Reeves Plane over Cape Cod, Feb. 10 (AP)— (By wireless to Boston)—The seven C.C.C. youths caught on an ice floe in Cape Cod Bay since yesterday noon were sighted shortly after dawn today between five and seven miles due north of Brewster.

Five of the youths were seen huddled on one island of ice and two others on another.

This plane, piloted by William Winegarden, had returned from Boston at daylight after failing to sight the youths in the early morning darkness. Later they could be seen clearly from the air, little black objects huddled together.

Further away was the Coast Guard patrol boat Harriet Lane which had been heading the ice floes in Cape Cod Bay through the night in vain efforts to pick up the crews of the C.C.C. boys, who faced danger of death from exposure or drowning.

Leading Vessel to Scene

Winegarden had turned the plane around, flown back to the patrol boat and led the leading vessel to the spot.

The rescue cutter at 7.40 a.m. was about a mile and a half from the ice holding the group of five. The second group, with only two boys on it, was another mile away.

The first group reached, rescue was at hand. As Captain Winegarden swooped his plane down they waved their arms in apparent joy.

None of the five seemed in trouble. Each stood up and then fell down. Whether it was the slippery surface or their inability to sighting aid was difficult to determine.

The Harriet Lane was proceeding slowly toward the marooned youths in the direction indicated.

An army bomber and another plane also flew from the heads of the C.C.C. boys while the necessarily slow rescue work went on.

Now the cutter has taken the patrol boat to reach them was the problem. The latter had been adrift 12 hours at 8 a.m.

NEW MARK FOR 5,000-MILE TRIP

British Flyer Cuts Off Nearly Fourteen Hours in Flight

Cape Town, Feb. 10 (C.P. Cable) —Tommy Rose, former flight lieutenant of the Royal Air Force, declared Monday he had failed to sleep after setting a new record for the flight from England to Cape Town.

Rose landed his monoplane at 8.5 p.m. local time yesterday as dusk was falling and received the acclaim of a crowd of 3,000 for his new mark for the 5,000 mile journey.

He clipped 13 hours and 17 minutes off the time set by Amy Johnson in May, 1932, in November, 1934, completing the trip in three days, 21 hours and 36 minutes.

POLICE BAIT—When she received threatening letters, Virginia Mallory Brown, beloved by fortune and student at Wellesley College, Mass., told police. Now she is being used by sleuths as bait to track down the would-be kidnap gang.

WALLACE H. ROBB LECTURES IN N.Y.

Master of "Abbey Dawn" Says Robins Friendliest of Birds

New York, Feb. 10 — Some birds have a sense of humour; the osprey is a fine parachute jumper; robins are the friendliest of birds and blue jays are the most difficult to befriend, says Wallace Havelock Robb, the poet of the Canadian backlands," who is on one of his periodic visits to New York.

Robb has been making friends with birds since 1921 when he got tired of a businessman's life and bought some 500 acres near Kingston, Ont., in the secluded woodlands of the St. Lawrence River basin.

He has been scribbling away at poetry ever since he can remember and one day decided that the only way he could turn bird songs into verse was to get away from it all and go to live with the birds.

Now his bird sanctuary, which he called "Abbey Dawn", is one of the best known on the North American continent.

Robb hasn't any idea how many birds flock to the sanctuary each season, but has himself identified members of some 100 species.

Doesn't Band Birds

"I don't band the birds. I prefer to leave that to the real ornithologists. I wouldn't know how to do it scientifically, I'm afraid."

Robb remembers that at first he was amazed at what he calls the "human side of birds."

"Most people, such as I was think birds are unemotional creatures," he said. "But do you know they even have a sense of humor?"

He once struck up an acquaintanceship with a quaver, or screech owl. The creature would roost on the radiator cap of his car and apparently till somebody took him for a spin. Facing the wind, the owl slowly raises its wings and when they were in flight position. Then it would hold them rigid and soon its tired muscles would relax in muscle.

The owl would then bounce and bounce until the car would turn the car around, drive home with the bird and wait for the owl to roost on the radiator again.

Discovered Parachute Jumper

It was he who discovered that the American osprey is by nature a fine parachute jumper. Nobody believed him until one night a pair of an osprey making a "dead stick" landing.

The osprey flies over its nest and then stands almost still, winnowing the air with one all of a sudden it holds its wings into an almost vertical position and plops to earth. It usually makes its parachute descent from about 40 feet in the air.

Another thing he found out was that the "land sandpiper" is indeed a queer little bird. The lady sandpiper earns the appropriate name of sandpiper stays home and sits on the eggs. Let an interloper approach her view and the sandpiper does all the balding while her spouse retires to a secure limb and squeaks encouragement.

The birds have become quite attached to Mr. Robb and now flock to all over him, pecking at his ears and fingers. He soon attracts them by holding a peanut between his lips.

The good old robin redbreast is just about the tamest bird there is, Robb believes. "The robin is closest to human beings," he says.

Robb now thinks that after ten years or so of careful listening and mimicry he really is getting some of the songs into poetry. He prefers to recite his works out loud.

CARNIVAL SPIRIT AT THE O.S.D.

Held Under Supervision of The Athletic Director

In true carnival spirit the winter season was celebrated at the O.S.D. on Saturday night with a monster ice carnival. Skating brightly at the side of the rink at the O.S.D. was a huge bonfire that lit up the entire rink. Students and the teaching body at the O.S.D. entered into the spirit of the occasion by appearing in costume. The carnival was arranged by Physical Director Cunningham in conjunction with the faculty, all of whom assisted in the merriment. Previous to the dress carnival, however, games were played on the ice. A tug of war on skates, relay races and a football game that proved highly entertaining were all engaged in.

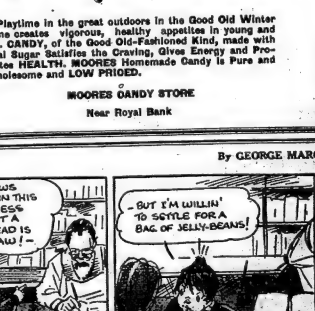
Prizes were awarded as to the best dressed, most original costume and the best comic, in all classes. The judges were W. Morrison, G. S. McClure, Miss F. Fitzgerald, Miss F. Bell and Miss K. Dingwall.

The prize winners were:

Girls

Best Dressed—Barbara McBrien as the King and Queen of Hearts. Most Original—Ruth McKitrick and Catharine Cubbage as a Sick Girl and Attendant.

Best Comic—Ellen Mamie as an Old Woman on Crutches.



Boys

Best Dressed—Allie Tomalin as a Roman Soldier.

Most Original— James Bedwell and Earl Prince as a Lion in a cage with Tamer.

Best Comic—John Kosti as a Zulu girl.

At 9 p.m. all repaired to the assembly hall of the school where refreshments in her staff served a delicious hot lunch.

RECORD WITHOUT ACCIDENT

Motor accidents are common but Joseph R. Certelyou, of Haworth, New Jersey, is not one of those drivers who have had a single accident or more chalked up again t them. He has driven for thirty-eight years and covered nearly two million miles in that time without a mishap.

Perhaps his record of distance travelled can be equalled by others but there are not many who have been motoring more than 38 years.

Whether there are others of such a record is really outside the matter for here is an achievement in accomplishing a 38-year-without-accident record, one of which he must be proud. The travelling public too must be proud of him.

This record maker offers two suggestions to help make the people free-from-accident-minded. One is to offer an insignia to those who drive without accident. It is the thought was good psychology to give these insignia, to put on cars and better than putting on the cars of careless drivers marks of demerit. "What a lot of 'joshing' a fellow we know would get—maybe two—maybe two silver bars or a gold bar—would get from his neighbors if he lost it through some stupid accident" comments Certelyou. "Wives would be after their husbands to do as well as the fellow across the street."

Reduced insurance was another incentive he saw for careful accidentless driving.

USING UP AUTHORS

In The Nation Mr. Krutch has become justifiably worried about the reckless rapidity with which we use up our authors nowadays. No phrase seems to fall with more ease from the pen of the contemporary critic than "he belongs to the past." Sometimes that means no more than that her author thus relegated has no significance in relation to certain of the critic's burning convictions, but usually it is broader than that. It indicates the outstripping speed with which "schools" and "tendencies" emerge, spread and exhaust themselves. Novels are classified as "pre-Hemingway" or "post-Hemingway." An advanced critic refers to James Joyce as worthy of honor because "he summed up an epoch" now past—as though he could no longer have anything really pertinent to say for the new generation, and was from now on to be regarded as an imposing historical monument about as "modern" as Bothinia.

Mr. Krutch recalls a certain very young but "promising" essayist of a former period who collected in a slender volume called "Some Very Minor Bohemians" those seven brief pieces which constituted his output up to the moment of publication. The author concluded the volume in which his discoveries were made, he bowed his head to those enthusiasts of his own day who also loved to close epochs as though they were dooms:

I shall not weep that I feel myself to be a trifle outmoded, I belong to the Beardsley period. Younger men, with fresher names and notions, with newer enthusiasms, have pressed forward since then.

The author of these lines consoled himself with the reflection that "to be outmoded is to be a classic, if one has written well". But that consolation is denied to those of our contemporaries who, like him, no longer have months of activity before them. To be out-moded is now merely to be "historically interesting" or to "sum up an epoch" (of perhaps six months' duration).

It is Mr. Krutch's suspicion that the effective life of a genius really ought to be longer than the effective life of a mayfly. Indeed, one of the fundamental assumptions of the whole enterprise of literature, he thinks, is that human experience and content in virtue of which it is possible for a man to say something which will continue to seem to the point some centuries, let alone some months, after it is said. The "importance" of writers still living cannot exist exclusively in their embodiment of attitudes now completely irrelevant to the concerns of more youthful men. If a man is worth talking about at all, then the most significant thing about him is that part which is still valid, and if nothing still valid exists he can never have been of any genuine significance whatever. — New York Times.

IT ISN'T THE CHURCH IT'S YOU

It matters not how the minister prays,
Nor how sweetly sings the choir,
Nor what pompous neighbor proposes,
Nor why some should have to retire,
Nor the name of the church, whate'er that be,
Nor even your place in the pew;
The clothes you wear make no difference;
For it isn't the church, it's you!

It matters not if all don't agree,
Nor how all the money's spent,
Nor whether the church should work at home,
Or for those abroad who've been sent.
It matters not iff all and each
If mistakes are made, just a few;
Or if the sermon should hit you hard;
It isn't the church, it's you!

For a chain's no stronger than its weakest link;
It will break 'neath unusual strain;
So the church that's full of the links that pull
Will weather all storms mundane.
So just fall in line with God's holy will;
Support the best efforts of men
Then you'll love your church, tho' it has its faults;
For it isn't the church, it's you.

A. T. Barr, Ferrybrook.

MANY GROWN MEN OF TODAY AND WOMEN TOO would give a good deal to go back to the days when, no matter how cold it was, or how strong the wind blew, the long list of farmers sleighs loaded with cordwood coming into town was a feature of the landscape every day but Sunday. And to make the picture complete, there was a sleigh full of twenty-five nine years passed away this morning. She was an excellent mother and wife, highly esteemed in this community. In religion she was a faithful member of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church.

CHURCH OBSERVES C.G.I.T. WEEK

Tabernacle Group in Charge of Service Sunday Morning

Tabernacle Canadian Girls in Training opened the observance of C.G.I.T. week by attending morning worship in the church on Sunday conducted by Rev. T. J. Mayhew. Miss Shorey led the congregation in reading the Psalms, Jean Wannamaker read the lesson, the anthem "Stand up for Jesus" was sung by the senior group and a special music was given by the choir.

Miss Shorey then gave an interesting address on the theme "On the High Road" the C.G.I.T. motto for the year. In graphic and pictorial language she showed the many girls can travel, but the choice of the best road is always possible and every girl should be certain of her destination towards which she is moving. Christ is the trail for us to follow.

The offering was received by "Peggy" Doolittle, Loretta Stark, Jean Redfern and Jean Wannamaker and the singing of the C.G.I.T. song for the week brought a very impressive service to a close.

JUDGE REFUSES MOTION TO TAKE

In cross-examination Dr. Franklin was asked if it was not important for a defendant in a murder charge to be present to meet in this case as soon as possible."

"I would have information to the defense as readily as to the crown," was the reply of the witness.

"Did you do it in this case?" "I think I did."

"When I was in your office with Mr. McNuer did you not turn to him for instructions before answering a question I asked you?" "Yes. He was handling the case."

Judge Stope Questioning.

Mr. Justice Jeffrey interrupted: "I am going to ask a few to this questioning.

"It would not have been "proper for a witness to give out information to the defense," the witness observed, without instructions from the official in charge of the case. "But this is not the case," Regan said. "has told us he would be as ready to help the defense as the crown."

Dr. Franklin replied: I acted "quite properly", His Lordship said.

"You believe the wrench might have been a factor in causing injuction?" the expert was asked.

"It could be," he said, impression when I first received it," he said. "But I did not think it was the only factor. Jan. 4 when I handed it back."

The case appeared to be unimpressed with its importance up to Now. 11?" It was rather impressive on the 17th."

"I meant before the 17th."

A brief argument over the phrasing of the question followed, and the lawyer did not press it.

"Did you tell any police officer in this case that you had the wrench?"

"Not that I recall."

Not Made Public.

"Did you make it public at all?"

"I never do that," the doctor replied with a smile.

Defense attorney suggested to the court that the wrench had been filed, either before or after he received it.

"I am not prepared to say whether or those are file marks or whether they were put on by the manufacturer," Dr. Franklin said, pointing out the exhibit through the magnifying glass.

The expert was asked to describe in detail the condition of the wrench "pulling at that stage," mud and blood.

"When you first received it, the stains might have been blood stains, for all I knew" he was asked.

"For all I knew then, yes. But they were rust."

He said the wrench had "a certain amount of grease on it." It was older than those he added when questioned further.

"Is It Cast Say"

"Did it not present the appearance of having been out of use for some time?"

"I can't say so."

"Well, wrenches in use have oil on them, which would keep them from rusting. And having been out on this one, it doesn't that look as though it had not been in use?"

The doctor confined his answer to a reiteration that there was considerable rust on the wrench.

"Don't you agree this wrench was not in active use for some time?" he was asked again.

"I don't agree," he said flatly this time.

He was asked if the wrench could not possibly be a humane killer, wielded with the "strength shown to have been used in this case—maniacal?"

No Frills Found.

"The skull was fractured in this case," the expert replied. He agreed the wrench could have smashed the girl's skull.

When he saw the wrench Dr. Franklin said, it was not in a condition to yield fingerprints.

"Wouldn't say that it was a perfect medium for finger prints? You've seen them taken off almost everything else"

"The only positive it would be impossible to get fingerprints off the wrench," he said, adding that rust would have obliterated any of the surface it covered.

"I think," he added, "that the surface is too irregular, to carry fingerprints."

He could not, he said, hazard a guess as to how long the rust had been on the tool.

The medico-legal expert was asked if the initials on the wrench had not seemed of great significance when he first saw it.

"It didn't impress me at the time," he answered.

"What would impress you? What would you need—O'Donnell's calling and attached to it?"

Feels Not Sought.

Dr. Franklin said he was examining the wrench for bloodstains. He had not looked for fingerprints. He had compared the wrench with pictures of wounds on the slain girl's head and had investigated "the possibility that it was the instrument in this case."

On Jan. 4, he testified, he was asked, on giving the wrench back to police, to examine a bottle of sand and water and to identify its contents.

"You were instructed to see if there was blood in them?"

"No, I was not."

"It came from a bathroom trap?" "I believe so."

"The bathroom in O'Donnell's home?"

"I don't know."

Bottle Not Examined.

"I'm suggesting you were told, there's a bottle from O'Donnell's home that you had contains blood."

"You are wrong."

"You found ordinary stuff in it?"

"I never examined the bottle."

"You were told to examine the bottle your might have been able to discover it?"

"I might have been able to, but I did not examine it."

"I take it you would have been able to discover as little as four or five drops?"

"I might have."

Of the initials, Dr. Franklin said they had been painted not to him November 12.

"I suggested," Mr. Regan said, "the letter that looks like the single 'D' could just as easily be read as the letter 'F'?"

"Not at all," the expert said. "It's a perfect 'D'."

"Take a careful look. It has never occurred to you that the letter is the letter 'F'?"

"Never."

The letter in question stood alone on the side opposite the "OD" inscription.

About the serum used to test the wrench for blood, Dr. Franklin said that if he and Dr. Ertz had discussed the "accuracy" of the serum he had not been asked about this with the other specialist.

Mr. Regan did not ask the court reporter to read over the doctor's testimony on this point, but turned to Dr. Without pressing it after brief further interrogation.

Dr. Franklin said Dr. Ertz's final blood tests had been delayed by the illness of a typographist.

Questioned on "Blind Lust"

Dr. Franklin was asked about a piece of bloodstained concrete found near the girl's body. He had not heard about it until two weeks after the 17th of last month.

As a medico-legal expert," he was asked, "will you examine these articles of these to be carried out in blind lust with the murderer having no thought of leaving his traces?"

"Every case," the doctor answered, "must be judged on its own merits. I do not care to go into generalities. A true is dangerous."

Water in Bottle.

Till yesterday Mr. Justice Jeffrey interpreted. His Lordship had been under interruption during the same line.

A short recess was then called and Dr. Franklin, between two burly guards, was led out of the courtroom by a side door.

After the recess, Dr. Franklin was recalled and asked by

Rawdon and District

Several Rawdon relatives and friends attended the funeral of Mrs. Agnes Bateman, (nee Laura Spry), at her home North Front Street, Belleville, on Thursday. After a dainty lunch was served by a social half hour was spent, a note of thanks was given to Mrs. Brenton for opening up her home for the meeting.

"Leisure Class" Without Servants Predicted by Inventor's Congress

Oakland, Calif., Feb. 10 (AP)—A "leisure class" without servants was predicted here today. Gadgets was the basis of the prophesy by Albert Burns, president of the National Inventors Congress.

He agreed with J. P. Morgan that leisure is a boon to civilization but disagreed with the financier's definition servants are an inevitable part of it. Burns listed:

Two devices for automatically washing, rinsing, sterilizing and drying dishes and silverware.

One, invented by Robert Warren of South Gate, Calif., also washes and dries clothing.

A lip-stick spreader by Leroy Young, Tulsa, Okla.

A "glitter" starter, by Mrs. Anne Selzer, Hollywood, designed so the most sleepy-lids safe evening gown will reveal no trace of it.

A gadget to wash the outside of windows from the inside, by R. W. Smith, Kansas.

GATINEAU DEAL FOR POWER MADE

Government Refuses to Make Known The Details

Toronto, Feb. 10.—New contracts with the Gatineau Power Company and the Ontario Hydro Commission are completed, it was reported on reliable authority Sunday night.

Strengthening this report, it was learned that A. R. Graustein, chief negotiator for the Quebec power firm, left Toronto on Saturday night for New York. It was understood that he had completed his dealings with the Commission at a final conference on Saturday.

Hydro Commission and the Government refuse to reveal details of the new agreements.

A bill will be introduced at the forthcoming session of the Legislature, setting out the new contracts and asking for ratification, the Government anticipates no trouble in the bill's passage.

Adoption of the bill will write finis to many long months of negotiation between the power firm and the Commission. The negotiations have witnessed many upsets, many set-backs and bitter controversies filled with controversy and argument.

Only a few weeks ago one agreement was reached with the Gatineau Company and the Commission, but the Hepburn Cabinet declined to give its stamp of approval.

The Cabinet was reported to have disagreed at that time with a clause in the contract which called for payment by Hydro of $1.75 per horsepower reservation costs upon 200,000 horsepower. The Hydro was to have taken 100,000 horsepower from at $12.50 per horsepower and the reservation cost would have been eliminated when the full 300,000 was taken.

Out of respect to his late Majesty, King George, the opening ceremonies took on a note of mourning.

BANNON BROUGHT FROM PEN

Toronto, Feb. 3.—(CP) — Jack Bannon, serving a penitentiary term for kidnapping, was brought to Toronto under police escort today to testify in the suit of Dominion Distillery Products, Ltd., of Montreal, for remission of $1,417,000 excise taxes in Exchequer Court.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was doing the crossword puzzle partly to herself and partly out loud, and pop took a little notebook out of his pocket and started to look in it, saying, it seems to be simple enough if you just use your head, I mean anybody can play the market with a certain degree of success if they just exercise good judgement and moderation.

Willyum Potts have you been dabbling in stocks and things again? Dont you dare give me yer last dime, ma said. The idee of even dreaming of such a thing after the mess you got yourself into, she said, and pop said, O, you mean the crash. That was the big wind that blew everybody down, he said.

It was the big wind that showed which way the skirts are blowing and a man that cant profit by experience doesn't deserve any future sympathy, ma said, and pop said, But just listen to these figures.

And he started to read out of his notebook, saying, Monday, bawl International Electric at 25, 100 shares, sold them Wensday at 35, Thursday, bawl one hundred Liberty Lumber at 5 and 50 /Sdxs at 15 and then Friday at 5 and 20 more respectivly. There you are, there's a cool profit of 650 dollers with just a little figgering, Conservative buying, pop said, and ma said, Why Willyum how wonderful, course if you have some really scientific method, that's another horse of a diffrent color, Now maybe I'll be able to afford 3 or 3 little things this Fye been thinking of more longingly than seriously, such as an English Wedgewood breakfast set, she said.

Not so fast, pop said. These are dummy figures. I mean I've just been marking down little investments that I mite of made, but actually didn't, just as an experiment, so the results, although intristing, can hardly be called substantial, he said, and ma said, Why Willyum you mean thing. Don't you dare let me catch you gambling on the market under my supervision, and what's more just to teach you a lesson I believe I'll buy that Wedgewood set anyway.

With she proberly will.

Are you a STRANGER in your own home?

IT'S A FUNNY THING—but most people don't half see their own homes. We pass by both the fine points and the places that need fixing, without a glance, without a thought.

Yes, we all do this—until some day we decide to look around and really discover the place we live in . . . Let's start with the living-room. That couch seat—how dingy and dull it looks. And there's a rough place where the cat sharpens his claws. The little rug in the hall is ragged and frayed. (Why, that's a disgrace!) And that table top certainly must be done over. The mantel looks positively bare, since Ted broke that lovely green vase. And all those magazines and papers—what we need is a good-looking stand to hold them.

You see the point. Lots of little things need doing. And it doesn't take lots of money to do them, one at a time . . . Just make a list of what's needed and then keep watching the advertisements in this newspaper for good buys at low prices. Now's a fine time to find all sorts of good things for the house (February for furniture). things you've been needing a long time, maybe, things you can have now without spending too much.

Mr. Kenneth Orlis, Toronto, was home for the week-end.

Mr. Everett Liddle, who was injured in a motor accident in the middle of December, although still in the hospital here, is making very satisfactory progress.

Misses Hilda Reid, Johnstown, spent the week-end with friends here. Mrs. Mervin Lyle, Toronto, was also a visitor.

Miss Irene Thornton, Trent Road, is visiting with relatives at Stirling.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Thompson left last week for London, Ont., to take up residence in that city. Mr. Thompson has been transferred by the London branch of the Bank of Montreal.

Mr. J. Franklin Rhodes left Wednesday to attend the annual meeting of the Sun Life Assurance Company of Canada.

A very enjoyable evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Reid, Johnson Street, on Thursday, when about twenty-five friends gathered to lend to their friend, Miss Mona Reid, his birthday being on Friday. After a time spent in different games Miss Reid received many gifts which gave a few selections on a guitar which were much enjoyed. The evening came to a close by singing, "He's a Jolly Good Fellow" and "God Be With You Till We Meet Again."

The Helping Hands Class of Bridge Street Church had a very enjoyable evening on Friday. It was the final meeting of the year. Games were played and accompanied by the teacher, Miss Marion Gemmo when Miss Ruth Smith and mouth organ solos were given by Misses Kitty Stone and Jean Archer. Impersonations by Miss Marion Varley were enjoyed. At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the teacher.

GIRL GUIDES DEMONSTRATE SCOPE OF WORK

Friends of the Girl Guides had a real inkling into the many phases of Guide and Brownie activities on Saturday evening when a demonstration of work was given in the G.W.V.A. rooms under the direction of Mrs. M. K. Branscombe, captain of Company Two Guides.

The Guides in their smart navy blue uniforms with colorful scarves and the Brownies in their traditional brown presented in song, dance and play the scope of work which is enrolled in these world wide organizations. Mrs. Branscombe in charge of enrolment into the Guides or Three Brownies and the presentation of badges by District Commissioner, Mrs. Leo B. Riggs and Mrs. Dorothy Boyle, secretary of the Bedge Committee. Mourning bands were worn by all officers.

Under the leadership of Mary Stoull, Tanny Owl, and Barbara Bowerman, Brownie Guide, the programme with singing and dancing, an interesting Guide play followed, showing a campfire scene and a dream of the garden where badges grow. A recitation by Mary Stoull, piano solo by Lois Wilkin, piano solo by Marion Wallber, dance by Lois Wilkin and Dorothy Webster and Betty Johnson, were included in this part of the entertainment.

The songs of the Brownies were very well done and the feature of the dances was the Fairy Circle Drill by the Guides. The signing of the Golden Arch was admirably carried out by Jean Forman and the flags of St. George, St. Andrew and Union Jack were carried by Mary Wright, Ellen Cameron, Betty Meagher and Margaret Morey as the crosses were made by the Guides.

The inspiring enrolment ceremony when three Brownies left their dancing companions and joined the ranks of the Guides was well carried out. Audrey Lloyd was the element of the colour party, with Mary Vee Thomson as colour bearer and Mary Ann Forman as escort. Mrs. Branscombe presented the promises to the enrolled Guides, Mary Dolan, Shirley Jackson (who "flew up") and Jean Miller.

The Second Class Badge ceremony followed with Guides receiving their way up the ladder of intelligence, handicraft, health and service fame and demonstrated to the audience the training that each Guide receives. Ann Schuster, new captain of Third Belleville Company A" presented the badges, Esther Moncrief is to be captain of Third Belleville Company.

Individual badges for various tests and for attendance at seventy-five per cent. of meetings showed the devotion of the Guides and faithful interest in their work which is the master the achievements which make a real Guide. Mrs. Riggs and Miss Boyle made the presentations. It was explained that Company Two Guides will use all the money for badges, pay the fifty dollar rental fee for the Y.M.C.A. gym on meeting nights, pay for their own Christmas work which this year included gifts for every member of the children, a concert and the gifts to the residents of the Bellevile Home for the Aged and providing a Christmas dinner for a family of nine.

The singing of Taps brought a particularly interesting and enlightening programme to a close. A basket ball game coupled the rest of the evening and a sale of home-cooking added to the Guide funds.

MARKING THE SILVER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am thinking of buying for my sister her solid silver flatware. She desires to have initials on it. Which is better, with or without initials?

2. If initials should be used, should they be her initials, or the initials of her fiance?

Brother.

1. Whether or not we have silver monogrammed depends first, on your preference, and second, on the pattern. I very much like to have and to see silver monogrammed, especially if the monogram is a heavy one, carefully chosen and planned and designed to harmonize with the pattern. And this last is very important. . . for it is sad to see, for instance, a very "modern" monogram on a period silver pattern. Just as it is inconsistent to see a monogram of traditional quality on modern silver. Just if you purchase your silver from a silversmith or a jeweler of repute, he will have a specialist on this sort of thing, who will be delighted to help you in your choice. If your sister prefers to have her silver monogrammed, by all means have it done, for it will add immeasurably to your gift and to her appreciation of it.

2. Ask your sister which she prefers, for this is for the bride-to-be to decide. The conventional thing to do is to use the initials of the bride-to-be, and this is the reason that I think it is better form. But likely so many bride-to-be have chosen to use the initials of the name-to-be add now it must be left to personal choice. Traditionally, and still urged by the best silversmiths, is the form of using the initials of the bride-to-be, and if you do this, and if your sister wishes this, you will be correct.

3. This too is a matter of choice, but I like best the use of the plain, preferably designed into a lovely monogram. But often, especially with some patterns, the use of a lovely script letter, the last letter of the name, is very beautiful. In any case, do not use the first initial. Use either the three initials (as in the above choice) or the initial of the last name.

TURNING THE TABLES

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Is it correct to ask a young man to some special concert with you?

Yes, quite correct and hospitable.

DROPPED SILVER.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please let me know if it is proper for a person who drops a fork or other utensil in a restaurant to pick it up? I think that it should be left on the floor until the waiter or waitress notices it and picks it up.

Right you are that we should not pick it up. But it is better to tell the waiter or the waitress that we have dropped the silverpiece and to ask her or him to pick it up.

SALAD KNIFE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. While eating lettuce and tomatoes, should merely a fork be used or is a knife and fork allowed?

2. If bread and butter may be eaten with the dessert, should they remain on the table or be removed before bringing back again later?

Bee.

1 A salad knife as well as a salad fork are very much used with salad. They are proper, entirely so, and most convenient. Most of the silversmiths now, both sterling and plate manufacturers, offer salad knives in the different patterns that they make. And increasingly we find, as the popularity of salads grows, that the popularity of salad knives grows. And a splendid idea it is!

2. Under the very unusual circumstances that bread and butter may be eaten with the dessert, it would, I should think, be more convenient and correct to have the bread butter plate remain on the table, not removed and later returned.

Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.

Fashion Flashes

HIDE AWAY from the too glaring sun, under the brim of a large hat. A new model is of light forget-me-not blue felt with navy ribbon antelope encrusted into the side of the shallow, sloping crown, which is belted with narrow blue ribbon having an edging of red. The whipped edge of the brim is navy blue.

THE LAST WORD in luxury cloth coats is a straight model of black woolen with an enormous silver fox collar and the sleeve bands of the precious fur slanting down to the back of the hands.

ALWAYS OUT of the wardrobe and in use, is the important little frock that fits in anywhere. The newest model is of black crepe with a high front necklines above a cascade ruffle. The skirt has an accordion pleated self-belt with a huge, oval, fabric-covered buckle. The skirt is pencil-slim.

ALL SET for southern adventure is a grand coat of soft camel hair dyed a luxurious raspberry pink and set off with a tuxedo collar or natural lynx.

JUST PERFECT for the woman seeking dignity as well as beauty is an evening gown in a model in taffeta printed in three shades of blue and white done on a black ground. The slim dress has an overdress of black net which flares from the knees down.

GRAY TONES in soft chiffon appear on the dance floor. A navy frock of pearly gray chiffon has a skirt worked in four alternating sections of gray, yellow and pale green, embroidered done in twisted and draped orange-colored chiffon.

Straws blow in the story of the new season's millinery trends. Quills and toyo straw are still immensely popular, as are other versions of the straw family. A large pale pink bayou straw has the crown crocheted in the wool yarn in the same tone as a triangular peasant shawl also of the yarn.

Always in demand is the fine black and white frock. A milliner's model of black crepe marocain with a lining of white pique facing an enormous pointed collar.

A huge belt buckle of metal is studded with colored stones. Groups of tucks mark bodice and skirt.

A perfect perte of a suit for formal afternoon and informal evening wear is of black velvet with a large square collar of silver fox. A silver and white chiffon petal collar is worn with the ankle-length suit.

Standing out from the general design and appearance of the evening gown is a picture in a wrap of white ribbed velvet in fingertip length with silhouette with white fox edged vertically to suggest the outline of a sleeve.

Not all is southern resort shopping. Women are still looking for smart coat fur. For general wear there is a handsome front-belted swagger coat of fine Alaskan seal-skin with centre closing, and turn-back soft convertible collar. There are slit pockets at the hipline.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

So many thousands of women work in the professions and in business nowadays that one wonders whether they will ever think about it any more.

Women can do most any kind of work that men can, but have they the same attitude toward their jobs that men have?

During the war, women did splendidly in their work attitude. More conscientious and industrious in an emergency, they stuck to their tasks unflinchingly.

Impelled by the highest motives of patriotism, they overcame even by a desire to share responsibility—they often effaced their own personalities in a sublime attempt to do their bit.

But before and after the war? In peace times a woman has an entirely different viewpoint of life—hence her feeling-tone is correspondingly changed. Her work then is divorced from the emotional. No great issue stirs her idealism. But still you have the old motivations for surrending her liminality.

What she does, she does best before, now becomes merely a job at so much per. She becomes the routiner and for something higher and better—motherhood.

Now I do not mean to imply that women workers are not capable and efficient, or that they do not deserve what they earn. Far from it! What I mean is that women, whatever she does, tries to put her emotions into it. If she can do that, you know, she is a good worker.

Women, as a rule, find it difficult to be impersonal. They have little toward their work. In that they are different from men in the attitude from men in the performance of routine tasks.

Routine occupations may be noted —although it is less distinct. Consider the man's relationship to his work, with a woman matrimony and motherhood. Women have only any standard or kind of living she may have chosen.

Work, as a way of life, is therefore not the beginning and the end with her. Her home and children become less important and less vital to her existence.

A man's interest in his work, however, may become all-absorbing to him, and in fact, that he may neglect his home, his recreation, his girl in general, and in short, his emotional outlets.

Work, as a necessity, is a stop-gap and perhaps that is the best view for them to take after all.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

When suffering from anemia light but nourishing meals should be taken, care being taken to guard against a weakened condition of the body. Milk is a desirable food for anemic people and buttermilk especially to be recommended. Cereals, meat, vegetables and well baked potato are good for further nourishment. Tea and coffee to be eliminated. After recovery eat a little more than usual to regain lost strength.

JOHN STREET W. M. S.

The John Street United Church Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society held their monthly meeting on Wednesday, February 12th, in the Sunday School hall. After the call to worship was given by the president, Mrs. Harry Ellis, the devotional service was conducted by Mrs. Ross, taking as her subject, "Prayer." She read from the 23rd Scripture reading from the 23rd chapter of St. Luke's gospel. Reports were read from the Mary Jones' book, "Christ and Human Suffering" and Junior Mission Band were discussed, and secretary and treasurer's reports were read and adopted, after which "The Stranger of Galilee", was sung by Miss Ada Sharpe.

A discussion on the "Faiths of Africa" from the study book, "The New Africa," was led by Mrs. Ellis Hill, assisted by Mrs. Bews and Mrs. Chambers. The meeting was closed with prayer by the President.

AT THE BELLE

"HIS RAFF"

Elite Dynamic Punch, Jean Harlow Scores Triumph

Jean Harlow has never displayed her versatility as an actress to better advantage than in "HIS RAFF" coming to the Belle tomorrow and Wednesday, matinee daily.

She follows her smashing hit in "China Seas" with another sparkling role, again against the background of the sea, but in a vital, romantic story, which gives her the finest opportunity of her career.

Teamed with her for the first time in one of Hollywood's finest actors, Spencer Tracy, and the two by their scintillating performance most out of the powerful and sweeping story, which makes the most hilarious comedy with the most touching pathos.

Convinced that the trend of public preference is for red-blooded stories with virile power and sweep, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has scored in starring its two strongest personalities.

The story of "HIS RAFF" invades a new locale, the commercial fishing fleet that plies the waters of the Pacific coast between California. Much of the story takes place in the fishing village of Monterey, the great California metropolis, community affiliated with the city but entirely separated as though in a different world. There Jean finds a different type of girl than she is accustomed to, lives and work out their destinies in direct contact with elemental forces.

"HIS RAFF" tells of the love of Miss Harlow and Tracy, a love that transcends man-made laws, yet is established with a veil of social mockery that cannot entirely conceal its truth and sincerity. Tracy portrays Miss Harrow in one of her most unusual characters, that of a fisherfleet who marries a braggart and a bully and spends the rest of her life trying to reform him.

Tracy is shown as a swaggering sailor of a type that has been the filched strong man who rules the fleet with his fists. Miss Harlow, who gave her first real proof of her dramatic genius in "China Seas," again comes through with a brilliant portrayal as the fisherman's patient, vicious enemy owner.

Miss Merkel and Calleia head a strong supporting cast which includes Victor Killian, Mickey Rooney, Charley Grapewin, Roger Imhof, Juanita Quigley, Paul Hurst, Vince Barnett, Dorothy Appleby and Judith Wood.

Unusual praise is due director J. Walter Ruben, who has done outstanding of the theme.

"HIS RAFF" is full of fast-tempo humanity, romantic, dramatic thrilling, it embodies the qualities that will undoubtedly make a premiere medium of entertainment. You are sure to enjoy it from start to scene to fadeout.

Two Splendid Features

"Three Kids and a Queen"

Kidnap Plot Revolves Around May Robson in Universal Film

Local theatre-goers are agreed that May Robson has never before appeared in a picture that is so delightfully humorous as the one in which she is now to be seen at the Capitol, "Three Kids and a Queen," the Universal comedy-drama in which she is starred. Miss Robson plays the role of the eccentric, crotchety but tremendously rich old maid.

In the story Miss Robson, rendering a performance in an excellent, is spirited to the basement home of Henry Armetta and his four children by connivers of her kidnapping are finally succeeded by an actual kidnapping. Then the fun starts with dramatic situations following in swift succession. Armetta's children also discovers happiness where she least expected to find it.

Miss Robson, about 70 years old, the chipper Miss Robson astonished the entire company by her continual vigor and good cheer, and requested neither favors nor unusual consideration. The picture was filmed during Hollywood's hottest summer spell, but that seemed to make little difference to the screen's "grand old lady."

In addition to Armetta, Miss Robson's supporting cast in "Three Kids and a Queen" include Frankie Darro, Charlotte Henry, William Benedict, Billy Burrud, John Miljan, Herman Bing, Hedda Hopper, Laurence Grant, and many others, and was filmed under the direction of Edward Ludwig.

School Boy Breaks Collar Bone at Recess

While playing during recess at Queen Mary School, Ronald Stevenson, "Sonny" Frolick, age 8 years, of 7 Sandford St., had the misfortune of falling on the ice and fracturing his right collar-bone. The little lad was skating running towards the school at the time and in the excitement when a larger student collided with him, knocking him down. The injured youth was taken to the Belleville General Hospital where an X-ray established the fracture of the collar-bone. The fracture was reduced by Dr. W. G. Hanley and the little gentleman will be glad to know he was able to return home where he is convalescing.

MacDonald Favored in Scottish Voting

Dingwall, Scotland, Feb. 10 (CP) —The electors of Ross and Cromarty riding today began the task of deciding the political fate of Malcolm MacDonald, Dominion Labor secretary.

Defeated in his own riding of Bassaw during the general election last November, the 34-year-old son of Ramsay MacDonald is trying to re-enter parliament in the Ross and Cromarty by-election, in which voting takes place today.

The young MacDonald ruled favorite in the four-cornered fight. Other candidates are Randolph Churchill, grandson of Winston, veteran of numerous cabinets; Hector McNeill, Labor, who defeated Colonel Walter Elliot, Minister of Agriculture, in Kelvingrove in the last parliament, and Dr. Russell Thomas, Liberal.

Livestock

Toronto, Feb. 10.—(CP)— Cattle movement opened slow on the Canadian National markets today with only cows and bulls moving. Calves and sheep were absent. Hogs and lambs opened unsettled.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle 2,310; calves 100; hogs 700; sheep and lambs 515.

Good cows opened steady at $3.75 to $4.25.

A light supply of calves moved unchanged at $10.50 to $11.00 for choice and $9 and downward for medium $6.00 for common. Sheep also were unchanged at $2.00 to $3.00 early, according to quality.

Hogs were unsettled selling during the morning with indications levels would be below last Thursday's $9.00 at which the last sales of bacons. No sales were made on the open market during the morning.

Montreal, Feb. 10.—(CP)—Firmness marked light trading in early sessions of the Montreal Livestock Markets today. Receipts reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics: cattle 811; calves 613; hogs 1,474; sheep and lambs 203.

On the local section light receipts brought steadier prices. Steers $3-$6.25; good steers $5.75-$6; medium $4.50-$5.50; heifers $3-$5; good cows $4.35; medium cows $3.50-$4; medium cows $3.25-$3.75; common butchers $2.75-$3; canners and cutters $2-$2.50.

Veal calves were firmer on the call. Grade A veal calves quoted $10; medium good $9.50; common light heads $7; grassers $3.25-$4.

Hot much change was shown on the sheep market. Good heavyweight spring lambs sold at $10.50 with choice selling in mixed lots from $7-$7.50; heavy ewes from $3-$3.50.

On the hog section bacons were stronger. Heavies and lights were steady. Selects were firm. Packers' hogs sold up to $10 with sows bringing from $7.50-$8.

Minister is Defendant In Slander Action

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP)— The Rev. Dr. Gandier of the Supreme Court of Leeds and Grenville will open here this afternoon before Mr. Justice Wells in the first of two actions to be tried. One is an unconsented divorce case originating at Johnstown, near Prescott, and the other an action for $2,000 damages entered by Rev. Dr. Gandier, minister of the Prescott Presbyterian Church against Rev. George MacGregor, retired Presbyterian minister of the same town, for a slander alleged to have been uttered at Kemptville in 1934.

WRENCH EVIDENCE GIVEN AT TRIAL FOR FIRST TIME

Counsel Regan Interrogates Police as to Delay in Notices

A heavy brown-stained spanner wrench about 10 inches long, picked up by Provincial Police on the road spot where the body of Ruth Taylor was found in Gainsborough Revive held the spotlight most of the day at the Orchard trial when brought up its first week in Winter Assizes on Saturday.

The wrench became a thoroughly familiar exhibit as attention was focused upon it almost constantly. Its discovery was described in minute detail as was the course it took thereafter.

The fact that no mention of the wrench had been made to police at the preliminary hearing three weeks after its discovery was attached "unfair" by Frank Regan defence counsel.

Detective-Sergeant J. J. McIlrath swore that he had not "recollected" the wrench on the occasion although he had been given it 20 days before.

"Did not think" he told his counsel. Inspector A. Deverell of the Provincial Police.

Reported on Nov. 11

Mr. Regan protested he was not told of it until January 6th after it had acquired some definite significance. Mr. Deverell, Provincial Crown prosecutor produced two notebooks, one dated November 11, containing reports of the discovery of the wrench.

Mr. Deverell stated that he would have the newspaper reporters called to prove that they had the source of their information at that time.

Detective-Sergeant McLaughlin told the court of his part in the search of the Gainsborough ravine during which he found a number of articles, anything which might have connection with the murder. He had called upon a piece of rock or concrete to break the lock of a box which might have been used to kill Ruth Taylor. This was exhibited.

Mr. Regan then called up with his rake a 1-4-inch spanner wrench. He was asked by Mr. Deverell whether he struck this located in some bone set. He found it in a direct line between the stump and which the body had been found, and the top of the box in the ravine.

"The wrench had two brownish stains on it," he said. "It was covered with soil" he testified.

Mr. Regan continued his cross-examination to ask explanation as to why the wrench had not been found on the date Mr. Deverell said it was found.

Crowded

One of several photographs of the ravine filed by the Crown was produced. Counsel pointed out the cross which Detective-Sergeant McIlrath erected they were standing on the spot where Ruth Taylor's body lay, McLaughlin agreed.

Magistrate John Vernon was next on the stand. He had been three or four feet from McLaughlin when the wrench was found, he said. The constable had given it to him. He had put it in his pocket and later locked it up at the station.

He stated that Mrs. Orchard phoned on the afternoon of November 7, Thursday. The rake had turned it up from three feet of soil in the cross-examination he probably two inches of soil. The wrench might had been largely covered with mud, though this he could not say, nor part of the handle was not.

Still pursuing his search for a clearer way in which to have found before, Mr. Regan closely questioned Magistrate on the procedure in the charged in the searches. The first day, witness said, there were three and four constables and some detectives "just taking a look around".

"I suppose" he said more than that; that they were doing some searching." he added curtly.

"I wouldn't say they were conducting a very minute search."

May Have Stepped On It.

"I suppose at detectives and yourself went over the spot where the wrench was found on Tuesday afternoon?" Mr. Regan pressed over it."

"Did you look around at that spot?"

"Yes."

"And you saw no wrench?"No."

"The wrench was beneath the leaves?"

"It may have been.

"And you stepped on it and possibly shoved it into the ground?" Mr. Regan asked.

"Then wouldn't the man who stepped on it realize it was something far different from leaves?"

"It would be easy to slip on it and not realize it" he said.

On the Wednesday, only two men had been allowed in the search of the ravine for clues, witness said. Then on Thursday there were three men.

"And having found the wrench, you continued your search?" "We did."

Kept Until Next Day.

The wrench had been found about 10 a.m. Thursday, witness said, but was not turned over to Detective-Sergeant McIlrath until about 9.45 the next morning, witness said. Counsel questioned the delay in view of the importance of the exhibit and possible importance of the piece of evidence.

Brilliant Work of Schriner And Chapman Keeps Amerks Up in the N. H. L. Race

Lose to Toronto But Take Chicago on Sunday Night

CONACHER IN FORM

Scores Two Goals And Gets Assist Against Amerks

(By Canadian Press)

Canadiens fell by the wayside over the week-end as they absorbed a crushing 7-3 defeat from Montreal Maroons and Americans dedicated Chicago's 4-1 win during a 3-0 victory over Leafs, seemingly growing stronger as the season nears its close were three points up on Habitants by winning from Rivals who say New York Rangers each owe them within a point of them in the American division by beating Bruins 2-0.

Canadiens already have obtained safety once Bill Miller from Maroons and have sent Jean Pusie back to Boston. They have an option on Leon Chabot former Chicago netminder and may send him to Maroons if they would carry him as a spare or retain him if the Detroit deal doesn't go through with Joe Smith.

If Americans do make the Stanley Cup playoffs for the second time in the Club's history a good slice of the credit will go to Sweeney Schriner and Art Chapman who have been a great deal of their scoring.

Last night in Chicago Schriner scored two goals to increase his lead at the top of the scoring lists and Chapman added one each, picked up two assists the latter giving him the league lead in that Department with 17.

Schriner sent the Americans off to a good start with his first goal midway through the opening period and after Mush Marsh had tied it up did Sherry Offer took a pass from Chapman for another lead. Lone scoring efforts by Schriner and Chapman in the third gave the New Yorkers the rest of the margin.

Conacher Going Great

With Charlie Conacher going at his best Americans didn't look so bad at all. Toronto Bantam product Conacher completely recovered from his shoulder injury early in the season and seabed in the other tallies by Andy Blair.

The Toronto Conacher marker was made on a penalty award after King Clancy had made the net an easy other gift shot a few minutes before. Conacher's first counter, the goal gave Leafs a 2-0 margin at the first stop and Conacher added a brilliant solo effort in the second.

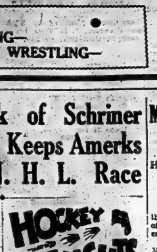
Canadiens defence weakness was never more evident than when Maroons drove in seven goals Saturday night. Only Georges Habitants' one in the first period and outscored their opponents 4-1 in the latter period. Lorne Kennedy Cup emblematic of the Intermediate championship with two wins, a draw and a loss over a season.

Larry Northcott was the leading Maroon scorer with two goals and two assists while Herb Gardiner, Hooley Smith, Russ Blinco, Jimmy Ward and Hec Kilrea added one each to others. Dizzy Dedlets and Jack McGill scored for Canadiens.

The Boston-Ranger game last night in New York was scoreless until midway through the second period when Art Coulter and Lynn Patrick scored goals within a little more than three minutes. The first Boston goal was by Captain Mac Colville and the second Patrick gained home after Coulter had given him a forward pass.

ONTARIO RINKS NEAR JEWELRY

Winnipeg Bonspiel is Entering Upon Second Week



Winnipeg, Feb. 18 (CP)—With jewelry almost within their grasp curlers went into action in the second week of the 46th annual Manitoba bonspiel today with prospects all competition would be concluded Wednesday night.

Only one curler—Premier John Bracken of Manitoba—has entered the jewelry stage. He has earned a place in the semi-finals of the Rheb's trophy. Most other events are in the 16's.

Dingwall trophy play today sends Bob Campbell of Toronto against Bert Hall of Winnipeg; Fairbairn Club and Frank Sargent of Port Arthur will skip the rink against the Sanderson quartet from Tuxion, Man.

J. H. Rothschild of Toronto meets Leavers of the Thistle Club in the Rhodes's Bay competition and Ron Hamlyn of Toronto Granites will of Brandon in the John C. Eaton trophy.

Hamilton, skip of the 1925 Dominion champions, meets Burgess of Montreal, Man., in another Eaton match.

By RAY COLLETT

No man in hockey ever took his game more seriously than Howie Morenz. Few, if any, ever played it with the days of a big game. Howie is as nervous as a debutante at her coming-out party and only when he gets onto the ice does he calm down. Then he throws everything into the play—his blazing, comet-like speed, his terrific shot, his brain and brawn and heart.

The mighty speedball of other days has slowed a little—no player, no matter how great his courage and skill is better than his physical limitations—but still exerts a dazzling display on occasion. His aging legs—he is about 34 now—still have some of the old power and drive, and his wrists that same certain ball flick to them. And when he roars up the ice at his mile-a-minute clip, swings through it around the defence and fires his blast of rubber at the wailing goal, he's covered still come to their feet in a terrific roar as the man who turned Canadiens' ice for eleven flaming years and now wears a New York Rangers sweater, following his trade by Chicago Black Hawks.

It was a puzzling blow when his sale to Chicago was revealed and Canadiens have not been the same since. Yet Morenz "retired" when he was only 15 years old! Trying to play for the Windsor juniors without proper equipment, he came out as a practice goalie, wearing bandages, hands and shins. He quit, but two years later was back and he hasn't stopped hockey since.

Now Morenz has given the store window dummies a few things to emulate. Whether he or "Cyclone" Taylor was the greatest player of all time, and how much longer he will be a player. Both are most controversial subjects, sir.

MARKLE FIGURES IN 9-1 VICTORY

Helps Syracuse Stars To Increase Their Lead in Section

By The Canadian Press

Syracuse Stars expect to increase their lead over Buffalo at the head of the International Hockey league eastern section now that Jake Markle has returned from Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey league. The International's leading scorer led the Stars to a 9-1 win over Cleveland Falcons in Syracuse last night sharing scoring honors with Jack Shill and Mickey Blake with two goals and an assist each. Windsor Bulldogs picked up two points in Detroit last night, leading the western section leaders 4-1.

Mickey Blake, Stars defence stalwart the Toronto Leafs have ordered up to replace the injured "Red" Horner, fired a parting International league salute with two goals and an assist. Parsons, Rog Hamilton and Fitzgerald are the other Syracuse goals.

The Windsor victory over Detroit was the second home-ice defeat of the season for the Olympics. Bill Mackenzie bagged two of the Windsor goals, Drouillard and Downie getting the others. Deacon took a three-ply pass from Giroux Carrigan and Gallagher for Detroit's lone goal.

Saturday night Buffalo Bison shook off its 'flu with Toronto Tecumseths for second place in the eastern section with a 4-3 win over Pittsburgh Shamrocks at Port Erie, relegating Tecs to third place. After a scoreless first period Sid Darragh scored for Shamrocks and Tony Pandale evened it up. Rocky Martin put Pittsburgh ahead in the third, but Art Berlett rapped home a penalty shot to square the score. Johnny Newman scored the winning goal on Rosario Gaudreau and Art Roter Roth fed Bud Jarvis a pass for another.

Wilbur Farrant, on loan from New York Americans, ran wild in Cleveland Saturday night with a four-goal splurge as Rochester Cardinals scuttled the Falcons 5-3.

Canadians Stand Out as Team to Beat in Games

Garmisch-Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 10 (CP)—As 15 National Hockey teams were shuffled out of the preliminary groups today and the Olympic tournament took a serious turn, Canada still stands as clearly the most formidable team of the lot. Only Canada and Sweden have ever been beaten in Olympic hockey competition.

Captain Albert Pudas' team has left no doubt that it presents as high a hockey team as ever wore the iris forerunners. In three games Canada has scored 24 goals to none than the other teams in No. 1 group, Austria, Poland and Latvia, have scored 3 goals.

Next high scorer is Hungary with 11 goals but it has played only one host a game to Czechoslovakia in Group No. 2 which Czechs won three straight, allowed no goals against them and loom as favorites to oppose Canada in the challengers.)

Twenty-one games were played in the first round of the Olympic tournament, and only Canada, Czechoslovakia, and Sweden remained unbeaten. Of these, only the Czechs and the Britons were not scored upon. Sweden and Canada each dropped a game but the onesided margin of each did not keep the time they allowed the opposition to score.

Jimmy Foster of England, formerly of Winnipeg and Moncton, was outstanding performer in the one of the three goaltenders in the competition who has not been beaten in the. The Czechoslovakian netman has yet to see one puck and Jakki Nash, who alternates in goal with Dinty Moore for Canada, remains unbeaten.

Canada, however, is the only team that has not yet been pressed. Latvia, Austria and Poland were unable to make the defending champions work hard for their victories.

HOCKEY'S BIG SEVEN

Charlie Conacher who has led National Hockey League scorers so often during the past few years is today as a result of his great play against Americans Saturday. He got two goals and an assist to bring his total to 32.

Conacher still fire point, down on Sweeney Schriner of Americans who has scored two goals against Chicago. His liveliest Art Chapman, got a goal and two assists to tie Cecil Dillon of New York Rangers for second place.

The standing:

W. HUNTINGDON TAKES FIRM GRIP ON LEADERSHIP

Defeats Bethel 2-0 in Central Hastings Loop

STIRLING, Feb. 10.— (Special) —A real good crowd turned out to see a twin bill in hockey that was really something on Friday night. In the first game West Huntingdon grabbed a firmer grip on the league lead when they downed Bethel by a score of 2-0. The first period was a display of cautious careful hockey with both teams playing their checks closely. At the end of the first period both teams entered the dressing rooms tired from their efforts to keep the other from scoring, the frame ended in a scoreless tie.

In the second period play opened up and midway through the opening Kerby scored. West Huntingdon, and Bethel turned on the heat and Sarles was tried again and this time his work was consistent in the West Huntington nets and McGowan brothers, Kerby and Cook did a great job of holding and breaking up dangerous rushes. With Bethel pressing hard, West broke away, split the defence and beat Sarles for the second counter. The game ended with both teams fagged out from the hot terrific pace. West Huntington two points further in front of their nearest rival.

West Huntingdon—Series, goal; McGowan brothers, defence; Kerby, centre; Kerby and Wright, wings; Reid and Cook, alternates.

Referees —Wallace and Ackers.

The second game was the finest exhibition of the season when Glen Ross who had to win to stay in the running came through in with a flyer but had to fight hard all the way. Stirling, Ice and Ross each had their last year's form when they crashed off two early goals with Hagerman getting the first one and A. Fraser the second. Purdon put on the steam and Johnston broke through for their first counter, but Ice fast and clever man put Purdon got the tying goal and Glen Ross had to go to work again and with about 11 minutes to play Brooks tallied for the Riverside boys to make it 3-2. The game was hard and within a few minutes Johnston tied it 3-3 all up again. Hagerman got the final and winning counter with only four minutes left to play. Perkins robbed on several brilliant attempts but had a decided edge on the Ross forward the end of the last period. Johnston, Ice and Hagerman will tell for their team with hard luck stories of the ones that got away. Eight especially Lee who time after time was outguessed by Hagerman but what I looked like a sure goal. This was a great game in fact every game in the O.H.A. series. Stirling this winter. Glen Ross had to have to be in the running and they did. Now they have to win their next game. The game was late in starting started at 9.30 with the fifteen and not one of the fans left the rink until after the final bell sounded. There were rumors of a protest at the entrance to the rink when a discovery was made after that was called back. But the winning team could only claim by that game they needed the win and it is by a margin of one goal in a game making it a real game to watch. Fans cheered their beats off for both teams. Score 4-3.

Line-ups—

Bethel—Seeley goal; Charsley and Sills, defence; Lee, centre; Johnston, Eckrel, wings; Armstrong, Clay, Chapelle, Guay members.

Glen Ross—Hagerman, goal; F. Fraser and Purdon, defence; Brooks man, centre; Brooks and G. Fraser, wings; Alternates Irving Fraser, MacDonald.

Referees—Wallace and Ackers.

Mrs. Jack Adams Knows Her Hockey

Detroit, Mich. Feb. 10 (CP)—Mrs. Jack Adams knows more about hockey than a lot of male fans and she says her husband, manager of the Detroit Red Wings in the National Hockey League.

She was the only girl in a family of Ontario players and thus grew up in an atmosphere that was 90 per cent. conversation about hockey.

"I usually could use her for a scout," Adams said, "but when the Wing game she can detail the whole play on each team from beginning to end."

The Red Wings' manager also thinks Mrs. Adams would make a good hockey reporter. When the Wings are on the road her letters contain all the highlights of the game. Frequently, Adams says, she tells to Red Wings, all of whom sleeply understand her doings or their minor league brothers.

Won't Play if Players Under Suspension Used

Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 10—(CP)— It was reported today members of the British ice rink union plan to visit these twin Olympic villages in the hope of inducing the Canadian hockey team to appear in England after the winter games.

President R. A. Gilroy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association intimated today he would be willing to consider such an exhibition series if the British Ice Hockey Association gave an understanding the English teams would not include in the line-ups Canadian players under suspension of the C.A.H.A. About 20 players who left the Dominion without notifying the C.A.H.A. are under the Association's transfer rule are on the Canadian blacklist. They are in the Western league as Jimmy Foster and Alex Archer, former Winnipeggers playing on England's Olympic team and a number of others in Germany.

Under no circumstances would we think of letting our team play in England if suspended players were part of Gilroy said.

The Canadian Prexy took the opportunity of reiterating his stand that some agreement could be worked out with British officials on the "importation" of Canadian players by English Clubs. He said he would not object to English players but was limiting of the number of senior players who could be taken from the front the Dominion to the Old Country.

It is estimated there are now 50 or 60 Canadian pocktamers now playing with English teams. Nearly all of them were toplight Canadians in Canada. All will take their forms of Gilroy's permission before leaving the Dominion.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Carl Gruber, who paddled for the Belleville Canoe Club at Ottawa and Canongues last summer arrived back in town from his native Germany last week and he might be glad to be back in the land of the Maple Leaf, we understand. Following his defeat in the singles at Ottawa, Gruber decided to return to his native land look things over, but apparently one look was sufficient, for he booked his passage and returned to Canada pronto. Apparently he has no desire to see Europe for he turned around, and he walked right out again". Apparently the unsettling world conditions in the Fatherland under the present regime did not appeal to Gruber's bed and the reason Herr Hitler is exhausting so many diplomatic activities is to detract the attentions of the populace from the existing conditions. Herr Gruber is allowed to speak their mind, so I thought I'd tell you. Carl Gruber told Bill Fry, secretary of the Belleville Canoe Club, he has naturalized Canadian and left for Vancouver where he intends to make his home and join the Vancouver Canoe Club, quite satisfied that Canada is the best spot in the world to live as exists. Carl Gruber is a fine fellow and a good sport and he'll be adopted country. He carries the good wishes of his local club-mates and friends on the coast.

Bay of Quinte League hockey holds the spotlight at the arena Belleville tonight when Picton comes clashing with Duke Smith's Techt for the second time. Picton broke up with the league-leading Napanee squad in the second game of the season and there is plenty of opposition for local fans to get excited tonight and they should prove no exception to the rule. They play hard, regard hockey here in the Bay of Quinte loop and pack it with thrills.

The Campbellford Maroons won their championship of the group by beating Havelock 9 to 6 on the round. Maroons are leading Havelock 6 to 1 early last week and losing in Havelock 6 to 3. The Campbellford squad, the champions, then Belleville will meet the Maroons next in line, and they should provide a fine test. Buster Whitton opposes his old team mate Harry Ingram and Don Morton in that case.

Belleville lost another prospective ball player recently when Jack Kidd, a lad who had accepted a position with a large office supply establishment in Ottawa, came the bookbons of junior ball in Belleville and showed promise as a catcher. He will doubtlessly experience little difficulty in catching a place with one of the senior city teams this season. Good luck and will wishes are extended to Jack in his new field.

On Wednesday night a Semi-Final game of the O.H.A. series is on the program at the arena as the schedule brings together the group leading B.C.I. and second place Napanee for the championship of the district. Both teams will be strengthened for the game by the return of Mitchell's services. Only two points separate these two battling squads with the Tigers leading by two points to tie up the group standing. Both of these teams will be in first place. Whenever the B.C.I. and St. Mikes clash a merry time is on hand and with the home grandstand support a lot of fun is in store for the fans.

Judging from the amount of enthusiasm being shown by the policemen's basketball team, the service club basketball has better get in a few practices before taking on the big boys. The police team is clearly hockey game and ice carnival under the leadership of Bert Hislop is learning to skate, but we'll show more commendable progress than Gardner. As he somewhat tried to cut capers on the ice yesterday. Gardner is about as graceful as a cow on his skates and taking up a position on the goal, Gardner's fellows have even the numbers corresponding correctly and the player can be plucked out by the program.

Young as these boys are they are typical of the "farm" clubs, which they operate to fill vacancies as some fellow graduates to Toronto or Montreal. It becomes too old for the select company in which he plays, and is forced to graduate to higher ranks. And these youngsters even have "kid" and "infant" teams in duplication of Conny Smythe's celebrated Maple Leaf Stars.

Last year the "leaveight" finalists were Toronto Maple Leafs and Montreal Canadiens. And all members of both teams were French-Canadians. The final was played in the Amphitheatre rink before an overflow crowd, and at the conclusion of the game, the lieutenant-governor of Manitoba, ... Hon. W. J. Tupper, K. C., presented the Colcutt trophy to the Toronto Maple Leafs. In the home-and-home series Montreal Canadiens drew twice as many cash customers as the senior league fixtures.

Calgary Also has League

On Jan. 31, Father Leveque's popular "Peewees" again made their appearance at the Amphitheatre, one of the largest enclosed rinks in Western Canada, and 3,500 fans jammed the place to capacity to watch "Montreal Canadiens" and "Toronto Maple Leafs" play a sizzling 6-5 game in the league final.

Winnipeg also has a midget hockey league patterned along the same lines as the Peewees. These boys are slightly older and as more teams comprise the league nearly every N.H.L. squad is represented.

In Calgary the four teams in the Winnipeg, Feb. 10.—Charlie Conacher, brawling at a terrific clip, figured in three goals as Toronto Maple Leafs defeated Montreal Canadiens 5-3 here recently.....!"

Any sport fan in the country, planning at his dateline on this story, would say we are crazy. Conny Smythe's big blue and white Marlboroughs are in Winnipeg! Well, maybe National Hockey League teams do stick pretty closely to recognized circuit, but it's an actual fact that their pint-sized counterparts play before large "houses" in Winnipeg and Calgary.

Father Leveque's Idea

Let's explain! Three years ago enterprising and far-sighted Father Leveque, of St. Boniface, a suburb of Winnipeg, formed what is perhaps the most unique hockey league in Canada. The idea of having miniature editions of famous N.H.L. teams caught the public fancy at once, and now prominent business men of Calgary, Alta., are making a four-team league id that city.

Most interesting thing about the idea originated, laid his plans long before he began formation of the "Little" circuit. Just taking the name of their favorite N.H.L. players is a well known practice among the coming generation of Canada's future hockey greats, was enough for Father Leveque.

He formed a four-team league comprised of Toronto Maple Leafs, Montreal Canadiens, Chicago Black Hawks and New York Rangers. The players, ranging in age between 11 and 14 years, adopted the name of the player whose position he

Peewee league are named New York Americans, Montreal Maroons Toronto Maple Leafs and Chicago Black Hawks. Their play, sweaters, names and numbers are identical with their national Hockey League cousins, In this league, the teams finishing first and second will play a two-game series, total goals to count, and the winner will meet the winner of the two-game play-off between the third and fourth teams. The two winning teams will meet in a best two-out-of-three game series for the "Peewee Stanley Cup." Runners-up will receive medals "and the league's leading scorer will be honored with a medal.

Last year, Wilf Cude, brilliant Montreal Canadien goalie, presented an autographed stick to his counterpart on the Peewee Flying Frenchmen squad at the end of the national Hockey League's current season. Stars have boomed the teams in various ways.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

On the night following dinner with the attorney, she and Brant had a long talk. Brant had told her of his family.

"There were just the four of us," he had said. "My father and mother, Mary Sidney Nance, and myself." Brant had hesitated a moment and added, "and Mimi Sherland, of course. She was my father's ward, and she lived with us. She was a couple of years younger than I, and there was a great deal of difference in age between us."

At this point Brant stole an uneasy sidewise look at his wife. "As you see, in that clipping that I asked such a boat about. Mimi and I were engaged once. Then an Italian count came to town with a title to let, and Mimi decided she'd rather be the Countess delta Cursola than plain Mrs. Brant Kendall."

Dale's eyes had watched Brant very intently here, trying to find some bitterness in his face. But Brant told the story lightly, as though it concerned someone he had known very long ago.

"I mean I was pretty much of a conceited kid at the time. It broke me all up when she threw me over, I suppose. I started to whoop it up to the great disgust of my father. Poor Dad, he was dead right, but he wasn't very tactful. And I chose to go to Monte Carlo. Well, one thing led to another, and I finally cleaned out, decided to go to the devil. You know how far I'd got in seven years when you first met me in Cobb City."

Dale had regarded Brant with wide brown eyes through the lamplight.

"But if you loved Mimi like that, Dale got out through self! tips. "how could you—how could you—"

Brant leaned forward to cover Dale's hand with both his own, and his face was tender and grave.

"Dearest, once and for all, let's have an understanding on that subject. As I told you, I was a kid. My pride received a jolt—yes, and perhaps my sense of romance. But young kid though I was, I believe my children sweetheart is a vision you can do no wrong. I had no sense of humor, and all I was interested in. When I was jilted I thought I had to go to the devil that was the thing to do. I knocked around for seven years nursing a sense of grievance. The thing had become a habit. I made it the excuse for indulging myself. It wasn't until I met you that I got next to myself. You—you knew little enough, but you punctured my pretence before we'd been married a month. Your words that day jabbed the illusion and my silly pride blew out like a punctured tire.

"But—you must have loved her to remember her all those years." Dale persisted after the fashion of old maener of women.

Brant shrugged. "I thought I did. Mimi was a good looker. I liked to show her off when she came down to a prom dance at college. I swelled up to see other fellows try to cut in on me—get left. I thought that was love. But then I'd never met you. I never knew how headed kid with honest brown eyes. A little kid who stuck to a bad bargain when she found it. Who put up with physical discomforts and with the insults of a surly brute just because her sense of honor told her it was the right thing to do. It was then I found out what love really could be. Oh, Dale, sweetheart, as though I didn't know I have the prize of the ages!

Remembering this now as she watched the brown Kansas plains fly by, Dale felt her eyes go moist. What didn't matter. Mimi was buried in the past. Mimi was married and living in Italy, and her name would never cross Brand's anyway, so why worry . . .

Brant had told her of his mother and sister. "Nance was just a kid when I left. I keep forgetting she'll be a young lady, Nicolson called, that does seem funny."

Dale felt her heart sink. Brant's mother, perhaps, when she saw how small, how unlike her she was, might love her. Dale thought. But that 19-year-old sister! Almost her own age! Nance would be narrow and hard with the intolerance of pampered youth. She would patronize Dale—or secretly despise her!

When Dale thinking something of this doleful thoughts to herself, she had laughed at her. Nothing of the kind! Nance was a dear sort of kid. Besides—Brant added, with the large self-confidence of age and mesquite under a sky unbelievably blue—Dale already felt the pangs of homesickness.

This sense of quiet content. The sense of being—for the first time alone; of being among people friendly and hearty, simply it was slipping into the past. Slipping away with the sunshine . . .

Honey lay held Dale in her hard red arms and they had wept together.

"Land, child," sobbed Honey, "I don't know why I should cry, I should be tickled plum that your luck's come to you. You wasn't cut out for this and not heal. But, Oh, honey lamb, how can I let you go? Me an' Bill jes' about die without you. Oh, honey lamb, remember we—always got a home waitin' for you if you should ever need it. Tain't much, but our love'll make it soft——"

Not even remotely did Dale foresee in what bitterness of spirit she was to remember Honey's words.

CHAPTER 20

THE ARRIVAL

There had been a hectic two days in San Francisco when Dale had shopped in a whirlwind of haste, then left behind her a trousseau that had to tee when she met Brant's mother and sister. First appearances were important to Dale.

So it was a modish figure Mrs. Brant Kendall presented as she sat here on the train going east. Dale had chosen a costume of brown and deep green—a combination which toned gloriously with her brown eyes and the lustre of hair and skin.

A San Francisco barber had trimmed the hair she had so ruthlessly cut. It hung in two sleek waves of pale gold about her face, startling the girl with the unfamiliar reflection she glimpsed now and then in the car window.

It was still part of a disturbing dream! This Dale Evans, who had always ridden in troupe trains, now luxuriously ensconced in a drawing room! It was as unfamiliar as the diamond and platinum wedding ring which Brant had bought for her in San Francisco. That was her luggage over there, the expensive filled bags in the corner. That was her coat, swaying on the hanger—a model of rosewood carmel, with a deep Paquin collar and cuffs—representing more than a year's salary in the old Primrose Ridge days.

With a gleam of humour, Dale thought how Lil De Vere's hard blue eyes would stick out if she could see her now.

Lil . . . Phil Clifford . . . Sandy and the Waltles . . . she might be living on a different planet from them.

Why could she feel no more elation! Dale wondered wistfully. There had been a spirited girl named Dale Evans who would have rejoiced in the feel of these expensive clothes on her back. That Dale Evans would have taken an impish delight in luxurious surroundings. And she would have swaggered like a little gamin masquerading as a grenadier. But that Dale had never known real love. She had been a happy vagabond, careless of her empty pockets. This Dale held a rare jewel and she went fearfully guarding it.

Yes, the sea of change had begun in her. Not only had she changed but Brant—Brant, whom she had never seen save in jolted khaki—was now faultlessly tailored, perfectly groomed. Dale felt the pride of every wife to see supporting feminine gazes follow him through the lobbies of hotels and on train aisles. His memory often brought the picture of Brant with worn shirt rolled to his elbows and open at his brown throat—the Brant who smoked his pipe while Dale leaned against his shoulder in the desert twilight—and then Dale found her eyes sting with tears, so that she turned abruptly to stare out the train window.

Albuquerque . . . Indians at the depot selling pottery. The flat prairie plains of Kansas and their stubble fires. There had been an early winter this year, and the rivers and ponds held ice. All one afternoon Dale remained glued to the window, watching the snowy slopes of the Alleghanies rush past, seeing great blocks of ice carried down by mountain streams.

Then, puffing sturgily, like a tired animal, the train came to a stop in the long terminal. They had reached the journey's end.

Suddenly Dale felt quite the cat. Dale followed Brant out into the shrill tumult of the station.

The roar of a city pressing about her. A strange, cold city, in which a friendless girl counted for little.

That was silly, of course! She wasn't alone and lacking for any one. She was a beloved and pampered young wife. She had Brant. Dale slipped an arm under Brant's own and gripped him so tightly that he stopped in his search for the luggage and grinned understandingly.

"A shy desert bride!" he teased tenderly. "Any one to see you, Mrs. Kendall, would think I'd married a squaw who had never seen a city."

Brant was about to halt a taxi, when a chauffeur in private livery stepped up and touched his cap.

"Good evening, Mr. Brant. Mrs. Kendall sent the car for you."

Brant's face lit with recognition.

"Duffy! Well, it's a surprise to see you!"

"I've never left your mother's employ, Mr. Brant. It's sure good to see you again, sir. A privilege to be sent to drive you home."

"Thank you, Duffy. It was thoughtful of my mother to send the car, but we'd counted on putting up at a hotel and coming to the house later."

"Beg pardon, sir, but I think Mrs. Kendall's expecting you. Mr. Chrisp, her lawyer, wired that train you'd be in on, and she sent me here to drive you."

Brant felt a convulsive grip on his arm, and he spoke softly to Dale's imploring eyes.

"After all, perhaps, we'd better drive. It's awkward—I don't want us to stay with her at first. I know you'll like Dad. That's why I was willing to go to a hotel. But after the first moment you'll see how much Mother and Nance will love you. Be a good little sport—"

But Dale realized as she sat in the limousine trundling through a strange city, that the same it wasn't going to be easy. Did Brant really know? Would they make Dale welcome—his mother his smart young sister?

COL. A. FRASER DIES SUDDENLY

Gaelic Scholar, And Former Provincial Archivist And Historian

Toronto, Feb. 10.—Colonel Alexander Fraser, widely known Gaelic scholar, historian, and for authority on constitutional and municipal matters, died Sunday at his home, "Kinmel," 69 Woodlawn Avenue. He had been in failing health for some time, but death came suddenly.

Honorary Aide-de-Camp

He was long a familiar figure at the Ontario Government House, where he served as Honorary A.D.C. during the regime of Sir John Hendrie, the late Governor Lionel Clarke, Hon. Henry Cockshutt, and Hon. W. D. Ross. Besides services he rendered Canada during the twenty years in which he filled the office of Provincial Archivist.

His hardest work was done in Toronto was marked by his interest in the promotion of various Scottish societies. He was regarded as an authority in the study of Celtic, not only in Canada but overseas as well. He was one of the leaders in the organization of the 48th Highlanders, and was honorary colonel of Scottish games in the Province. He studied and made his early on the Scottish baglpipe.

Born at Inverness, Scotland, Nov. 3, 1852, Colonel Fraser was the son of H. Hugh and Mary Fraser. He received his education at Inverness High School, Davidson's Classical Academy, Perth and Glasgow Universities. He received the M. A. at Glasgow University in 1886, and came to Canada about that time, settling in Toronto, he became associated immediately with the Mail, later the Mail and Empire, and remained with this newspaper until 1896, occupying the position of city editor for the greater part of this period of time. In 1902 he was appointed Provincial Archivist while Sir George Ross was Prime Minister. He retired from this office in 1923.

SECOND WEEK FOR O'DONNELL TRIAL

Frankish to Give Evidence on Stains Found on Wrench

Toronto, Feb. 10 (CP)—The second week of Harry O'Donnell's trial for the razing killing of 20-year-old Ruth Taylor opened today with the prospect of more scientific testimony for the Crown side of the records.

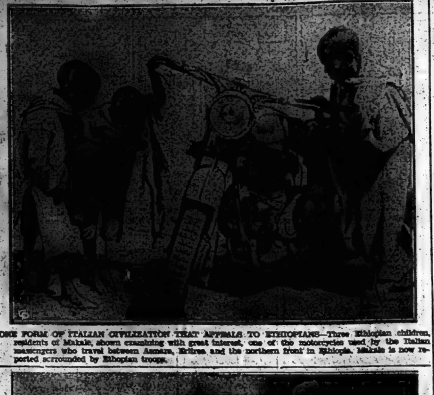
Dr. R. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert, was expected to take the stand during the day to testify regarding a mechanic's wrench bearing brown stains and found near the spot where the girl's mutilated body was discovered last November 8 in an East Toronto gully.

Prosecutor J. C. Mellmar had told the jury he would prove the wrench bore the initials "O'D", though Saturday he questioned none of four police witnesses who told of handling it. Before court rose for the week-end, however, he indicated the crown had found a "connection" between it and the accused filling station attendant.

Saturday also, the crown counsel obtained from Prof. R. H. Thomson, botanical expert, evidence that the leaves found in O'Donnell's home and on his clothes were of types similar to trees growing in the razing. He had added it was possible leaves from these trees had blown up from the sidewalk above the hollow, over which O'Donnell said he walked the murder night.

Four Boys Arrested Stolen Cars Recovered

WINDSOR, Ont., Feb. 10.—(CP)—Four boys were arrested and two motorcars stolen here were recovered, one in Tilbury the other at Chatham, as city and out of town police cooperated swiftly over the week-end.



Arrested at Tilbury by Provincial Constable Frank Kelly were Kenneth Whitesell and Jack Kest, both 17. They were alleged to have stolen a car fro mthe rear of Windsor Motors, Ltd., Chatham City police picked up two boys of fourteen years. It was charged they were driving a car stolen from William Whan, resident here.

Counsel for Condemned Pair Seek Commutation

Fredericton, Ont., Feb. 10.—(CP)—C. A. Mahaffy, of Arnprior and James A. Maloney of Renfrew, counsel for the condemned Allan and Mary Gowan, said they had arranged to interview Minister of Justice Lapointe February 21 and seek commutation of death sentence imposed on their clients.

The young couple, Allan 17 and Mary 16, are under sentence to be hanged February 27 for the rifle murder of Beverly Bell, 21, Mary's husband and Allan's brother. Allan shot Albert through the window of the latter's home near Calabogie.

The Crown alleged he was urged to do so by Mary with whom he had been intimate.

ITALIANS ENTRENCHING FOR MONTH OF ETHIOPIAN RAINS—With the rains starting once again in Ethiopia, Italian troops are entrenching themselves as best possible to await another dry spell, not expected until March. From then until June, they will have to conquer the rest of the country if they wish to finish the job this year. Heavy rains start in June and last until October, making military difficult, and the use of artillery and tanks very limited. Map follows the little bit of territory that has fallen into Italian hands. Light line shows mountainous areas. It is felt that even if Italy should conquer the whole country by the rains, she could not have conquered the country, since the capital city is one of the hardest to capture or destroy. Addis Ababa, they will not have conquered the country, since the capital city is one in name only, and of little strategical or economic importance.

A. H. COLQUHOUN DIES IN TORONTO

Was Deputy Minister of Education For 34 Years

Toronto, Feb. 10.—The death occurred Sunday at his home, 342 Walmer Road, of Dr. A. H. U. Colquhoun, B.A., LL.D., former Deputy Minister of Education for Ontario.

Appointed to the office of Deputy in 1908, Dr. Colquhoun served in that capacity for thirty-eight years, retiring in 1934. He was 76 at the time of his death.

A son of Walter Colquhoun of Dumbartonshire, Scotland, and Jane Clarke of Glasgow, Arthur Hugh Urquhart Colquhoun was born in Montreal. His early education in the public and high schools of the city laid the foundation for the brilliant academic career which preceded his entry into the field of journalism. When he joined the staff of the Montreal Star in 1887 he held a Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of McGill with first-class honors and the Shakespeare Gold Medal. He was next associated with F. D. Ross in control of the Ottawa Journal, later becoming editor of the Toronto Mail, editorial writer on the Mail and Empire and associate editor of the Toronto News. In 1908 he was appointed by Sir James Whitney to the Secretaryship of the Commission Investigating University Affairs. He became Deputy Minister of Education shortly after the conclusion of the Commission where his brilliant work demonstrated his fitness for the position.

In addition to his journalistic work, Mr. Colquhoun established a wide reputation as author and and historian. His "Fathers of Confederation" appeared in 1915 and he was a consistent contributor of magazine and review articles on Canadian history. In 1903 he wrote a prize-winning essay on "Journalism and the Universities."

Trusted confidante of Sir John A. Macdonald, and intimate political adviser of Sir James Whitney, Dr. Colquhoun was know everywhere for his ability to inspire warm friendships and confidences. In tributes to his memory Gordon Waldrun, K.C., who was his friend for forty years, last night declared: "He was singularly tactful, considerate, truthful and able. He never embarassed his Government nor his department he never 'played politics.'He was, by every standard, the ideal Deputy Minister."

One sister, Miss Janet Colquhoun, survives.

The funeral will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock. Interment will be in Mount Pleasant Cemetery.

REJUVENATION FIND!—Dr. Eugen Steinach (above), internationally-famous leader in the quest for perpetual youth, announced in Vienna the discovery of a rejuvenation operation that reverses the processes of growing old in all the body organs, including the brain and the heart. The claims of the famous scientist were made public in a special "Steinach Edition" of the official journal of Viennese medicine, appearing on the occasion of the famous surgeon's seventy-fifth birthday.

HORTICULTURIST DIES

Calgary, Feb. 10 (CP)—Louis Urbain Fortier, 78, veteran horticulturist and "father" of the Calgary Vernon Lois Garden Club, died in hospital here yesterday following a lengthy illness. For 14 years he was secretary-treasurer of the club which made vacant lots into places of beauty and usefulness.

Major D. R. Fowler of Brockville, Ont., and Rev. L. H. Fowler of Renfrew, Ont., are sons.

Hockey Player's Father Dies

Ottawa, Feb. 10—(CP)—Alexandre Ouellette, father of Eddie Ouellette, forward of Chicago Black Hawks in the National Hockey League, died suddenly here last night. He was 68.

In his younger days, Ouellette was an outstanding lacrosse and baseball player.

MOVIE STUDIOS ARE WIPED OUT

2,000 Employees Thrown Out of Work And Loss is $2,250,000

Elstree, Hertfordshire, Feb. 10. (CP) — Two British Motion Picture production companies today considered reconstruction plans in the wake of a disastrous fire, which swept through their plants yesterday.

The fire caused damages estimated at £450,000 ($2,250,000) in the British "Hollywood".

It threw some 2,000 employees temporarily out of work and interrupted plans for the production of at least one picture.

The cause of the blaze was unknown. It almost completely gutted three studios —one of the British and Dominions Film Corporation, Ltd, and two of the British International Picture Company while firemen from nearby towns and villages struggled for three hours to stem the flames.

No casualties were reported. Damage to the British and Dominions concern was estimated at $300,000 and to the British International Company at $150,000. Herbert Wilcox, a director of one of the companies, termed the fire the most disastrous in the history of the British film industry.

Three persons well known to North American film fans were at the studios at the time. Clive Brook, Helen Vinson and Mary Carlisle were working at one of the studios in the picture "Love in Exile". Production will be shifted to an Isleworth Studio, it was announced. All three lost many of their belongings.

Premier and Wife Escape Injuries

St. Thomas, Ont., Feb. 8 (CP)—Premier Hepburn and Mrs. Hepburn had a narrow escape from serious injury when their car skidded from their South Yarmouth home to St. Thomas, where the wedding of Joseph McManus and Miss Susie Pollock took place.

Mr. Hepburn was driving along No. 4 highway, four miles south of the city, when Wm. Berry, a mail carrier, drove across the road to a mail box. Due to the icy condition of the road, a collision was unavoidable. Premier Hepburn's car ran to a stop on the edge of a 16-foot ditch and teetered there for a minute or so while Mr. and Mrs. Hepburn scraped.

The Premier's car was badly damaged. The radiator was torn in a backing-up movement and Mrs. Hepburn's car from the Hepburn home and the Premier and his wife proceeded to the wedding in time for the wedding. Both scratched from shock.

THE WEATHER
Mostly cloudy, windy and cold today and Wednesday; snowflurries in west portion.

SCHOOL TAX DISTRIBUTION CHANGE PROMISED

Reconstruction of Older Highways, No Forced Conversion of Debentures Feature Legislature's Throne Speech

Tribute to Late King And Expression of Loyalty to King Edward

'GAS' TAX AMENDMENT

Provincial Income Tax To Feature New Legislation

HYDRO DEVELOPMENT

Government Policy, Says Throne Speech, Is to Honor all Debentures

Toronto, Feb. 11.—(CP)—Legislation "to provide a more equitable distribution of taxes levied for educational purposes" and to improve the efficiency of the rural schools of the province, to "safeguard the educational interests of municipalities and ratepayers" in the matter of tax and assessing, several additions to the province's "gas" tax and the reconstruction of older highways were promised by Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce at the opening of the Ontario Legislature today.

His speech said the Government had in contemplation "a redistribution of authority, areas and sources of revenue" and that it was proposed that assessment of all property should be placed on both a local and a provincial basis, and insisted "in the strongest terms" that there should be no forced conversion of debentures.

Recalling the cancellation by legislation during the session of power purchase contracts with Quebec companies, the speech said the Government intended to submit certain new proposals to the Legislature.

Tribute to King George

Tribute was paid the late King George and "his unfailing devotion to duty, personal devotion and affection" to King Edward VIII. Sympathy was extended to the Government on the death of his aunt, Princess Victoria, and in the recent illness and bereavement of his brother, the Duke of Gloucester.

While the dark cloud of financial and commercial depression has still been in evidence during the year since last you assembled, there have been signs of improvement and in particular we should refer you to the increase in the purchase of the bountiful harvest with which he blessed us during the year which has closed," the speech declared.

Gasoline Tax Amendment

The legislative program forecast was brief. In addition to the new measures, the speech said amendments would be made to the Gasoline Tax Act, the Game and Fisheries Act, the Minimum Wage Act, the Apprenticeship Act and the Municipal Act. There would be legislation to regulate fumigation "and for various other purposes".

The section referring to the new Provincial Income Tax said:

Provincial Income Tax

"After the close of the last Interprovincial Conference at Ottawa in December, it became evident that additional revenue must be secured by the Province to meet the greatly increased burden of unemployment relief and to balance the budget. To effect this end, it is proposed to place on the Statutes an Act providing for a Provincial Tax on the incomes of individuals, this tax to replace the present municipal tax, penalty and interest, and the measure is necessary for the purpose of placing the Province of Ontario in adjusting their annual budgets".

Efforts to achieve administrative economy was noted. The speech pointed to improvement in the insurance and industry with a consequent gain in revenue and to considerable effect on relief rolls. Recent increase in the Federal Government's grant-in-aid would also lessen the load.

Older Highways

Reviewing the work of the various departments, the speech said the Highways Department curtailed capital expenditure during the year but due to increase traffic and disintegration of the present road system, early reconstruction on a considerable mileage of the older highways was required.

Marketing promotion in Northern Ontario and farmers' aid to producers together to mutual advantage, the speech said, and plans have been completed for establishing large tuberculin-free livestock areas to improve the health of Ontario cattle.

The Health Department was praised for its campaign against tuberculosis. The speech said arrangements made years ago for a referendum from the Congo for treatment of cases of infantile cancer had been cancelled and the supplies were now obtained in Ontario at less cost.

Sydney Development

Construction of 543 miles of primary highways, including the Sydney-Louisburg section of the Trans-Canada Highway, was completed during the year, the speech said.

Mining Industry

Mining industry was stimulated by the increased demand for base metals and the higher prices obtained for gold, the speech said. Production of gold in the province was the largest since 1917.

Agriculture

Agriculture was benefiting by the increased purchasing power of the people, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting the industry by the development of markets.

Unemployment

Unemployment was declining, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in relief expenditures.

Public Health

Public health was being maintained at a high standard, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of hospital facilities.

Education

Education was receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of educational facilities.

Public Welfare

Public welfare was receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of welfare facilities.

Public Works

Public works were being carried out by the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of public works.

Labor

Labor was receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting labor.

Game and Fisheries

Game and fisheries were receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of game and fisheries.

Municipal Affairs

Municipal affairs were receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of municipal affairs.

Mines

Mines were receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of mines.

Forests

Forests were receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of forests.

Fish and Game

Fish and game were receiving the attention of the Government, the speech said, and the Government was continuing its policy of assisting municipalities in the provision of fish and game

FORMER FOXBORO WOMAN SURPRISED

Mrs. Henry Bateman, one of the old residents of Mine Centre, was given a surprise party on Friday evening, January 31st, at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bateman, when a number of friends gathered to do honor to the elderly lady on the occasion of her seventieth birthday anniversary. Mrs. Bateman was very much surprised. She was presented with flowers, books, cards, handkerchiefs, picture and stationery. Mrs. Bateman is a former Foxboro woman and all had a happy time.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT KNIGHTS' MEETING

The regular meeting of Belleville Chapter, Ontario Knights of Columbus was held on Saturday afternoon with the largest attendance of the season. The Grand Knight, Frank Donnelly was in the chair and the speaker of the afternoon was Mr. Rev. J. P. Hinchen, W.O. who paid tribute to Rabbi Monsignor French and gave interesting incidents in the various experiences of the well known Canadian chaplain. Routine business followed.

483 V.O.N. VISITS MADE IN JANUARY

In the report of the Victorian Order nurse, Miss Soutar, to the V.O.N. board last evening, it was shown that 483 visits to patients were added in January than in any other month. The total number of visits for January was 483. The attendance at the Well Baby Clinic was very satisfactory in spite of the unfavorable weather. The clinic has also received a number of donations, which were received with deep appreciation by the Board. The Red Cross Society donated a large number of layettes, the Ladies of the Moose, Chapter 438, gave a year's supply of dressings; Mrs. Ferguson, an old-timer, and the Comrade Club of Albemarle United Church, baskets.

The meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A. last evening with the president, Mrs. T. Holland, in the chair.

TRAVELOGUE LECTURE PROVES INTERESTING

Under the auspices of the Women's Guild of St. Thomas' Church a very interesting travelogue was presented in the Parish House last evening and was well attended. The audience was taken in fancy to Britain as some of the scenes of the beauty spots of the British Isles were shown by motion picture and views.

The film "Summer Days in Britain" was shown by Miller L. Payne and during the evening favorite songs of the old country were sung by the audience with Harold Hudson Key as accompanist. The views included Royal Pageantry, Clydeside resorts, Scotland, England, Wales, Ireland and Norman abbeys and afloat.

The following musical entertainment was arranged through the good offices of Mr. J. W. Davison, C.P.R. ticket agent.

DEPT. WATER WORKS TESTS FIRE HYDRANTS

Routine cold weather has resulted in many violations of the part of citizens and employees of the local waterworks department during the past few days. Although no homeowner will carry out the frightful, has been reported careful testing of approximately fifty hydrants throughout the business section of the city is being carried out daily by employees entrusted with the patrol. The precaution is being taken to insure that any trouble developing in connection with the fire hydrants will be discovered in time.

MUNICIPAL BAND TO HELP CAUSE

Members to Give Services Free For Charity Carnival

Rolling into the civic spirit that surrounds the Community Y.O.W. charity ice carnival, to be presented on the Belleville Arena, both next, the Belleville Municipal Band added to the assured success of the big carnival by donating their services for the night and will supply all music during the evening's big program. Bandmaster Johson attended a meeting of the committee in charge of the carnival last evening and assured the gathering that the band would be only too glad to assist in such a worthy cause.

As is customary during the presentation of such charity functions, a splendid program is being arranged, that will please all whether they be nine months or 90 years of age. Tuesday night the carnival will open the night's programme and is to be presented by the Collegiate Dancing Club. Of course the feature attraction of the night will be the hockey match between the local policemen and amalgamated team from the various clubs in the city throughout the city. It was definitely stated last night that Alderman Ellis, hockey manager and Kiwanian, would come out of seclusion long enough for the service club boys. Watt and—

Clowns, laugh-makers trick skaters and other features of child interest will all precede the dress carnival. The judging of costumes for the dress carnival it was announced by Chairman Chief Judge Hall, that the following Judges would be procured to award the many valuable prizes, Mrs. Ross Gordon. Already well-known citizens from Picton, Trenton, Brighton, Madoc, Stirling and other towns surrounding Belleville, have accepted the invitation to act as Judges in what is the largest civic enterprises ever undertaken by the members of the Y.O.W. charity ice carnival. The proceeds will be turned in by the hands of the local fire department and the Arena employees.

POLICE BLOTTER

"As quiet as a church on Monday" was Chief Kidd's remarks in regards to the week-end activities in police circles today. "Why even the transients are on the decline around here?" added the head of the police department as he revealed that only three persons applied at the station house for a warm night's lodging last night. No warrants were necessary in Belleville during the past 24 hours, while motor accidents were also conspicuous by their absence, traffic officers declared.

Chamber of Commerce Provides Publicity Booklets for Tourists

Plenty of publicity pamphlets describing the attractions of the City of Quinte area as a summer and winter tourist resort are available at the local offices of the Chamber of Commerce, it was pointed out today by Mr. J. Advances in Transportation Shown Rotary Racing autos and racing airplanes reproduced on the screen with all the wild accompaniment of sound and thrills and spills regaled Rotarians at the luncheon meeting in the Hotel Quinte. The pictures were presented by Cal. Wilson, of Toronto, who was introduced by Major Fred Douglas as a distinguished figure in automotive world and former editor of automotive publication. Transportation in its crude original phases of oxen, donkey and man power was followed by pictures of the first "horseless carriages" and the gradual development of the automobile and the influence the racing car had upon the improvement of motor cars. Scenes of thrilling motor car races on specially constructed tracks with the spills and thrills and death at terrific speed up to five miles a minute were shown. Then the history of aviation was told in scenes of planes with the Wright Brothers and the first flight at Kitty Hawk followed by the rapid advance in aviation until the present day with the giant China Clippers turning aviation into hours in the passage of the Pacific between America and China. The last pictures depicted the making of automobile parts in modern factories and the cars taken to make each part as near perfect as human ingenuity could devise.

President Bert Boyce occupied the chair.

Obituary

LATE MRS. LAURA BATEMAN (Contributed)

After a lengthy illness there passed away on February 6th at the family residence corner North Front and Donald Street, Mrs. Laura Bateman, widow of James Bateman; she was the daughter of the late John Spry and Elizabeth Lee of Rawdon. She came to this city at the time of her marriage and shortly after moved to College Hill where she had resided ever since. Left to mourn her loss are one sister, Mrs. Jesse Neal of Bonar Park; two sons and four daughters, Mr. H. M. Bateman, Oshawa; Mr. C. D. Bateman, Florida; Mrs. H. Dafoe (Emily), Brownville, N. EARLY HISTORY OF RUSSIA TOLD

Ken Munning Addresses Y's Men on Great Experiment

An interesting program was presented to the Y's Men's Club at their regular Monday evening meeting, when Mr. Ken Munning spoke on "The Russian Experiment." Mr. Munnings briefly reviewed Russian history from the 9th century, when under the ascendancy of northern tribes, the first attempts at unity occurred. As further factors in this process, the gradual opening out the effects of the Tartar invasions, when a single ruler was set up for the first time, leading to the despotic rule of a series of Tsars, with Ivan in 1480 being the first to control a practically unified nation. Most of the wealth and activity of the people being directed to military expansion and the occupation of the great plain comprising most of Russia, they remained behind other peoples in social progress and did not share in the advance of liberal ideas which were spreading throughout other parts of the world. This condition led to the formation of secret societies and uprisings during the nineteenth century, and to the adoption of a bureaucratic system to suppress them. In 1905 and after the disastrous Japanese War, a great country-wide strike marked the beginning of the decline of the Tsarist system, culminating in the successful revolution of 1917.

Less Freedom

The present Russian experiment was analysed by the speaker, who explained that its basic principle was the repudiation of the principles connected with the capitalistic philosophy, including religion, standards of married life, and private ownership of property. Its principal weakness, in the speaker's opinion, are the loss of personal freedom and liberty, the regimentation of human activities and the cruelty necessary, to enforce the system. Despite every attempt to eliminate all religion and set up Communism in its stead, the other hand tremendous improvements in living conditions and social services have been accomplished, attention to recreative leisure, and state direction of the whole people together with the practical elimination of illiteracy were cited as advantages. In conclusion the speaker stated, that this period in Russian history is one of transition and while the experiment may eventually fail, the world at large cannot but be benefited by the lessons in the application of a socialistic theory. Mr. Munnings illustrated his address with well received vocal numbers and reports of various club committees showed activity in the club's projects. A meeting of the boys' club attended by 60 men was announced for next Friday evening.

LATTA COUPLE WEDDED 25 YEARS

Mr. and Mrs. John Colden Celebrate Silver Wedding Anniversary

On Friday evening, February 7th, friends, neighbors and relatives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Colden to offer congratulations and best wishes on celebrating the 25th anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Colden were married by the late Rev. Mr. Connell at the Methodist Parsonage in Thomasburg, on February 8th, 1911.

At 12 o'clock the gathering was called to order and an address was read by Mrs. John Cross, while Mrs. W. Cross presented Mr. and Mrs. Colden with a purse of silver. They were taken completely by surprise, but both Mr. and Mrs. Colden thanked their friends for their gift and said they hoped that when their golden wedding anniversary rolled around that they would all meet again for another happy evening.

The gathering joined in singing "For they are jolly good fellows," after which a dainty lunch was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in cards and dancing.

Following is the address:

Dear John and Daisy,—

We, your friends and neighbours, have gathered here tonight to extend to you our sincere congratulations and best wishes, this being your 25th Wedding Anniversary.

We hope that you will be privileged to enjoy another twenty-five years of wedded bliss.

We have found you always ready to lend a helping hand in time of sickness and trouble, and to share your company in many happy occasions of social gatherings.

These few words are only slight expressions of our feelings toward you both and we ask you to accept them with our best wishes, also this purse of silver, to which the esteem in which you are held.

Signed on behalf of your friends and neighbours,

Mrs. W. Cross
Mrs. F. Garrison
Mrs. J. Cross.

Motor History Shown From Earliest Days

Cal. Wilson Addresses Kinsmen Club

At a meeting of the Kinsmen Club held last evening at the Quinte Hotel a most interesting and instructive address was given by Cal. Wilson, of Toronto, a prominent figure in the automotive world and former editor of automotive publication, on the motor age from its infancy to its present day development. He dwelt on the screen, including racing autos and racing aeroplanes with thrilling spills and thrills and Major Douglas capably introduced the speaker and Everett Fairman, on behalf of the Club, sincerely thanked Mr. Wilson for his splendid address.

President Carl Sills was in the chair and other members present were the hands of Song Leader Bill Hearst. Bill Rodbourne probably declared the meeting at sergeant-at-arms.

The report of the Kinsmen show, "Oddities of 1936" was given and was found to be a most pleasing one in every respect.

Retire Constable After Years of Service

Simcoe Ont., Feb. 11.—(CP)—Simcoe Town Council last night retired Constable Charles Clay of the town police force, giving him three months' pay and a letter of appreciation in recognition of many years of faithful service. The officer, now 73 years of age, has been off duty for the last fortnight with illness.

A by-law to make compulsory the pasteurization of all milk sold retail in Simcoe and also that it comes from cows health tested and certified free from contagious disease was referred to the department for criticism before being passed upon.

Britain Separate from The Dominions Ruling

Garmisch - Partenkirchen, Germany, Feb. 11 (CP)—Under the new ruling of the International Hockey Federation Great Britain is now designated as a country separated from the Dominions and Britons who migrate to Canada, for instance, must return and hold five-years residence in the motherland to qualify as a representative of Great Britain in the Olympic hockey Series.

The ruling followed the heated exchange between authorities of Canada, Britain, United States and some European countries over the eligibility of Jimmy Foster, goaltender formerly of Winnipeg and Edmonton and Alex Archer, also a former resident of the Manitoba hockey centre.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S LEGION

The regular meeting of the Dalhousie Y. P. Ferguson, then in a small yard, Burns admitted allowing Dalton Ferguson to chase and snapped at by a collie dog and menaced with a whip.

WEDDING GUESTS

Spy Hill, Sask., Feb. 11—(CP)—Bitter cold weather and impassable roads were overcome by guests invited to a local wedding here when three modern snowmobiles were commandeered to convey visitors across snow-blanketed prairies to the bride's home.

The snowmobiles, using an airplane motor and propellor to skim over huge drifts of snow, brought the guests safely into Spy Hill after a thrilling journey, and the ceremony went forward without a hitch.

White Poodle is Becoming Supreme

New York, Feb. 11 (AP)— The aristocracy of dogdom stirred the hearts of the Westminster Club show today to the renewed threat of supremacy of a white poodle, the international champion, Tzu of the Terrace of Blakeen, best dog in the 1935 show. Champ Blakeen, owned by Rev. P. Sparks of Toronto, was the best English bull dog.

Trim furry poodle took the first step toward the coveted goal by winning the best of breed honors. He was handled by his owner, Mrs. Norman B. Hoyt of Katonah, N.Y.

The champion of show champions will be chosen tomorrow night.

FREIGHT TRAIN DERAILED

Cochrane, Feb. 11—(CP)—A car of a T. and N. O. through freight train from Englehart left the rails Saturday night but after travelling a considerable distance got back on. Text of Speech from Throne In Ontario Legislature

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP)—Text of the Speech from the Throne to meet Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce at the opening of the Ontario Legislature today:

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the Legislative Assembly:

It is my privilege today to welcome you to the second session of the 18th legislature of this province.

Sorrow At King's Passing.

As you are aware, my proclamation calling you together on Jan. 21, was revoked, owing to the lamented death the day previously of our gracious and well-beloved Sovereign, King George V. Last May, we celebrated with joy, thanksgiving, and devotion the twenty-fifth anniversary of His Majesty's accession to the throne. Today, we bow our heads in heartfelt sorrow at the passing of one whom the years had taught us to regard more as the kindly father of a large family than as the ruler of a great Empire. No words of mine could fittingly express the grief of this occasion, but during the session you will be given an opportunity more adequately to pay tribute to the Royal Family our province owes to their bereavement and in the son we have all sustained.

Loyalty to King Edward VIII.

To His Gracious Majesty, King Edward XVIII, we tender our loyal devotion and affection, confident that under his reign we shall continue to enjoy the peace and beneficent leadership that characterized his illustrious father.

We desire also to express to our gracious Sovereign our sympathy in the death of his aunt, the Princess Victoria, and to convey to him our felicitations on the marriage of his brother, the Duke of Gloucester.

While the dark clouds of financial and commercial depression have still been in evidence during the year now about last assembled there have been signs of improvement and in particular we gratefully offer our thanks to Almighty God for the bountiful harvest with which He blessed us during the year which has just closed. Our province can rejoice with the balance of our country and with the mother country in the fact that we are showing such increasing confidence from a dark period in the world's history which has endeavoured to face with fortitude.

State Beneficiaries.

During the interval since the last session, two important functions have taken place in this chamber. In September you gathered to say farewell to His Excellency the Earl of Bessborough, on completion of his term of office as Governor-General and to welcome his gracious Countess, whose residence with us has resulted in very pleasant and affectionate memories. In November the Province had the privilege of an enthusiastic welcome to Lord and Lady Tweedsmuir on their arrival in Canada to assume the vice-regal duties. The impression made on the citizens of Ontario on that happy occasion by our Governor-General augurs well for his success in the high office to which he has been called.

After the close of the Inter-Provincial Conference at Ottawa in December last it became evident that additional revenues must be secured by the province to meet increasingly insistent demands of unemployment relief and to balance the budget. To effect this, it was decided to place on the statutes an act providing for a provincial tax on the income of individuals, this tax to replace the present municipal tax, and early passage of this measure is necessary for the purpose of facilitating the municipalities in adjusting their annual budgets.

Financial Improvement Seen.

My ministers have been heading every effort towards a reduction in the cost of government and administration wherever such reduction can be effected without injury to the efficiency of the service. We are happy to note, however, a definite improvement in commerce and industry with a consequent gain in employment, which already has had a considerable effect on the relief rolls. In addition, a substantial increase in the Dominion Government's grant-in-aid will also lessen the load.

No Forced Conversion.

There is no intention of embarking upon any scheme of forced conversion of the bonded indebtedness issued in the name of the Province of Ontario. A rearrangement of the public debt can only be made successfully by one procedure, and that is by voluntary action. Holders of securities will have to be part of a national refunding scheme.

Mr. Rhodes Credit.

My government is determined to carry forward all outstanding debentures, both as to principal and interest, in the good terms of the contract. It will spare no pains to maintain its credit which is of a very high order, as is evidenced by the ability to borrow money at the lowest rates of interest in the history of the province, and further by the fact that the Province of Ontario purchasable except at a handsome premium.

The Department of Agriculture, the Milk Control Board have been instrumental in bringing about an arrangement between producers and consumers together to their mutual advantage, while the re-opened demonstration farm at New Liskeard promises valuable live-stock development in that section of the province. Plans have been completed for establishing large tuberculin test livestock areas to improve the herds of Ontario cattle.

Public Health.

The Provincial Department of Health has been maintained on a high plane and is doing excellent educational work in the campaign against disease. Some time ago arrangements were made for relief from the Congo for the treatment of cases of internal trouble.

These arrangements have been cancelled and supplies are now obtained from within our own province at much less cost.

Last session, the Legislature voted $15,000 to the King George V. Jubilee Cancer Fund for Research. It is a matter of pride for us to note that the people of Ontario contributed upwards of $100,000 additional to this most worthy fund, and hope for continued relief in the cause of cancer and hasten the day when this dread scourge may be overcome.

Highway Reconstruction

The Department of Highways curtailed capital expenditure during the year. Increased traffic and consequent damage to the highway surface, however, will entail the early reconstruction of a considerable mileage of our older highways in the more densely populated sections of the province.

It will be remembered that legislation was enacted last year for the purpose of terminating certain contracts between the Hydro Electric Power Commission of Ontario and certain power companies in the Province of Quebec. This was also brought into force by proclamation of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Sixty Proposals.

Following prorogation of the legislature, several conferences were held by my colleagues, the Hydro Electric Commissioners, with representatives of municipalities directly affected in the hope of arriving at a reasonable basis of agreement which, if it was impossible, however, to reach a settlement satisfactory to both parties and this was formally proclaimed, thus terminating a controversy which had been carried on for almost three years. Sixty proposals in all were submitted to this legislature for your consideration.

Further lines have been or are now constructed, or under construction, during the year by the Hydro Commission lines in the rural power districts of Ontario. This construction programme has carried on over-all times that undertaken in the previous year, practical service was given on to 3,962 additional consumers.

By the late Albert Nelson Reid was born in the Tweed district his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Robert Reid. He was also born a sister of the late Rt. Hon. Sir Mackenzie Bowell, and his father was appointed Assistant Assistant Postmaster-General, under Postmaster J. H. Meacham. He was appointed to the position in 1882 and died on April 9th, 1897.

Surviving him are his widow; two sons, Mr. George Reid and Mr. Albert Reid of the late Albert Reid; a daughter, Miss Maud Reid of Raleigh, North Carolina, and one grandson, Albert Charles E. Reid of Belleville.

Interment will be made in Belleville cemetery on Wednesday announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

LATE MRS. RUTH HOARD

The funeral of Mrs. Ruth Hoard, who died Saturday last at the age of 74 years, took place from the Tickell and Brown Funeral Home, Church Street, to Belleville cemetery.

Interment was made in Riselene cemetery, after a short service conducted at the graveside being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Foley of Sprigg Street Church.

The bearers were Messrs. Wm. J. Morden, Morley Hoard, Arthur Lloyd Mitts, Glen Mills and George Barr.

TAX COLLECTOR CHOSEN

Peterborough, Ont., Feb. 11 (CP) The City Council has chosen tax collector for the city of Peterborough from amongst eight applicants two of which were from women. The salary was set at $2,000 a year.

RECONSTRUCTION OF OLDER ROADS

ary Hydro transmission lines in the rural power districts during the fiscal year was reported along with the announcement arrangement had been completed for the construction of 700 miles during the coming year.

Touching on mining, the speech said: "The Government would not handle any plan similar to Mine's Profit Tax or any other form of mining taxation."

5 MEN GUARDED HEPBURN FARM

The Premier declared at various meetings Walker would sit in the front row "and lear at me in a threatening way."

"I'll sit there and stare-ard," said Mr. Hepburn.

"Cannot Remember"

Mr. Bell taking up cross examination, asked Mr. Hepburn if he had any previous dealings with Walker.

"Not to my knowledge."

"Did you ever buy a dairy?"

"No, I had a cheese factory on one of my farms."

Asked if Walker was a patron at that factory Mr. Hepburn said it was 12 years and the factory was run by other men.

"Was Walker a patron?

"That was 13 years ago Mr. Bell. I can't remember all the patrons."

Mr. Bell demanded a yes or no answer. Mr. Hepburn said he did not remember. Walker might have been.

Prior to questioning by Mr. Bell the Premier said Walker had drawn his attention to a highway department matter, Dominion Day, 1934, in connection with "padded payrolls."

"Walker represented himself to you as a Liberal worker?"

"He said he was a Conservative," said Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Bell spoke of hearing Walker's charges and of his subsequent action to investigate. He and Mr. Walker had discussed the matter.

"Walker told us his story and we did not think he had enough evidence to go on with," said Mr. Hepburn.

"Did you let the matter drop?"

"No, I instructed Walker to write a letter.

"You thought it your duty to bring out any irregularities in connection with the payroll?"

"Yes."

Denies Implication

Mr. Bell suggested to Premier Hepburn told Walker to go ahead and get it if such evidence existed. This the Premier denied. He said he turned the matter over to Mr. Mitchell.

"What did Mr. Mitson do?"

"He said he would report it as a man of Walker's calibre and appearance," said the Premier.

"Was Mr. Mitchell's report as sat as God made us," commented Mr. Bell.

"Oh, unfortunately," agreed Mr. Hepburn.

Mr. Hepburn could not recall Walker came to him and told him that he was a Liberal worker.

"Do you recall saying that Foley will always be a Liberal? He is the best lawyer in Western Ontario?" asked Mr. Bell.

"You had known Foley a long time before this?"

"Yes, I should say only."

Mr. Hepburn admitted Foley had been a Liberal worker, "probably the Liberal party."

Mr. Bell referred to "the difficulties you have taken him for a time out of active life." (Mr. Foley is ill).

Not Aware of Reputation

"Did you know that Foley had an unsavory reputation at that time?" asked Mr. Bell.

"I did not."

Mr. Hepburn said he knew nothing of Foley's reputation as a man named Erskine, who used the mails for fraudulent purposes.

Mr. Bell then asked if Mr. Hepburn knew Eight Liberals were going to Ottawa to attend a defence of the Gunning libel suit.

"I understood a collection was—" the Premier began when the Judge ruled out this line of questioning.

Mr. Bell asked that the jury be sent out while he argued admissibility of the evidence.

In his argument defence counsel revealed Walker would defend himself on the grounds the money he had received was personally earned and due to him and he did not transgress the law in seeking to collect.

"The integral part of the defence is to show Walker had a property of value and was trying to collect for others," he declared.

Ruled Fee Defence.

His Lordship ruled the questions "were admissible within reasonable grounds".

The Premier said he did not remember saying to Walker, "Texas Guinane charged $1,000."

"I don't like the wording. I don't think I said it," said witness.

His Lordship denied he had hired Foley as Walker's lawyer.

Mr. Bell was concentrate at all."

Mr. Hepburn said when asked if he had discussed Walker anything.

Mr. Bell turned to the turning down of an investigation by the committee after having disappeared.

His Lordship interrupted Mr. Bell's questionings and Mr. Bell explained he was trying to find out if Walker's evidence was true. Walker ceased when it was found his evidence was needed for the inquiry.

Threatens with Revolver, Claimed

Witness told of Walker visiting him and telling of threating R. H. Livermore, now Elgin county magistrate, with a revolver.

Mr. Livermore was told to call off a meeting or "neither of us will leave this room alive." Walker illustrated his account; to Mr. McCrimmon by displaying a revolver.

Mr. McCrimmon admitted he had done nothing about Walker's carrying a revolver."

"Did you know Walker was up against it financially?"

"Yes, I believe I did."

Witness knew he was being helped with fuel and food but he didn't know Walker was in danger of being dispossessed.

"He was desperate all right."

"If a man had nothing to eat and no place to live I suppose he would be desperate," Mr. McCrimmon commented.

McCrimmon said the payments were made "to keep him quiet, to keep him from doing something desperate."

Witness admitted he did not think there was anything improper about the payments if Mr. Hepburn really owed Walker money.

There's more Vitality in TEA

"At various times."

"What part was injured?"

"I've been injuries on the front and back."

Nothing Broken

Hillman said he had not actually seen O'Donnell being injured on the ramps. He could not say, when he last seen an injury on O'Donnell's hand.

"He told me—" began Hillman, and was again stopped.

Asked about a vacant lot adjoining the gas station, where O'Donnell claimed Clubbe picked up burns the night of the killing, Hillman said three sides of the lot bordered busy plants.

Asked if he had seen any ripe burns, Hillman answered, "No particularly, 'No.' He had seen "many" burns on the ramps though he was not sure of their ripeness.

Mr. Saunders held up O'Donnell's right hand for the jury exhibited.

It was possible, said Hillman, that on the occasion in serving cars or repairing tubs. Mud on the hands could have been removed from repairing an automobile tire but not from pulling gasoline in the Hillman testified.

Chess Crown Case Today

Crown evidence against Harry O'Donnell in his trial for the murder of Ruth Taylor will be concluded today, J. C. McKeown, K.C., crown counsel, declared this morning court opened for the eighth day of the trial.

Mr. McKeown's long schedule against the 25 year old filling station attendant will launch about three days of defence testimony in which the star evidence is expected to be O'Donnell's account of his movements the November night the 20-year old tryist was retaked and killed in an East Toronto ravine.

Frank Regan, K.C., defence counsel, has indicated he plans calling O'Donnell to the witness stand and it is expected also he will present testimony in an effort to offset scientific evidence which the crown produced yesterday and last week from several witnesses.

O'Donnell appeared entirely in brown, was as unperturbed as ever in court.

Prof. Rogers Recalled

First on today's witnesses against him was Prof. Joslyn Rogers, Ontario provincial analyst, who told Mr. Harris: found on O'Donnell's clothes after the murder could not be distinguished from those in the slain' girl's sweater.

The analyst was recalled briefly when a mechanic's wrench found in the ravine two days after the killing by Mrs. Ethel Lee, was identified as the instrument with the initials "OD". He described the initials, and said they were the same as had seen them on the wrench Jan. 10, the day police first noticed them.

At that time, the professor said in cross-examination by Mr. Regan, he observed a certain stain on the tool, which he thought had been added subsequent to the murder. He had been asked to test these "reddish" marks. He found they were rust.

"Was the main purpose in calling the wrench to compare the stains on the wrench and initials?" Mr. Regan asked.

"I think so."

"Why? Were they afraid these initials, cut into the steel, would disappear?"

"I don't know."

"Did you also observe the letter 'O' and the letter 'D' on the other side of the wrench?"

The witness said he had. Then he added that in fact, the police building though not at the time of the trial, had been used.

Visit to Smiley.

The prosecution next called Detective Sergeant Alex Alexander, who told of visiting the blacksmith shop owned by Frank Smiley on the day of the son's arrest. Now, S. Alexander, he told Mr. Harris, was about a conversation with the elder O'Donnell. Regan rose to object on the first objection of the trial. He protested against the phrasing of the question.

Posed in another way, the question was: Did you have a conversation he had not told the father the purpose of his visit.

Mr. Harris' visit to the blacksmith shop, Sergeant Alexander said, he told the father he wished to see if he was letter "JOD" and another "i" belonging to him. They were exhibited in court.

"I don't think," Mr. Regan said as they rose to cross-examine, "that any of these is the same size as the mark on the wrench."

Cross-examined, Alexander said he had been in the blacksmith's shop in such a way as to reach them at the same time as another group of police officers had visited Mr. O'Donnell's home.

"You intended to wait," he said "Isn't this something you learned recently?" Regan asked.

"Are you suggesting," Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey interrupted, "that the witness was not telling the truth?"

"Oh, no, Your Lordship," the defence counsel replied.

Regan Again Halted

A little later Mr. Alexander was halled again when he told the witness another detective had not mentioned the conversation between the police at the two places. Regan objected that he was attempting to create an impression the officers were not telling the truth. He said the elder detective had not been asked about it.

Mr. Justice Nicol Jeffrey said he was sworn next to give evidence of a certain conversation in the case of murder. A crown witness, he had been recalled at the defence's request.

To Mr. Regan, the inspector of the blacksmith shop said that the wire about the time Ruth is believed to have been murdered, midnight. He was questioned minutely on the schedule times.

Time of Schedule

He showed four cars were absent from the garage at the time between 12:00 and 12:05 o'Clock.

Evans testified also that he got off a car near the ravine at 11:27 p.m. to wait for another car. He was accompanied from work, cou have boarded the car without delay. It was at one time, he said, at 11:27. But he said all cars were late that night because of a big fire.

ELECTRIC NEEDLE STARTS HEARTS

a few minutes after official "death". In medical literature there are one or two reports of hearts restarted after as much as four minutes after "death". But under five minutes is rare, for after that length of time, irreparable deterioration in brain or nerves is likely to occur.

The needle is thrust into the right auricle of the heart. There it delivers a peculiar kind of current, which has been designed to stimulate the organ's natural physio-electrical impulses to beat. The current is not the same as that used in the positive flow interrupted once every second, but a more rotating constant. Dr. Hyman said.

He explained that a positive electricity alone is used to induce beating because it has been found that the negative electricity causes more power of stimulation over the heart. The needle is fixed in the end of the "heart flashlight".

The heart is 12 inches long and about 1 2-3 inches in diameter. It operates on a 1-2-1 volt dry cell. The electric current passes through a little induction coil actuated by the vibrating needle, the beating is produced by aid of a 60- cycle motor like those used in electric clocks.

The beat from this 60-cycle time is reduced by gears to one a second, corresponding to the natural rate of the human heart.

The old "pacemaker" needle attached to the outside of the patient's chest, according to Dr. Hyman, failed to penetrate the heart muscle.

Hairdressers, Barbers Figure in New Bills

Toronto Feb. 11 (CP)—Providing for compulsory registration of barbers and hairdressers in the Province and establishment of a board of examiners to deal with the qualifications of new members, two bills which will shortly be introduced into the Ontario Legislature were given publicity today.

The bill comes from the Association of Registered Hairdressers of Ontario, known as the Ontario Hairdressers' and Barbers' Association and a third from the National Hairdressers' Federation.

Bills seeking the aims of these bodies were put before the Private Bills Committee last session. Another bill asked for exemption of the Canadian Legion Educational Service from all taxation including school taxes for a period of 10 years.

JUDGE DENIES SECOND MOTION

"When?"

Hillman pointed to his knuckles. "Has the accused ever hurt his hand?"

PARENTS SHOULD CO-OPERATE

Parents and guardians of scholars attending the Belleville Collegiate and Vocational High School have right now an opportunity to co-operate in a forward health movement which ought not to be neglected. It is the "TB" survey which is to be held in the case of all students whose parents or guardians consent in writing to the students undergoing the test.

Belleville Board of Education and the Provincial Department of Health are co-operating in this program. There is no expense to those who take advantage of this clinic, while on the other hand there is the assurance that the survey will show in the students either that they have not come in contact with tubercle germs or have come in contact with them. Knowledge that a scholar shows no reaction indicating contact with these germs will be ground for a great deal of satisfaction. Knowledge that one has come in contact with tubercle germs is very important because it at once provides the means of offsetting any tendency to the disease. Positive reaction to the test means only that the individual has been brought into the body, not that the individual has ever had or ever will have tuberculous disease. So an X-ray film is taken of the lungs of those who reach positive to the tuberculin test. In the event of certain conditions the early diagnosis is what counts and is the guarantee of cure. Without such a thorough test as is being taken the tuberculous may have months and possibly years to develop, by which time serious harm may have been done, but with such diagnosis prevention of such contact at once, the disease does not get a foothold.

Success requires co-operation on the part of parents or guardians. There are many cases in the students in the B.C.I.V.S. and if even twenty-five do not agree to submit to the survey, the work will be ineffective to that extent.

This is the first general working of this kind has been undertaken in connection with a secondary school in Ontario and the Department of Health and the Belleville Board of Education are naturally anxious that it prove a success.

This survey will make history not only for this province but for the Board of Education and the Belleville Collegiate but also in the lives of some of the students, there is little doubt. Wholehearted response to date is encouraging.

Consent forms have been in the hands of the guardians and parents of the students of the school since last Friday. Sixteen of the twenty-five operators with a health movement of great importance. One can appreciate how it will have untold results to some scholars in assurance of health.

There are a few facts which cannot be overlooked. While the incidence of tuberculosis has declined in Ontario to one half what it was 25 years ago, it is remarkable that no appreciable decline has been noted for the group from 15 to 25 years of age, and especially in the case of girls and young women. The vast majority of the scholars of the collegiate fall between the ages of thirteen to eighteen years so that this age group falls largely within the age group of 15 to 25 which has shown no drop in the "T.B." incidence. This is the period of development and the coming into the full responsibilities of life.

No one should neglect this opportunity as it is an obligation to see that every child is guarded in his or her health.

The Board of Education and the Provincial Department must be congratulated on their step, one of the most important ever taken here. Those members of the Board who have worked for this deserve special praise for their tireless efforts in this direction.

VERSE LENDS A HAND

It seems that verse registers an appeal much more quickly than prose. Here is how August Heckscher of New York, chairman of the trustees of Heckscher Foundation for Children expresses himself in an appeal for cast-off clothing:

Cast-Off Clothing

Their clothing rent and shabby
Shows wholesome hard and worn,
Would never do for tabby,
She to the fur coat born.

Your closets overhauling
You'll find full many a dress
No longer fit for calling
And that you value less—

Less than impulses warning
The cockles of your heart—
Less than to greet Prince Charming
With stratagem and art,

He, whom the starlight's greeting
Found in a manger-lay,
No regal vestment seeking
But taught to give—and pray.

Live this day as if it were the last.—Bishop Kerr.

PRECEDENT WILL BE SHATTERED

Legislators to Swing Into Business Routine at Once

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP)—Ontario legislators swing into business routine with immediate attack on the controversies opening a session shadowed by the death of King George.

Instead of the traditional Oaths of Office followed by Throne Speech read by Lieutenant-Governor Herbert A. Bruce, there will be a resolution of condolence to King Edward VIII on the death of his father. This will be followed by introduction of the Provincial Income Tax Bill.

The formal opening was cancelled when the session, called for Jan. 21, was postponed until Feb. 11 by King's death. Instead of women occupying the members' desks, customary procedure in other years, the members will occupy themselves.

Only one woman, Mrs. Bruce, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, will be present when the Throne Speech is read. She will sit near the speaker's chair beneath the purple-and-black-draped throne.

Shatter Precedent

Precedent of several years standing will be shattered at the opening of this session, second of the 1919 legislature. Not since 1910 has a government measure been introduced opening day.

Hon. Phil Lodge, Minister of Mines, will introduce the Provincial Tax Bill which gives the Province the right, formerly used by the municipalities, of levying an impost on incomes. The measure will come up for second reading—and debate—tomorrow.

Premier Hepburn is absent in London at the extention trial of Harry Walker, Provincial Secretary. Harry Nixon in his capacity as Acting Premier will move the condolence resolution which expresses Ontario's deep sympathy in the bereavement of King George V.

Debate on the Throne Speech starts Thursday with A. St. Clair Gordon (Lib., Kent West) moving the address in reply and Harry Mavrens (Lib., Nipissing) seconding it.

The Lieutenant-Governor will be accompanied by a travelling escort from the Royal Canadian Regiment to Queen's Park shortly before three o'clock. He will be greeted by a gun salute and a guard of honor drawn up in front of the Province's old sandstone legislative buildings.

Carlisle Resident Presidency

Toronto, Feb. 11—(CP)—A. G. Partridge of Toronto today was elected President of the Ontario Tire Company of Canada at the annual meeting, succeeding F. B. Carlisle whose resignation was accepted by the Board of Directors. Mr. Carlisle, also of Toronto, will remain on the Board.

Trumpeter at Proclamation

Calgary, Feb. 11— (CP)—On a May morning 26 years ago Edward Salmon of Calgary was one of four trumpeters who sounded the proclamation of King George V from the steps of the Royal Exchange, London. At that time he was trumpet-major in the 1st Life Guards. He heard the proclamation of Edward VIII sitting at home via radio.

COUNCILLORS TAKE SHORT FORM OATH

Refused Some Time Ago to Subscribe to Long Form

Windsor, Ont., Feb. 11 (CP)—The reaction of Queen's Park was typified by Hall Council when it moved to Church and Stafford's that Township Council in swearing the so-called short oath of allegiance to King Edward VIII after having refused a year ago to sign the longer form prescribed by the Ontario Department of Municipal Affairs.

As a prelude to signing of the short oath, Reeve Leverett, chairman of Council, Reeve Leverett, an avowed Socialist, moved a motion explaining his position. He said he could see no reason why Crown Prince Paul should be made a member of the House of Commons should sign the oath of allegiance, while the municipal Council the long one. He called attention to the circumstance that Council is the longer form used, while throughout the rest of the province that which is seven to six.

He said he felt "the military oath as submitted to him is in itself a form of allegiance to the British Empire which is seven to six."

He "begged" to be allowed to "swear only to the oath generally required of municipal officials" which any Socialist can subscribe to and truly respect.

DIONNE QUINTS LOSE WEIGHT

Light Attack of Colds Affect Babies' Weight

Callander, Ont. Feb. 11.—(CP)—The five Dionne babies have all slight colds, none of them was of the severe type, Dr. Allan Roy Dafoe, physician in attendance, announced today. In addition to the colds, the quintuplets are suffering from loss of weight.

Because of the colds, they have all been confined to the house this week.

Weights today with charges from Feb. 3:

	lbs.	Ozs.	Ch'gs in Ozs.
Marie	19	13½	½ loss
Emilie	21	14½	½ loss
Cecile	22	2½	5½ loss
Annette	22	2½	5½ loss
Yvonne	21	8½	5½ loss

Rheims Dates Outstanding

Rheims is that city of France famous for its gothic cathedral, the royal Church of France for coronations since Christmas Day, 496, in it Joan of Arc crowned Charles VII in 1429. The present cathedral dates from 1210. In Rheims, France's first newspaper was printed in 1734. Seventeen miles of wine cellars are said to be in the city.

CHIEF TELLS OF ALLEGED THREAT MADE BY WALKER

Premier Hepburn Also Gives Evidence of Deals With Walker

NEVER GAVE MONEY

Accused Pleads "Not Guilty" To Charges Read

London, Ont., Feb. 11 (CP)—Crown counsel Norman F. Newton planned to call Premier Hepburn to the witness stand again today to give further evidence at the Sessions Court trial of Henry M. Walker on three charges of attempted extortion from the Premier and other persons.

Mr. Newton, crown prosecutor for Middlesex County, told Che jury and his Honor Judge Charles McTague yesterday he would also call Hon. Geo. S. Henry, former Premier, to identify a letter written by the late Mr. Walker.

First witness at the opening of the trial yesterday was Herbert L. Johnson, former St. Thomas police chief, who related Walker once told him Premier Hepburn had threatened arrest unless he got out of town "won't have a home to go to."

Walker pleaded not guilty to the three charges involving the premier, Donald McCrimmon, K.C., Toronto lawyer, and Angus McLay of Sheddon, Ont. Two other charges, involving Norman Hepburn, brother of the premier, and Mrs. G. E. Purvis of Malahide township, will be tried separately, the court ruled.

A point to be decided overnight by Mr. Justice McTague was the admissibility of Mr. Newton's question as to whether Premier Hepburn had offered threatening notes. C. W. Bell of Hamilton, defence counsel, protested the questions at yesterday's session.

Premier Hepburn testified accused wrote him in 1933 regarding alleged irregularities in the administration of the Provincial highways department.

He told me he had been a Conservative but he was horrified at practices of graft in the department," the Premier said.

Not Strong Enough

He met Walker in Toronto in the presence of Hon. Harry Nixon and the late Paul Mouno but it was decided Walker's evidence was not strong enough to ask for an investigation.

Mr. Hepburn declared he did not know at the time of an action brought by Walker for a half interest in a commercial named Gunning. Earlier Mr. Newton had told the jury Walker would be asked to identify was from Walker, seeking a half interest in government investigation into his payroll padding activities against Walker.

Premier Hepburn said he gave Walker $1,000 for expenses in laying charges in St. Thomas newspaper advertisement which was refused publication at the last minute.

All a second interview in Toronto, the Premier said, Vincent T. Foley, a lawyer, said Foley got a telephone call from Gunning and he stated his reputation as a lawyer he could influence enough to drop the charges. Mr. Munro was to make the charges "on the floor of the House and stake his seat on the result."

Walker demanded $1,000 the next time he met him, Mr. Hepburn said. He was "unlikely" he would get more from Gunning and now you're going to pay it? "I've explained that," he told him you're not dealing with

Mr. David Croxshaw, Chief of Transportation for the Canadian National Railways and one of the best-known railway officers in transportation circles, who has retired on pension after a long and faithful service. Mr. Croxshaw was widely known throughout Ontario.

Gunning now. You'll never get a thousand out of me."

"The only money he gave Walker, said the Premier, was $25 legitimately and was paid through a Liberal worker.

Continuing his case, Mr. Newton said Walker approached McCrimmon and McLay after June 13, 1934, and obtained $75 from them three threats against Mr. Hepburn.

GRASSHOPPER THREAT FEARED IN THE WEST

Regina, Feb. 11.—(CP)—The dreaded grasshopper may threaten in greater numbers in some areas of Saskatchewan, particularly those bordering Regina, it is feared by Dr. Vigor, field crops commissioner, said here. One area threatened covers a belt about 20 to eight miles wide, running north and south of the city, and including the Lajeunesse Valley.

The greatest danger area, said Dr. Vigor, is in the Macklin-Wilkie district of central Saskatchewan. Eight municipalities west of the line between Regina and Saskatoon are believed to be "seriously infected."

Large supplies of poison bait have been made available, and a vigorous campaign will be waged against the pests.

MANITOBA CLAIMS FLYING TRAPPER

Berens River, Man., Feb. 11— (CP)—Fur traders and fishermen here claim that F. Schreuter, Berens River, was the first pilot-trapper in Canada.

Schreuter obtained a pilot's license in Winnipeg in 1934, bought a moth plane, and flew his family more than 100 miles from Barrell River to his trap-line northeast of the settlement.

Schreuter's 45-minute flying time was a far cry from the former three day trip, made by canoe to his Whiskey-Jack River home. His machine was equipped with pontoons and pair by a gale last summer.

The pilot-trapper was born in Brazil and came to Canada with a brother in his early youth.

Charge $2,500 Spent in Camp Beer Canteen

Montreal, Feb. 11.—(CP)—The charge $2,500 was spent in one week recently in the beer canteen at Camp Borden, Ont., Camp at Valcartier, Que., was made today by Rev. John Coburn of Toronto at a meeting of Montreal Protestant Ministerial Association.

Total allowances to men and officers for the week was $5,500 and he was "unlikely" he would be different any other week," said Dr. Coburn. Field Secretary of the United Church Board of Evangelism.

25 RELIEF MEN REPORT TO WORK

Small Number in Protest Against Voucher Deductions

Sudbury, Ont., Feb. 10 (CP)—Only 25 of 128 relief recipients employed on municipal public works, put in an appearance for work today although work was available for 75 men.

The men are said to be absenting themselves in protest against the voucher deductions made against their pay-cheques received Friday.

Meanwhile, Mayor Frood announced the city relief offices seeking vouchers. Many of them, as a result of deductions from their relief cheques, received less than $1.00 on their Friday cheques.

As a result of a ruling by F. S. James, city auditor, all vouchers received by relief recipients during January were deducted from the pay cheques distributed Friday afternoon.

It is stated the city relief department has been obliged to distribute vouchers for many recipients to enable them to their next pay cheque.

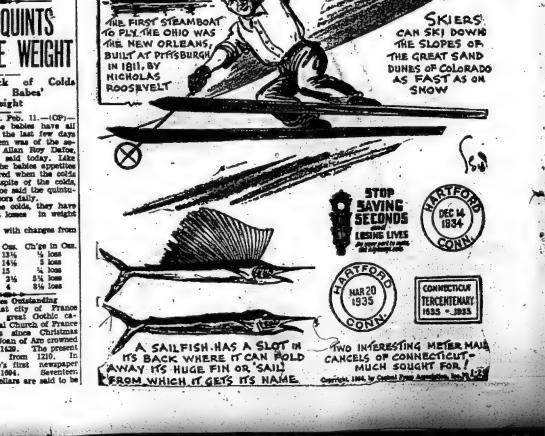
360 TOWELS LOST YEARLY AVERAGE

Victoria, B. C. Hotelmen Say Dishonesty is Not Cause

Victoria, B. C., Feb. 11.—(CP)—Souvenir hunting, and not a desire to steal, is accountable for most of the old thefts by hotel guests, Victoria hotelmen claim.

Many and varied are the things which disappear from hotel rooms. Towels head the list in missing articles. One hotel estimates out of doors. Every summer, like the swallow, five dozen towels are lost in the average annual loss for a hotel. Silverware and teaspoons come in close second. Salt shakers and sugar bowls are also popular collectors' items. Razor receptacles, bar lights, bulbs, telephone books, numbers, and dining room chairs.

Some hotels reported losses of sheets and blankets. One waterfront guest carried away the glass headed screws which held the mirror in his bath.



Finding soap in the bathroom after a night has left a pleasant surprise to most hotelmen. Collectors with a penchant for room keys are numerous. Some guests have been known proudly to display their collection of souvenir keys picked up at hotels.

Women guests, state hotel operators, are more worry than men; Their make-up causes losses which run into high figures. Numerous are some brands of lipstick cannot be removed from towels without rotting the material. Sheets and pillow-cases suffer similarly from powder, rouge and lipstick.

Repentant guests often mail back souvenirs after they have returned rooms. Sometimes the thefts were committed years ago.

London Youth Guilty Of Criminal Negligence

London, Ont., Feb. 11.—(CP)—A Middlesex Assize Jury considering the case of Wilfrid Cloutier, 19-year-old London youth, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of a London boy, reduced the charge today to criminal negligence and found him guilty. He was remanded until the end of the week for sentence. Parr was killed in an auto accident.

Advice to the Lovelorn

Girl Wants Two Men Three Pages For Glamour—Loves Most Her Boy Friend

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

I wonder how many women are breaking their hearts over the life of John Gilbert. Two of them have written to me. One is 35 years old and the other 19.

Neither one ever saw the great screen lover in the flesh, and naturally never spoke to him. Each had his picture and bought and read the scandal—not even signed. And on these chilly properties built an enormous love.

The 37-year-old girl has enjoyed this little romance for more than four years. She tells me that she got a greater thrill in seeing John Gilbert on the screen than in going to dinner with any of the dozen men to whom she is introduced.

The second vice president, who takes her to dinner occasionally, a widower, has tabulated her charms, his intentions are serious. But she keeps the lining of his neck; loves her his collar and he likes it mad-dening habit of clearing his throat. Besides, he is not in the least different from the Divine John!

The 19-year-old girl, too, has managed to make out a somewhat desirable love by gazing at the screen picture in which Gilbert appeared. She suffered from down-right jealousy when she found I had seen him making screen love to Greta Garbo—but she saw the picture eight times.

Blasphemous as these ghostly love affairs appear to be, they may have their uses in the scheme of things. They may help a girl to avoid making an absolutely foolish marriage because no human is so lonely, or is the type who is willing to try anything once, or who insists on a date.

But while the letter is good, I would advise this 37-year-old correspondent not to dilly-dally too long over the second vice president, or perhaps someone has middle age like is as much room for him as John Gilbert as the pole.

I think what Mr. Bernard Shaw calls "The Life Force" will sweep up the girl of 32 and make her forget the glamorous Gilbert when an attractive young girl comes along that is all. If a girl becomes inter-ested in a ghostly love life, the pro-babilities are she may keep on with it.

Men are not taking much more notice in the supernatural than their fathers and grandfathers did. Other shore have become mascu-line beauty parlors, where steaming and creaming, curling, plucking and manicuring are pursued ardently. Perhaps they're not regarded as high as in those humbug "hoppers," where the real material is bought on end and the perfect product comes out the other. But they're doing their best. And who knows but what Nature will begin to create them according to beauty specifications.

Recall the legend of the ancient Greeks, how they appreciated manly-gazed, dreamed and brooded over statues wrought by Praxiteles and his school till their sons and daughters in time became the most beautiful example of the human race.

Real life may not yet have quite caught up with the screen in the matter of manly beauty, perfection. But, as Whistler once said, man has only it create something, and presently Nature will imitate it to perfection.

Here's hoping for an increase of Apollos in the next generation, but in the same time let me entreat my correspondents not to waste too much precious youth dreaming over fallen gloods.

Danger In Too Much Power
By LISA GRENELLE

They are running a safety campaign now, as everyone knows. Every night, for instance, on the radio, or at least on nights a week, some automobile accident is dram-atized.

It is very well done, very realistic background, the work-up, characters, and sudden death, with no horror or detail left out. A gory, ghastly performance.

That will show 'em! That will teach 'em! is the justification for such unpleasant revelations.

Yeah, what? A small group of wild, or would-be wild, young drivers, I suppose.

"But the children," I protested. "The impressionable children of 11, 12, 13 and 14? What can it give them but horrors, nightmares and dire dreams? More likely it will give some young innocent acci-dents such a terror of Sunday fam-ily drives that they'll refuse to stay at home with the pollywogs, and mother.

"You don't understand," they as-sured me. "By giving our children the horrors of accidents early, we are protecting them and our-selves in the future—because in a few years' time, when they become the motoring generation, they will have been too thoroughly scared to drive fast and recklessly. Conse-quently, more safety."

Too Much Freedom.

Perhaps it will work out that way, in some cases. But it certainly seems a pity that our accident record is such that so much "safety" training was deemed necessary.

Personally, I believe that reckless driving and other forms of wildness in young people is largely due to too much power, too much freedom, all at once.

In many families a child is carefully guarded, strictly supervised, until he reaches a certain age, and then he is been allowed to enjoy the slightest responsibility, he is all at once, the gravest responsibility—the responsibility of his life and the lives of others.

Now, if instead of turning Ralph loose with a car for the first time at his sixteenth birthday party, he was allowed first to steer, then to drive a little with rubber sliding beside him. If he had helped father take care of the car since he was four—then, perhaps, the marvels and the power involved in driving a car wouldn't have gone so completely to his head.

No child becomes responsible sim-ply because he has reached the age of 17. A sense of responsibility must be learned, and usually it takes years to learn.

RED ROSE TEA "is good tea"

Good Manners

Wedding Invitation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

What is the correct way of addressing a wedding invitation in a family?

L.

Thank You.

First, and very much, let me say that we must never, never address an envelope to Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Family. That is taboo. And the reason that it is taboo is that it gives very little consideration to the members of the "family." The best thing is, if we can afford to budget so many invitations, to send one to Mr. and Mrs. and a separate one to each member of the family, or an age appropriate to receive formal invitations of this kind. If this is not possible, then we address one to Mr. and Mrs. one to Miss ...and one to The Misses .....

If again this is not possible, the next best thing to do, although it is distinctly a compromise, is to write each name separately on both the inside envelope and on the outside one. Like this, on the outside one:

Mr. and Mrs. George Wells Anthony
Miss Emma Anthony
The Misses Anthony
The Misses Place
Center City
California

On the inside envelope, the first line is written:

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony

Thank-You Letter

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am at home from business due to illness. My fellow workers have sent me a beautiful basket of fruit. A letter of thanks should be sent immediately, but I do not know how to express myself. Your kind assistance in this matter would be greatly appreciated.

L.

Dear Friends:

How wonderfully friendly you were to think of me so beautifully! I cannot begin to tell you how much I appreciate your thought and how deeply touched I was by your lovely gift. Thank you, dear, with all my heart, every one of you personally, for your kind thought and I shall see you soon to thank every one of you personally.

The plant is a most pleasant companion, and seems to know that I love it so, for it is still thriving and promises to stay to keep me company for a long time.

Dearest wishes to you all and again my deepest gratitude.

Gratefully yours,

Elevator Etiquette

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Should a gentleman remove his hat in a public elevator when all of the women in the elevator are unknown to him? Please tell me the correct thing for all occasions in both private and public eleva-tors.

R.

Let's begin with the elevators in which men always should remove their hats. First, of course, an ele-vator is a private home (and of course these are rare). Then, very important, an elevator in a depart-ment house. Too, an elevator in a hotel, always. And an elevator in a club.

The elevator in a department store is the "betwixt and between" kind. Most men if it is at all possible (that is, if the elevator is not too crowded) do remove their hats in the elevator of a department store. Because this is more or less a wo-man's realm!

But the form that has changed most is the taking off of the hat in the elevator of a business place. Nowadays, since life has become so hurried, and since business eleva-tors have become so crowded that there isn't any room for a man's hat (except on his head!) most men do not take off their hats in elevators of business buildings. In professional buildings, such as buildings for doctors, dentists, and so forth, men do take off their hats in the lifts in the more crowded, and if they wish.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers).

Show Belief In Child's Work
(By Lisa Grenelle)

Gretel had a lot of talent; but who knew it?

She became discouraged, perhaps, too early. Then with school and one thing and another, she didn't have much time, and all the time she had—like most children and many adults—she frittered away.

Mother was troubled. She was an artist herself, and knew that to be an artist talent is essential for the attainment of success. No college course, no amount of train-ing could be accomplished without regular, devoted work.

She also knew that some day, conceivably, Gretel might have to support herself, and there wasn't much doubt that it would be both more agreeable and more profitable to do so via art than by any other means.

On the other hand, if mother started nagging it might, at this early stage, destroy Gretel's love of drawing. Mother couldn't run the risk of making drawing an odious duty.

Of course, she could use praise, when deserved, and a show of in-terest—they helped! But that did not prove enough of an incentive for the regular, daily effort that mother knew was necessary.

Show Belief

Or, mother could resort to reward and bribery. But that was putting the thing on a commercial basis—and it bails. If Gretel's artistic abilities were ever to develop into anything worth while, she must work, not for an immediate reward, but for the satisfaction of creative effort gave her. She must work to improve her-self—for eventual achievement,perhaps, but not for material gain.

Mother picked out Gretel's best drawings, and, sly! hung it in the parlor. She said nothing to Gretel. Presently, when Gretel came home from school and found it there, she looked at it with pleasure. Her picture was good enough for mother to hang in the parlor!

But not a bit. Gretel thought it was not good enough, after all. When Gretel's next drawing was hung, you saw their faults more clearly.

Proud and humble both, Gretel retired to work in earnest. Her mother had been thoroughly aroused, and her confidence supported. Mother had proved that she believ-ed in Gretel, that she took her ef-forts seriously. Nothing she could have said, no matter how extrava-gant, could have bestowed a greater gift than one act of hanging her picture in the parlor.

For child or adult, there is no stimulant so healthy or so effective as a simple show of belief in and respect for his work.

Take these 3 Simple Steps to Better CONTROL OF COLDS

1. To Help Build RESISTANCE to Colds
Live normally—avoid excesses. Eat simple food and keep diges-tion regular. Drink plenty of water. Take some exercise daily —outdoors preferably. Get plenty of rest and sleep.

2. To Help PREVENT Many Colds
At the first warning nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze, use Vicks Va-tro-nol—just a few drops up each nostril. Va-tro-nol is especially designed for the nose and upper throat—where most colds start. Used in time, Va-tro-nol helps to prevent many colds—and to throw off head colds in the early stages.

VICKS VA-TRO-NOL

3. To Help END a Cold Sooner
If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, rub throat and chest at bedtime with Vicks VapoRub. VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) by stimulating circulation of the skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors, direct to inflamed bronchial tubes. Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritation, helps break congestion.

VICKS VAPORUB

These three steps form the basis of Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds—a practical health guide to fewer and shorter colds. Developed by Vicks Chemists and Medical Consultants, this combination is now medically sound Plan is the result of their 25 years of study of colds. Its value has been demonstrated in extensive clinical tests supervised by practicing physicians, and further proved in everyday home use by thousands. Directions for following Vicks Cold-Control Plan come in each Vicks package.

Cleanliness Beauty's Need
JUNE STOREY

Cleanliness, she knows, is the first rule of beauty

(By Helen Fullett)

Every girl in the beauty class knows that the first law of pulchri-tude is cleanliness. Nothing imparts color and freshness to the skin like the daily tubbing, especially if a flesh brush is used to tell the blood it's time to be up and rushing.

One cannot be too careful about powder puffs. If used on a soiled skin surface they may pick up a germ or germs that is going to make trouble. Many skin infec-tions are caused by soiled powder puffs and handkerchiefs, too, that are rubbed over the surface of the flesh.

Fur collars that catch atmospheric dust are often responsible for boils and abscesses on the neck. Scarves that aren't sent often to the cleaners will form blackheads at the nape of the neck. The inner surfaces of gloves become soiled, and cleaning pus to form in hangnails.

Soap is the queen of cosmetics and yet should do the plainest ser-vice. If the pores of the skin are clean-stopped, wash the face twice a day with soap suds. Friction is to be had with the finger tips. The first warm rinse to remove the soap, then a cold one to close the tissues, help prevent wrinkles, so the texture of the skin will be fine and del-icate.

Blessed is she who is content with the color of her hair. She may change it, of course, but she might find as well know that she is in for many of bother and expense. The old color doesn't leave entirely, it wanted, comes pushing out from the scalp to the extent of one inch every two months. That means a frequent touch up which takes time and money.

When almost any dye is used the hair must be conditioned often with oil treatments to keep the shafts soft and silky.

1936 VALENTINES MORE SENTIMENTAL
At Least That Is What This Year's Valentines—Clever and Artisti c—Indicate

Friendships rather than love is the keynote of the sentimental valentines of 1936.

By Central Press Canadian

Young people of Canada are be-coming more sentimental. If you don't believe it you only have to go to the 1936 valentines. They show a real sincerity of feeling, a warmth of affection that is quite noticeable than for several years past. Even the "comics", though they may look at first glance as if they were left over from the ridiculous days of the thirty ones of years ago, turn out to be merely gay and humorous expressions of esteem, and barbed shafts are surprisingly few.

Friendship rather than love is the keynote of these modern sentimental valentines. Typical of the tone of the more seeking valentines is a square booklet predominantly cov-ered with a new shipshape gladiolus and tied with white silk cord, which bears the legend "Gladiolus Greetings for You" and continues with:—

You know and I know
How many words mean,
For you know and I know
The thoughts in between.

And you know and I know
They're only a part
Of the friendliness felt for you
Deep in my heart!

Hearts in New Designs

The heart, Cupid's perennial sym-bol, finds a number of new ways to be displayed this year. Gold hearts string themselves like charms above a ribbon scroll. Silver hearts serve as appropriate backgrounds for gold hearts for floral designs. Heart-shaped cut-outs are also seasonal mot-ifs. If you simply insist on a good old-fashioned red heart, it may be a bit hard to find—but how about one in that new smart rose shade?

Roses, by the way, and perhaps because of the traditional connec-tion between roses and sweetness, are very much in evidence. Single roses flower this year. Sometimes a bouquet is tied with ribbon. Again it is the only ornament of a card. Others use them in natural clusters or in conventionalized designs. One particularly lovely "friendly" valentine is a red rose and a large basket in na-tural in water-colored effect, a rose bush in full bloom.

Lace Still in Vogue

Lace is an especial valentine vogue, but the smart new lace valen-tines have come a long way from the ornate lace-paper creations of the gay nineties. Strips of real lace are used in edgings and bows. Some-times a lace design is printed on the inside side of a heart, or cellophane and placed over a floral motif with exquisite results. A lace pattern is printed in the soft gravure effect. Lace is suggested by a scalloped overlay, or, in more elaborate cards, done in fine drawings of red or black around the edges of the card.

Since our modern era is an age of realism, it is not surprising that a number of Cupid's latest design-signs call him play real objects and not the fanciful, flower-like Cupids of replicas. Ladies' gowns, gentle-men's cloaks, the part of Cupid, for example, are made of cloth or lace or a convenient feather, either powdered, or still newer, as an inexpen-sive lay revealed under cellophane. Even the currently romantic "red sails" are indicated on one enterprising valentine by a bit of red flannel.

Of course, being leap year, there are some amusing lady's choice val-entines. They are not nearly so numerous, however, as one might expect and certainly they don't take themselves very seriously. A lovelorn maiden, for example, she significantly at the end of an in-vitation to go skating hereby pro-poses with for a masculine "compan-ion."

In a mood of light-hearted affec-tion mischievous kittens and play-ful puppies romp merrily over in-numerable valentines. Though this year for some reason, the good behi is less a bit more partial to the puzzles. "Minnie Mouse" smiles winsomely, and Bambi and Thumper and bird birds abound. Often Dan Cupid's sense of humor indulges in a pun, and there is a "Valentine" on the dainty cuckling who queries:

"I ask you: Wouldn't I make a Dandy little Valentine?"

Packed by the Vita-Fresh process, all the original freshness is safeguarded in the tin you have to open with a key.

RECEPTION

Mr. W. J. McGuire will receive in her home on the 6th inst., Saturday, February 15th, from three to six.

Mrs. Edward Eaton of Jones St. announces the engagement of her daughter, Dorothy Irene, to Mr. Ronald Smith, of Sidney.

Mrs. Bessie Smith, of Sidney, who underwent an operation in the General Hospital, is convalescing at the home of her daughter, Mrs. R. Bird, Bridge St.

The condition of Dr. Norma Cox, who is ill at her home, Pinnacle Street, remains the same.

Miss Betty Smith, Kingston, spent the week-end with her aunt, Mrs. Edward Cross, John Street.

Mrs. H. Sexton, Railway Terrace, who has been confined to the house with "General Hospital," suffering from an attack of pneumonia, is progressing favorably, relatives state today.

The weekly meeting of the Belleville Badminton Club Society was held last evening the church parlors, committees were appointed to be in charge of refreshments, and election for the evening when Red-cross Girls' People will be entertained. Members were very sorry to learn of the illness of Mrs. Clarence Matthews who is now out of the city. She was present with us last month yet as a token of esteem. After the meeting, all the members and their friends present went to the Ballroom where refreshments were enjoyed.

Tweed and District

Tweed, Feb/11—Rev. Prof. J. R. Webb, B.D. of Queen's Theological College, was the special speaker at services in Tweed United Church on Sunday in connection with the reopening of the church auditorium after extensive repairs. The church has been cleaned and redecorated by Mr. Percival Ritchie and a delightful lighting system has been installed, modern fixtures replacing the obsolete electeliers with which the church has been lighted for many years past.

The church auditorium is now one of the finest in the district and is small town and would be a credit to a city church.

The choir sang "Christian, the morn breaks sweetly o'er thee" (Shelley) with Miss Pat Mac Gregor and Mrs. H. Orier, Miss Dorothy Sager, A.T.C.M., duet on the duet sang "O Lord be merciful". At the evening service the choir sang "Hush and Still This Thee" with solo by Mrs. S. H. Connor. A ladies' quartette, Mrs. Gabbett, Mrs. Connor, Miss Sager and Mrs. Orier sang "Nearer, My God, to Thee" with solo by Mrs. Connor and H. Grier.

An offering was taken to defray the cost of the new work and the necessary funds will be obtained at the services next Wednesday and Sunday.

In thanking Dr. Waits for his splendid addresses, Rev. R. S. Nicholson, pastor, said that the delightful devotional students in attendance at Queen's University are certainly safe under the guidance of Dr. Waits' sound theology.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Gilbert succeeds Mr. Leonard Kelly as accountant at the local branch of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Murai are members of the Presbyterian church and are taking active part in the work of the church in connection with Mrs. Murai who is treasurer of the hospital board.

On Friday night Rev. Father Wheeler, Columbian, was installed as St. Michael's Juvenilles of Belleville at a banquet in the Interclub game they defeated the visitors by a score of 4 to 1. In the local game Tweed beat the Columbias remain undefeated after meeting the Trail Rangers on the local rink. Both are in splitted contests.

AT THE BELLE

Joan Harlow Revealing New Brunette Tresses; Spencer Tracy Co-stars

A vivid, sparkling new Joan Harlow is now on the Belle screen in a unique and powerful drama "Riff Raff."

Given the most dramatic role of her career in a vital story of gamblers and gangsters of the underworld, Miss Harlow has adopted sort brunette hair in place of her famous platinum blonde tresses in more appropriate fit the part. It is a revelation. She has never been more lovely, for the new hair, christened "honey brown" acts as a frame for her face and lends a new charm to be seen on the screen.

Both Miss Harlow and Tracy have taken full advantage of its pathos, its laughs, its swift flowing action, to produce a picture which stands out as entertainment above the ordinary.

Surrounding the team is a notable cast. Frank McHugh, whose recent hits in "Broadway Melody of 1936" and "It's in the Air" have established her comedy talents, plays the role of the screen's foremost gum-chewer, shows her versatility by portraying a flower-loving gangster with consummate skill, who combines that role with the part of marriage was two children and the husband.

As Nick Lewis, wealthy, domineering cannery owner, Joseph Calleia play a difficult role with unusual skill as a comedian as well as an actor of dramatic parts.

In the large and capable supporting cast are Victor Killan, Mickey Rooney, Jr., Farrell MacDonald, Roger Imhof, Juanita Quigley, Paul Fix and Vince Barnett. Dorothy Appleby has a small part.

Exceptional Short Treats

An exceptional array of short treats have been assembled for exhibition on the stage program including Manhattan Monkey Business an uproarious all-star comedy. The Belle latest new flashes introduced by the rambling reporter, Edwin C. Hill, and "The Fascination" a clever technicolor novelette.

BILLY BARTY STAGE REVUE

One of the most important announcements of the Belle Theatre in many months is the appearance at the Belle on Thursday and Friday of this week, of a special after school matinee on Thursday at 3.30 p.m. Billy Barty who comes direct from Hollywood as the star of his own stage revue. Billy who is a real bundle of pep, and is a favorite with screen lovers everywhere, makes his appearance in the "Mickey McGuire" and "Mickey" comedies, and such outstanding screen successes as "Poolhall Parade," "Cold Diggers," "Roman Scandals" and "Midsummer Night Dream" is creating a sensation on his tour from the Coast on the Famous Players Canadian circuit. Supporting Billy in his smart Stage Revue are his two sisters Evelyn and Dolores, Bella and Sally, Master Jackie Dennison and others. This special Stage attraction comes to Belleville preceded by the screen's first glamorous drama about the fascinating, living amateurs.....

"Mickey in the Army" starring John Howard, Wendy Barrie, Eleanor Whitney the world's greatest tap dancer, and Willie Howard's famous funster! Heaping prizes prevail.

Cards Have One Coming up For Every Position on Teams

St. Louis, Feb. 11 (AP) — The brilliance of all the stars that stood St. Louis Cardinals' roster couldn't hide the story it told today. The team in all probability will win or lose the 1936 pennant with rookies.

With Sam Breadon's cashbox closed, all of Branch Rickey's wishes could add but one veteran for the scouting season, pitcher Larry Parmelee from New York Giants.

The call for reinforcements that went out to the Cards' far-flung farm system brought fifteen prospects, but they're not the ones with the big top in the make-or-break problem.

Without them, the Red Birds go into the National League fray in this alignment, with the all-season outfield and infield position, including those two.

On the mound, there's the Deans — Dizzy and Paul — with Parmelee to make it a possible "big three", but the rest of the veteran staff is in-and-out.

Help will have to come from this group of recruits: Mike Ryba, who won 20 and lost 8 last season with Columbus; Lon Warneke, Jacksonville, 21 and 8; Jim Winford, Columbus 16 and 11; Bill McGee, Houston, 13 and 10, and Nelson Potter, Houston, 10 and 17.

Martin For Outfield.

To fill a gap, the Wild Horse of the Osage, Pepper Martin, may range once more in the outfield, leaving his first-base berth to one of the gamest men in baseball, Charlie Gelbert.

Gelbert's utility role will fall to Lyle Judy, Springfield, Mo., baseball-playing expert, who is being groomed for second base when Manager Frankie Frisch's legs get tired.

The extra hand in the outfield should be played by Lynn King, once Detroit property, who has shown nibbles and more recently a star with Houston.

Bill Delancey's illness leaves Virgil Davis to do the bulk of the catching with whatever help he can get from three rookie candidates: Bruno Betzelevich, Omaha; Clyde Sukeforth, J. C. Clark, Asheville, and Sam Narron, Albany.

Johnny Mize, up from Rochester, will undoubtedly Jimmy Collins at first base, and Frankie Crosetti, home run star if the Cards ever sell him.

Western Canada to Have Rink in Spiel

Toronto, Feb. 11 (CP)—Western Canada will be well represented in the Ontario bonspiel which gets under way next Monday, when 24 Westerners will play under the colors of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta hospitel and four stadards attending Varsity have been picked to "start the fat" in Ontario.

W. Buchanan, second, and J. O. Brown, skip, are the Winnipeg rinkmen and played in that city with the 13, of a rink. W. Lockwood, lead, is from Buchanan, Sask., and the vice, R. Partridge, is from Carnduff, Sask.

Eight of the 130 rinks entered are from clubs affiliated with the Western Ontario Curling Association. The northern rinks are from Englehart, New Liskeard, North Bay, Kirkland Lake, Chapleau and Little Current.

BORDER INJURED — Reginald "Red" Horner, battling defenceman of Toronto Maple Leafs, suffered severe head injuries, including concussion of the brain and a possible fracture when he was strenuously checked by "Dod" Dutton of New York Americans and fell heavily to the ice. The accident was played in New York. Horner was taken to hospital for close examination.

YACHTSMEN WIN OVER PICTON 20-5

Prince Edward Boys No Match For Fast Travelling Locals

Scoring almost at will the Belleville Yacht Club "flatfoots" defeated the Picton "All-stars" by the score of 20 to 5 in a regular Bay of Quinte League fixture at the arena last night and elevated their standing into a tie for first place in the Quinte loop. A fair sized crowd of hockey fans were on hand for part of the night to witness the mounting of one of the largest scores ever registered in the local arena and one of the largest scores seen locally in many years.

Every member of "Duke" Smith's well balanced Picton team netted at least once as the "sailors" displayed absolutely no mean speed and hockey ability for their Prince Edward County rivals. The initial period proved the most interesting, as Picton opened the scoring and forced Belleville to the offensive. The locals soon applied the pressure, however, and led by the score of 4 to 1 at the end of the initial session. The count saw the "Sailors" in front by the score of 10 to 4 at the end of the second stanza, while the final canto saw Picton score once, while the "Sailors" added twenty big goals and the game ended 20 to 5 for the Belleville skippers. Rink-single sake and smart combination plays, when they succeeded in getting for the local goals. Hinton, in the Sailors' net, had little to do all evening and turned in a creditable account of his night's endeavours, but was given considerable protection by his fellowmen and the speedy back-checking of his forward teammates. Boyer, in the Picton nets, likewise had a rather mediocre protection in most cases.

Ethler Leads Scorers

Jimmie Ethler led all scorers of the night as he flashed the red lamp behind Picton goalie seven times for the "Sailors" as he scored three goals while Dr. Denis' three counters were all the clever stick-handling on the part of the marksman. Hooke, Dorpat and Gerald Ethler each bagged two goals while McGraw and Remy each got the rubber on one occasion to complete the score for Manny Hodgins was the best marksman for Picton, getting two goals and an assist, while Wright, Wright and Wannamaker were the other Picton counters.

The score in no way indicates the play, however, as some splendid hockey was dished up at intervals. The match was very ably handled by "Scotty" Hamilton.

Only five penalties were meted out, as the referee was lenient on these penalties three went to Picton and two to Belleville.

The lineups:

Belleville Yacht: Goal, Hinton; defence, G. Ethler and Hooke; centre, Hyde; wings, St. Denis and Dr. Denis. The Picton line-up, McGuire and Henn.

Picton: Goal, Boyer; defence, Hudgins and Rorke; centre, Hearns; wings, Sargent and Wannamaker. Subs, Wright, Myers and Boyle

Referee: Rorke, Picton.

HINDE AND DAUCH WITH WOOLER ARE BEST IN SUMMARY

Papermen Easily Defeat Project Workers by 10-3 Score

LOTS OF ACTION

Wooler Has to Come From Behind to Down Carrying Place

Trenton, Feb. 11 (Special)—In the first game of the Trenton and District Hockey League, Wooler played here at the Arena last night and defeated Carrying Place, while Dauch defeated Project (3B) by the score of 10 to 3.

In the first period, after two minutes of play, O. Bowen of the Papermen slashed through to beat the Project goalie, to start Hinde and Dauch on the scoring sheet. Then Mattis scored the second on a pass from Hood. One minute later Strathdee of the Project got even on their first goal on a lone attempt. Hood and Lott, shifty Papermen forwards, then got the range on Dauch's third goal of the period. Hood on a pass from Lott, Tyre parried ended with Lott of the Papermen receiving a penalty for charging Hill of the Project.

In the opening minutes of the second period Hinde made a great run in two more goals. The first by Hood on a pass from Lott, and the second by Hinde on a pass from Hood. With the score 5-0 in favor of the Papermen, Curry of the Project took a pass from Hill to mount their score to two. From then on till the end of the period the Papermen had everything their own way and Hinde and Dauch, assisted by Hood scored two more counters to make the score 8 to 1 at the end of the period. Hinde and Dauch, 7; Project (3B), 3.

Papermen Had Fresher

The third period was the same as the previous two and the Papermen had it pretty much to their liking. Mattis scored the Hinde and Dauch's eight goal, his third, in the opening minutes of the period. He also scored the ninth from a scramble. Hancock who was the best man on the ice for the Project registered their third and last goal of the evening from a scramble in front of the Papermen's net. Hood, of the Hinde and Dauch, put the finishing touches on the game by scoring their tenth goal on a pass from Lizzie-Lynch. Dauch—Goal, Steenbury; defence, O. Bowen and W. Taylor; centre, Mattis and Hood; centre, Lott; alternates, Weese, Perrault, McLeod, Hinde and Dauch (3B)—Goal, Smith; defence, Teale and Gullyatt; wings, Strathdee and Curry; centre, Graham; alternates, W. Lott, Harris, Dunlop, Carrie, Hill, Fraser, Sutherland, Miller.

The second game of the evening between Carrying Place and Wooler was won by the latter 5-2, was filled with fireworks all the way through and both clubs were out to win. In the first fifteen minutes of the opening period both clubs registered a litious hockey and it looked as though the period would be scoreless for the Carrying Place line of Davis, Anderson and Rosenplot checked up and before the period stopped they ran in two goals on Wooler Bryant to put the locals ahead. The first Carrying Place counter was registered by Davis, who unloaded a screen shot that beat the Wooler squad. Rosenplot scored the second on a shot from the blue line. With the score 2 to 0 in favour of Carrying Place, the Wooler forwards opened the heat on and after a few minute of the period were rewarded with a goal. It was scored by Perrault on a shot from the blue line. In the second period, on the play, Wooler deserved many more goals than they got, but as it was they tied the score and after very hard pressing seemed to wear the Carrying Place boys down. The tieing goal was scored by Mitchell, the centre. In the first part of the final period the Carrying Place boys appeared as though they were out to do business but they were either backchecked or stopped at the defence, when in a scoring position.

Turned on Heat

In the last five minutes of the game Wooler forwards scored three goals and made the Carrying Place team look quite ordinary, VanOates put the game away on a screen shot that got from a scramble. Two minutes later, Vanoates slipped a pass over to Johnson, who pushed it by Ostrel in the Carrying Place nets for Wooler's fourth and to top it all off VanOates scored the fifth Wooler goal from a face-off in front of the Carrying Place net, with five seconds to go.

Lineups: Wooler—Goal, Bryant; defence, C. Rutlan and G. Rutlan; wings, Stadnbury and Clarence Rutlan; centre, McCall; alternates, Redcliffe, Morrow, Perrault, Johnson, Putnam, Lewis and Vanoates. Carrying Place—Goal, Ostrel; defence, Hutchinson and Vieau; wings Anderson and Rosenplot; centre, R. Davis; alternates, Bolan, Dolan, Vandervoort and Staples. Referee, W. Bowen.

18 Rinks Assured Share of Jewelry

Winnipeg, Feb. 11 — (CP) — With the entry aggregate narrowed down to two rinks, Manitoba's annual bonspiel neared its close today with 18 rinks assured a share of the jewelry.

Still fighting for places in the Jewelry class were eastern Canadian rinks skipped by Gordon Campbell of Hamilton, last year's Dominion championship quartet, and Bob Campbell of Toronto. Both will see action today.

The Gordon Campbell rink will meet the Hollie David four from Vancouver in the Hazen trophy event and the winner will clash later in the day with Jack Calvert of Rainy River, Ont. Bob Campbell will skip his rink against Ness Wise of the Strathcona Club in the Dingwall event.

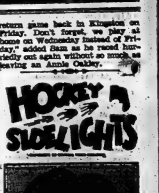
When the local "Redmen" take to the ice versus the Gibbards in Napanee tonight the Tommies will be confronted with a new experience, that of playing on a narrow rink. The Napanee rink is a long narrow one which handicaps three-man combination play to a certain degree, so the "Redmen" will have to change themselves accordingly. Coach Walter Gerow has a sturdy, hard-hitting defence in Bentley brothers, Ted and Fred, both of whom have a world of hockey experience gained, while playing in years past for Kingston. On the front line "Wish" Wilson, who starred for the Kingston team, when they trimmed the Canadian Olympics team with Mike Murphy and Ran Card, Bolh Card and Wilson have carved a name for themselves, while playing for the old Frontenacs in years past. The Napanee goalie, Bob Curry, the goals are first-year intermediates, but they starred in the Junior ranks last year, so it looks as though the "Redmen" will have to be on the hustle for 60 minutes to come down in front of the Gibbards. The second game in the O.H.A. card with the return game being played in Belleville on Wednesday night.



Tourney night in Senior Interscholastic night at the Arena and another turn will be the scrappy Little Big Four tilts, the main feature of the twin-bill, however, will be the Albert College vs. Kingston Collegiate. Last week's game was postponed until this week and from all accounts, that one action aplenty, but with the Albert College vs. the B.C.I., it is always "hey-day" in local sport circles. As for the B.C.I. game, Albert College and the O.S.D. is concerned, this match is more or less a practice affair, as a defeat for Albert will not eliminate them from participating in the group play-offs later. With two games on the card, there should be an hour's hockey should be on hand.

A slight change in the bantam schedule in the Little Big Four this week was announced today by Secretary Sherrill, all games are played as scheduled previously. The change in the bantam series is the Wednesday night fixture on the harbor roads: Tuesday night, Feb. 18, Maple Leafs will be followed by Wolverines vs. Lions. On Thursday at 4.30 p.m. Maple Leafs meet the Wolverines, to be followed by the Lions in the finale.

Presidents Confer

President J. E. Shortt of the Belleville Anglers' Association, who was named as the local delegate to attend the annual meeting of the Ontario Federation of Anglers, announced today that a delegate would be held in the Genosha Hotel on the occasion of the annual meeting that is to be held in that city on Thursday of this week. All members of the local organization are cordially invited to attend this banquet, that is to be addressed by Dr. A. S. Hazzard, Deputy-Minister of Game and Fisheries of Ontario Joe says he has a limited number of tickets for this banquet and all members of the local branch are urged to attend. Oshawa seems to be the convention centre these days. Recently Bill Hay, secretary of the Belleville Rugby Football Association, received an invitation to attend a banquet and ball to be held in the Genosha Hotel under the auspices of the Oshawa Blue Devils. Members of the local gridd squad are asked to get into bantering touch with Secretary Fry in order, that reservations may be made. The football moguls from all over the Central Ontario area will hold forth that night, the date being Feb. 21st.

"Dutch" Smith's Belleville Tackle Club "Sailors" elevated themselves into a tie for first place in the Bay of Quinte League with a 20-5 win over the Picton boys early last night. Smith was one of that description of guys who can-skate. In defence of the "Sailors" last night, Smith might point and they tried to give the Picton squad all the room necessary. The regrettable part of the whole business was that the task team tossed over the boards by the Picton crowd. They were handed the "razz" and should there are better picksters Prince Edward County than the Picton crowd displayed here last night. We understand that the Prince Edward County League in Prince Edward County, as a matter of fact, is composed of only two county loops in operation in the county, but even at that the entire county they could garner eight or ten better informed players than displayed that night here last night. Naturally last night's affair should not be considered the criterion of Bay of Quinte hockey in Belleville, but when the play-offs roll around doubtlessly two better balanced squads than those that took the locals are tied for first place.

From dispatches from the east information is that Kinsley Lee is not exactly having any too much cheering with his proposed professional baseball project in Kingston. Of course further cash were thanks to Lee, who chases the bases, is enjoying better success. From Brockville comes word that players every position on the club except goal and that includes a turn or two on defence and two weeks of pinch-hitting for Harvey Jackson on the original Kid Line. No wonder Coach Irvin rates Boll about the most versatile player he has on his squad.

Boll and Boll, who hails from Pilmoor, Sask., rounds out a line with Bill Thoms and Frank Brimsan. With Finnegan doing the backchecking and his wings scoring the goals, the trio threaten to become the Leafs' ace line, and Boss has his finger in plenty of point-producing ice.

It's the third term for Boll with his present club. He turned pro. in 1931-32 after an amateur career with Marlboros of Toronto, and served with Syracuse for one season in the International League. In the 1933-34 playoffs, with Toronto, the Bosses scored no goals and no assists but managed to pick up a penalty in two starts. Syracuse, with only 25 summers behind him, is the left-winging Boll has time yet to garner some laurels.

Dale Plays The Game

—BY—

Ann Forester

Nervously, Dale pulled her hat farther down on her head, then adjusted and unbuttoned one glove, slipped suddenly sat upright in rigid alertness. She was forgetting. She mustn't forget. It was cheap.

The car stopped before a tall red brick house. They moved up a walk past a stone lion, full of snowy lawn and, past fir trees laden with snow.

As they reached the porch at the top of the steps the great beaded glass door of the house was drawn back, opened by a liveried butler. At Brant's greeting he bowed and ushered them into a room, dimly lighted by the soft majesty of the huge logs in the fireplace. A maid had a startled impression of soft brightness, of slender tapered shapes of gold and blue damask. Of a soft and lively fire reflected in lacquered screens.....

There was someone here, sitting before the fire. A woman who put aside a book and turned to meet them as they entered.

Behind her, Dale heard Brant give a little gasp. His voice was sharp with surprise.

"Mimi!" he said. "Mimi!"

CHAPTER XI.

DALE AND MIMI

Mimi.....!

Yes. It was Mimi. There were the long narrow eyes, the crisply curled mouth which had been up at Dale from the newspaper clipping she had discovered, the name Mimi let.....

But the woman facing her was a hundred times more beautiful than the picture. Dale recognized with a queer little shock of pain that the sallowness, the narrow eyed calculation, the tired lines of the face and white reproduction was lost in the soft tinted original.

From the photograph, Dale had judged Mimi to be tall. On the contrary, she was small and lovingly molded, like a bit of rare porcelain. An exquisite little French marquise she seemed. Smoky dark hair, and her brown not black. An oval face without blemish, tinted a clear even color against which her Oriental eyes and swallow tipped brows seemed painted by a master's hand. The subtleties of her beauty made Dale feel that her own simple flesh-on coloring was obvious—crude.

Brant was speaking, while Mimi listened a faint, secret smile stamped on her lips.

"Mimi! I have never dreamed you were here. I thought you stayed altogether in Italy..... I never dreamed—"

Brant was rattled and he showed it.

Mimi spoke in a soft slightly husky voice with an appealing drawl.

"You have been out of touch, Brant! I've been here for years."

"You mean—living here? Here at the house?" Brant knew that he was stammering and the thought made him uncomfortable. "But your —but—the Count—"

The long eyes were enigmatical. "Oh..... of course. You haven't heard. My poor Bertino died—one of his African hunting trips—fever, you know, I came home. But, there, my dear boy, you have forgotten—" The sentence trailed into a graceful wave of her hand.

Brant turned with hasty apology to the other girl.

"Dale dear, forgive me. I was knocked into a loop for a moment. This is the Countess della Cortesi, Mimi, this is my wife."

There was a blank moment while each woman acknowledge the introduction. Eyes rested upon eyes and smiles were exchanged.

"Ah, yes," said Mimi's soft husky voice. "I heard that you were married, Brant."

Nothing about that which should call the quick pink to the cheeks, but Dale found her face go hot.

Brant, missing the undercurrents was asking: "How is Mother, Mimi? How is she standing everything?"

Mimi's exquisite brows arched sympathetically.

"Alas is very frail, Brant. Uncle Roger's death was a great shock to her. If she had not had your return to look forward to, I believe she would have fallen very ill. Poor Aunt Aimee, she has a great deal to bear. No one ever took your place, Brant. Hence to recall, she is young and inclined to be thoughtless. I have lifted her burden as well as I could since I've been here, but I fear that yet you were coming back has acted like a tonic.

Brant silenced uneasily under the note of sweet reproach in her voice.

"I guess you're right, Mimi. Poor Mother—I've acted like a brute to her. But I'll try to make up to her now. Is she home? I'm anxious to see her and have her meet Dale."

The upstairs in her room, lying down. She tires very easily these days." Mimi's eyes crept slowly to the other girl, passed over her insolently. "I'll send word that Brant's case again and Mimi spoke with an assumption of reluctance.

"I would not. I will think I'm intruding if I suggest that you see Aunt Aimee alone at first, Brant? There may be things which she will wish to say.....you know how mothers are. Oh, but, of course," Mimi added hastily hurting to Dale, "that she is not prepared to welcome your wife—"

Dale finished it, "Yes, dear," she said in a low voice to the man, "Go see your mother alone, at first .....

"That is so sweet of you." Mimi murmured. "And while you're up there, Brant, I'll dress. A little delightful relaxation—Dale—to her room. We've given you the west wing, Brant."

As Mimi and Brant led the way, Dale followed in a silence which was almost dazed. It was a dream to be walking through Brant's home.....Oriental rugs under foot.....carved rosewood staircase with the exquisite bronze lantern on the newel post.....the great arched window of rose-colored glass on the landing.....Brant's home—Brant whom she had first seen hanging around the pipe organ at Sandy's lunch room.

They separated in the upper hall. Mimi led the girl to a short side passage, her sweet husky voice apologizing politely of inconsequential things—the weather—the fatigue of a long journey. Dale answered in monosyllables and hated herself for the tongue tied embarrassment which filled her.

The richness of the suite prepared for Brant and herself filled Dale with awe and dismay and she was miserably aware that Mimi knew it. They stepped into a large room done in cream and blue. A soft silky Chinese rug on the floor—blue cartoons on an ivory ground. A four post bed, quaintly canopied in taffeta and of dreamy table with a taffeta skirt of the same silver gray. Afternoon light struck the cut glass stoppers of numerous bottles lined up on its top, setting rainbow prisms dancing on the creamy walls. A day bed had a throw of rich ivory lace. A slender legged writing table an silver accessories.

Through the open door Dale glimpsed another room done in gray and maroon. Then one great chair of maroon leather—that would be Brant's room of course. A tiled bathroom, bristling with nickle—almost as large as the whole block had been on the desert.

"I'm sorry the dressing room is so small," Mimi said, softly apologetic. "the house is old fashioned, you know. Do you think you can make out?"

Dale, who had lived in the tray of a trunk for years and until lately had her dressing room on a corner of the kitchen table, thought that she could.

"You brought your maid, of course? Her room is in the back of the house—this bell connects with it—"

Suddenly crimson. Dale replied evenly that she had brought no maid.

Mimi hit her lip. "Of course!" she said sweetly, "how stupid of me! I'll send mine to help you dress for dinner if you like?"

Dale tried to keep the panic from her voice as she refused this kind offer.

Mimi was gone—taking the bright malice of her smile away. Dale stood wide-eyed in the middle of the blue and silver room.

What had it sound like—that click of the door after Mimi? Just a click of the latch, of course—but that sound, so oddly familiar?

Oh yes!—those traps she and Brant had set for gophers when they ravaged their pitiful little vegetable patch in the desert. The door, when

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

Deep into the jungle to a hidden glade, Taglor carries his helpless friend, and there he placed Tarzan gently on the soft moss beneath the trees. Little more could the great bull do other than to stand guard with upraised ears, alert for any encroaching sound.

His wound annoyed Tarzan less than the pangs of thirst. To little monkeys watching him from the trees he called. "Come, little ones, untie the thongs that bind my wrists." Tarzan has been your friend; he will not harm you," said the man.

"We are afraid," repeated the old monkey. "For seeing that it was futile to appeal to Mimi, Tarzan, as a forlorn hope, voiced the long plaintive uncanny help call of the great apes. With slowly increasing crescendo, it rose to a piercing wail that drove far and wide through the silent jungle.

BENNETT ASSAILS TRADE PACTS WITH U. S. AND JAPAN

Says King "Trimmed" in Deal Made at Washington

SPEAKS FOUR HOURS

Challenges Government To Produce Toronto Store

Ottawa, Feb. 11 (C.P.)—Prime Minister Mackenzie King today rejected the unqualified indictment of the government's policies and action in its four months of office delivered by Prime Minister Bennett.

The Conservative leader yesterday set in motion the debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne with a four-hour speech in the House of Commons and Mr. Mackenzie King had just time to start his reply before the closing hour cut short debate.

Assailing the Canada - United States treaty as a bad bargain for Canada, Mr. Bennett expressed doubts about the Japanese trade settlement. In addition he assailed the government's wheat-marketing policy and claimed the new deal was carrying on its business in a way calculated to lose money for the Dominion treasury.

In drafting the Speech from the Throne, he said, Mr. King had put words in the Governor-General's mouth, which were empty. This referred to the restoration of the control of parliament over expenditures and taxation. Parliament always had control and the former government had taken no action to relieve it-council for which parliament had not given it complete authority, the Conservative leader said.

Mr. Bennett denied the charge that his government had been "a government of one man." Mr. Mackenzie King repeat it. The Prime Minister went further and

ALBERT BAGDLEY KILLED WHILE SKIDDING LOG

12-Year Old Son Strives To Release His Father From Beneath Huge Log

Tragedy Occurs on Farm Near Latta Shortly Before Noon

PREPARING LOGS

Well Known Farmer Slips in Snow as Log is Being Rolled

Plainfield, Feb. 12 (Special)—Albert Bagley, 43-year-old Latta farmer, was instantly killed near here about 11:00 a.m. today when a three foot in diameter log crashed upon him as he apparently lost his footing and slipped as he was skidding logs on his farm. His son, 13-year-old son, Albert Junior, was with his father at the time and endeavored to free him from beneath the large timber, but without avail. When assistance arrived Bagley was dead. It was believed he was killed instantly. A widow and large family survive.

Mr. Bagley and his son drove a team of horses to the bush on the Bagley farm, north of here, early today, where they were assisted in skidding logs for the sawmill. The Bagleys had successfully loaded one large log onto the sleigh when the elder Bagley apparently slipped in the snow, losing his balance and fell under the timber to fall, pinning him to the ground, where his chest was crushed, resulting in practically instant death.

Dr. M. E. Walker, of Roslin, was called, but the unfortunate man had been killed instantly. It was reported that Provincial Constable Servant Thompson of the O. P. P. and County Constable Sullivan, of Tweed, investigated. The exact question of a possible inquest was not decided upon, but will be announced, the accident being purely accidental throughout.

Robbers Take $5,000 From Jackie Coogan And Betty Grable

Chicago, Feb. 12.— (CP)—Jackie Coogan and Betty Grable, motion picture stars, reported to the police early today they had been held up and robbed of $5,000 in jewelry and $50 in cash while driving to a hotel in the loop.

The loot included the engagement ring recently given Miss Grable by Coogan. She dropped the ring to the floor of their car but the robbers spotted the gem.

Grabbing her by the ear, he ordered her to turn over everything, "or I'll cut your eye out, Sadie," she told the police.

Albert Junior, hurried as fast as he could for assistance, but owing to the practically impassable side roads little Albert was unable to summon assistance in time to save his father.

The late Albert Bagley was a son of the late Albert Bagley, who with his father at the time and predeceased him many years ago.

LITTLE HOPE FOR RECOVERY

Brockville, Ont., Feb. 12 (CP)—Exhibition of two-months-old Margaret Shirley Mallette, severely burned about the head and body when the quilt covering her crib caught fire, was still unconscious here today. Her mother, Mrs. Wilfrid Mallette, burned her hands while attempting to save the baby. Attending physicians expressed fears the infant would not survive.

The child had been placed in a tinsel framed crib under an ultra violet ray lamp. Flames from an electric plate nearby might not escape. The quilt caught fire from the plate.

O'Donnell Case Adjourns to Thursday Morning

Says Expedition Necessary.

Throughout the world, Mr. King said, application of an oil embargo against Italy would be effective. The Canadian plan and this fact alone would be sufficient to recognize it as an official suggestion. It was significant to note that the republication of the letter by the republicans and a European war "are not decided."

It would be a dangerous step for Canada to take, Mr. King declared, in attempt to regulate a European war. Was that Canada's place at Geneva? he asked.

King Praises Trade Treaty.

The Prime Minister took sharp issue with the Conservative leader over the merits of the recent new American Trade Treaty. Mr. King said he believed the supplementary agreement "is one which will be productive of infinite good to this country. It does not have a wider application than that—it would include on the year of the world the economic nationalism and trade wars must end.

OTTAWA ACTION ON OIL SANCTION UPHELD BY KING

Premier Hints Sanction Might Have Started War in Europe

BENNETT ON TREATY

Ottawa, Feb. 12 (CP)—New information on Canada's much-debated position with respect to League of Nations sanctions against Italy was before the House of Commons today as debate on the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne continued.

Prime Minister Mackenzie King yesterday defended his government's action in repudiating the suggestion Canada was taking the initiative in moving for the application of oil sanctions against Italy and declared Dr. W. A. Riddell, Canadian representative at Geneva, had no right to suggest or vote for an oil sanction without previous authority.

When the Geneva representative made his proposal there was no word from Canada. Geneva a message was on its way to him directing him to take no stand.

The whole of Europe might be at war today if the Canadian government had not repudiated and disowned the Riddell proposal, Mr. King said.

Farm Life Breeds Women M.P.'s Say Ottawa Farm Life Leaders

Ottawa, Feb. 12.—(CP)—Farm cornmeal and prunes and beans for breakfast and a generous helping of fresh air will produce a smile, evidently breeds women politicians. And if there are those who wonder what it is to go to a farm to learn how much of everything—too much for any one good—Mrs. Black also spoke of her experience in running a saw-mill in the Yukon and the start of her political career.

Miss Macphail in a recent interview remarked "as far back as we can trace, my family has always been on the land. There is little about farming I cannot tell you."

DR. FAULKNER SAYS PATIENTS MAY CHOOSE HOSPITAL

Minister of Health Refuses Application Made by Kingston Council

Kingston, Feb. 12—At a meeting of the City Council held last night a letter was read from Dr. Faulkner, Minister of Health, stating that he was unable to accede to the request of the council. In his letter Hon. Dr. Faulkner said:

"It is a principle commonly held by the Sanatoria and Consumptives Hospitals in the Province of Ontario that no hospital or sanitorium receiving provincial aid shall refuse admission to any patient in need of treatment. Following the provisions of these acts it is not necessary for the patient to have the endorsation of the municipality in which he resides in order to secure admission to a hospital. Upon his receiving treatment in the hospital he is then, principally" in which he resides is liable for his maintenance in hospital; that is to say the patient is not restricted in his choice of hospital or sanitorium to one that is located within his own municipality.

"While there may be an exception or abuse of this procedure, on the whole it has worked satisfactorily and it is a principle which I am loathe to disturb as any alteration in the procedure would probably be open to even more serious criticism. For these reasons I am unable to accede to the petition of the council."—Kingston Whig Standard.

EX-CONVICT HELD FOR CONSPIRACY

Charged With Selling Bogus Bonds to Investment House

HAS LONG RECORD

Toronto, Feb. 12.—(CP)—Herbert Wilson, paroled San Quentin convict, charged with conspiracy to defraud in connection with sale of $100,000 worth of counterfeit bonds, was remanded in police court today until Feb. 18.

"I am asking no bail be granted for the present," Crown Counsel Cronyn counsel, said.

Toronto, Feb. 12.—(CP)— Herbert Wilson, a jewelry worker, then a preacher and finally leader of a gang that robbed small banks and banks in the United States west, was under arrest here today charged with conspiring to defraud a Toronto investment company of nearly $100,000.

The 55-year-old Wilson released from San Quentin penitentiary in California last June after serving several years of life-imprisonment for murder, was remanded yesterday at his London, Ont., home. Donald Ross, Toronto stock salesman, also was held on the same charge.

Holliday, police said, complicated Wilson in a plot to defraud A. E. Ames and Company by selling them 50 bogus $1,000 bonds of the Western State Utilities Company. The Ames Company paid over $49,000 to a man representing Wilson and Holliday, police said, but the money was returned when New York purchasers discovered the bonds to be fake.

Police said the intermediary acted in good faith in selling the bonds to Ames after he had purchased them from Wilson.

Hospital Bed - Jacket Figures in Testimony In Ravine Murder Case

Accused's Sister Swears Harry Eased Wife Who Wore Blue Jacket

ROGERS ON COLORS

Hospital Director Says Jacket Not Worn by Wife in First Week

Toronto, Feb. 12 (CP)—After contradictory defense and prosecution evidence among all the last minute submission of testimony ended this afternoon in Harry O'Donnell's trial for the ravine murder of Ruth Taylor last fall.

Address to the jury will open tomorrow morning and the fate of the 25-year-old filling station attendant almost certainly will be placed before nightfall in the hands of the twelve men who have been sitting in the trial for a week.

Last of the evidence saw crown and defence counsel in direct conflict over an important point. To refute Crown testimony from the slain girl's blue sweater had been found on O'Donnell's office chair, defence counsel for O'Donnell's sister to swear his wife was wearing a blue sweater when O'Donnell entered her in maternity hospital the day before the killing.

Matron and Expert Called.

To meet this declaration, the crown, which had entered its case yesterday, promptly reopened it and called Miss Rose Rogers, matron of the hospital, who said she was in Mrs. O'Donnell's room when Harry O'Donnell was there and heard him say the baby was dead.

Miss Rogers testified that Mrs. O'Donnell's clothes could not have been in the room when garments were changed.

Toronto, Feb. 13 (CP)—After calling witnesses for rebuttal evidence, the crown today at 12:42 p.m. rested its case in the trial of Harry O'Donnell, charged with the murder of Ruth Taylor. Court was adjourned until nine o'clock tomorrow.

Mrs. Bessie Back, maternity hospital director, today contradicted defense evidence that Harry O'Donnell's wife wore a blue bed jacket the day before Ruth Taylor was killed. O'Donnell, charged with murder, has testified that Mrs. O'Donnell had worn a blue jacket with white facings on which he saw blood stains from the dead girl's sweater.

Mrs. Back's evidence came after Margaret O'Donnell, sister of Harry, gave dramatic "surprise" evidence on the fifth day of the murder trial in the nine-day-old murder trial.

Miss O'Donnell said that Mrs. O'Donnell was wearing a sweater of any sort on Sunday, Nov. 24, the day before Ruth Taylor was killed.

"Oh, no," the elderly hospital director replied.

"When did she start wearing one?"

"It was a week after the baby was born." The baby was born on Nov. 2).

Mrs. Back was shown the blue bed jacket. At the time of O'Donnell's arrest she said she identified the garment was being kept in a club bag in another room.

Mrs. O'Donnell wore no blue baby clothes at the time, she said, but one in the pink garment.

Bed Jacket Not Customary.

Under cross-examination by Defense Counsel Frank Regan, the grey-haired witness said it was not customary for a maternity patient to wear a bed jacket in the first week after the birth of a baby.

There was nothing, though, she said, to prevent a patient wearing such a garment if the patient wanted to so. But, she added, her patients usually wore night attire in the first week.

"Have you never seen a husband put his arms around his wife in the first week?"

"Yes, I have."

Mrs. Back testified she had not been in Mrs. O'Donnell's room all the time O'Donnell was in the room the day before Ruth Taylor was killed.

Jacket Not Taken Out.

Questioned further Mrs. Back said the bed jacket was not taken out of the club bag all the time Harry O'Donnell was in the hospital. She remained until three days after.

DENY STATEMENT

Toronto, Feb. 13—(CP)—In reply to Conservative leader R. B. Bennett's demand in the House of Commons for an investigation of the Robert Simpson Company's payments of employees the following statement was issued by the company.

"The statement of the Hon. R. B. Bennett, as reported in the newspapers, reflecting on the Simpson Company's policy in respect to its employees and wages is incorrect.

"In the months of January of this year the Simpson Company paid more wages by over three per cent than in January, 1935, and a similar relationship continues in the months of February.

"As regards wages paid by the Simpson Company, the records have showed an increase of wages of over $600,000 more than the year 1935. The wages paid by Simpson's in 1935 aggregated over $6,000,000. Simpson's have always employed only union labor and have consistently paid the highest wages in the city.

RUNAWAY TEAM RUNS INTO CAR

Cecil Palmer, Frankford, Loses Control of Horses Near Village When Hauling Wood

Frankford, Feb. 12 (Special)— About 4.30 Monday afternoon a team of horses driven by Cecil Palmer bolted, when turning out of the wood lot, directly from Frankford on the Shirley highway. The horses in their mad run upset the sleigh containing a load of wood, injuring Mr. Palmer slightly and charged down the highway, crossing the Frankford bridge and ended their wild career when they struck a car which was parked on the Main street in front of J. M. Dafoe's Real Estate office. The car driven by Mr. Wiley of Brighton, traveller for Canadian Packers Ltd., was damaged to a great extent. The horses through sleigh and road gear

CONSTRUCTION WORK NEARS COMPLETION

Work on the construction of the new Dominion Meteorological Laboratory addition on East Dundas street, has been speeded up during the past week, and the building is now covered in the greater part by the roof. Carpenters are busy on the interior of the building and plastering will follow. The building has now been enclosed.

WORKMEN CLEAR ICE OFF INTERSECTION

Deep slippery ruts and heavy piles of packed ice were being removed from the intersection of Bridge and Front Streets today, by a force of about twenty men who have been engaged in clearing ruts for the past several days.

$34,800 APPROPRIATED FOR LAB EQUIPMENT

"Very encouraging," was the report of Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the Provincial Public Health Laboratory commenting upon the announcement in Toronto today that a sum of $36,800.00 had been appropriated for the new building addition to the laboratory in this city. This sum was part of the estimates passed by the House of Commons, providing appropriations to be applied to public works in Ontario.

"That sum will go toward further improvement of the building and for the equipment within it, it is very satisfactory," stated Mr. Baird, Chief Entomologist.

For the construction of a public building at Campbellford, a sum of $4,000 has been set aside in the estimates.

225 TONS SAND USED ON STREETS AND WALKS

Approximately 225 tons of sand and cinders have been used by the Corporation of Belleville so far this winter as anti-skid material on roads and walks, Superintendent of city to create more pedestrian and vehicular traffic in the city, it was revealed by city Engineer Chas. A. Mold today. A considerable quantity of this material has been provided by the department for private parties to spread on their own walks. During the late period of cold weather, when chlorides were used, mixed with the heated sand for use on hills and slippery intersections. The chlorides reduce the freezing of the ice and serve to protect the cinders and sand. About one and one half tons of this have so far been purchased.

A DEMAND FOR HELP ON FARMS

Farm help is still in demand even though heavy snow drifts are still heaped high in the rural sections throughout this district. It was reported at the local Employment Service of Canada office, an average of two and three positions are being filled every day. It was also further reported that wages paid at the present time average about $18 per month, with the promise in most cases of an increase at the commencement of spring work.

One request made for a helper was made in the letter of J. T. Hoss, superintendent of the office, shortly before nine o'clock last morning, that the owner who desired "a man right away". The request was expected to be filled

Obituary

JOHN FITZGERALD

After being in failing health for some time John Fitzgerald passed away at his family residence, 56 56 Bleecker Avenue, on Tuesday, Feb. 11th.

The late Mr. Fitzgerald was born in Belleville, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Fitzgerald. All his life was passed in the city of his birth and by all who knew him he was highly esteemed. For many years he was engaged in railroading being a locomotive engineer in the service of the International Railways. He was popular with his fellow employees and highly regarded by his senior officers in the service. For some time past he had been living retired. By many friends he will be greatly missed.

Surviving him are his widow, whose maiden name was Miss Catherine Doherty, two daughters, Mrs. E. Vian of Ottawa; and Mrs. James V. Boyle of Belleville; one son, Mr. Gerard Fitzgerald of Toronto; one half sister, Mrs. Jas. Wenning of Toledo, Ohio.

In religion he was a faithful member of St. Michael's Church, and fraternally he was a member of the Knights of Columbus, Loyal Order of Moose, the Catholic Order of Foresters and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

As a token of respect for the late Mr. Fitzgerald the flag at the Canadian National Station is flying at half staff.

The funeral announcement appears elsewhere in this paper.

ALBERT N. REID

The funeral service for the late Albert N. Reid, a former resident of Belleville, will be conducted in Toronto this Wednesday evening, and Thursday noon, the body will be conveyed from the Toronto station, Belleville, to the Belleville cemetery for interment.

MRS. ANN SANDERS (Brandon)

Brandon, Man., Feb. 12.—(CP)—Mrs. Ann Sanders, Brandon's only centenarian, is dead. Mrs. Sanders, a Scot, she came west more than fifty years ago, and is survived by four daughters, two sons and twenty grand-children. She died here during the week-end.

KIWANIS CLUB VISITS PICTON

35 Members Put on Fine Program Tuesday Evening

Community songs wholeheartedly rendered, special entertainment, in which there was little lacking during the evening, and a high spirit of fraternalism, marked one of the most successful inter club visits on the occasion of the visit of the Belleville Kiwanis Club to Picton last evening, where they were royally entertained by the Picton Kiwanis Kinsmen. The evening of fun and entertainment was held in the Globe Hotel.

Following a suitable welcome to their thirty-five Belleville guests, Clare Newman, president of the Picton Club who spoke on behalf of his fellow members, occupied the chair during the first part of the evening, giving a smooth presentation and introduction of the various features, some of which were vocal solos by Mr. W. Chase, guest; Jack O'Gorman of this city, and others. The chief highlight of the evening was the appearance of the "mystery quartette" composed of Belleville Kiwanians and who had as their song leader, Dr. W. C. Mikel. Several members of the quartette were unrecognizable, appearing one by one in an arie room, however, before the lights and false noses of the singers were cut short by the leader and the true quartette allowed to finish. Seven were present but only four were chosen. First to be eliminated was Jack McIntosh, who has hurried into the room by the leader and pungent cigar, appeared with much smashing of glass. Ross Silver succumbed to a knife thrust from a bevy carter, which was afterward displayed to the audience with its gory blade sticking. Cliff Baragar, past president, met "death" less brilliantly when he was shot with a (blank cartridge) loaded pistol, much to the delight of those present.

As chief speaker of the evening, the Rev. Robert Hall introduced by Earl Fry of the local club, in a stirring address called upon his hearers to recognize the challenge for good service clubs anywhere are expected to perform. He coupled his address with an outline of true inter-community spirit, and asserted that only through such fraternalism could the aims of any club be thus fulfilled.

During the latter part of the evening, Mr. Frank Domenico, president of the local Club occupied the chair handed him by the retiring president Clare Newman and gave a brief address in which he voiced his thanks for the splendid hospitality that had been shown him and his fellow members. A vote of thanks for the entertainment that had been provided by their visitors was expressed by Kiwanian Bert Tilley of the Picton Club.

The social night was concluded with community singing, and the presentation of a number of song books to the Picton Club by the local one.) Harold Sidery acted as song leader and Cliff Baragar took over the duties of Sergeant-at-Arms.

BARRIE PREACHES COURAGE TO MAN SAYS PROF. ROY

Intimate Lecture on Great Scots Literary Figure

Sir James Barrie, as portrayed by Prof. J. A. Roy, head of the Department of English at Queen's University, Kingston, became in the real figure to a large audience in the Y.M.C.A. on Tuesday evening under the auspices of the Greater Citizenship program of the Chamber of Commerce. Prof. Roy, who has been writing a life of Sir James, brought to his audience an intimacy with the great Scot which they will never forget. One ground for this intimacy of course rests in the fact that Prof. Roy was born in the same village Kirriemuir, which gave birth to Barrie.

In the words of the Professor Sir James fares well. Indeed the lecturer himself is himself an interesting study like the man as whose interpreter he has appeared in print. Speaking a captivating Scots accent and using a style that is perfectly individualist, the Queen's department head held his address rounded out one of the finest "lectures ever heard" in Belleville, for numerous were the expressions personality of Barrie, which Prof. Roy brought to the satisfaction and delight of his hearers.

Sir James Barrie, said the lecturer, is looked upon by many as only be his swan-song in drama, and will have Elisabeth Bergner, Sir Martin Harvey and other great English stars appear on the stage. Barrie is an interesting figure, he says.

Barrie is a delicate fragile little man said Prof Roy. "The last time I spoke to a letter from him was some months ago. The letter came from his secretary, saying Sir and she was not well.

High place was given the Barrie speeches, which are among his best work. Reference was also paid to his critical writings, his novels as well as his plays, from the first to the last. Duration for the work of the book he has been writing, Prof. Roy went through 93 volumes of diary, correspondence in the archives. Sometimes he said there were long parts of the world but no one has ever read to celebrate. He has a number himself and had given some away.

Barrie is difficult to define, according to Prof. Roy. The critics dread trying to define the drama what a fantastic parade he will lead! There is the great Shakespeare with his Hamlet, with his Macbeth, and that great host of characters, and the modern Bernard Shaw, Peter Pan, Capt. Hook, the crocodile with the alarm clock inside, such characters as only Barrie has created.

"Sir James Barrie has given us a new genre of literature. The man he most resembles in character is Charles Lamb. He is not like Shaw, he never attempted to boost himself."

A picture of Barrie before the Authors' Club in London, standing dressed in an ill-fitting overcoat, nonchalantly smirch and drinking coffee in the drill hall, was the picture that great city. He was detached. No one recognized him. He had finished his work and that was all.

A delightful story of Barrie who was guest at a tea party where also the lovely little Princess Margaret Rose, daughter of the H.R.H. The Duke of York, was told. The royal child nine years old, chatted with the great writer. Afterward Barrie received a letter from the child and then went to his flat in Adelphi Terrace and wrote a note to the Princess thanking her, and two days later received a note from Princess Elisabeth replying for her sister, Princess Margaret Rose. Princess Elisabeth wrote to know when he spoke of a royalty of two people on a play, and Barrie replied on the play as a whole or on the characters in the play. Prof. Roy said this was a happy augury for the princess who may some day rule.

Incidentally he mentioned that Barrie when he was living lived at one time in Adelphi Terrace and that Barrie when he wanted to call Bernard Shaw simply walked over the opposite. would shy bread crusts at Shaw's window. At that time Shaw was writing Saint Joan and Barrie would come over and visit and chat with Barrie.

Barrie has said that it will be no Wednesday, Feb. 19, 1936 Barrie will call comes, that he will be taken to Westminster Abbey. Thrums, (Kirriemuir) buried.

Prof. Roy speaking of the witchery and fantastic in Barrie told of his spoofing for ninety minutes the audience of the local school of Elon. "He has made himself a master of spoofing," said the lecturer.

An odd incident, mentioned, was typically Barrieque. Barrie had not seen an old friend for years. He saw him one day in a London street behind a tree and gave the whistle they used to give at home. His friend turned and Barrie was shaken.

Barrie has taught courage. His great address, delivered to students of St. Andrew's is a classic. Among his pieces is Captain Scott of the South Pole fame. Incidentally the professor pointed out that Barrie and Richardson had a definite creed to preach—that of courage—that may be summed up. They are not so popular in an age which is fed with stories which leave a flavor of cigarette butts and empty cocktail glasses.

If the tests of greatness of a novelist are the creation of atmosphere, ability to tell a story and the creation of character, Barrie is great.

Barrie indeed is like Kipling, and Stevenson—they all came on the scene with stories elevating courage as of supreme importance in facing life's problems. To them all life is a grand adventure.

It has been said that what makes style is not so much the words as the color the mind of the writer lends the words. That explains Barrie.

Barrie stated once that the longer he lived the more he was oppressed with the sadness of life and that he wanted to leave something of the spirit of courage behind him.

"He is the still small voice, but he plays on us with all the theatrical trickery.

The professor said Barrie had been criticized far too much of the sentimental. But he says that life is deeper than intellect. He has been called an escapist, and has been accused of dodging life's issues. But Barrie knows all about suffering and the arrow. He has said to get away from these things not because he is afraid of them, but in order to do something better for mankind. Barrie recognized some what Hans Andersen, the Danish story teller, both telling the story of those who "suffer and grow up."

Prof. Roy's opinion is "I think there is a place for this. We are suffering from too much mechanism. The world is too much with us. I believe there is a place for the Barrie doctrines. The older I grow, I soldes a change. I no longer read morbid literature. I want the simple things, the clean things. That is why I like to go back to Barrie."

Barrie has created a new type of heroine—the elfish type modelled on his mother. He has things that are not getting into Barrie today.

It is impossible to pin him down to any definition, he has that delightful quality, charm.
